New Tax Agreement Reached

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP)—After months of negotiations, Canada and Britain are reported to have reached agreement on a new measure to exchange tax concessions. But it is understood the new pact will not lower as much ground as the old double-taxation treaty terminated by Canada last year.

Informants said Tuesday the new measure, which may be announced shortly, covers tax liabilities of existing government and army pensioners, the transfer of profits by a limited number of companies, including those dealing in transportation, and transfer of royalties across the Atlantic.

But the two countries have not been able to reach agreement on taxes assessed on the interest and dividends of other companies and the tax liabilities of new government and army pensioners.

Under the old agreement, a Canadian civil servant or soldier could retire in Britain and be exempt from British income tax. The same privilege was extended to British civil servants and soldiers retiring in Canada.

The informant said this tended to bring a lot of superannuated Canadians to Britain.

Those who got this concession under the old treaty will continue to be exempt but new pensioners will have to pay the normal taxation in the country of residence.

Under the old agreement, interest and dividends from wholly-owned British subsidiaries operating in Canada were exempt from Canada withholding taxes. Such relief applied only to wholly-owned companies. British owners discouraged Canadian participation by their Canadian operations.

The United States, whose subsidiaries are subject to Canadian withholding taxes, complained this was discrimination in favor of Britain.

Canada then tried to interest Britain in amending the tax terms but when Britain showed no interest, Canada took the initiative in the new tax agreement effective Dec. 31, 1964.

As the situation now stands, interest and dividends of many British subsidiaries operating in Canada will have to pay full Canadian taxation before they can be repatriated. Most Canadian subsidiaries will face the same situation in Britain.

Canada Content In Pact

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is content with its arrangements with the United States which govern custody and control of American nuclear warheads at two RCAF bases in West Germany, officials say.

They say that the physical, mechanical and electronic devices involved in these arrangements, which also apply to other NATO nations in Europe, including West Germany, make absolutely certain that nobody can fly around with a nuclear bomb aboard.

Officials here are still scratching their heads over a recent Washington report "disclosing" that nuclear warheads are mounted on West German Starfighter bombers.

On Sept. 28, 1962, U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara said at a Washington press conference on his return from Europe:

"We stopped at the 50th U.S. Fighter Wing which maintains a constant strip alert of U.S. fighter aircraft loaded with, in this case, both nuclear and non-nuclear munitions.

"We visited the 33rd German Fighter Wing, also equipped with aircraft on the strip alert, in this case also loaded on the alert strips with nuclear warheads; these, of course, being in the custody and control of the U.S. contingent."

60-KILOTON BOMBS

American nuclear warheads, with 60 kiloton-power, on standby alert of 60,000 tons of TNT—have been stored at the Zweibrucken and Baden - Soellingen RCAF bases since last year.

They are firmly in the custody and control of American personnel and can be used only on the authority of the U.S. president.

Canada can decide on its own not to use the weapons, but it cannot decide on its own to use them.

Like the West Germans, the RCAF also flies Starfighter-six squadrons from these two bases.

A certain number of Starfighters at each base are on what is known as quick action alert. This status is necessary because the planes would have to get into the air quickly in an emergency to avoid being destroyed on the ground.

IN GUARDED PENS

The planes on quick action alert are in "pens" whose doors must be opened before they can take off. The pens and the planes are under armed guard. The pilots stay near the aircraft but not in them.

The nuclear bombs are slung under the planes but they are unarmed. Various mechanical and electronic devices which can be operated only by the RCAF's custody teams and the U.S. nuclear officer are among the safeguards which prevent.

Zambia Balks At Conditions Of British Offer Of RAF Aid

By GODFREY MORRISON

LUSAKA (Reuters) — Zambia today awaited the arrival of Commonwealth Secretary Arthur Bottomley of Britain on a mission to try to break a deadlock in plans to base a British military force here.

The deadlock built up Tuesday in negotiations between Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda and Britain's special envoy to east and central Africa, Malcolm MacDonald.

Britain Ready To Fight to Protect Power

LONDON (CP) — Britain will fight to protect the flow of power from the Kariba power plant is rebellious, white-ruled Rhodesia to the copper mines of neighboring Negro-ruled Zambia, Prime Minister Wilson declared today.

Wilson said Britain will take whatever action is necessary to protect the flow of power from the Kariba plant.

"If that did mean a limited military operation — we should be prepared to take that operation," he said.

Zambia Delegate Leaves

The Zambian, A. B. Mutemba, said later: "I could not stand the speech so I left."

Mutemba's walkout followed an appeal by the chairman, New Zealand's W. Blair Tennent, for African delegates advocating the use of force in Rhodesia to reconsider and not be in accord with those principles.

BRITAIN WON'T WORK

"If anybody assumes Britain is going in under pressure as the result of intimidation or blackmail to engage in a conflict of a military nature in Rhodesia, they are wrong for the consequences when the door can still be open for a peaceful solution to be is making a grave error," Shinwell said. But he warned:

"Britain is not only prepared to fight, if it is regarded as necessary to protect British nationals, but to lend aid . . . to anyone who tries to twist the lion's tail will make a great mistake."

Kaunda has called for British troops to be dispatched to Zambia, an independent Commonwealth nation, to protect its interests in the massive Kariba dam hydroelectric complex which the country shares with neighboring Rhodesia.

Zambia is dependent on Kariba dam power for its huge copper industry, the mainstay of its economy. Kaunda's requests followed the unilateral declaration of independence by Rhodesia's white-minority government Nov. 11.

After two meetings Tuesday night, one lasting 2½ hours, Macdonald and Kaunda failed to agree on conditions under which an RAF jet squadron would be sent to Zambia.

AGREES TO MOVE

Following days of speculation as to how Britain would react to Zambia's request, the cabinet in London agreed in principle Tuesday to send a squadron to Africa.

However, the conditions accompanying the offer — that RAF ground troops be kept away from the Rhodesian border and be used only on the Zambian side and that they remain under the strict control of the British—were unacceptable to Kaunda.

Botteogley, who was travelling by RAF jet, was expected to remain in Zambia three or four days.

British Prime Minister Wilson has stated several times that he will not use force against the Rhodesian regime, which British considers illegal.

ARMS DEVELOPS

Wilson had planned to go before the House of Commons Tuesday night to announce that the arms deal, the way, for the last-minute hitch developed, apparently over British insistence that the troops would be stationed only on the Zambian side of the frontier.

Some reports said Kaunda or some members of his cabinet insisted that the dam can be protected only if British troops are stationed on the Rhodesian side of the big power installation.

Some sources said Wilson had been reluctant to have British troops stationed on the dam because he feared incidents might occur accidentally that would increase the bitterness between the British and Rhodesian governments.

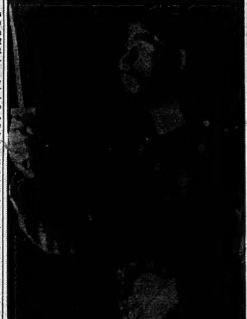
British government sources said Kaunda had no objection to the size and composition of the British force although it is believed to include RAF reconnaissance planes and a small infantry detachment.

Ian Smith Unworried By Troops

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Rhodesia's Prime Minister Ian Smith has shrugged off the prospect of British troops moving into next-door Zambia and indicated he would not take it as a serious threat to his breakaway white-minority regime.

In a television interview Tuesday, Smith displayed confidence that Rhodesia can weather any barrage of international trade sanctions.

Meanwhile, his government, slapping back at the economic curbs instituted by Britain, abolished the Commonwealth tariff preferences hitherto enjoyed by British goods coming into Rhodesia.



In the interview Smith said the flow of British troops to Zambia is a matter between Zambia's President Kenneth Kaunda and Britain's Prime Minister Wilson.

Asked whether the arrival of British forces in Zambia could be the thin end of the wedge, Smith replied:

"I do not take this one very seriously. I think Mr. Wilson has more common sense than to do this. He could never carry out this sort of British public is concerned. This sort of thing is a non-starter."

Asked about a reported statement that he would order Rhodesian forces to fire on British troops, Smith replied:

"If anybody violated our territorial sovereignty, under no circumstances could I order this—but this is an academic question."

Railroaders Hardest Hit By Technological Changes

OTTAWA (CP)—A labor department survey of declining occupations in Canada shows that railroaders are being the hardest hit by automation and technological change.

The department's latest research publication, Manpower Trends in Canada 1951-61, lists 20 occupations that declined during the survey period. Eight of the 20 were in railroading.

Biggest drop was among locomotive firemen who were down almost 50 per cent to about 38,000. This reflects the 1958 agreement, reached after two strikes, under which firemen were ruled unnecessary on yard and freight diesels but all firemen of that time were to be kept at work until they resigned or retired.

The number of mechanics and repairmen in railway carshops dipped by 23 per cent to about 12,100. The pens and the planes are under armed guard. The pilots stay near the aircraft but not in them.

The nuclear bombs are slung under the planes but they are unarmed. Various mechanical and electronic devices which can be operated only by the RCAF's custody teams and the U.S. nuclear officer are among the safeguards which prevent.

Also down sharply were tire and tube builders (36 per cent), textile weavers (49), blacksmiths and forgemen (45), Riveters (35), streetcar operators (78) and shoemakers (22).

Among the major construction trades, only carpenters showed a decline and it was minor. Masonry workers jumped 43 per cent and plumbers 26 per cent.

Bigger, faster trains cut into the ranks of conductors and locomotive engineers with conductors dropped about 10 per cent to 9,800 and engineers off 19 per cent at 7,700.

Brakemen and switchmen lost 26 per cent of their numbers in the decade, shrinking to about 12,000. Sectionmen fell 23 per cent to 23,000.

In this same period railway business increased significantly despite the fewer workers. Combined revenues of the CNR and CPR in 1961 were almost 20 per cent higher than in 1951.

On the CNR alone, the average number on the payroll dropped from 124,000 in 1951 to 99,000 in 1961.

Among non-railway occupations, the hardest hit were boiler firemen who dropped almost 40 per cent in 1961. This was due to mechanized methods of cleaning boilers, particularly in power-generating plants.

Fire Hose On Liner Severed

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Firefighting aboard the blazing Yarmouth Castle was delayed when a hose was found sliced off near a hydrant, a U.S. Coast Guard board of inquiry was told Tuesday.

"I suppose it was cut off with a knife," testified Staff Capt. Panigiotis Menegatos, second in command of the cruise ship which sank off the Bahamas Nov. 13 with a loss of 89 lives including two Canadians. "It was a clean cut."

Alan and Lynda Gillan of Mount Hope, Ont., were lost in the disaster.

Menegatos' testimony was the first firm hint of possible sabotage aboard the Yarmouth Castle, although it was learned last week that the coast guard was investigating the possibility of arson.

Questioned closely by Rear Admiral Louis M. Thayer, commander of the Seventh Coast Guard District and head of the inquiry board, the staff captain added:

"The hose was coiled. We pulled it out. I saw it was unusable so went to another one on the starboard side. There two hoses were the only ones I saw.

FIRE BLOCKED WAY

"By that time the fire practically blocked the way aft."

Testifying through an interpreter in his native Greek, the 36-year-old Menegatos said he had been on the Yarmouth Castle only 13 days when the disaster occurred.

Although he testified his job was to direct rescue operations, Menegatos said he had never participated in a lifeboat drill but had been shown how it was done by the ship's captain.

Canada Raising Aid To Hanoi

By FORREST EDWARDS

HONG KONG (AP)—Although China is constantly talks of greatly increasing its aid to North Viet Nam, official western observers in Hong Kong say there is no indication of any substantial increase.

These westerners, who have the job of trying to analyse Peking's actions and intentions for their governments, say there have been rumors of vast new movements of material from southern China to Hanoi but no substantiating information to support those rumors.

"Overstated," said one, "the best information so far available is that there has been no increase in materials."

There have been reports for several months of increased movement of military units and supplies in the southern third of the China mainland.

But most well-placed sources here believe this to be an internal realignment of Chinese units as a defensive measure and not preparation for movement of Chinese units into North Viet Nam.

While these sources admit they could be wrong, most say Peking greatly fears the possibility of U.S. bombing retaliation; therefore it will not send its units across the border and will avoid massive shipments of war aid as long as possible.

They do not discount the fact that Peking may eventually feel it must undertake greater participation in the Viet Nam war. But these sources say there is no indication that China has or is contemplating greater participation at this time.

Reports reaching Hong Kong indicate that the Chinese have needed up their military position all along the frontier with North Viet Nam. But these reports indicate the danger of direct Chinese intervention in Viet Nam will not become acute until the Vietnamese Communists appear to be definitely losing the war.

China Balks At Attending UN Arms Talks

PEKING (Reuters) — China will not take part in a world disarmament conference proposed by a United Nations resolution, a Chinese foreign ministry spokesman said today.

In reply to a reporter's question, the spokesman said China would not have anything to do with the UN or any conference connected with it until China's lawful rights in the UN are restored.

Race to Ocean Enters Final Stage as Seaway Closing Nears

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A 541-foot ocean freighter ran aground today in the Welland Canal, halting shipping now engaged in a race to clear the St. Lawrence Seaway before the official closing at midnight Friday.

It was understood tugs were called in to haul the ship, the Norwegian vessel Nipigon Bay, free from the east bank of the canal. It was not immediately reported how many ships have still to clear the canal.

The mishap occurred near Dere a lakes freighter was blown aground during weekend gales. Today's winds were steady at 20 knots, gusting to 30, said to be the critical velocity for ocean freighters.

All ships are expected to clear the Welland Canal by tonight. Earlier it appeared that all but one or two deep-sea vessels would reach Montreal before the whole seaway closes.

The Seaway officially closes midnight Friday, but seaway officials say locks will remain open on a day-to-day basis so long as ice conditions permit.

Only nine ocean-going ships had still to reach the Port Colborne, Ont., entrance to the Welland Canal Tuesday night, and eight of them had informed seaway authorities they expected to reach the canal before midnight tonight.

The Welland Canal joins Lake Erie and Ontario.

Nineteen vessels were awaiting downward passage through the canal Tuesday night with eight others being locked through as quickly as possible. The canal will remain open until Dec. 15.

It takes 48 hours for a vessel to travel the Lake Ambert Lock at Montreal from the Welland Canal, a Seaway spokesman said.

A pilot shortage at Cape Vincent, N.Y., at the Eastern end of Lake Ontario was causing problems. Officials there said pilots were having difficulty returning to the station after guiding vessels downstream to Montreal. Cape Vincent has a staff of 32 pilots.

No shortage of pilots was reported for vessels ready to continue down the St. Lawrence from Montreal.

Temperatures in the Montreal area were expected to be in the low 30s today and this could lower the water temperature to freezing point. The water temperature Tuesday night was 37 degrees compared with 34.5 a year ago.

Warning has been sent out to all ships' captains in the Great Lakes of the danger of ice forming in the locks. Each seaway spokesman said locks would be kept open as long as they were free of ice and ocean-going vessels were still in Lake Ontario, but it foresaw no difficulty "that could be trouble."

Four vessels were trapped by ice last year although the seaway stayed open until Dec. 7.

The spokesman said ocean vessels are not getting preference at Port Colborne, but are awaiting their turn with lakers. Seaway policy is to run the canal in one direction only if there is a backlog of ships but no preferences are given.

TORONTO (CP)— Some of Canada's top entertainers head for Cyprus this weekend to stage pre - Christmas variety shows for Canadian and other United Nations peacekeeping troops.

Gordie Tapp, versatile emcee of CBC-TV's Country Hoedown and one of the best-known radio-TV personalities in Canada, heads the group.

With him are singer Doug Crosley of Oshawa, old-time fiddle champion Al Cherney and magician Bob Downey of Windsor, Ont.

And there are girls of course: Toronto's Jean Christopher, 24-year-old actress who has become, almost unwillingly, a sex symbol; Danielle Darrieux of Quebec City—a star of French-Canadian TV; and the attractive Lumsbury sisters from St. Catharines.

The trip to the Mediterranean island is the fifth in a series of concerts for Canadian troops, initiated by the defence department. The 1961 group was headed by producer Ken Dalziel of the CBC.

Shows have gone five times to the UN emergency force in the Middle East, three times to European NATO bases and to Cyprus in 1964.

The entertainers and the 13-piece band of Toronto jazz clarinetist Phil Nimmons leave Trenton, Ont., Sunday and return Dec. 14. They will do six shows.

It will be the eighth overseas CBC show for Tapp and the sixth for Barbara and Joan Lounsbury, baton twirlers who went into show business professionally in 1960 because they were told we'd get lots of travel." They did, and have been to Europe, Japan, the Middle East and all over Canada and the United States.

During the tour our CBC will record the musical highlights of the shows for broadcast in a special one-hour radio show in Canada Dec. 26. It will include taped Christmas messages from scores of Canadian soldiers serving on the island.

The following executive was elected to guide the chapter: steering chairman, Gerald Joyce of Belleville; members Dr. S. B. Horne, Belleville; Miss G. Paters, Trenton; Mr. Thomas Lally, Belleville; Mr. Ivan Wright, Belleville; Mrs. S. W. Liberal Chief Convicted on Traffic Charge

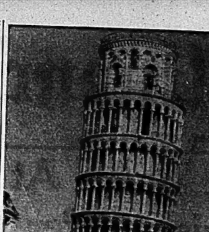
PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson of Ontario was convicted today of dangerous driving and fined $250 plus costs of $67.10, a month in jail.

A charge of impaired driving was dismissed. Charges of careless driving and failing to share the road were adjourned until Feb. 7 at the request of defence counsel, J. J. Robinette.

Mr. Thompson was charged after an accident here Oct. 6 in which two cars were in collision. The driver of the second car, Mrs. Dora Sandercock of Harwood, Ont., testified earlier she was westbound on Highway 28 when Thompson's car "pulled over to my side. . . ."

She said the accused vehicle pulled from a line of traffic and came directly at her. She braked her car and pulled to the shoulder of the road.

In an early November court appearance a defence witness testified that Thompson received a light-to-moderate concussion in the crash. The witness, Dr. W. D. Blastorah, said the concussion would make the accused appear impaired to police.



Constable Gordon MacKeen testified Nov. 10 that he spoke with Mr. Thompson at the scene of the accident and the accused "had a hard look and, both while standing beside his car.

He said Thompson fumbled through his wallet in search of his driver's licence and could not find it although it was clearly visible to two police men. He said the Liberal leader staggered in the police station.

Under cross-examination the constable said Thompson responded to all police questions and his speech was clear.

Two Prisoners, Said Dangerous, Escape Jail

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP)—Police are continuing the search today for two prisoners, described as dangerous, who escaped from Perth County jail Tuesday night after threatening two guards.

Police said Harry Hancox, 37, and Bruce Meredith, 30, both of Hamilton, removed floor boards from their cell, and crawled under the floor to a room where they surprised two guards.

A jail official today confirmed a report that jail officials and police had received a police warning earlier that the two men might be planning an escape.

The official said special precautions were taken each time the men were brought into magistrate's court.

Police said Meredith and Hancox Tuesday night took keys from the guards after threatening them with an iron bar sharpened at one end.

They locked the guards and three prisoners in the cell block and used the keys to walk out the front door of the jail. Both prisoners were in prison garb. Meredith was wearing a beard.

Meredith and Hancox were awaiting trial on charges of possession of stolen goods. Meredith was sentenced at St. Catharines three weeks ago to four years in penitentiary for theft and then brought to Stratford to face the possession charge.

First Cubans Ready to Fly To U.S. Refuge

By MICHAEL ARKUS

VARADERO, Cuba (Reuters) The first 93 Cubans to take part in a two-year airlift to the United States of an estimated 100,000 refugees gathered here today for the flight to meet relatives already in the U.S.

But first the refugees had to pass inspection by U.S. health and immigration officials flying in on the refugee plane, the first American commercial airliner to land in Cuba since June, 1963.

The flight will be the first of nine a week. They will take two years or more to evacuate the 100,000 who are ready to leave behind almost everything they own in Cuba in order to join their relatives.

About 300,000 Cubans already have gone to the U.S. since Fidel Castro came to power in 1959.

Permission Was Granted Says Witness

TRENTON — A charge of taking a motor vehicle without the owner's permission, brought by the Crown against 18-year-old James Charles Spence of Trenton, was dismissed by Magistrate J. R. Willis in Trenton court yesterday, after a Crown witness, Miss Kathy Anne Wyrsma disputed evidence of another Crown witness, Joseph Gould Jr., (the owner of the car in question) by telling the court Mr. Gould had given Spence permission to take the car.

Magistrate Wills said that the conflicting evidence brought about a situation where reasonable doubt entered into the picture as to the accused's guilt on the charge.

Spence, who was driving the Gould car on the night of October 17 when it was involved in an accident on Gilmour Hill, was fined $200 on a dangerous driving charge, after the court heard evidence of a police chase through town at speeds exceeding 70 mph. Spence was also said to have been drinking. The magistrate prohibited Spence from driving anywhere in Canada for an 18-month period.

On Monday, Ronald Rexford Heim, 18, of Frankford, charged with attempting to take a boat from the Red Lion parking lot on September 25th, told the court he was an alcoholic, and could not recall anything about the episode. Heim, whose reputation was vouched for by Chief Constable Ed. McGeachey of Frankford and Rev. Fred Spring of the Full Gospel Tabernacle of Frankford, told the court he spent $15 to $20 a week on liquor previous to the September 25th incident, and said he has since joined the A. A. The case was enlarged for one week.

No Election In Brighton This Year

TRENTON — There will be no municipal election in Brighton on this year.

Last night, the following persons qualified to fill the vacancies on town council: Frank Pearsall, Charles Watt and Howard Sharpe.

Positions on the school board and the hydro commission were filled by acclamation Monday night at the nomination meeting.

Two new Centennial projects were announced last night, additions to Brighton public school and East Northumberland Secondary School, with completion of the projects scheduled for 1967.

COUNCIL CONTEST

At Frankford last night, five of the seven men nominated to run for four vacancies on the village council were elected. Wm. F. Rose, Harry Wickson, Leonard Reid, Carman Mikel, and Clark Huffman.

The school board was acclaimed as only three of the four nominees qualified: Douglas Montgomery, Edward Sykes and Neil Roote.

Reeve Leonard Moran was acclaimed for another term at Monday night's nomination meeting as was the hydro commissioner, George Montgomery.

TRENTON — The Trenton Junior Chamber of Commerce will stage a "Meet Your Candidate" night on Thursday evening, Dec. 9, starting at 7.30 p.m. in the community gardens.

Rotarians Told New Residents Play Big Roles

TRENTON — In a speech before the Trenton Rotary Club Monday night, Councillor Paul Tripp, the chairman of the industrial and economic development committee with Trenton Council, told the Rotarians that it was "hogwash" to think only "wealth-the-wool" Trentonians could contribute to the community or assume a leading role in town activities.

As a case in point, he named George Kempf, the vice president and general manager of Trenton Industries Limited in Canada Ltd., an American by birth, who, since coming to Trenton only a few years ago, has come president of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, is on the board of all Dunes, St. George's Anglican and has, for the past year, formed a part of Councillor Tripp's committee. Mr. Kempf is also a member of the Trenton Lions' Club.

Another member of council's industrial committee is Wilfred Wilkinson, a relatively new member of the community, Mr. Wilkinson, an accountant, also has a great interest in area Scouting activities, and represents the Separate School Board on the Trenton Board of Education. Mr. Wilkinson is a Rotarian.

Mr. Tripp said that the town's crying need was for more locally-owned industries. Only three of the 20-odd local industries are owned by local men or firms.

SUPPLY PROBLEM

There is little effort on the part of local suppliers to break into the market of supplying local industry, said the councillor, and there is a difficulty in getting maintenance service by local firms.

Declaring there is and will be a great demand for skilled workers, Mr. Tripp said local vocational training facilities should be closely allied with the needs of local industry.

In order to be prepared to accommodate prospective industries, Mr. Tripp said, the council had acquired 32 acres of industrial land on the west side of Sidney Street. This area is fully serviced, and town owned areas which would do not industry could easily be serviced, he said; particularly a particular 80 acres of land which straddles Highway 401.

The committee has met with builders with a view to having a factory building erected which could house a number of smaller industries. The space could be sold or rented to the manufacturers.

The O.M.C. Boats building, vacant for several months, could be available for a larger industry, as it contains more than 100,000 square feet. This building has been registered with a number of agencies with a view to selling it or renting it for the owners and providing Trenton people with jobs.

In conclusion, Mr. Tripp outlined steps his own committee is working in conjunction with other committees such as the parking authority, has taken to revitalize the downtown business area, Mr. Tripp said this must be done. The main objective was the decline and decay of the commercial area, and this, he said, constituted a good percentage of the town's assessment.

The survival of Trenton as an industrial and commercial entity depends upon people like you," he told the Rotarians.

OFFICERS NAMED

The Trenton Police Association met this week to elect new officers for 1965-66. President is Constable David Camp; vice-president, Constable Herb Chatterson; secretary-treasurer, Constable Mark Holden.

The association will hold its annual turkey shoot on Saturday, Dec. 4, starting at 1 p.m. at Quinte Machine and Repair on the Frankford Road. Proceeds go to assist the officers in supplying Christmas baskets to needy families.

Jews in South Africa Irked By Aspersion Against Loyalty

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — South African Jews have reacted angrily to statements in a pro - government newspaper questioning their loyalty to the country.

The Afrikaans - language weekly Dagbreek, in a political column, suggested that the average white Nationalist (pro-govt) party supporter felt he could not be relied on if South Africa had to be "defended to the last ditch."

The reference was to possible attacks on this country in protest against its race segregation policies.

Dagbreek said the Nationalists felt the Jews were not well disposed toward Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd's party and its apartheid policy of separate development for whites and non-whites.

The South African Jewish Board of Deputies upheld the right of Jews in this country to hold any political beliefs they wished, as individuals and not as a common group. Its statement said:

"It will be a sad day for South Africa if any citizen, whatever his language or religious or cultural affiliation, will be required to prove his loyalty to the republic by having to support a particular political viewpoint or racial ideology.

FALLACY DANGEROUS

"It is a dangerous fallacy to suggest . . . that failure to agree with the policies of the political party in power is equivalent to disloyalty to the country. We should be approached as citizens, not as Jews."

An opposition member of Parliament and former mayor of Johannesburg, Hyman Miller, condemned Dagbreek's article as an insult.

The South African Jewish Times in an editorial asked: "Why pick out 'The Jews?' "

The controversy stems in part from an earlier article in the Jewish Times in which editor Leon Feldberg asked: "What is spoiling South Africa's image abroad?"

Source Says Queen Gives Wilson Advice

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP)—Queen Elizabeth is described by a qualified source as a discerning, highly experienced ruler who, on occasion, has been able to tender advice to Prime Minister Wilson instead of receiving it from him.

This informant, who cannot be identified but who speaks from a position of knowledge, suggests also that occasionally Wilson has used Buckingham Palace as a sort of refuge, clothing himself in regal support as armament against dissident factions within his government.

This intimate glimpse of the Queen as more than a silent and compliant symbol of authority was disclosed to shed a more balanced light on a spate of British press reports suggesting there is a special working relationship between the once shy sovereign and her round-table - chat adviser, now moving into the second year of a still tenuous hold on the seat of power.

SOCIALIST MINISTER

Those engaged in the daily activities of the court wondered how the Queen, raised in an environment of conservatism and great wealth, would be able to relate her ideas with those of her first socialist prime minister, a grammar school product whose party preaches social revolution and industrial nationalization.

The fears of an ideological clash between court and government were, however, soon dispelled.

SAME GENERATION

Age also helped make the two figures politically compatible.

Elizabeth was 38 when Wilson took over the helm of government at the relatively young age of 46. Ever since she ascended the throne in 1952, her prime ministers had been elderly Conservatives: Winston Churchill, Anthony Eden, Harold Macmillan and Alec Douglas-Home. Their approach generally had been one of father to daughter. Wilson could approach the Queen as one close to her own age group.

But the informant suggested there is more here than age and personality. Wilson was a fledgling prime minister; the Queen had been on the throne for almost 14 years. She had gained great insight in the affairs of state. Through her travels and her ability to absorb information, she had become politically astute. On occasion she provided Wilson with advice and the informant said Wilson was glad to get her suggestions.

While details of the Queen's suggestions were not disclosed, it was intimated that the first steps Wilson took on Rhodesia resulted from his talks with Elizabeth. Usually these talks between the Queen and the prime minister last about 30 minutes. On one occasion, when Wilson returned from Salisbury late in November, court aides were surprised to find the audience lasted for 70 minutes.

Another element in Wilson's unusual relationship with the Crown is that he does not always see eye to eye with his deputy, Economics Minister George Brown, the man Wilson beat in the 1963 Labor leadership fight.

ROYAL ALLY

Whatever subtle differences still remain between these two men, the Labor cabinet now is well aware that on some controversial issues, which might split the cabinet, Wilson can call on the Queen for support. He has an ally at the palace.

The determination with which the Queen approaches the affairs of state were described as similar to that of Queen Victoria and Elizabeth's father, King George VI. Both Victoria and George VI held strong views and showed strong wills After one encounter with his socialist minister, Clement Attlee, George VI wrote in his diary that he told Attlee he did not give the people confidence that this Labor government would not stifle private enterprise.

During the Second World War, when Churchill decided to cross the Channel on D-Day, the King put his foot down. Churchill did not go.

Among the published reports about the Elizabeth-Wilson relationship is one suggesting Wilson sees the Crown as a vital force in British politics, using it but being too shrewd to try to cheapen it.

SILVER TONGUE

Matthew Coady, writing in The New Statesman, says Wilson can be as great a flatterer as any of his predecessors, but he also is a dazzling expositor—a born teacher. He has been able to instruct the young Queen and convince her of the value of his ambitions for Britain. The Queen, industrious and intelligent, has been able to make full use of the elaborate arrangements to keep her informed.

The old royal inclination to restrain Labor politics is on the wane, Coady suggests. The royal guard had been changed at last. To which the Tory-supporting Evening Standard adds a postscript in a political cartoon showing that the Queen's trade mark has been firmly planted on Wilson's door.

Says Private Owners Could Cure CN Ills

OTTAWA (CP)—A commerce professor from Queen's University who specializes in transportation economics said Tuesday there is nothing wrong with the CNR that private enterprise couldn't cure.

Prof. J. L. McDougall said the publicly-owned railway, a chronic money-loser, ought to be sold to private interests to remove it from the political pressures that are responsible for loading it down with money-losing services.

Speaking to a meeting of the Ottawa branch of the newly-organized Canadian Transportation Research Forum, he said he had been trying to interest investment houses in a proposal to offer to buy the CNR for $50,000,000 down and the balance in debt bonds.

He added that he has had no takers yet.

Prof. McDougall, 65, argued that the privately-owned CPR has been able to operate profitably in competition with the government line and even because of the spur of private enterprise.

"The CPR has a gun behind them," he added. The same kind of gun could turn the CNR into a money-maker as well.

Prof. McDougall appeared before the Turgeon royal commission on transportation 30 years ago as a paid witness for the CPR.

CPR-FLIGHT EXECS

He said the CNR now has a "first class executive core" that is doing the best job it can under government control. But it just wasn't possible for them to turn out the same efficient product because of the problems inherent in public ownership.

His purchase offer would involve only the CNR system west of Quebec. The Maritimes section would be left in government hands, apparently because even the professor cannot see a chance of turning a profit in that region.

Prof. McDougall also emphasized that the offer would not involve assuming the CNR debt. That would be left with the government as well.

Declining U.S. Beef Herd Means Firm Prices Here

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The livestock outlook in the United States indicates continuing firm beef prices in Canada and demand for western feeder-class cattle.

For the first time in seven years, the national U.S. herd is declining and may total about 106,000,000 head next Jan. 1, says information given at the annual Farm Outlook Conference here. This would be a reduction of 1,000,000.

"Cattle prices next year will probably continue favorable," says a document forecasting the same trend for pork and lamb. "Fed cattle prices likely will stay strong and average about the same to slightly higher than in 1965."

Usually, Canadian beef goes up or down with the movement in the U.S. industry which is 10 times as big.

The outlook for 1966 is that producers will start rebuilding their herds, reducing cow and calf slaughter to resume taking advantage of high prices and firm demand.

There was a sharp increase last spring in prices for feeder cattle which need to be fattened for the table. It has been pretty stable ever since and imports of Canadian cattle reflect that fact.

IMPORTS INCREASE

For the period ended Aug. 31, imports of Canadian cattle and calves totalled 200,000, compared with 84,700 a year earlier. Imports of dressed beef and veal from Canada during the same period were doubled at 35,900,000 pounds.

Most of the Canadian imports this year have been the heavier classes ready or nearly ready for the table.

Another factor keeping feeder-class prices firm is an abundance of cheaper feed and pasture. A strong seasonal price rise expected this winter may stimulate demand for Canadian cattle further unless the Canadian price level rises enough to keep them for home use.

The U.S. market acts as a floor price for the Canadian industry and if Canadian prices get above the U.S. level, imports of American beef into Eastern Canada pick up.

The U.S. anticipates total live cattle imports this year of about 700,000 animals and Canada might supply half. However, while this is well above the 1964 export of fewer than 200,000 cattle and calves, it is well shy of totals for 1961 and 1962 approaching 500,000 head.

Bail Money For Brig. Raised At Supermarket

OTTAWA (CP)—Hundreds of Ottawa shoppers unknowingly helped put up $4,000 bail for the former vice - quartermaster-general of the Canadian Army.

The circumstances that allowed Brig. John Baxter Allan free on bail a few hours after he was arrested Saturday, Dec. 5, 1964, came to light at the 11th day of the brigadier's trial.

He is charged with accepting advantage or benefit to a value in excess of $5,000 arising from payment of hotel bills, for merchandise and transfer of shares in Levy Industries Ltd.; from Morris, Mark, Edward and Benjamin Levy, directors of three Levy companies doing business with the government.

Gilbert Bradley, accountant at an Ottawa branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, told how the bail was raised.

Brig. Allan, 51, was arrested at his Ottawa home on the Saturday. He was told his bail was $4,000 and passed this information on to his lawyer, R. K. Laishley. All banks were closed but Mr. Laishley reached him, Mr. Bradley told the 12-man jury.

There was a time lock on the branch's vault but the manager "went to a nearby Steinberg's supermarket, where the customers of ours—and raised the $4,000 in small bills from the cash registers."

CALL LEVY

Ben Levy, executive vice-president of Levy Industries Ltd., Tuesday became the 20th witness called at the trial.

Crown Attorney John Cassells entered in evidence, after—they were identified by Mr. Levy, several bulky files containing copies of "invitations to tender, contracts" and other documents dealing with transactions between government agencies and the Levy firms.

Mr. Levy identified another file as copies of letters exchanged "between myself and my brothers and Brig. Allan." This file "came from our office."

Earlier Edward Rogerson, an accountant at the main Ottawa branch of the Bank of Montreal, identified cheques signed by Brig. Allan and drawn on his account. They were for sums of $5,000 and $858.98 and payable to Morris P. Levy and F. H. Dearon and Co. Ltd., respectively. The latter is a Toronto investment firm.

There was earlier testimony Tuesday that Brig. Allan exercised options to purchase 100 shares of Levy common at $8.50 a share June 6, 1961, and 1,000 shares at $11 each in April, 1963.

Old Age Brings Benefit Of Pleasant Memories

By HAL BOYLE

But there is a single door one may open without fear, confident of what lies on the other side. That is the door of memory. As the years pile up, for most of us it becomes an increasing pleasure to open that door more often and take a restful mental stroll back down time's past corridor.

You've had a pretty long walk in that corridor yourself if you can remember when—

Every fat man thought he looked slimmer in a vest and a double-breasted jacket.

A fellow never had to borrow money from his wife for his week - day meal if he worked near a saloon that served a free lunch.

You knew a girl was ready for matrimony when she started learning how to knit a pair of men's socks.

Anyone who had to have a blood transfusion worried about whether it would cause him to assume the personality of the donor.

The owner of a new automobile didn't mind a scuff or scratch on the fender as much as he did a tear in the car's linghaus curtains.

Few women doctors had male patients. A man was afraid to go to one of them for fear of what the neighbors would think.

AROUSED OVER BATH

Children in a large family argued over which had to go first in the regular Saturday night bath lineup. Each one wanted to put off the ordeal and be last.

The thrill of a lifetime was to become the fist kid in your block to catch the measles.

Some wit in your graduating class was sure to write in your high school annual: "In your golden chain of friendship consider me a stink—I mean link."

Nobody wrote under water because no one had yet invented a pen that could do it.

People drank more buttermilk than skim milk.

It was firmly believed by common folk that all high society ladies carried lorgettes.

The best friend of boyhood was the neighborhood fireman. He would always let you eat the cold chips that fell on the floor of his wagon.

You knew the girl loved you if, when you took her to the local movie, she said, "Now, don't waste your money buying two sacks of popcorn. I can share yours."

Those were the good old days. Remember?

"Do-gooders" on Reserves

The missionary and pioneering spirit of the Company of Young Canadians and the U.S. Peace Corps is unwelcome on Indian reserves. That is the message stemming from the latest round of discussions among Indians seeking to improve the lot of their people in Canada.

The fact that some of the "do-good" types from outside the reserves are free-lance types with beards and scruffy clothing makes it understandable why Indians resent this kind of intrusion.

Kahn-Tineta Horn, Montreal model and organizer of the "Iroquois Speaks" conference in Ottawa at the weekend, warned that beatnik-like university students were forever trespassing on reserves to question Indians about their morals.

"They are so disappointed when they find out we are not dirty and disease-ridden," said Miss Horn. She suggested the visitors might start with their own morals first.

The young Mohawk woman was echoing comments made at Carleton University's recent Indian Week.

Allen Jacob, of Alberta's Cold Lake Reserve, told the Carleton audience that "do-gooders" only create more division and confusion on reserves. And Tom Pelletier, publisher of The Thunderbird, an Indian monthly, added that student field workers who forced themselves on the Indian were paternalistic.

"What do you think you can teach us?" he asked.

The comments were a reaction to remarks by Pat Uhl, 22, of Cincinatti, who said students have an obligation to help Indians whether or not they are unwelcome. Miss Uhl and eight other University of Saskatchewan students worked on provincial reserves this summer.

To Mr. Pelletier's question, "what do you think you can teach us," the answer could be "lots." At the same time the Indians first and foremost want to be treated as equals. There is understanding on the part of the white Canadian, the Indian himself must be prepared to contribute. However, another question that must first be answered is, does the Indian wish to remain on the reserve indefinitely, or does he wish to take his place in the white man's world?

Before any co-operative plan for the advancement of the Indian population can be put into effect, questions like these must be answered. How strange it is to realize that such issues have been largely solved in other countries. We are thinking primarily of New Zealand, where Maoris and whites for all practical purposes live and work side by side.

$400 Million Loss

The All Canada Insurance Federation has given the reasons for next year's increase in auto insurance rates. It points out that the total cost of accidents in the past five years has gone up three times as fast as the number of cars which must provide the money to pay for the accidents.

Since 1960, says the federation, the cost of claims has been climbing at an average of $40 million a year. This year's insurance bill for accidents will total $400 million.

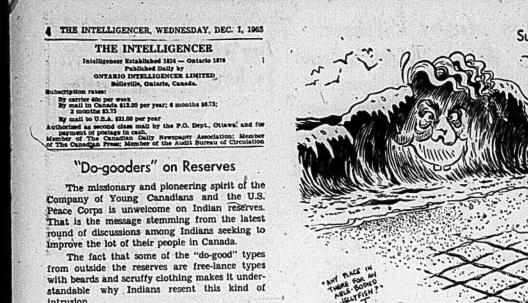
Each accident costs more than it did five years ago—the result of more expensive and luxurious cars, increasing costs, higher medical expenses and compensation for time off work or lost income.

An "average" accident last year cost $810, a jump of $40 in only five years.

The federation reminds the public that even good drivers have accidents. Eighty per cent of all accidents are caused by people who have driven three or more years without an accident. That is why safe rates go up for every accident driver—even the good driver.

Drivers with a three-year-accident-free record, however, will still earn a 35 per cent discount off basic insurance rates.

Tipping and All That



Although some countries have abolished it, the practice of tipping is one that is deeply ingrained in society. If tipping were dispensed with universally, as it has been in say, New Zealand, society might be all the better for it. Certainly it would rid people of the embarrassment of wondering just how much they should tip in any given circumstance where service is involved.

The French have a nice idea. While they have not abolished tipping they have evolved another, more agreeable system involving "Smile checks." These come in books of six, and as explained by travel writers Shirley and Bob Sloane you give one to each person who has been extra nice to you.

The nicest people in France at the end of the year, the Sloanes point out, win trips to Tahiti, cars and other means of getting away-from-it-all.

The more we think about it, the more we like this idea. If we must have rewards for service or for courtesy, what better system is there than this?

Penicillin Protects From Rheumatic Fever

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please tell me something about rheumatic fever in a small child. What is the treatment? What precautions should be taken afterwards? Will my young son grow out of it? — Mrs. C. D.

Rheumatic fever is caused by the streptococcus germ — the type which causes strep throat. It can make the child (or adult) tired, along with pain in joints and tenderness of the abdomen in many cases.

But the most serious attack occur when the illness inflames the mitral valve of the heart, scar tissue forms, and the valve can become seriously damaged.

Worse, yet, a child does not "grow out of" this heart damage, and he doesn't develop an immunity. He can get rheumatic fever over and over again, and in fact a patient who once has had it is more likely to get it again. And each time there is the likelihood of further damage to the heart.

Treatment basically involves antibiotics to suppress the strep germ, plus care to see that the heart is not overtaxed — it's not always possible to tell immediately whether the heart is involved in a given case, so the best rule is to assume that it may be.

Precautions afterwards? Positively yes! Strep throat (well, let's say any sore throat) should be reported to your doctor at once. But better still, take steps to prevent any further attacks by the germ.

This, fortunately, can be done by giving regular injections (about once a month) of a long-lasting, slow-release type of penicillin.

Doctors, nurses, everybody in the health professions, all are vigorously alert to the danger of rheumatic fever, and many organizations (health departments, American Heart Association, and other groups) have waged campaigns to educate the public.

In spite of all this, we still have rheumatic fever, and still have victims turned into invalids because of damage to their hearts. We still have deaths resulting from it, sometimes quite a few years afterward. But sometimes patients can be restored to health by heart surgery.

The one way we have of preventing this heart surgery is to try to discover every case of rheumatic fever the first time it occurs, and then see to it that the proper penicillin is given for at least several years.

Sad to say some parents do this thoroughly understand why the drug is given. After some months they think that Johnny must be entirely over his rheumatic fever and they stop going back for the shots. Or they move to some other locality and don't find another doctor to continue them.

Yes, Johnny may be over his rheumatic fever — but he is in danger of getting it again any time he encounters the germ, which is quite common.

The penicillin, given in this manner, doesn't prevent him from picking up the germ, but combats it instantly, and suppresses it before it can propagate and cause a new attack of the fever.

Dear Dr. Molner: As time passes I notice a decrease in natural vaginal lubrication. Is this normal or could it be related to my having had a hysterectomy? — Mrs. O. S.

The secretions usually decrease with the years, and the answer is artificial lubricants or hormone therapy. The hysterectomy had nothing to do with it.

Strictly Personal

Six Elements Involved in Heart Disease

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Intelligence, says Thomas Aquinas, is "the art of combining and separating." Because most of us do not bother to combine and separate ideas properly, we often create a new problem for every old one we try to solve.

Our most common mistake is to seize on one factor or element of a problem, and to take that for the whole problem; then when that fails (as it must), we try to solve another. We do this in everything, from politics to personal care, from the handling of money to the handling of children.

One striking example is our recent concern with the high rate of heart disease in the U.S. We keep searching for "the cause" — right now the culprit is high level of serum cholesterol in the blood — and fail to recognize that no single cause can account for it.

Many Americans believe that by eating polyunsaturated fats, they lessen their chances of a heart attack. But this is only one factor in heart disease; to others, like stress, or only factor, is to become a blind fadist, and to separate ideas that should be combined.

At least six elements are involved in heart disease: heredity, high blood pressure, total blood fat level (commonly and inaccurately called "cholesterol count"), excessive cigaret smoking, overweight, and physical inactivity. ("Stress may be a factor but it cannot be measured.)

All these factors are additive, and no one or two alone can usually bring on a heart attack. Eating fewer calories won't help if you are not at the same time physically active. Mere exercise alone won't help, if you still eat a fat and put on weight. Eliminating cigarets won't help, if your diet remains unbalanced.

But it is easier for us to emphasize only one strand than to weave them all into a strong and sensible pattern. We go from an "aversive kick" to a "slow-motion kick" to a "spoil unnatured kick" to a "sugarless - and - fatless kick," when we should be getting off all kicks and combining these elements we have foolishly separated.

Basically, the human animal seems to have a nearly inexhaustible yearning for simple answers to complex questions. This is what makes doctors despair, and drug merchants delirious with prosperity. We are looking for the magic pill, the sorcerer's potion, the kiss that will transform us from frog to prince. And there is no scarcity of promisers who promise this to us.

"A causes B" is a proposition in logic, not in real life. In real life, B is caused by A and C and D and X, working their forces together. As long as we refuse to use our intelligence in combining ideas, we shall be victimized by one inadequate idea after another, to the end of time.

Autos Choke N.Y. City

Christian Science Monitor

It takes more imagination than most of us possess to picture a time when the automobile shall have become obsolete.

But it is not so difficult to see a period ahead—perhaps in our near future—when the private automobile may be barred from the use of downtown streets in the crowded cities. Anyone who has attempted to drive crosstown in New York City on a business day might make its use unreasonable. As lights change from red to green and back again, a person waiting in the long line of stalled cars feels a strong urge to abandon his vehicle and walk.

Yet he has probably been among the millions who have helped produce this situation by pampering the automobile. He has not doubt voted appreciative of bond issues for more superhighways bringing more traffic into the city.

Now he may be seeing things in a new light. Transportation experts are telling the public it is time to stop favoring the automobile as is done by subsidizing expressways. One of these experts, Prof. Dick Netzer of New York University, proposes charging car drivers new or stiffer tolls for the use of bridges and tunnels leading into Manhattan. This would certainly discourage use of cars by many people and help to ease the flow of traffic.

A more satisfactory answer from the motoring commuter's point of view, however, would be to improve public transportation. But to give comfortable seats to all rush-hours, to provide air conditioning and good heating, and to end long waits in the cold would be costly. Without initial help these comforts might be more than public bus, subway and train systems could provide. But they will have to be offered if Detroit and the American suburbanites will voluntarily buy commutation tickets and take the train or bus to work. Because driving is the American hobby.

Hamilton Spectator

Defence Minister Paul Hellyer addressed to Waterford District high school recently, to the scene of his own classroom days. He told the boys and girls that Canada 25 years from now will be a completely bilingual and multicultural nation. He also said there will be at least 50 million Canadians, most of whom will be making more money than ever (the average income, he said, will be twice what it is today) and spending far more, too.

Civil Servants Leave Midnight Oil for Politicians to Burn

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — A lot of people involved in politics are looking a bit hectic here, even if other people are not.

Because Parliament is not sitting, the civil servants have practically gone on summer hours. It has become difficult to find them in their offices after 4 p.m. — just as it is difficult to find them there between noon and 1:30 p.m.

But, just because Parliament is not sitting does not mean some things are not going on — things somewhat removed from the public eye.

For example, our new members of Parliament are bracing themselves to face a new session of Parliament.

The bracing is not easy.

This could be just a list of the promises Liberals made during the election campaign. But that might not do.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker has already announced he will go after the government, with the intention of putting forward a motion of non-confidence based on promises his party made during the campaign.

He is still pressing for a raise in the old-age pension and income tax deductions for municipal taxpayers. If these items are not in the Throne Speech, they could form the basis of his motion.

So, his people are busily working out outlines of speeches he might make on subjects such as this.

NDP DILEMMA

And there is Tommy Douglas, trying to figure out how he can support the government while trying to present himself as a person in favor of the electors the Tories are making in favor of the taxpayers.

Real Gazette is probably spending his time in search of a way to buck the Liberal government while looking pro-French, and Bob Thompson is still trying to find out whether or not he will be named to the Cabinet.

It really is a busier time than most people think.

As a matter of fact, it is something like a crossword puzzle in that only three-quarters of the clues are provided to two-thirds of the competitors.

The Liberals still are not sure they can command a majority in the Commons when it meets.

The Conservatives, hanging it up all over the place, are not sure they can find the right words to win the support of the minor parties.

The NDP, the Socreds and the Creditistes, despite their claims of glory, are not at all sure they really do hold the balance of power, because they are not sure to just which party they should give the power.

Their problem is, of course, that if they do it the wrong way they may find themselves, along with the other parties, facing another election which they do not want because they cannot afford it.

So that leaves the headquarters people and the top brass with a lot to think about these days, in addition to what they are going to buy their wives for Christmas.

COALITIONS?

Perhaps they will decide upon some coalitions. The Creditistes with the Liberals? Creditiste External Affairs Minister?

No? Then how about Socreds with the Conservatives? Thompson for Defence Minister in the shadow cabinet?

No? Perhaps Tommy Douglas and Bobby Thompson providing John Diefenbaker with the proper mixture of left and right to form a middle-of-the-road government which would satisfy all of the people all of the time?

That's enough? OK. But maybe it is obvious now why all the parties are having problems these days and are keeping their lights burning long after the civil servants have gone home.

The results of the last two minority governments were not happy ones, and there is no party but one which is very happy about the results of the last election.

The exception is the NDP, which improved its standing in the House and therefore stands a little bit apart.

But that still leaves a lot of political scurrying about, trying to determine just where they will stand come January 18.

So let them scurry — the civil servants are unruffled.

Mr. J. O. Herity completed 25 years of service as industrial commissioner and manager of the Chamber of Commerce on November 30th. Ten of those years were years of one of the greatest depression Canada has ever experienced. There was almost no industrial movement during that period but Mr. Herity in the years of his engagements here, has brought six industries to Belleville. They are worth, at a low valuation, more than $2 million annual payroll to the city of Belleville as a civic asset.

Rail Links With Ottawa

Brockville Recorder and Times

While the service is fine for residents of Brockville going to Smiths Falls or Ottawa, or residents of Ottawa coming to Brockville, people between Ottawa and Cornwall wanting to ride by train to Ottawa are finding the service a testy sub ject.

The daylinер leaves here for Ottawa at 7.50 p.m. and people arriving from Kingston and points west on the CNR's 8 p.m. train must wait in town 24 hours.

The CPR hope sto scrap the service. Brockville and all the communities between Cornwall and Oshawa should be prought ing their briefs to justify continuing and increasing the service.

The country's capital is one place that should have good rail connections with all sections of the country. Preparations for the public hearing should be made now.

Donalda, with holdings in the area, was up 2 to 48½ cents.

BLOW OWN TRUMPETS

FULFORD, England (CP) — The citizens of this Yorkshire village are bidding for fame during the impending celebrations of the 900th anniversary of the Battle of Hastings. They want the world to know it was the heroic defence of their community which led to the defeat of Harold Hardrada of Denmark, who invaded England a few weeks before William of Normandy.

Excessive Drinking Is Major Problem In Teaching Eskimo White Man's Life

By JOHN McLEAN

INUVIK, N.W.T. (CP)—When the Eskimo called Danny pulled up a chair he talked like a man who wanted to get something off his chest.

It was obvious the beer he brought to the table wasn't his first of the day, but the chip on his shoulder didn't show at first.

"You want to know about the Eskimo? Well, Danny can tell you plenty."

Then Danny laid it on the line: "You get paid for writing this stuff, so you pay Danny now."

Fortunately, Danny isn't typical of the Eskimo, but unfortunately there are enough like him to establish excessive drinking as one of the major problems of the North.

It turned out that Danny had been laid off his job a few days earlier and, being broke, he had figured he might make a few money out of a visiting reporter.

His main problem seemed to be keeping a job and looking after a wife and nine children who share a three - bedroom house with his parents and a couple of brothers and their children. Total: 19.

The encounter with Danny took place in late afternoon, but somehow he managed to hang on at the beer parlor until close to midnight when he staggered home.

COUNCIL TACKLES ISSUE

Problem drinking was one of the main issues tackled by the Northwest Territories council during its winter session in Ottawa last February.

A study paper prepared for the meetings said consumption of alcohol "has assumed alarming concern in the last five years." It recommended individual treatment for problem drinkers after steps are taken to bar them from buying liquor at territorial stores.

At that time, Commissioner B. G. Sivertz said the sale of overproof rum, available in some places in the North, was the main cause of drunkenness among the natives.

"Delta Indians and Eskimos apparently did not realize that the potency of overproof rum meant incapacity twice as fast," the commissioner said in a paper prepared for the council.

But not everyone agreed with the commissioner. Elected council member John Goodall questioned against banning the sale of overproof spirits. "If I voted for it, I could wrap myself in the Red Ensign and it still wouldn't save me from mayhem," said the 76-year-old former postmaster from Fort Simpson.

POSES MAJOR PROBLEM

Drinking, of course, is only one of the problems facing the government and local authorities in their efforts to teach the Eskimo the ways of the white man. But it is a major one.

Vocational centres in the main settlements are well-equipped to prepare young people for various trades.

The schools, too, are more than adequate considering the wilderness conditions which crouch on the very outskirts of this town on the Mackenzie River delta, 50 miles south of the Arctic Ocean, and the other communities sprinkled across the 1,300,000 square miles of the territory.

But modern housing, job-training and new opportunities to earn a living don't always provide the bridge between two worlds.

The wife of a northern administrative officer told about a young Eskimo who took a job at Churchill, Man., instead of going home between terms at his vocational centre.

"His first pay cheque was about $117. I advised him to open a bank account with $100 and keep $17 for himself. That was on a Thursday. Saturday night he was down at the beer parlor buying drinks for everybody. I smiled to myself, thinking how clever I was about the whole affair. At least he'd still have that."

U.S. Farmers Find Lone-Wolf Attitude No Longer Tenable

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. farmers are learning that if they are to survive in this age of fast-moving technology and keen business skills they must abandon the "lone-wolf" attitude that long has marked American agriculture.

This awareness that growers must abandon extreme self-reliance and join hands with neighbors to strengthen their position in today's competitive economic system is being demonstrated by the farm co-operative movement.

A farmer co-operative is a business enterprise organized, owned and controlled by farmers' members who have joined together to provide themselves with bargaining power in the marketing and processing of their products, as well as in the purchase of supplies and services.

While farm co - operatives have been in existence in the U.S. for more than 40 years, it is only in recent years that they have begun to make a major impact on the farm production and marketing scene.

The great bulk of U.S. farmers belong to one or more co-operatives. This is an important accomplishment from the standpoint of the leaders who have been preaching for years that the individual farmer cannot go it alone.

CO-OPS UNITE

But recognition that there must be a joining of hands is showing up further in moves being made by co-operatives to join with one another to help strengthen the position of the individual co-operative.

In this connection, the U.S. agriculture department's farmer co-operative service reports that more than three-fourths of 7,876 local farmer co - operatives were affiliated with 97 members of one or more regional co-operatives last year. Furthermore, almost three-fifths of the 755 regional co-operatives were members of at least one other regional co-operative.

In other words, not only farmers but their co-operatives, are finding strength in union. They, like giant retailers, are finding they get lower prices

3 Sentenced To Life Terms By Cabinet

OTTAWA (CP)—Death sentences have been commuted to life imprisonment for Matthew Kerry Smith, 25, Joseph Pblisz Oscar Letourneau, 57, and Leopold Bellis, 45, the cabinet announced Tuesday.

All three had been convicted of capital murder.

Smith shot and killed 55-year-old John Blanc July 24, 1964. The man chased Smith after a holdup at a Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce branch in the Toronto suburb of North York.

He was convicted at Toronto last May 19 and two appeals, to the Ontario Court of Appeal and the Supreme Court of Canada, were subsequently dismissed. He had been scheduled to be executed Dec. 8.

USED BOMB

Letourneau was convicted of killing Charles E. Baillergeon of Montmagny near Quebec City Aug. 13, 1961, by placing a home-made bomb in Baillergeon's jeep to get revenge over a land transaction. Appeals were rejected and he had been scheduled to be hanged Dec. 10.

Dion killed 13-year-old Pierre Marquis near Quebec City May 26, 1963, during the course of a sexual attack. Three other youngsters were killed by Dion in the same vicinity and in similar circumstances during the month before the Marquis killing.

He was convicted at Quebec City Dec. 13 and appeals were denied. He had been sentenced to die Dec. 2.

The announcement noted that regulations deny parole for a person whose death sentence has been commuted "without the express direction of the governor-in-council."

The last hanging in Canada took place Dec. 11, 1962, in Toronto when Ronald Turpin and Arthur Lucas were executed.

The latest commutations bring the total to 20 since that time. Several other death sentences were reversed by appeal courts.

'TWAS 24 DAYS BEFORE CHRISTMAS.....

When all over town
People hurried and scurried
Some wearing a frown.

Soon the stocking would hang
By the chimney with care
But what to put in them?
We feel such despair.

The children were nestled
All snug in their beds,
What to buy? Where to shop?
Buzzed through our poor heads.

Mom with her list
And Dad pressed-pressed
Had just settled down
Not too enthused.

When out of his chair
Dad arose with a clatter
Mother, surprised, said,
"What is the matter?"

The light from the lamp
Lit the floor below,
Where Dad dropped the "Intell"
His face all aglow.

Then to my wondering eyes did appear
An ad in the paper that made it all clear.

As rapid as eagles our ideas all came,
We whistled and shouted as we checked off each name.

Mixed Opinions In Tea Ritual Matter

DEAR DORIS: I am surprised at your instructions, at a large social function, for a person pouring tea to put sugar and cream in before the tea.

Have you ever heard of the expression "MIF" — (e.g. "Milk In First)? It is used in a derogatory sense — "She's MIF" — meaning that her manners are not first rate. You should read Nancy Mitford's widely read book, published in England and elsewhere about ten years ago. I can't recall its title, but it brought the expression "U" and "Non-U" into language.

"It relates to those that are "U" (i.e., upper class) and "Non-U" (not upper class.) It states that in English society one only adds milk and sugar after the tea, and points out that only nannies and working staff or people lacking in the niceties of manners are MIF, or put "milk in first."

DORIS CLARK

Obviously this book reflects a snobbish view; but it does point out what is acceptable, and what not, in English upper class society.

At a large function, such as the 50th wedding described, I think a person is better advised to avoid possible criticism and use the more mannerly custom of putting tea in the cup first. Don't you agree?

I enjoy your column. — B.N.

DEAR MRS. U: I have consulted about six authorities and find that opinion is divided. At a large function it would certainly serve to eliminate confusion if one were to pass the cream and sugar to guests who already hold a cup of tea — aside from whether one custom was more mannerly than the other.

In Canada we conform to British customs in some things; in others we follow our neighbors to the south. And that may be our dilemma here. Would readers care to comment?

DEAR DORIS:

1. I am 19. I weigh 120 pounds, and am four feet 11 inches tall. Will I grow any taller? How can I look any taller?

2. I have a crush on a boy and two weeks ago he took me out. That night he asked me for a date the next night and I agreed. Unfortunately he did not turn up. Now he is gone back with his steady girl friend. Should I try to win him back and how? — WAITING.

DEAR WAITING:

1. My tables say you are ten pounds too wide. Slender down and you'll look taller. Nature may still help a little, but your best bet is to wear straight, un-fussy styles, high heels and a high hair do.

2. Give up on the date-breaker; he could be a heart-breaker.

Confidential to ASHAMED: You have been taken advantage of, and your nuisance is now counting on you being ashamed and keeping quiet. To prevent there being any next time (when something worse could happen), you must have the support and protection of an adult who loves you. Remember that you are not at fault. Either tell your mother or go to your local family agency and talk it over with the social worker there.

Couple Observes 25th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Preston marked the occasion of their 25th anniversary by having dinner at the Tweedsmuir Hotel, Tweed, accompanied by their grandmother, Mrs. W. Malone and grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Preston of Belleville. The senior Mr. Preston, who is in his 90th year and Mrs. Preston thoroughly enjoyed the events to mark the event.

Upon arriving back at the Thomasburg I.O.O.F. hall found that around 125 relatives, friends and neighbors had gathered to celebrate with them on this happy occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Preston was presented with a corsage of pink carnations and Mr. Preston with a white boutonniere by their daughters. All enjoyed an evening of dancing.

At Midnight, Mr. Paul Kennedy called the gathering to order and asked the bride and groom of 25 years to come to the platform.

At this time Miss Carol Coulson read an address and presented the honored guests with a brown leather platform rocker and matching foot stool from the family, a green platform rocker and floor mat to match, pole lamp, sewing chair and wool blanket from other relatives, friends and neighbors and a beautiful quilted blanket from Mr. Preston's employers at Crown Cleaners, along with many other assorted gifts.

Although taken completely by surprise, Mr. Preston expressed thanks and appreciation to everyone, especially to those responsible for the arranging of the surprise party in their honor. Mrs. Preston also spoke briefly and expressed sincere thanks for the many lovely gifts.

Catholic Nuns Get Home In Don Mills

TORONTO (CP)—A cloistered order of Roman Catholic nuns here is planning to vacate its 100-year-old monastery.

The Sisters of the Precious Blood were granted permission to go ahead with the planning of a new monastery in suburban Don Mills.

The new 10-acre site, with its tree-lined driveway, large orchard and greenhouses, will be in quiet contrast to the crowded cramped premises on St. Joseph Street in downtown Toronto.

The present monastery, with only a tiny garden at the back, was purchased in 1886 for $10,000. Several additions were made to it over the years.

The Sisters of the Precious Blood, founded in St. Hyacinthe, Que., in 1861, formed the first cloistered community of its kind established in Canada. During the last century it has spread to various parts of Canada, the United States, Italy, Japan, Cuba and China (until the Communist take-over).

Toronto was the first branch established when six members of the order, headed by Mother Catherine Aurelia, came here in 1863.

The sisters' work has changed during the years to meet new needs. At first the emphasis was on sewing, fine embroidery, handpainting, the making of church and altar supplies and printing—all of which they still do.

Today the community provides altar breads for use in all the churches and chapels of the archdiocese of Toronto and half of those within the diocese of St. Catharines.

The sisters' latest undertaking is the printing of the new Mass and Breviary Guide, made necessary by recent changes approving the use of English in liturgical prayers.

The Experts Say

If You Want Child to Read, Then Read Books Yourself

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP) — If you want your children to read, make sure books are available and attractive and set a good example at home by reading books yourself, says a Montreal librarian.

"And when offering a book, don't say "Here's a book you should read," but talk enthusiastically about two or three of your books," says Joyce McRae, librarian at John Grant high school in suburban Lachine. "Always give the child a choice."

Mrs. McRae, a native of Peterborough, Ont., and graduate of the McGill University library school, says the child should be taken to the library where the librarian can help select "the right book for the right child at the right time."

She says that while working in a public library she discovered that children have decided tastes in books by the time they are four; that even if the child cannot read he knows what he wants read to him.

"If the child doesn't want to read a storybook he might like to browse through a book that will give him pointers on a hobby he's interested in."

Books related to television shows the child likes would also stimulate reading interest.

Mrs. McRae says "exciting sounds and words and rhythmic poems with repetitious refrains" appeal to very young children because they "are aware of voice tones before they are aware of word meaning and like the soft-sounding words in lullabies."

"When they start to learn the meaning of words they like the same phrases repeated over and over."

PICTURES IMPORTANT

Colorful pictures that set off the text were important in choosing a book for young children.

Mrs. McRae says her favorite among the many excellent nursery rhyme books the parent can read to the youngest of children is Marguerite De Angeli's beautifully-illustrated Book of Nursery and Mother Goose Rhymes (Doubleday).

"Mrs. De Angeli knew what children liked. She had five of her own and she used to sit in the playpen and let the children run freely around her so that she could learn them away from her paints."

Children as young as 18 months could enjoy Margaret Wise Brown's "Goodnight to the Moon," a book in which a little rabbit says goodnight to his chair, his red mittens and finally to the moon and the star flickers on familiar objects in his bedroom.

After children know a few words they enjoy simple books without story plot, Mrs. McRae says. The text usually brings them to books like Lois Lenski's stories about Papa and Mama Small, the objects in their house and Papa Small's automobiles.

Three- and four-year-olds like Margaret Flack's "Ask Mr. Bear." a simple story about a little boy who wonders what to buy his mother for her birthday, she says.

"Every child knows about birthdays and Christmas and can appreciate Danny's problem. And since the story tells how Danny solved the problem, they find it satisfying."

LIKE NONSENSE

Children over four like stories where there are nonsense animals like Leopold the Seal. Through Crumbpicker who is invisible and adores eating vanilla cookie crumbs.

"Between four and six children's imaginations are vivid and I often wonder if they can distinguish fact from fancy."

MADOC — Madoc Catholic Women's League held a successful tea and bazaar in Sacred Heart Parish Hall, last Wednesday afternoon. Receiving the guests at the main door was the president of the League Council, Mrs. Joseph Foley, assisted by the past president, Mrs. Francesa Foley.

There were many tables, which included the home bake table, with Mrs. Joseph Kehoe, Mrs. Fred Bosley, Mrs. Stewart Roy and Mrs. Wilfrid Foretell in charge.

The fancy work booth had many colorful aprons, embroidery, cushions, knitted sweeties, socks and numerous knitted items. Conveners were Mrs. Charles Bonhamer, Mrs. Philip Rivers, with Mrs. Frank Barry, Mrs. Fred Cassidy and Mrs. Selder as assistants.

The touch and take table was in charge of Mrs. Leo Welch.

Those pouring tea from the other churches were Mrs. James Pitts, and Miss Lamoine West from St. Peter's Presbyterian; Mrs. Perry Bronson, representing the United Church and Mrs. Tracy Carmody of St. John the Baptist Anglican Church. These ladies were assisted by Mrs. James Cox, Mrs. Fred Stewart, Miss Olive O'Riordan, Mrs. Charles Thompson, Mrs. Wm. Hall, Mrs. Wilfrid Foretell and Mrs. Thomas Kelly of Stoco, the Diocesan representative.

Ladies in charge of preparing tea were Mrs. Catherine Mahoney and Mrs. Ryan.

The quartet guest tables were covered with white luncheon cloths and centred with glass containers holding gold and yellow 'mums.

The doll table with various wardrobe apparel was in charge of Mrs. W. M. Mahoney. The candy table and flower table was looked after by Mrs. Thomas Lindall and Mrs. John Lindale. Mrs. Donald Foretell was in charge of the sale of Christmas cards and jewelry.

College Girl Now Coroner In New Jersey

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP)—A shapely blonde co-ed has started a three-year term as coroner with visions of running for the United States Congress in the future.

"This is an ideal political office for a college girl," beamed blue-eyed Janet M. Bond prior to being sworn in as Mercer County coroner. "Already I've met a lot of people I wouldn't have otherwise."

Classmates introduce her to their parents as: "My friend, the coroner. . . ."

On her first night home for the U.S. Thanksgiving holiday she was invited to address a Girl Scout troop.

She's received a bundle of mail from around the country, including congratulatory letters from prominent national politicians.

Janet became something of a celebrity recently by polling 54 votes for a landslide victory over 34 other write-in candidates.

She clinched the election with a mimeographed letter campaign from Mount Holyoke College in Massachusetts urging the people back home in Princeton to take an interest in their election day by casting a write-in ballot for her.

One of her major preoccupations since the election has been trying to figure out just what the coroner's job entails.

"If 135-year-old state law requires her to bury shipwrecked people who wash up on the shore, sell their clothes at public auction and watch for more ships.

Her father, a physicist, has been assisting in the research.

FATHER HAS FUN

"He's been having more fun than anybody in the world reading all the law books and uncovering all kinds of minute trivia," she said.

"If the shipwrecked victim is found nude, I have to provide the grave clothes. But I'm not allowed to spend more than one dollar for them."

For the most part, she confided, coroners in New Jersey don't do anything; particularly in Mercer County where the only whipsaw could be on the shore of the Delaware River where ships seldom pass by.

For some time Mercer County's governing officials have tried to persuade the legislature to erase the coroner's office from the books on the grounds that it is outdated and the county medical examiner has taken over the only essential duties. But the title remains and enough voters are aware of the position to keep it alive.

Although the position pays no salary, has no real duties and no patronage, Janet, a 21-year-old political science major, doesn't discount its political value.

"I think deep down every political science student would like to be in Congress some day," she said. "One way to get there is by winning elections."

But above all a certain amount of time should be reserved for family life, when parents can help mold the lives of their children during their formative years.

Wor. Bro. C. E. West introduced the speaker and Bro. Fred Beckett thanked him.

S. W. Spafford, Wife Married Fifty Years

A community-sponsored party tonight at Aikins United Church and a family get together Saturday will mark the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley W. Spafford, 2nd concession of Sidney township.

The couple were married December 1st, 1915, at the bride's home in Belleville, and have lived since on the Spafford farm homestead.

Mrs. Spafford is the former Alice Bell of Thurlow township, but has lived in Sidney since a young girl when her father became cheesemaker at the Sidney factory.

The couple are former schoolmates, were in the same class at school and completed their entrance together. Mrs. Spafford went on to become a public school teacher before she married.

STILL WORKS FARM

Although, as a labor-saving move, he has switched from a dairy herd to beef cattle, Mr. Spafford still works the 107-acre farm which the family bought just 100 years ago.

Mr. Spafford shares work with a neighboring farmer for more economical utilization of expensive farm equipment.

The couple have both been active in Aikins United Church, where, for many years, Mr. Spafford acted as Sunday School superintendent. He also acted as cheese factory president for a few years.

Mrs. Spafford has been active in Women's Missionary Society work, having served as president of the Presbyterial and also the Bay of Quinte Conference, stretching from Oshawa to Smiths Falls.

Honoring the couple on their anniversary, dozens of cards and congratulatory messages are pouring into the Spafford home. Among them are a scroll from the provincial secretary and a message from Hastings West MLA W. E. Sandercock.

The couple have two children, a daughter Ruth (Mrs. Len Van Ostenn) of Belleville and a son Gordon, a civil engineer in Winnipeg. There are four grandchildren, who, although they will not be present for the anniversary, will come east with their parents for Christmas.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Great day when your little adventurer pulls himself up for the first time. But getting up is easier than backing down. At first he'll probably hang on to the playpen, sofa or whatever, for dear life. After you come to the rescue a few times to ease him down gently, he'll get the idea and learn by a drop-down on his own. When he finds the plop really doesn't hurt, he'll practice his "pullups" with relish. Play even take a stab at a step before letting go.

Appetite Incentives. Gerber Strained or Junior Meats are just the thing to make your baby's appetite rise to the occasion. They're savory with intense meat flavours, have a nice mealiness and texture that babies find oh-so-appealing. To help your baby grow, they're an excellent dietary source of protein. Beef, Chicken and Veal in both strained and junior varieties, Chicken & Veal in strained only. Wonderful eating!

Tasty tempters in the vegetable department: Carrots, Green Beans, Squash, Sweet Potatoes. Like all the Gerber Baby Foods, each is "custom-cooked" according to the requirements of that particular vegetable.

Explanation division. There's a good reason why Gerber "custom-cooks" your baby's foods. It's because different foods require different cooking times. While some foods can be flash-cooked in a matter of seconds, others must have longer heat treatment. In all cases, cooking time and temperature are scientifically controlled to suit the nature of the product. It's this kind of extra care that makes Gerber Baby Foods so extra-special.

Safety patrol. As your baby gets more skilled in the art of handling himself upright, you'll have to make doubly sure that anything possibly harmful is not reachable. Examples: (1) If your inquisitive one does a pull-up via the coffee table, a darting hand could light on a cigarette lighter. (2) Be it crib, car, overhead mobile can be mighty tempting . . . should be high enough to be out of harm's way. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Mother's Helper

WHAT does daddy come home to? At our house he used to come home to the inside confusion of four muppets at dinner, then squealing baths for all, and the rassel of bedtime. A friend suggested I do a little planning! Now I bathe the children before their father comes home and have them in their PJamas—sometimes even fed. This gives him a chance to play with them, and I'm freer. We have our dinner after they're tucked in bed, or quiet in front of TV, it's heaven! Hope it helps you! (Suggestion from Mrs. Geo. Weldick, Cleveland, Ohio.)

HOT CORNED BEEF SANDWICH

Another easy hot lunch sandwich — this time it is corned beef plus cheese. The sandwich is dipped in an egg-milk mixture, French toast style, and fried or baked.

A dandy feature of this hot lunch sandwich is that it may be prepared in advance. Indeed it is improved by advance preparation.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Curried Tongue (see Tues.); Barley Casserole (see Tues.) or Fluffy Boiled Rice; Cole Slaw; Baked Apples with Top Milk; Tea.

CORNED BEEF DIPWICHES

10 slices crust-on white or whole wheat bread, mayonnaise, 5 thin slices process or Cheddar cheese or ½ cup cheese spread, 1 12-oz. can corned beef (chilled — see below), 2 eggs, 2 teaspoons prepared mustard, 2/3 cup milk, butter.

Arrange the slices of bread on your counter in a double row of 5. Spread half of them thinly with mayonnaise. Cover remaining halves with cheese —either whole slices of process or Cheddar or cheese spread. The next layer is sliced canned corned beef. (I bought corned beef packed in Canada, if you can find it in Australia and chilled it thoroughly before slicing.) Top with remaining bread slices and press down firmly. In a shallow bowl beat the eggs and add the mustard, mix well and stir in milk. Dip the sandwiches in this egg-milk mixture until all is soaked up, turning them over once or twice. Melt about ¼ cup butter or margarine in large frying pan and brown sandwiches on both sides and serve hot. Lovely with cranberry or apple jelly.

NOTE:

The baking treatment for this lunch dish will appeal to busy mothers. After you wash the breakfast dishes proceed as above but instead of dipping the sandwich in the egg-milk mixture arrange the sandwiches in buttered shallow baking dish, in a single layer, cutting them in halves to make them fit neatly. Pour the egg-milk mixture over all evenly and let stand in refrigerator 1 or 2 hours, when all of the liquid will be soaked up. About 20 minutes before lunchtime dot top with butter bake at 375 deg. Fahr. until set and golden. If it is not golden brown raise it up to within 4" of heated broiler burner — but watch it! — until bubbly and golden.

Designer Goes to 1930s For His 1960 Collection

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP) — Young designer John Warden admits his inspiration came from an era he can't possibly remember, but his acquired feeling for the 1930s was effectively interpreted in his spring '60 collection.

The 25-year-old native of Niagara Falls, Ont., suggested the '30s in feeling or in fabric throughout his Vanity Fair collection for Auchie Santh of Montreal, previewed for the press here Tuesday.

The shoulders were wider, the jackets long with low, loose belts, and the starkly tailored suits and coats demanded two-color spectator style laced oxfords.

All costumes were modelled with wide brimmed hats of straw or felt. The white, black, yellow, red, navy and carmel sailor brims were worn over tightly fitting bands that matched the ensemble.

Most of the suits and coats were set off by blouses with floppy bows that either filled in a low neckline or grew out of a higher one. These pastel blouses, usually in silk, had long sleeves and French cuffs.

COATS SEEN FIRST

The show opened with three "wrap-up" coats that looked like a combination of the bath robe and the trench coat. Shown in navy, red and grey wool, they had patch pockets, tab-button shoulders, low wide fabric belts.

Many of the coats—all with narrow lines—had architectural seaming. This use of double seaming was carried over to skirts, most of which were semi-flared A-lines. Several skirts were wrap arounds with a loose front join.

Dresses, modelled with earmuffs of daisies, received the same treatment. They came in pimento, olive, bright green, sand and lilac wool, and were worn with plain while nylons.

Lilac was also teamed with navy in a dress-coat combination. A frequent dress pattern was the T-square, a tailored dress with a wide yoke.

HEMLINE FLOUNCED

A finely pleated skirt with a flounced hemline showed up twice—both times in fine grey and white checked wool.

Wool plaids are not usually associated with spring, but the designer showed two ensembles in dark green and navy plaids.

Also somewhat out of season were sporty costumes in wide and plaid-waist carmel corduroy.

Away from the '30s influence were identical costumes in white and carmel wool boucle. The dresses were tailored and A-line, the jackets short and quilted.

FIVE LEVELS MEET

BREEDS HEAVYWEIGHTS

HALIFAX (CP) — The baby rabbits which won top prize at the Atlantic Winter Fair weighed 17 pounds each, though less than a year old. Gerardus Rykenhuis said he raised the two rabbits on dog-food biscuits.

Former Fashion Model Now Town Official

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP)— You have to have the constitution of an ox to do this job."

Rosemary Scott, a former Toronto fashion model, runs a seven-member household and is secretary - treasurer of this Great Slave Lake town of 2,500.

Mrs. Scott is responsible for tax collection, public works and the council directs them to be done, and a monthly financial statement. She is also the town's peace officer, enforcing Hay River's 211 bylaws. Her salary is $150 a week.

The household part is easy, she says. A live-in housekeeper ensures meals are on the table for her four children (ranging in age from 18 months to 13 years) and her husband, assistant principal at Hay River Federal school.

It's the job that takes pep, patience and persistence.

"I'm in on all negotiations for sewer and water service which we're getting in next year, how the service is to be obtained and financed."

Mrs. Scott works a 5½-day week. She also attends the 50 council meetings a year, each of which lasts an average of three hours, and all council committee meetings.

A veritable encyclopedia of facts and figures, she was able to reel off insurance premiums for Hay River's vehicle fleet at one recent meeting.

WOMAN RUNS NORTHERN TOWN — Rosemary Scott, a former Toronto fashion model, is secretary-treasurer of Hay River, a town of 2,500 on the Great Slave Lake. She is responsible for tax collection, public works and is also the town's peace officer. "You have to have the constitution of an ox to do this job," she says. (CP Photo)

'TWICE AS HARD'

"A woman in my job has to work twice as hard as man to justify her position in a man's world on the frontier," she says. "She can't throw tantrums."

A native of Saint John, N.B., Mrs. Scott worked as an RCAF secretary at Goose Bay, Labrador. It was there that she developed an affection for the North. And it was there she met and married John Scott. When he was posted to Hay River 12 years ago, she took a part-time job with what was then an improvement district but which three years ago became a town.

Mrs. Scott likes the responsibility of administering the town's $500,000 budget and feels she can justify working instead of staying home.

"I think my kids are happier with me working than if I weren't.

"There's something about the job that's so challenging. I suppose what I say to myself is that I'm going to see this town run properly or else. It almost becomes an obsession."

Mrs. Scott learned most of what she knows about town administration from on-the-job experience and extensive reading. She is taking a University of Alberta public administration course by correspondence and plans to take a degree in business administration.

SPICY FRAGRANCE

We have many, many requests this time of year for old fashioned pomander ball instructions, and I don't think it can be said any better than in this letter from Doris:

Dear Susanna: This isn't a sparkling new idea, but it is one I've always enjoyed making and using. In fact I get a pleasant sensation whenever I think of the delightful spicy smell that comes from a closet where a pomander ball is hanging.

If you start a couple now, they will be perfect for Christmas.

You'll need: a lemon, an orange or an apple; whole cloves (several dozen for each fruit); a large pinch of orris root (try the drug store) and an equal quantity of powderid cinnamon.

Punch small nail holes in the fruit and insert the clove buds, touching each other, until they cover the entire surface. Dust well with orris root and cinnamon by gently shaking in a paper bag. Wrap pomander in foil and store in a cool, dry place until fruit is hard and dry. Then hang, in amongst your clothes, by a pretty bright ribbon or a single covering of nylon net. They smell so good. Doris

Spice is nice in other seasons, too, so use these fragrant fragments any time as an extra gift or as a decoration on top of a package. — SUSANNA

Ann Landers

Some Are Not Suited For Roles They Play

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was offended by your cutting reply to the woman who wanted to be the sole bread winner in the family while her husband kept house. You said she was "hooked up" and called her "Sir."

ANN LANDERS

Surely you know many people are unsuited for the roles which society decrees they must play. Some men don't belong in the business world and some women don't belong in the home.

In Australia, for example, certain aborigine tribes practice complete reversal of the roles as we know them. The women do the hunting, make the tribal decisions and run the family. The men stay home, care for the children, do the cooking and primp (like our women) so they will be attractive to their wives. According to anthropologists they are reasonably content.

Personally, I believe the lady who wrote will be happier (and so will her husband) if they do what comes naturally and are not concerned with what others think. — INTERESTED READER.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 20-year-old girl who lives with my married sister and her husband. I have a good job in a bank.

My sister is wonderful to me but I hate her husband. He calls my sister "stupid and ignorant." If he doesn't feel like going out he makes her cancel plans at the last minute. If he wants to go out, she has to go, no matter how tired she is.

My sister is a beautiful girl. If she left this ox she could marry a man who would treat her like a queen. The vice president of the bank has asked me questions about her. When I told her, she said, "Forget it. Bill is a good father. That means a lot to me."

DEAR SIS: If you were "Standing By" it would be lovely, but you are actively trying to break up your sister's marriage, which is quite a different ball of wax.

Move. You'll all be better off.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from the woman whose neighbor's child was cruel to her little puppy brought back memories. I hope that child's mother will get busy before it's too late.

Parents need to instill in their children love and compassion for all living things. When our five sons were very young I taught them to treat pets lovingly. If I heard a squeal or a yip I picked up the furry creature and snuggled him. Then I'd say "Nice Kitty" or "Nice Puppy" and guide the child's hand to pet the animal gently.

For 17 wonderful years we had stray cats and dogs on our porch from all over town. Our boys walked to school like shepherds in the midst of a flock. At times I questioned the wisdom of my teaching (for example when I had to wade through the flock to get to my clothes line) but I know now I was right.

Today, each of our five sons is a wonderful husband and father. They are respected by their colleagues and deeply concerned with the lot of their fellow man. The early teaching paid off. — DETROIT MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: What a heartwarming letter! Do you have a snapshot of your boys walking "like shepherds in the midst of a flock? I hope so! (And if you do, I'd love to see it.)

Are you at war with your parents? Do they have too much to say in your life? Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How To Get More Freedom." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Rev. W. Sedgwick was the guest speaker and he chose as his subject the possible union of the Anglican and United Church which was most interesting.

ON TOUR — Dressed in his general's uniform, French President Charles de Gaulle talks to tribesmen in French Somaliland during his Africa tour of 1959. DeGaulle returned to power in 1958 at the height of the Algerian crisis but only after extracting reform measures that, in effect, gave all real power to him. In November deGaulle announced he would seek another seven years as president in December 5 elections.

Charles de Gaulle

To Opponents He Is 'King Charles' But in His Own Eyes He Is France

President de Gaulle is expected to win re-election in voting next Sunday. In this story, Canadian Press reporter Peter Burkley outlines the career of the enigmatic Frenchman who is dedicated to the restoration of his country's glory.

By PETER BUCKLEY

PARIS (CP) — To his frustrated opponents, he is King Charles, champion of the "rule of personal power."

In his own eyes, Charles de Gaulle is France.

It is up to the French voters, who support countless political parties and philosophies, to decide Dec. 5 whether they want the enigmatic French general as head of state for another seven years, or whether one of five opposing candidates for the presidency offers a better future for France.

All indications point to a clear victory for de Gaulle, the tall, gloomy, almost legendary figure in the Elysee Palace. In whatever role the individual voter may see him, de Gaulle is likely to receive the support of as many as 60 per cent of the voters on polling day. A candidate must obtain more than 50 per cent of the votes to win.

Demanding "frank and massive" support for his candidacy, de Gaulle maintains the country would fall into anarchy and ruin without him.

INSPIRED COUNTRYMEN

If many of his listeners applaud his words, it is because in the eyes of millions of Frenchmen he is still the man who rallied the republic during the years of Nazi occupation and again when the Algerian independence movement threatened to destroy France.

Others who are less enthusiastic about General de Gaulle undoubtedly will vote for him because the alternatives may seem even less attractive.

To the Western allies, de Gaulle is frequently an enigma, at best, an unmanageable tyrant at worst. Many French men, particularly the intellectuals, seriously share the allies' concern, and express the gravest alarm over the current drift of French diplomacy.

Nevertheless, de Gaulle seems almost certain to be re-elected president. Because they cannot ignore him, France's allies are being forced to look again at the man and his history in an attempt to understand the support he commands.

Charles Andre Joseph Marie de Gaulle, 75 years old Nov. 22, climbed steadily—some would say irresistably — towards the leadership of France.

Born in Lille and educated at St. Cyr, the French military academy, he was a First World War hero, a captain wounded three times and held prisoner by the Germans despite five escape attempts.

QUIT POLITICS

After the war, he moved up in the military establishment, developing and publishing his theories of French defence and seeing them largely ignored. In May, 1940, after leading several engagements against German forces, he was made a general and three weeks later became deputy defence minister, a brief appointment.

With France about to collapse, de Gaulle moved to London June 17, 1940. He took command of the Free French forces, heading the government-in-exile and later the first post-war French government.

When the Fourth Republic rejected his proposals for a constitution limiting the powers of the National Assembly and conferring greater authority on the president, de Gaulle retired in January, 1946, to his home outside Paris, at Colombey-les-Deux-Eglises.

Historians have since said he fully expected to be summoned back, and that his retirement was a bluff which he lived to regret bitterly.

Politicians of the Fourth Republic wrangled and coalition succeeded coalition in political chaos for 11 years.

Although de Gaulle kept off the stage, his prestige remained high. When the Algerian dispute brought threats of a military takeover of Paris, the towering general was summoned by politicians on all sides to begin his rescue operation.

De Gaulle returned in 1958, extracting promises of constitutional reform and, in effect, the end of the National Assembly's real powers to govern France.

SHUNS ASSEMBLY

Since then, despite the appearance of parliamentary government, de Gaulle has ruled France almost alone, turning to the French people in more than a half-dozen referendums for support on major issues which he declined to seek from the assembly.

Although full prosperity eluded him—the French economy has shown signs of a slowdown—de Gaulle meant peace and stability for the French.

His contempt for most old-line politicians and the party system is reported to be without bounds. He is determined to end the powers of the parties, believing they can only lead to political anarchy.

Hardly a student of de Gaulle has failed to remark on the man's strike of history and his unshakable belief that he was meant to be the embodiment of France and to lead her to greatness.

As the last of Europe's wartime leaders still in harness, he takes a longer view of world affairs than many of his contemporaries. He appears to carry in his mind the whole panorama of French history and its legions of world figures. And he wants French glory restored. Combined, these thoughts form the "politique de grandeur"—the "policy of greatness" — which has become his byword.

For ex ple, he believes France could fail in her civilizing mission if she lost her identity in a United States of Europe. Therefore, the Common Market must be restrained or the "Europeanizers" will eliminate the essence of France's personality.

Blind allegiance to United States policies for Europe, from the Gaullist viewpoint, ignores the fact that the U.S. may not always be so concerned with Europe in years to come. Therefore, France must have an independent nuclear "force de frappe" and her military structure must not be reduced in the NATO homogenizing machine.

The French, for all their vivaciousness and intelligence, are firmly self-centred as a nation. And there are many in France who ardently support this role for their country, reciting the "me-too-ism" they feel is being practised by such neighbors as Germany and Britain toward the U.S.

But de Gaulle's critics, aghast, contend he is neglecting internal social and economic reforms in finance hollow international manoeuvring and that traditional allies are being reduced to impatient hostility.

Most of all, the opposition is unable to forgive the de Gaulle manner—aloof, mysterious, autocratic, convinced beyond discussion of his own niche in history, intolerant of criticism.

Having summoned the people to support him, he has used hardly any of the television and radio time allotted to him as a candidate.

His most faithful supporters in the National Assembly, the Union for the New Republic (UNR), have been ordered to keep the party out of it. His support must appear to be non-partisan.

The French people, presumably, know by now whether they want de Gaulle or "chaos." He will not tell them again.

South African Commando System Would Make Conquest Impossible

Could force be used effectively to oust the white rulers in southern Africa? Not if it were a conventional military operation, says a veteran South African journalist. In this story, written for The Canadian Press, he tells why.

By BRIAN BARROW

CAPE TOWN (CP) — Whenever they get the chance, leaders of the Afro-Asian bloc call for the use of force to end white rule in southern Africa. The cry has been renewed with the emergence of Ian Smith's rebel regime in Rhodesia.

There is also a growing body of opinion that, if necessary, force should be used by the United Nations to end South African control over South West Africa.

But what is not generally realized overseas is that any conventional military operation against southern Africa would be doomed to early failure or endless chaos. The advocates of force seem to be completely ignorant of the military potential of South Africa and the republic's extraordinary powers of resistance, both geographically and strategically, against any attempt at invasion.

It was the same ignorance of South African conditions that led to the dreadful defeat of the British at the Battle of Majuba Hill in the first Boer War of 1881 and again in the second Boer War in 1899 when the Boers inflicted on the British army some of the most humiliating defeats in its history. In all those battles the highly disciplined and well-equipped British armies were thrashed by a relative handful of Boers.

That was more than 50 years ago. Today things are different. South Africa is a vigorous, powerful and highly industrialized country. It has a strong, modern, efficient army, navy and air force. And it retains the old commando system used so successfully against the British in the Boer War and since adopted as the most effective method of guerrilla warfare all over the world.

The commando system is a vital part of the republic's overall defence plan. Every country district has its own commando of civilians who like the Boers 30 years ago choose their own leaders. Most of them are hardy farmers born with rifles in their hands and are deadly shots.

The role they would play in any attempted invasion would be devastating. But this cannot be appreciated without an understanding of South Africa's commando tradition which is calculated to bring utter confusion and destruction to an invader and offer endless resistance. And the commandos would do this independently of any military operation by South Africa's regular forces.

In a country of vast blazing deserts and terrifying mountain terrain they have plenty of room for manoeuvre, to ambush and hit and run as they did in the days of the great Boer generals like Botha, De la Rey, De Wet and Smuts.

KNOW THE LAND

Their intimate knowledge of the land would enable them to mop up anything behind their own lines and create havoc behind the enemy lines.

Recent history has shown what well-organized guerrilla forces can accomplish. France could not suppress the Algerians, Britain has abandoned one Arab state after another because she could not cope with even primitive guerrilla forces and the United States is increasingly concluding her involvement in Viet Nam.

In South Africa the commandos would be 10 times more effective. Guerrilla operations were virtually "discovered" and perfected by the Boers and are traditional to South Africans. The commando system has been part of this country's defence system since 1874.

Furthermore they could be mobilized within a couple of hours. They are a force already in existence, fully armed and equipped and in possession of local knowledge beyond the scope of an invader.

However, the commandos are only one small aspect of South Africa's defence. The country can produce just about all the arms and equipment it requires. The republic has 130 licences for the production of arms, from rifles to bombs, including a locally - made automatic rifle which is said to be superior to the NATO product.

MAKE OWN WEAPONS

Today South Africa can produce her own guns, explosives ammunition, armor plate and motor vehicles. The country has vast stockpiles of fuel, gasoline can be manufactured from coal and a high-quality motor spirit can be made from sugar cane.

The country has a reserve of 90,000 trained regulars who can be called up immediately and something like 25,000 men under arms at strategic points all over the country There is a huge reserve of officers and men who are veterans of the Second World War. And the commandos number more than 50,000. In fact it has been estimated that South Africa could put nearly 300,000 trained men in the field at short notice.

Both the air force and navy, efficient and up-to-date, could go into action at a moment's notice.

But no military operation against South Africa would make sense without a sea blockade and this, according to Security Council experts, would cost something like $400,000,000 a year. An air blockade would cost many millions more. Observers here, basing their estimates not merely on the Boer War but on Britain's efforts in tiny Cyprus, say it would require at least 2,000,000 men, transported across thousands of miles of ocean, to occupy South Africa effectively.

But the most telling factor of all is the one that the Afro-Asians least appreciate or under tand and this is that no South African, no matter what his political views or what the color of his skin, would tolerate an armed invasion of his country. However deep the division between white and black, between English and Afrikaner, They would rise as one people in the defence of their country. And this would make the military occupation of this country virtually impossible.

French Engineers to Soon Harness Power of Tides

By GILBERT SEDBON

SAINT MALO, France (Reuters)—French engineers soon will realize man's age-old dream of harnessing the untapped power of the tides.

Underwater generating sets in a dam built across the 820-yard-wide estuary of the Rance River, near here, are due to swing into operation early in the new year.

The Rance tidal power station will produce 544,000,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity annually for the national grid, equivalent to the consumption of an industrial city of 200,000 inhabitants.

The first four of 24 submerged tide-driven "bulb units" likes each capable of producing 10,000 kilowatts, will go into operation in April with a majority commissioning of the others, in groups of four "bulb units," by the end of 1966.

The 415,000,000 francs ($85,000,000) project is France's biggest post-war civil engineering enterprise, ranking amongst its achievements, the building of the Tancarville suspended bridge, the digging of the Mont Blanc tunnel and France's space satellite program.

ATTRACTS ATTENTION

The size of the Rance project and the technique employed has already attracting world-wide attention and visits by engineers from many countries, including Canada, the U.S., Britain, Japan, Australia and Russia, working on similar developments.

Work which began at the end of 1960 is going ahead on schedule reports Electricite de France, the national electricity authority which is constructing it.

The engineers' main feat was cutting off the Rance from the sea July 18, 1963. The northern coffer dam gates and the estuary were closed the next day and the southern coffer dam gates were closed Oct. 24, 1963.

More than 1,500,000 cubic metres of sea water has since been pumped out of the great cigar-shaped enclosure and the dried-out area of the granite bed of the estuary covers about 30 acres.

The power house, built in a vast "cathedral - grotto type chamber" 382 yards long, 65 feet wide and 48 feet high, was completed in September this year.

The "bulb units," the design of which is the key to the success of the Rance project, are being fitted in horizontal shafts. They will generate both as the reservoir is filling and as it empties. They can also be used as pumps to raise the level of the reservoir at off-peak hours for electricity consumption, drawing surplus electricity from the national grid for the purpose.

The power complex can thus "save up" current from the national grid at off-peak hours, storing it in the form of water in the Rance reservoir and releasing it when most needed. This is one of the most valuable features of the Rance project, securing partial mastery over the inconsistencies both of the tides and the demands of electricity consumers.

It will be just as easy to turbine from the sea to the basin by reversing the flow altogether whence, the idea of the "double-way" operation.

The Rance flows into the sea between Saint Malo and Dinard in the vast Channel coast bay formed by the Cotentin and the Finistere peninsulas, at the lower end of which stands the famous Mont Saint-Michel.

It is a naval architecture for a tidal-power plant because of the exceptional range of tides along this section of the Breton coast. The range between ebb and high tides reaches as much as 43 feet in the estuary. The flow then amounts to 18,000 cubic metres a second, or three times the annual flow of the Rhone, France's biggest river.

The engineering work involved the construction of a lock for shipping which was commissioned in November, 1962, and a gate dam commissioned in March, 1963. The whole project will be finished in 1967 with the building of a road on top of the power house linking the two cities of Saint Malo and Dinard.

The Rance project is providing first-class experience for another ambitious French plan —the harnessing of Saint Michael's Bay, which would entail a dam power-house 20 miles long to ensure an annual output of some 30,000,000,000 kilowatt-hours.

In addition to the coffer dam cutting off the Rance from the sea and the "bulb units," detailed research involved long laborious mathematical developments and costly model tests. The studies included compactness, tightness and durability of concrete, durability of paints and metal corrosion.

Russia is already experimenting with French equipment for a project in the White Sea and the Barents Sea.

Australia is looking forward to building a development similar to the Rance in the Kimberleys. Other such programs include one on the Canadian United States border, on the Atlantic coast in Passamaquoddy Bay, and another in Canada proper, in the Bay of Fundy, in the estuary of the Memramcook.

Britain has its own 800,000 kilowatt tidal-power plan for the Severn River, near the Bristol Channel: Argentina is studying a giant program in San Jose Bay and South Korea is also reported to be planning a similar project.

Concept of Multiple Use Is Followed At Manitoba's Duck Mountains Park

DAUPHIN, Man. (CP)—The Manitoba mines and resources department held a two-week elk-hunting season in September in Duck Mountains forest reserve, including the provincial park within the reserve's boundaries.

Of the 175 applicants getting their $20 licences in a draw, 172 actually hunted and 24 brought out prime bull elk.

Also coming out the park this year will be close to 10,000 fur-bearing animals and millions of feet of timber harvested by commercial operators, along with accounted numbers of fish —including such non-native species as kokanee and muskellunge—caught by holiday-seekers.

The mixed bag reflects the department's "multiple use" concept for parkland areas, based on the theory that recreation and commercial use of forests can exist in harmony side by side as long as each is properly controlled.

The Duck Mountains forest reserve, 928,000 acres of timbered hills dotted with lakes, nestles along the Saskatchewan boundary west of this north-western Manitoba town. The park, within the reserve, encompasses 224,000 acres.

It is under-utilized by the public at present but Archie Jardine, mines and resources regional supervisor here, doesn't expect it to stay that way for long. Camping and boat-launching sites are being developed steadily and vacationers are discovering the Duck Mountains is increasing numbers.

The department hopes at with continue to draw more campers and picnickers away from heavily-used southern Manitoba facilities including the crowded Whiteshell area east of Winnipeg which has just about reached the limit of its development.

The Duck Mountains belie the general impression of Manitoba as a purely "prairie" province. The highest point, Baldy Mountain, has an altitude of 2,727 feet and there are others above 2,500 feet.

The area has a long history of controlled lumbering but the park, with 183 miles of all-weather road connecting to two main highways, was opened only in 1961.

There are cottage developments at Blue and Wellman Lakes, camp sites at Blue, Wellman and Childs Lakes. Adjoining the Childs Lake campsite is, of all things, a privately-operated licensed restaurant as a diversion from campfire cooking.

Other lakes along the road network remain in their natural state. There are 30 boat-launching ramps but no tents or buildings are permitted on the treed shorelines. On many, power boats are prohibited.

The department makes no claim that the Duck Mountains are a fisherman's paradise but an extensive, long-range stocking program is under way to add sport potential to spring-fed lakes that have little or no spawning grounds.

Kokanee, a land-locked salmon species from British Columbia, has been stocked in Beautiful Lake and is taking hold along with rainbow trout and muskellunge.

Speckled, splake or lake trout have been added to such lakes as Childs, East Blue, Gilet, Laurie, Perch, Singcouch, West Blue, Shell, Gull and Two Mile.

On the commercial side, 20 registered trapliines operating through the winter produce about $20,000 annually in furs. Ninety to 100 timber operators are at work.

The multiple-use plan is distinguished from the wilderness concept common in national parks, where a designated area is left in its natural state with no commercial exploitation whatever.

"You might define the multiple-use concept as taking advantage of both the economic and social resources of an area," says Jardine.

"Wildlife and fun, forest and recreation — with careful management, all can get along together."

U.S. Troops in Korea Called Northern Shield Against Reds

By C. S. CHIN

SEOUL (AP) — The crew-cut American private sat crosslegged on the grassy slope, his rifle across his knees. Before him, to the north, stretched the empty no man's land of Korea's demilitarized zone.

Beyond, fading into row upon row of hills dusted with blue haze, lay North Korea. Behind the private lay the farmlands and crowded cities of South Korea — and 50,000 American troops.

These troops, says Gen. Dwight Beach, commander of U.S. forces in Korea and the four-nation United Nations command force, "are the northern anchor in Asia. The southern anchor is Viet Nam, where things are very active."

He added, somewhat wistfully: "Hopefully, the northern anchor remains inactive. . . .

How inactive the powerful North Korean army remains may well depend on the number of U.S. troops in South Korea.

The South Korean government recalls that when U.S. forces began pulling out in 1950, North Korea struck suddenly and unexpectedly. With this in mind, the South Korean government asked renewed assurances that U.S. forces would remain in strength before a Korean combat division was shipped to South Viet Nam.

The shield of security for South Korea lies both in the 600 000 - man South Korean Army and the 50,000 U.S. troops.

SPREAD AROUND

The American forces are scattered the length and breadth of the "land of the morning calm."

But the bulk of the divisions are deployed over two historical invasion routes into the capital of Seoul: Chorwon Valley and Imjin River.

To the northeast of Seoul, stretched along the brown hills overlooking the Imjin River, is the 2nd Infantry Division. One of its big jobs is patrolling the tense, 2½-mile-wide demilitarized zone dividing North and South Korea.

Although this area has been quiet since 1953, troops there have been attacked several times by hit-and-run North Korean agents. The action usually is short and bitter: A grenade thrown into a bunker or the staccato burst of a machine-gun firing on a passing U.S. Jeep.

To the north and east, astride the twisted Chorwon Valley, is the 7th Infantry Division. The division, with a variety of camps and posts sprinkled across Korea, is primarily a second line of defence.

In its area, Korean troops patrol the demilitarized zone. But close behind it are 7th division units, such as those at Camp Kaiser.

On the other side stands the North Korean ground force, estimated at 330,000 men. Behind it stand the hordes of China.

Will North Korea strike again? If so, will it do it alone? STUPID' TO TRY

"Personally, I think it would be stupid for them to start on their own at the present time," says Gen. Beach. "They had one taste of starting on their own and got really clobbered."

American officials in Seoul describe the North Korean Army as effective. It is supported by a large paramilitary force of trained civilians. Although North Korea produces its own small arms, it depends on the Soviet Union and Red China for more sophisticated weapons.

The U.S. 8th Army is equipped with Honest John rockets which can be nuclear - armed, plus Nike and Hawk missiles.

A greater threat to South Korean forces lies in the North Korean Air Force which includes MiG 21s, 17s and 15s. The best of these can cover all of South Korea in less than 20 minutes from their bases.

The U.S. Air Force maintains a squadron of F - 100 Super Sabres and a squadron of F-105 Thunderchiefs in South Korea. The South Korean Air Force recently received several F - 4 Freedom Fighters.

Municipal Officials Give Accounting of Stewardship At Nomination Meeting

CAMPBELLFORD — The Municipal Council held the annual nomination meeting in the Masonic Temple on Monday evening, and only a fair crowd was present.

For the Mayor's office three were nominated, incumbent Morley Tanner, F. M. Rutherford and G. H. Free. For Reeve four were nominated, past Reeve A. Brown, A. C. Newman, R. Hughes and G. H. Free. For the office of Deputy Reeve incumbent R. J. Locke and R. Hughes. More interest was shown in the office for Councillor, 11 names were proposed, D. Sharp, B. Grills, R. Kennedy, W. Nicholas, T. Holmes, H. Dunk, Dash, A. Bell, W. Hall, J. Torrance, A. C. Newman and A. Kingston.

Incumbent for P.U.C. were J. Benor, E. Steele and A. C. Newman and for Public School Trustees Wm. Murray, C. Duff, C. Johnson, W. Machesney, and H. L. MacMillan. Clerk E. M. Ibey acted as Chairman.

In the report of chairman of Fire Water and Light, Reeve Brown said he was pleased of the accomplishment. Last year the fire department was disorganized and members discouraged. Today the picture has changed the morale is high and a newly-decorated fire hall is proof of it. A great deal of work has been done and Brigadier has a fire hall that is a credit to the fire department and to the town of Campbellford with very little expense to the ratepayers. Mr. Brown said he had kept expenses well below the budget for the year. Mr. Brown thanked his committee of Councillors Hughes and Bennett.

Councillor Brown then went on to criticize the initiation of a sewage disposal program before ascertaining whether the Ontario Municipal Board would approve the expenditure.

Mr. Brown in his remarks, stated that at the regular Council meeting in November a motion was passed authorizing the Canadian British Consulting Engineers to proceed with an activated sludge sewage treatment plant together with two pumping stations at an estimated cost of $490,000.

CHEAPER PLANT WANTED

At that time Reeve Brown and Councillor Hughes moved an amendment to build a much cheaper plant which amendment was defeated. Later Reeve Brown received professional advice to the effect that as the estimate of $490,000 had been made in June 1965, since then construction costs have increased by approximately 25 percent, which would increase the cost to perhaps $600,000.

An estimate from another firm of consulting engineers, Hisey and Barrington, had estimated the cost in September 1963 to be $484,000—a difference of $65,000 for an immediate estimate.

Mr. Brown stated by the time tenders are asked for, the Canadian British Consultant Engineers account against the town for plans, specifications, tenders, etc. will be between $15,- and $25,000. For this information Reeve Brown and Councillor Hughes interviewed Mr. Kennedy of the Ontario Municipal Board and Dr. Cumming, special adviser to Hon. M. Spooner of the Ontario Municipal Affairs Department.

The information which Reeve Brown and Councillor Hughes received was most firm and direct. Mr. Kennedy stated in the opinion of the Municipal Board the maximum amount of debenture or any other type of payment for sewage disposal for Campbellford was $250,000. Mr. Kennedy asked if the municipality could raise the remaining money by public subscription to which Reeve Brown said no. Mr. Kennedy stated the decision of the Ontario Municipal Board was final and they are not influenced by any other government department.

Mr. Kennedy also stated that the motion passed by Campbellford council in the November meeting authorizing the Canadian British Consulting Engineers to proceed with the project would not be approved by the Municipal Board and that council should not spend more money in asking for plans or specifications for a sewage disposal as it was now obvious it could not be done.

Reeve Brown said in his interview with Dr. Cummings that his remarks corroborated Mr. Kennedy. Reeve Brown quoted Dr. Cummings as saying "Unless Council had budgetted this year for the said plans and specifications as it was now obvious plant the motion passed by Council at the November meeting binding next year's Council is illegal unless the authority of the Ontario Municipal Board is obtained." And to verify his remarks Dr. Cumming referred Reeve Brown to the section and chapter of the Act.

Reeve Brown concluded his remarks by stating because of his interview with Dr. Cummings that Brown were spending the winter in California and he would not be a candidate in the coming election. Mayor Morley Tanner in his remarks later, said he knew the municipal spending of the town was limited to $250,000 by the O.M.B. but yet he allowed a motion to be passed by Council to spend $490,000, plus increased construction costs.

At the November Council meeting, Councillor Bennett gave a written motion seconded by Deputy Reeve R. J. Locke, to give the Canadian British Consultant Engineers approval to proceed with the sewage disposal plans, Mayor Tanner presented this motion and it was passed, knowing as Mayor Tanner stated at the nomination meeting he had known since last spring the O.M.B. had restricted the spending to $250,000. Since then $138,000 debenture has been issued for the Community Centre fund thus lowering the spending by that amount.

Another point of issue on which Councillor Hughes received information as he has stated was that the O.W.R. in an interview with Mr. Kennedy of O.M.B., and Dr. Cummings, of O.M.A. As a member of the Community Centre committee, appointed by the Legion, Councillor Hughes said all arrangements are practically completed.

Councillor Bruce Grills as welfare chairman had little to report as at present a municipality has little control over welfare. Due to the resignation of Fred Mabee, elected representative, Mr. Grills was asked to complete Mr. Mabee's year.

Councillor Bennett had sent a written message for a future council, although he gave no report of the industrial commission of which he had been the chairman. The money spent for travelling and telephone expenses of this committee were reported only in the full amount of $1,227, out of a budget of $1,400.

One ratepayer remarked that no one knew whether this amount was spent for social pleasure or in quest of industries. No information was given.

It was disclosed the debenture debt of the town is $1,754,000 for a population of less than 3,500, of whom approximately 1,800 are taxpayers. Unpaid taxes are the highest in the history of the town as are mill rates of 104 and 116 respectively.

Chairman of P.U.C. Glen Vandewater reported for the Electric Light and Power Department of the P.U.C. and Commissioner J. Benor reported for water works department.

Chairman Vandewater stated that two-thirds of power used was generated by the Campbellford plant, other power needed is purchased from the Ontario Hydro Electric. There are now ten homes in Campbellford completely electrically heated, several others are using auxiliary heating.

Commissioner E. Steele spoke briefly, intimating that some changes are being considered in some departments.

Clerk E. M. Ibey, elected representative to the Campbellford Library Board, reported on proposed renovations.

Dunk stated that he and his committee of Reeve Brown and Councillor Sharp had not always agreed on policy but believed good discussion made for good government. The police force chief and three constables were efficient and co-operative.

Councillor Sharp gave a detailed report of work done to explain the overspending of his budget, although the 1965 road and bridge budget is the largest the municipality has ever had. Three-and-one-half miles of road had been newly faced. The large truck will need to be repaired or traded next year.

Councillor J. Torrance paid tribute to the parks caretaker for the care he had taken of parks. Reporting as a member of the Community Centre committee he thought all necessary steps had now been taken for the centre to become a reality.

Councillor Hughes as chairman of the legal committee, said there was little to report this year. He also verified Reeve Brown's remarks concerning sewage disposal and housing spending as Councillor Hughes had been present with Reeve Brown in their interview with Mr. Kennedy of O.M.B., and Dr. Cummings, of O.M.A. As a member of the Community Centre committee, appointed by the Legion, Councillor Hughes said all arrangements are practically completed.

No One Opting Out of Program Says Fisher

HALIFAX (CP)—The Canadian Centennial Commission is one federal - provincial program from which no one is opting out, John Fisher, centennial commissioner, said Tuesday night.

The statement followed a two-day meeting of the National Centennial Conference attended by 40 delegates from across the country.

They included a number of provincial cabinet ministers and Leon Balcerz, Quebec's centennial boss and former Canadian minister of transport.

Mr. Balcerz sat side by side with Provincial Secretary Bona Arsenault of Quebec's Liberal government throughout the conference.

The conference resulted in some major change in centennial commission plans.

The commission said that if private enterprise do not put up the money by Dec. 31, it will withdraw from the Centennial Voyageur canoe program.

The widely - publicized pageant involves a series of sprints, portages and endurance races from the Rockies to Montreal in 1967.

Private enterprise had shown no interest in the program and some provinces were unwilling to contribute, centennial commission sources said.

By CY FOX

MONTREAL (CP)—An organization 'of English - speaking rural residents from Quebec's Eastern Townships contends that French-Canadians in the area are trying "to drive the English from the many small communities" there.

The allegation is made in a brief scheduled for submission today to the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism. Responsible for the brief is the Federation of Quebec Protestant Colonization and Settlement Societies.

The federation also says there is "aggressive opposition" to its members on the part of the Roman Catholic clergy.

Deploring this, the brief goes on, "Shopping and business signs are being posted in French only.

SEEK LANGUAGE LINE

The royal commission, winding up three days of final hearings in Montreal, also is being formally presented today with a brief from the Unitarian Churches of Montreal, which wants the Province of Quebec divided along language lines instead of along the present religious lines.

Meantime, the Quebec Chamber of Notaries is contending in its brief that many federal laws are enforced unjustly because legislators and officials ignore or reject Quebec's civil law system and French-Canadian practices.

From a group of graduates of Le College Militaire Royal, situated in St. Johns, Que., the commission hears that the college is more English than it is French, despite its name.

The 250 graduates say French should be 'the working language of military bases in Quebec and that more French-speaking military units should be formed.

A lack of French in the service is keeping the number of French-Canadians in the career service relatively low, the graduates say.

The Chamber of Notaries urges official recognition of French in all Canadian courts of law, and a new court—half of its membership appointed by the federal government and the others by the provinces—to settle constitutional cases.

A new federal department to promote the cultures of minority ethnic groups is urged by the Canadian-Italian Business and Professional Men's Association.

A Hungarian ethnic group says French in Hungary becomes obligatory for children at an earlier age than is the case in Canada.

The Montreal Unitarians suggest that a second language—French or English—should be made compulsory from Grade 1 in Canadian schools.

The hearings in Montreal have been generally quiet—the authors of briefs being quizzed on various points by Commission Co-chairman Andre Laurendeau and other members.

Ousted Reeve Loses Seat By One Vote

FENELON FALLS, Ont.-(CP) Wilfred Jackett, who resigned as reeve of this community 25 miles northwest of Peterborough Nov. 1 as part of an out-of-court settlement of an action to unseat him, was defeated by one vote in his bid Monday for re-election.

Rev. James B. Harrison was elected with 254 votes to Mr. Jackett's 253.

Mr. Jackett's resignation was part of an out-of-court settlement of a suit in which village resident Albert Goodier charged him with conflict of interest because a construction company bearing his name had done business with the village.

Ghana Annoyed With Canada's Nuclear Policy

By BORIS MISKEW

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Ghana Tuesday criticized Canada for offering a number of conditions as a basis for the establishment of a nuclear-free zone in Africa.

Ghanaian delegate N. A. Quao told the United Nations General Assembly's political committee he hoped the African states would not be confronted with conditions ch as those enumerated Oct. 19 before the committee by Lt.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, Canada's chief disarmament negotiator.

Speaking during a debate on a resolution which would make the continent of Africa a nuclear-free zone, Quao said the problem of the denuclearization of Africa should not "be made more complicated by conditions susceptible to different interpretations and partly motivated by cold war considerations."

The Ghanaian delegate was referring to a speech in which Burns expressed Canada's view that arrangements for nuclear-free zones can be useful in limiting the spread of weapons provided they take account of the following principles:

—Any proposal for a nuclear-free zone should be acceptable to all the countries of the geographical area in which the zone would be located.

—It should provide for arrangements for verifying that the commitments undertaken are carried out.

—It should be consistent with the generally accepted principle that no disarmament measure should create a unilateral advantage for any state or group of states.

Replying to Ghana's criticism, Burns said Tuesday he was not thinking specifically of Africa when he had outlined Canada's proposals for the establishment of nuclear - free zones.

He said the proposals were aimed at covering various parts of the world, adding that he was especially thinking of Europe, where Canadian forces are involved.

Burns said the proposals were not meant as concrete conditions but more as suggestions to be taken under consideration when the subject of the establishment of nuclear - free zones was being discussed.

Gold Stock In U.S. Shows Slight Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — October was the second straight month in which the U.S. government's gold stock showed a slight rise, the Federal Reserve reported Tuesday.

Government gold holdings increased $12,000,000 to $13,937,600,000. There was a gain of $9,000,000 in September but a loss was registered in every previous month this year. Total loss for the year is more than $1,200,000,000.

A report by the New York Federal Reserve Bank last week indicated a loss of some $50,000,000 in November although exact figures will not be known until near the end of December.

Prison Force Called in From Search

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—A 15-man prison force searching for Gaston Cloutier who escaped Tuesday from the Collins Bay Penitentiary farm has been called in, it was announced today.

A spokesman for the medium-security institution said the search for the 21-year-old Valleyfield, Que., man is being continued by the provincial police and the RCMP.

Cloutier was serving 3½ years after being convicted at Alexandria, Ont., on two charges of breaking, entering and theft in April, 1964.

Fleet of Jet Fighters Flies Into Nairobi

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—A fleet of British jet fighters and transport planes flew into Nairobi today, apparently invited for guard duty in Zambia.

Eight RAF Javelin jet fighters arrived shortly after eight four-engined turbocrop Argosy transports and two Hastings transports touched down.

There was no official word on the destination of the planes. But it was assumed they were ready to fly on to Zambia in response to President Kenneth Kaunda's call for a British force to guard the strategic Kariba dam on the border with Rhodesia.

Britain has agreed to send a force, but has so far failed to reach agreement with Kaunda on its role and deployment in Zambia.

Britain was reported to be insisting the force should be kept under strict British control and kept on the Zambian side of the frontier away from the actual border.

British Commonwealth Secretary Arthur Bottomley arrived here from London almost at the same time as the jet fighters and transports.

Canada Should Consider Joining OAS Says P.M.

From Reuters-AP

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Tuesday that Canada would seriously consider an official invitation to join the Organization of American States.

The Canadian prime minister, who had two days of talks here with government leaders, told a press conference Canada's position is similar to that of Jamaica and Trinidad - Tobago, which also do not belong to the OAS.

He said the three countries, which sent observers to the two-week hemispheric conference that ended Tuesday in Rio de Janeiro, would keep in close touch so that they might act on unison on OAS membership.

The prime minister and Mrs. Pearson have been in Kingston since Sunday. The official visit to Jamaica and one to Trinidad-Tobago that will follow are the first by a Canadian head of government since the islands became independent.

On wider issues, Pearson said it was his opinion economic sanctions imposed on Rhodesia up to now would not work, but that he preferred total sanctions, oil included, before military sanctions are tried.

DISCUSS DISCRIMINATION

Answering a reporter's question as to whether Canada's immigration laws are "discriminatory," Pearson said that technically and legally they are not.

Civil Service Pay Increases Coming Up

OTTAWA (CP)—Civil service pay increases for professional employees will likely be announced Dec. 9, Revenue Minister Benson said Tuesday.

He disclosed in an interview new rates for administrative and clerical workers will likely be announced Dec. 16.

The raises for the professionals—classified as group A—are normally retroactive to July 1. The administrative group—known as group B—are expected to get a raise retroactive to Oct. 1.

A motion urging the national executive to hold a strike vote was adopted at a regular meeting of the Windsor branch of the Customs and Excise Officers Association.

Employees in the designated B category are seeking increases of six per cent retroactive to Oct. 1, 1964 and 10 per cent at Oct. 1, 1965.

Authorities said exactly the same arrangements apply to West Germany, The Netherlands, Belgium and other NATO countries with bilateral nuclear agreements with the U.S.

Informants said that besides all these safeguards there is another which is perhaps even more significant.

This is that West Germany, for one, has no access to the clear weapons of sufficient range to reach Russia. The Starfighter, for instance, has a range of only 500 miles.

London Will Get Large Packing Plant

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A $2,000,000 meat packing plant, one of the largest in Canada, will be built here next year by Canada Packers Ltd., city council was told Monday night.

The plant will have an initial processing capacity of 1,000 cattle a week and an eventual maximum of 4,000 a week.

"This will mean cattle purchases in our region of areas where from $1,000,000 to $4,000,000 per month," said Earle J. MacLeod, an industrial commissioner.

Viet Nam Toll Second Highest Weekly Loss

By EDWIN Q. WHITE

SAIGON (AP)—The destruction of South Viet Nam's 7th Army Regiment in savage fighting Saturday raised the South Vietnamese weekly combat dead to 459, the government's second highest toll of the war.

A U.S. military spokesman announced today.

Another 185 government soldiers were missing in action and 881 were wounded, the spokesman said.

The number of American dead dropped to 40, with 117 wounded and five missing in the week ending last Saturday, the spokesman said. This compared with 240 Americans killed the previous week, the biggest U.S. casualty list since the United States began sending troops to Viet Nam nearly five years ago.

No U.S. units escaped Communist forces of any size during the week, while the Viet Cong troops at least two and possibly three regimental-size attacks on South Vietnamese units. Five other Communist attacks were of battalion size and four were of company size.

The spokesman said 1,320 Viet Cong were killed during the week, giving U.S. and government troops a favorable kill ratio of three to one.

TORONTO (CP)—One evening in May, 1964, Pierre Provencher was working at a homemade rocket on the back porch of his Kingston home. In a flash the missile accidently exploded, killing a companion, Richard Fort, and blowing off Pierre's hands, taking out an eye and tearing a hole in his abdomen.

Today, thanks to a pair of electronic hands developed in the Soviet Union, Pierre can drive a car, pilot a glider and play Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody on the piano.

Visiting Toronto for the annual meeting of the March of Dimes, Pierre, 20, is believed to be one of the few persons in the world with two functional artificial hands.

Pierre has two of the hands partly because he fitted the requirements of a subject for research. Only after his accident was it discovered that he has superior intelligence.

"It takes a very special person to use these hands," said Wallace Lotto, chairman of the advisory board of the rehabilitation Foundation.

"He has to have a certain drive, a basic intelligence and a willingness."

PAID SOVIET

The federal and Quebec governments and the Montreal Rehabilitation Institute have a Soviet government $27,000 for the patent rights for the hands, made of fibre glass with a rubber glove covering.

Dr. Lotto explained the operation of the $3,000 hands as follows:

An electrical impulse travels from the brain down the nerves through the nerves to the muscle. This electrical impulse makes the muscle contract.

The impulses are picked up, magnified and used to activate powerful battery motors in the artificial hands.

Pierre now attended the University of Ottawa in first year arts. He hopes to become a language professor and has an eye on the diplomatic service.

LOST HANDS BUT STILL PLAYS — Pierre Provencher, 20, of Kingston, Ont., had both hands amputated at the wrist after he was injured during an experiment with solid rocket fuel in 1964, but he can play the piano again thanks to a new electronic hand developed by Russian scientists. He is believed to be the only person in the world fitted with two electronically-controlled hands; usual practice is one activated and one passive hand. Pierre tried the piano during trip to Toronto Monday. (CP Wirephoto)

Economist Claims State Should Provide Patients With Full Insurance Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — Governments should operate universal programs to insure the public against ill health and then get and leave to private, profitmaking organizations the task of supplying the health care, says an economist.

Dr. J. J. Madden, a former federal-provincial department economist working now at the University of Guelph, said education and health insurance are the only fields where the free market system does not work successfully.

He was speaking to a working conference on health services sponsored by 21 church, labor, farm and business organizations. It is examining the Hall royal commission report on health services and proposals for medical insurance plans.

Dr. Madden said no private medical insurance plan can be successful because there is no compulsion to make people join. The patient is not competent to judge how to buy medical insurance, so the state should provide him with a full insurance program.

GOVERNMENT TAKES HAND

He said there is government intervention through the 10 provinces and plans in operation in Canada.

"We have gone so far in interfering with the free market that I say let's recognize the market doesn't work and offer a publicly-operated universal plan."

Dr. Madden said there is no reason why all health services cannot be provided by private, profit-making operations.

"Governments are pressured into comprehensive health insurance for all individuals and families and don't provide sufficient funds to attract the resources the health services industry needs, why should not commercial companies selling health services compete for the consumer's dollar?

"Why should not profit-oriented group practices with their own hospitals compete with individual practitioners or . . . non-profit hospitals?"

Dr. Madden also said if everyone is put in the position of buying health insurance, the medical profession must be prepared in meet the demands for service. These demands might result if the result is a lowering in the quality of services.

"We must face the fact that it is no good for some people to go without any health care. We must expand even if it involves a loss of quality."

With financial barriers removed, there will be an increased demand for services in the short-run, he said, but these will be offset by the time lag of up to a decade before many persons learn to use the program.

"There is time for crash programs to generate an expansion of supply to match the slow and steady growth of demand."

Dr. Madden argued that Canada is rich enough to afford a full social insurance program.

"Other countries transfer a far greater share of their national income through the government sector than Canada and maintain high levels of economic activity and efficiency while the regressive nature of much Canadian taxation implies that a progressive tax for health services would not lead to much redistribution of income."

Organizers of the four-day working conference on health services are pleased with the results that they are thinking of developing some kind of permanent structure.

During the first three days suggestions have ranged from a permanent advisory council on health representing health "consumers" to a committee to investigate other important aspects of the medical services before they are written into legislation.

Purpose of the conference is to educate the 250 delegates about the health charter recommended by the Hall commission and the implications for Canada of governmental proposals in the health insurance field. The theory is that they will return home better informed to make public pronouncements on the subject as political steps on health are taken.

SHOULD ACT

Dr. Maddens said the conference should act as a consultional convention to establish an advisory council on health services.

Gordon Hawkins, executive director of the Canadian Institute of Public Affairs, advocated a broader role.

Because the sponsoring organizations represent such a large number of Canadians, he said, they should hold similar conferences and study meetings to tackle other public issues.

Methods Used Good Practice Says Witness

BRANTFORD (CP) — Magistrate John Shillington Tuesday dismissed a charge of abandoning baby chicks in distress, saying that if he found sufficient grounds for conviction, a charge could be placed against anyone who allowed a mother hen to abandon her eggs.

Kenneth Cannerow, an official of Brant County Humane Society, testified that on Aug. 10 he followed Walter Birdsell, an employee of Sprucelegh Farm Co. Ltd., as Birdsell drove a truck to the city dump.

He heard chirping coming from plastic bags Birdsell unloaded at the dump. The bags contained egg shells and some day - old chicks, which he rounded up. He found 41 baby six which he kept as evidence.

Birdsell pleaded not guilty. He said that when he heard chirping from the bags before he left the farm he rang the necks of 40 chicks that had hatched and did the same on arrival at the dump.

Robert Murray, manager of the Sprucelegh firm, said that in any batch of incubated eggs, 75 per cent hatched in a few hours and the others are of no commercial use.

He said the worthless eggs are crushed and treated with formaldehyde gas and dumped.

Professor Ross Tinsley of the Ontario Agricultural College said the method used by Sprucelegh is "recommended practice."

Scientists Solve Problem Of Faded Flags

OTTAWA (CP) — Scientists have solved the problem of Canada's red maple leaf flags turning orange but fading flags still will be around for a while.

"You can't expect manufacturers to throw away their stocks," said Dr. Sidney Wyszecki, a National Research Council color expert who went to work on the problem last June.

The color problem was not peculiar to the maple leaf flag, he said, but a problem common to flags of all nations.

The 39-year-old native of Germany, who is satisfied the basic problem is solved, said in an interview:

"It was just a case of selecting a standard color scale for the flags and using a color-fast dye that would not fade."

The color selection problem was not as simple as it might seem. The international commission on illumination, which uses a three-number code to designate colors, lists more than 500,000 different shades of red.

SEND OUT SAMPLES

The specifications Dr. Wyszecki has been working on list only a few shades. A sufficient sample will be sent to manufacturers. They just have to keep their dyes within that range.

There are 10 different reds visible to the human eye in the visible spectrum, but the variations are too small in be noticed on different flags flying side by side.

Dr. Wyszecki said part of the original color problem was a faulty sample of red material sent to the manufacturers when the flag was adopted last year.

The flag committee's decision called or a "Red Ensign red," he said, "and I think he sent a Red Ensign that was off shade — it was on the orange side."

35 Persons Forced Out in Frigid Weather

GANANOQUE, Ont. (CP)—An investigation will be made into the causes of a fire that destroyed part of a three-storey apartment building in downtown Gananoque Tuesday night, the fire chief said Wednesday said early today.

The fire broke out in a 19th century building about 7:30 p.m. and spread rapidly through the top two floors, forcing about 35 persons out into freezing weather.

They had no time to save their belongings. No one was seriously injured in the blaze. Chief Hampton said no estimate of the damage was immediately available.

Police said firefighters from two stations here and a brigade from Seeley's Bay, 15 miles north, battled the blaze in the bitterly cold building.

They were helped in their efforts to keep the fire from spreading by the lack of wind, police said.

A series of raids Monday by Ontario and Quebec Provincial Police officers in Montreal suburbs on the south shore of the St. Lawrence resulted in the recovery of 175 stolen cars.

Director J.-Arthur Hebert of the Quebec Provincial Police described the ring as "the largest in Quebec history."

Chief Inspector J. Herve Pelmeaule of the QPP refused to discuss in detail the ring's Ontario links. Part of the three-month investigation that led to the raids was done in Ontario.

The police made 13 separate descents, picking up 20 men. Six of them were later released. The 14 others are to be charged today with counts of theft, possession of stolen property and conspiracy, a police spokesman said.

Police said cars were stolen, then driven to a garage in suburban Brossard and dismantled in one degree or another. Car parts were then sold to small garages or body shops in Quebec province and elsewhere.

Most of the cas involved were new — "almost off the showroom floor" cars were that new," one policeman said.

Investigators said a stolen car could be dismantled in 20 minutes by three men using modern equipment.

In Toronto, Assistant Commissioner H. H. Graham of the Ontario Provincial Police confirmed that his force has been working with Quebec police on the investigation.

He said Chief Inspector J. W. Harris of the auto thefts branch has been in Quebec for some time.

All of those arrested were residents of Quebec.

The investigation has ramifications at a number of Ontario points, but their full extent has not been established, he said. He declined to elaborate because a great deal of investigation remained to be done.

Brief Presented Shows Funeral Costs Rising

TORONTO (CP)—It costs a lot of money to die these days, but just how much, representatives of the Ontario Funeral Service Association were not able to say Tuesday.

They appeared before the legislature's select committee on aging, prepared with a brief containing a survey of what people paid for funerals and graves in 1965.

But they couldn't agree on 1965 figures for coffins, opening and closing the grave, burial and funerals.

A. Maxwell Paul of Pousaan, Ont., association secretary, said the Ontario welfare department's $125 maximum payment for burial of persons on welfare is not enough.

FIGURE COSTS

"We have figured it costs $122 to $138 actual cost, exclusive of overhead," he said. "The cheapest casket in Powassan costs about $50 plus $20 for a wooden outer case."

"There have been steady increases in the cost of caskets all along, but the $125 has remained constant since about 1953," he said.

Mr. Paul said it would be fairly difficult to get a cheaper funeral in Toronto for less than $600.

The survey of 20,547 adult funerals showed that 74 per cent of them cost between $400 and $700. Only 2.6 per cent cost more than $1,000, while 1.9 per cent cost less than $200.

The survey did not include cemetery charges or follow-up care of the grave after burial.

Gales, Added To Snow, Lash Most of Europe

LONDON (AP)—Gales lashed much of Europe Tuesday while rain, snow, sleet and ice added to the misery of the continental winter.

In Britain, heavy snow spread southward as high winds and gales from England. Gales in the English Channel and Irish Sea kept ferry and cargo boats in port at Liverpool and halted flights between London and the Channel Islands.

The forecast was for higher temperatures and rain, bringing the threat of floods in the low - lying English midlands. Along the Scottish-English border where high winds were blocked with snow than at any time in the last 15 years. Hundreds of persons in northern country districts were marooned in their homes.

Snow piled up to nine miles deep in parts of northern Scotland overnight, blocking railway lines and shattering windows.

Violent gusts of wind lashed Belgium and heavy snow fell during the night in the eastern part of the country. A nine-ton truck was overturned by heavy winds on a country road.

Reasonable Force Used Says Magistrate

KINGSTON (CP) — Ricky Shepherd, 19, used reasonable force to ward off trespassers, a magistrate decided Tuesday in finding the youth not guilty of assault occasioning bodily harm.

Shepherd had been charged after three youths were wounded by a shotgun on Halloween.

He testified he had fired over the heads of a gang of youths after they had thrown rocks and shouted threats outside his home at Verona, about 25 miles north of here.

He had been protecting his mother, he said.

Two of those struck by shotgun pellets, Douglas Veley and Duane Brooks, testified they saw Shepherd on the roof of the house and were only standing around when they were injured after hearing a shot.

The two, and 11 others, have been charged with conspiracy to commit an unlawful act.

Disbarred Lawyer Given Five Years

TORONTO (CP)—John Mills Drysdale, 39, of Toronto, a disbarred lawyer who was an unsuccessful Liberal candidate for Toronto-Bracondale in the 1962 provincial election, was sentenced to five years in prison Tuesday after pleading guilty to 28 charges of theft and uttering forged cheques.

Drysdale was charged with thefts involving $168,000.

He was disbarred Sept. 28 as a special consequence of his Upper Canada Law Society.

He was questioned by police Oct. 8 and charged with theft of $11,000 from a client's account. Monday police placed 24 more charges him with the theft of $135,000 from clients' trust accounts. He was charged also with four counts of uttering.

Law Students Suggest Senate Be Comprised Of Provincial Officials

TORONTO (CP)—Abolition of the Senate and making English the only official language in Canada were among suggestions made to the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism Tuesday as it returned to Toronto for a second series of hearings.

The commission was told in a brief from the Students' Law Society at the University of Toronto that Canada's upper house should be replaced with a body where provincial demands could be reconciled with the national interest.

The law students suggested the new body could be comprised of premiers, finance ministers, attorneys - general and welfare ministers from all the provinces.

The commission hearing Tuesday night was the first of a series that ends Friday. Commissioners receiving briefs were A. Davidson Dunton, a co-chairman; Professor Frank Scott, Jean Louis Gagnon and Paul Lecoste, in his second day as a member after long service as co-secretary.

The Protestant Federation of Fairwolf Women of Canada urged in a brief that English be the sole official language in Canada and asked that the federal government not spend funds to promote the culture or language of any minority group.

"We desire a united Canada," the brief said, "but we cannot find where Quebec has made a single concession toward unity in Canada."

Some of the commission members met here while the remainder were hearing representations in Montreal.

The law students brief also proposed that the Supreme Court of Canada be divided into two federally - appointed benches. One would deal with civil, the other with common law.

The court sections would sit together on constitutional and federal matters, such as criminal and immigration cases.

Commissioner Scott, a former dean of the law faculty at Ottawa University, had some sharp questioning on the law students' proposal.

Student spokesman David Peterson said there is discontent in Quebec to the effect that the Supreme Court is deciding some Quebec civil issues in the common law manner. Quebec civil law is based on the Code Napoleon, while the common law prevails use English common law.

Prof. Scott agreed there was dissatisfaction but he observed it would be difficult in sort out the two areas. Many cases were entangled in various aspects of law.

The students' brief also said the federal government must retain treaty-making powers that do not infringe on provincial rights, and control over criminal law.

The YWCA said in a brief Tuesday, one of five presented, that teaching of French and English in primary and secondary schools should be improved as a means of strengthening national unity.

The Ontario School Trustees' and Ratepayers' Association said all provinces should try to introduce the second language, English or French, as early as possible in secondary schools.

Mrs. Jean Watson, association secretary, told the commission the association hopes teaching of a second language might begin in Grade 1. She said it is important that more teachers have French as a mother tongue.

Andrew Gregorovich, spokesman for the Ukrainian Youth Federation, said the group advocates the extension of French teaching across Canada and opposes it because the teaching of Ukrainian and other languages in addition to Canada's two chief tongues.

Toronto teacher Earl K. St. Jean, who presented a personal brief, said the commission questioning he favors expansion of French teaching but with some qualification.

He said it should be on a "sound basis." However, he said, it might lead to frustration if a person absorbed more French than he was able to use in his community.

Dief Wants Conference Aimed at Ending War in Viet Nam

HALIFAX (CP) — Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker said Tuesday Canada should ask United Nations Secretary-General U Thant to call a conference aimed at ending war in Viet Nam.

At a press conference at Halifax International Airport, Mr. Diefenbaker said he was "very concerned" the U.S. state department only recently admitted it had received a peace feeler from North Viet Nam last April.

State department spokesmen have said U.S. officials rejected the North Vietnamese approach because the bombing of Hanoi was proposed to be stopped as a precondition to negotiate in good faith.

"Whatever it was . . . the failure so reveal this will cause concern in the minds of all those who stand together for freedom," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

"Canada should call on U Thant to make a further effort to bring about a convening of a peace conference."

Mr. Diefenbaker said he understood U.S. State Secretary Rusk turned down the North Vietnamese offer after hearing a report from Blair Seaborne, a Canadian representative on the International Control Commission in Viet Nam.

SPORTS SLICES

Bobby Hull took time off "for from the madding crowds" last week and spent a few days basking in the Point Anne sunshine and taking on some of "mother's" home-cooked meals.

And it may and may not be a tip but National Hockey League gunlies had better gird their girdles and sharpen their eyes for it is a strong possibility that the Hawks' blonde bomber will return to the hockey wars tonight when Boston visits the Windy City.

Bobby is quoted as saying during his sojourn here that the injury to his knee was not as serious as first reported—and far less serious than those which laid him low, knee-wise last season.

Apparently Hull was taking no chances on aggravating the injury as he is reported as saying that rest would do his knee a lot of good. He took no chances on returning to action before the knee was in satisfactory shape.

Hull apparently doesn't want a repetition of the 1964-65 season when after a phenomenal first-half start that netted him 22 goals, fifty-two and stymied him—and held him to seven goals in the final chapter of the schedule.

This year he has set a sensational "start" mark with 15 goals in a dozen games, and appeared headed for a record-breaking "bait" at least, when he twisted the ligaments in a knee.

The Hawks hope the blonde bomber picks up where he left off after missing four games, as of this date. Including tonight's tilt Bobby has 19 games to go in the first half of the schedule in which he must score 17 goals to equal his record of last year.

And that reported "discussion" on the Chicago Black Hawks club between Hull and Mikita proved nothing more than good-natured raillery.

The two are fast friends despite the fact that seldom has an NHL club had players on their roster of the calibre of the pair. The only thing they do not agree on is which of the two is the best.

"Bobby is the best all-round player in the world," raved Mikita. "He's even better than Gordie Howe."

Owner Jim Norris of the Black Hawks when asked to appraise the abilities of the two stars said, "How can you compare them? Hull is the Babe Ruth of hockey and Mikita is the Ty Cobb."

Tommy Ivan who coached Gordie Howe at Detroit for years, and signed Hull to his first pro contract with Chicago is a diplomat. Tommy won't take sides.

But don't say anything derogatory about Gordie Howe within earshot of Master Hull. You're asking for an argument. The two are fast friends and Howe is still the hockey hero Hull knew when he was playing in the minors.

Howe recently set an all-time NHL scoring record by racking up goal Number 600. This came in his 20th years in the big time.

NHL observers claim that the only player who can emulate or perhaps beat Howe's record (whatever that is when he is finished) is Hull.

Fast records appear to bear out this statment, barring permanent injuries or other circumstances which could take Hull out of contention.

At the moment Hull is well ahead of the Howe pace. In his first eight seasons in the NHL Gordie scored 242 goals, an average of 30 plus per season. Hull's total at the end of eight seasons is 244, an average of 32 goals per season.

Assuming Hull remains in active service for the next twelve years, to equal Howe's 26-year record, he must score 336 goals or an average of 28 goals per season, to reach the 600-mark.

Howe's best-scoring "clusters" came in the five seasons, 1949-50 to 1953-54 when he scored 297 goals for an average of 40 plus.

In his past six years in the big time Hull has scored 233 goals, slightly under an average of 40 per season. This included his record-equalling "58" scored in 1961-62.

Howe has broken the "40" mark four times during his illustrious career. If the 1953-53 season he lacked one short of the elusive "40". In 1950-51 he counted 43; 1951-52 he got 47 and in 1956-57 he scored 44.

Linemen Top All-Canada Grid Teams

TORONTO (CP)—John Barrow and Tony Pajeckowski, two of the most rugged linemen in the Canadian Football League, were named today to their fourth consecutive All-Canada all-star football team.

Both have made all-star as defensive and offensive players and neither has missed an all-Canada team since voting for this honor was launched in 1952 by the Football Reporters of Canada.

Barrow, captain of the Grey Cup champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats, has been an Eastern Conference all-star each year since joining Ticats nine years ago.

He was Canada's outstanding lineman in 1962 and runner-up for the honor the last two seasons. He also was named the outstanding player Saturday in Tiger-Cats' 22-10 Grey Cup triumph over Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

The only unanimous selection by the 39 FRC members who cast ballots was fullback George Reed, earlier an unanimous selection as WFC all-star and named the outstanding player in Canada for 1963 and the most valuable player in the WFC.

The 12-member WFC clubs snared nine of the 12 all-Canada offensive team positions while the EFC clubs, thanks to the rugged and stingy Ticats' defence, held a 7-5 edge in voting for the defensive unit.

The offensive team:

Half the 34 players named to the 1963 edition of the all-Canada team appeared for the first time, six on offence and six on defence. Nine players were members of the 1964 all-Canada team, while three others returned to the squad after missing one year.

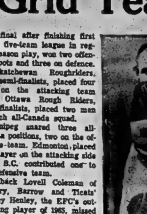
TICATS PLACE SIX

The Hamilton defence, which had the best CFL record in 1963 in giving up only 10.9 points a game, placed five men on the all-Canada defensive squad and another on the attacking club.

Calgary Stampeders, upset by Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the WFC final after finishing first in the five-team league in regular season play, won two offensive spots and three on defence.

Saskatchewan Roughriders, WFC semi-finalists, placed four men on the attacking team while Ottawa Rough Riders, EFC finalists, placed two men on each all-Canada squad.



Winnipeg snared three all-Canada positions, two on the offensive team. Edmonton placed one player on the attacking side while B.C. contributed one to the defensive team.

Fullback Lovell Coleman of Calgary, Barrow and Ticats' Garney Henley, the EFC's outstanding player of 1963, missed unanimous selection by two votes. Flanker Hugh Campbell of Saskatchewan missed by four, and Tommy Joe Coffey of Edmonton by five and linebackers Wayne Harris of Calgary and Ken Lehmann of Ottawa by six.

Headed by Zeno Karcz of Hamilton, voted the top Canadian-born player this season, three players who learned their football with Ottawa Rough Riders made the squad this year. The others were Pajeckowski and centre Ted Urness of Saskatchewan.

Clair To Stay, Berger

OTTAWA (CP)—Directors of Ottawa Rough Riders will consider the status of coach Frank Clair at a meeting next week but vice-president Sam Berger says he's sure the veteran coach will be back next year.

"I don't think it's even a question of retaining him," Berger said in an interview Tuesday.

"We'd be making a terrible blunder if we took any action to dismiss him."

Although he has never missed a playoff in 10 years as Rider head coach, Clair was the target for criticism this year when the club failed to live up to preseason expectations.

Clair himself spoke of a Grey Cup season after the signing of fullbacks Jim Dillard and Bo Scott. While Dillard and Scott made the Eastern Football Conference All - Star team, the Riders finished second behind Hamilton Tiger - Cats for the third consecutive year.

And for the third straight year they were eliminated by the Ticats, who went on to win the Grey Cup.

Clair still has two years to go on a three-year contract that calls for more than $20,000 a year.

The Commissioner Speaks

'Won't Be A Puppet' Says Eckert

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Gen. William Eckert says he won't be intimidated in his new job as commissioner of baseball.

The retired air force officer, who became commissioner two weeks ago, bluntly told baseball officials Tuesday night he won't allow himself "to become a puppet."

"Nobody tied any strings on me, so there aren't any to pull," said the mercurial 55-year-old commissioner, who described himself as a "product of small-town America with no experience in baseball."

Eckert said he was gratified by the "gracious reception" given him as commissioner despite his lack of baseball fame.

"The day after I was named commissioner," Eckert said, "Willie Mays—whom I admire greatly—asked 'who's he?'"

SEEN SELDOM

Eckert, who has been seen only briefly in public since arriving for the baseball meetings which started Monday and move on to Miami Wednesday night, said he wants to broaden interest in baseball "to include all levels and all ages."

Eckert's speech enlivened a dull day marked by much speculation about player trades but little action.

Two veterans cut loose earlier were signed. California Angels took third baseman Frank Malzone, who had been dropped by the Red Sox, and Cleveland Indians signed catcher Del Crandall, released by Pittsburgh Pirates. New York Mets finally announced a trade that sent outfielder Joe Christopher to Boston for shortstop Eddie Bressoud.

The minor league meetings which were being wound up today before officials went to Miami for the major league convention, brought a compromise between the two class AAA leagues, the Pacific Coast and the International, and the major leagues.

The class AAA leagues agreed to a settlement in which the majors will pay the salaries over $800 a month of all optioned players. The Triple A leagues have been paying the first $700 a month. The PCL and the IL however, failed to get the major leagues to pay specified sums for players recalled to the big leagues during the season.

McGill Fullback Is MVP

TORONTO (CP)—Peter Howlett, a fullback with McGill Redmen of the Ontario-Quebec Intercollegiate Athletic Association Football Conference this season, today was named the most valuable player in the conference.

Howlett also played defensive end for the Redmen, who finished in second place in the four-team circuit. Howlett is studying law and has one more year of football eligibility. He is 23 and his home is Montreal.

He was chosen by a vote of conference players. Last year's winner was Jim Young of Queen's University in Kingston, now a member of Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League.

Dick Fiedler, another McGill player, was voted the top lineman and Al Giachino of University of Toronto Blues was selected the top rookie in balloting by sports writers and coaches.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Howie Young, Los Angeles Blades defenceman suspended Nov. 16 after the club said he refused to play without a salary increase, is ready for action again, the Blades said he decided to play for his contract amount and the suspension was lifted Monday.

Brown Denies Charge

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Jim Brown pleaded not guilty Tuesday in a paternity suit scheduled for a preliminary hearing Jan. 15—after the end of the National Football League season.

The Cleveland Browns fullback appeared in juvenile court to deny the charge filed by 15-year-old Brenda Ayres. She claimed he was the father of a child she is expecting in February.

Slumping Blues Seek Revenge

Meet Leafs Tonight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Rangers will be looking for revenge when they meet Toronto Maple Leafs in New York tonight.

The Rangers, who will be playing their seventh game in 12 days, have lost their last three outings, including a 4-2 defeat by Toronto Sunday night in New York.

In four previous meetings this year, the Maple Leafs have won two games and tied one.

Other National Hockey League action tonight has Boston Bruins, tied for fifth place with Detroit Red Wings, visiting the second-place Chicago Black Hawks.

The man who could put the fourth-place Rangers back on the winning track is right winger Bob Nevin, who is in fifth spot in the individual scoring race.

Nevin, a former Leaf who was traded to New York with four other players in exchange for Andy Bathgate and Don McKenney almost two years ago, has 10 goals and seven assists.

Nevin showed all the signs of becoming a high-scoring forward in his rookie year with Toronto when he tallied 21 goals and assisted on 37 others.

During the next two years, the 27-year-old right winger's goal production dropped to 15 and 12. At the time of the trade to New York, he had seven goals to his credit.

In his first full year with the Rangers, Nevin scored 16 goals and had 14 assists. His quick start this year suggests he might have the best season of his career.

The third-place Leafs stayed over in New York following Sunday's game, "and had two big fielding practice ice.

They drove 25 miles Monday to a suburban rink for a workout and Tuesday practised on the top floor of Madison Square Garden which players described as a "refrigerator".

Red Kelly, Toronto's veteran centre, is not expected to play tonight as he is still nursing a groin injury. This means that rookie Mike Walton will stay with the team.

The Rangers announced they may recall Bill Hicke from Minnesota Rangers of the Central Professional Hockey League for tonight's game.

The Bruins, riddled with injuries on defence, will be looking for their first win of the season over the Black Hawks.

In the previous meetings, Chicago has won one and tied the other.

The Bruins have called up defencemen Dallas Smith and centre Skip Krake from Oklahoma City of the Central League as replacements.

Rollins Practice Cancelled

Rollins Construction Juniors, idle from Friday to Friday, have had a practice and a game cancelled this week.

Club president Gordie Bell said yesterday afternoon that "we were scheduled to work out at Memorial Arena Wednesday night but the ice is now rented so we are out of luck."

The other postponement is an away game scheduled for Sunday, Rollins were to play Oshawa Crushmen, in Bowmanville, at 7.30, but apparently Oshawa cannot get ice time for the game.

Bell said the game would be re-scheduled, likely after the start of the new year.

Oshawa will be here for their first appearance on Friday night, at nine o'clock, and Rollins have an away game in Cobourg next Monday as the Sunday postponement was a more or less welcome one.

Not so tonight's practice postponement, stressed Bell, who was trying to contact all the players to tell them of the change in plans.

"We need all the ice time we can get, especially with Friday's game against Oshawa coming up", he said.

Bell also confirmed the idea that he will be doubling as club coach this season since all efforts to secure a permanent one have failed.

Fish And Game Meeting —

Big Buck Missed 'Bucks'

He who hesitates is not always lost—but sometimes he misses out on a prize award.

Take the case of Gordon Davies, well known city figure skater, and "bait" of a rare man-and-wife hunting team.

At the regular meeting of the Belleville Fish and Game Club last night, acting president Fred Fisher announced there was only one entry in the club's "biggest deer" contest.

Some time later Davies arrived and discovered the $25.00 prize had been awarded Boudrey. The Davies deer weighed 206 pounds.

However Davies has some consoling. His deer will likely win the annual award for the "biggest buck" presented at the Ladies' Night meeting in January.

A highlight of the meeting was the announcement by hunter safety instructor Dave Buchanan that 140 young hunters had taken the course during the year, 110 during the past three months.

Hunter safety awards were presented to eleven of the successful candidates, one of them 20-year-old Nancy Longhurst. The story appears elsewhere.

Mr. Buchanan paid tribute to the district's new conservation officer, Jim Moore, for his assistance and co-operation.

Three directors including the club president, Bill Phillips, were welcomed after lengthy absences due to illness. The others were the club treasurer, Fred Clarke and director Tom Heim.

Cost of club operation, members were told had resulted in an increase of membership fees. The new slate calls for students 50 cents annual dues; from 21 to 65, $3.00; over age 65, $1.00.

The annual "deer story" session was disappointing. Mr. Boudrey said he had shot his deer "on the doorstep," four miles north of Foxboro while director George Woodhouse stated he had shot 16 deer over six years—and missed three.

An off-best story revealed that Dr. Francis Ross and party searched the snowy woods in vain during the second week. The irony of it was, the party was forced to slow down on their way north to allow three deer to cross the highway a few miles north of Foxboro.

It was announced there will be no meeting in the month of December, but the annual Ladies' Night dinner meeting will be held the third Tuesday in January.

Many films were shown on hunting and fishing. The feature was the "Tides of Fundy", an award winning film taken by the National Film Board.

Three Points Off Pace

Petes Shade Nationals

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A power-play goal by Mickey Redmond at 5:05 of the third period broke a 2-2 deadlock and carried Peterborough Petes to a 3-2 victory over London Nationals in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game Tuesday night.

The win moved the Petes to within three points of first-place Oshawa Generals and left the Nationals in last place, two points behind Kitchener Rangers.

Redmond also set up the other Peterborough goals by Danny Grant and Andre Lacroix in the first period. Neil Clairmont and Moe St. Jacques were the London goal getters, scoring two minutes apart late in the first period to erase a 2-0 lead by the Petes.

Redmond, Grant and Lacroix raised their goal production to 43 for the season—more than half their team's total for the year.

London goalie Rocky Farr was cut for 12 stitches on the bridge of the nose in the second period, delaying the game for 15 minutes.

CHAMP WINS

TOKYO (AP)—Fighting Harada of Japan swarmed over British challenger Alan Rudkin with a whirlwind assault and retained his world bantamweight boxing title Tuesday night with a unanimous 15-round decision.

The Handguns

Other scores were: Reg Sprackett 252, Cliff Smith 239, Don Parks 233 and Walter Moran 231.

The handgunners have announced their annual Christmas shoot will be held at the Armouries on December 21, at seven o'clock.

INDICT STUDENT

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A federal grand jury indicted boxer student Thomas Robinson, 18, Tuesday for piracy and intimidation for his Nov. 17 attempt to commandeer a jetliner over the Gulf of Mexico. The Brownsville, Tex., youth was indicted on three counts—one of which—piracy — carries a maximum penalty of death.

Detroit Wings Blank Hornets

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Sharp defensive play by goalies Roger Crozier and Hank Bassen gave Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League a 3-0 shutout over Pittsburgh Hornets of the American League in an exhibition game Tuesday night.

The Red Wings spread the scoring out over three periods on goals by Ron Murphy, Paul Henderson and Bruce McGregor.

Crozier stopped nine shots in the first period. Bassen, his veteran replacement, stopped 20 Hornet attempts in the last two periods.

Says Taxes Threaten Racing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—E. P. Taylor, president of the Thoroughbred Racing Associations, said Tuesday that if the racing industry, with $1,200,000,000 in investments, is to survive, it must have relief from taxes and levies totalling $250,000,000 in 27 states.

"It is high time that we ceased being apologetic and took a firm stand against excessive taxation and the overexploitation of the thoroughbred racing," Taylor told more than 150 racing executives and officials representing the 26 Thoroughbred Racing Association's members.

"Something must be done," the Toronto industrialist said.

"Our experience in Ontario is an example. Legislative leaders there, as in many states, were for the most part not interested in racing as a sport but solely as a means of raising additional revenue.

"We were, nevertheless, able to convince a somewhat skeptical prime minister that racing could only survive and the government revenues improve if the killing tax of 12½ per cent on wagering was reduced. The tax was gradually reduced to six per cent where it has now stood for the past eight years."

Minor Hockey

Juvenile, midget and novice games were played in the Bellville Minor Hockey Association last night.

JUVENILE

Tigers staged a late rally but fell short a goal while bowing to the Jets 5-4. Jets led 3-1 at one point in the loan juvenile battle.

R. Rosebush had a big night for the winners, scoring four goals and assisting on the other one. B. Moon had a goal and two helpers, D. Muir two assists, Sager and R. Hannah one apiece.

Hunter, Wellesley, J. Cole and J. Smith were Tiger marksmen, D. Dickey assisted on a pair, Smith and Wickens on one each.

MIDGET

Wings dumped the Leafs 6-1 and Canadiens topped Elk's Black Hawks 6-2 in midget action.

The Wings divided their goals among Allan Jones, Mark Acquafredda, Neil Goyer, Bill Romain, Ted Wake and Jim Dafoe. Waite, Gary Maher, Bill Morrison, Dafoe and Reg Varney had assists. Bruce Gibbons was the Leaf scorer, assisted by Rick Hunter.

Grant Hopkins and Allen Ray each scored a brace of goals to spearhead the Hab victory, Greg Whike had one goal and two assists and Doug MacCormack added the other goal. Wayne Muir and Ron Maclinnah scored for the Hawks, M. Coughlin, Hutchinson and Kevin Allen had assists.

NOVICE

Three novice games were played with Wings defeating Canadiens 3-1, Bruins blanking Rangers 2-0 and Generals outscoring the Barons 7-3.

Bruce MacDonald, Leland Williams and Ricky Culkin potted Wing goals and MacDonald was also given an assist. Scott Wilkens tallied in defeat.

John Ashley's three goals sparked the Generals' triumph. Terry Scanlon and Stephen Cosley each had a goal and assist. Joe Muldoon collected a goal and assist for the Barons. Will Gibson and Robert Lorimer also scored.

Six-Team Loop For Lacrosse

OSHAWA (CP)—Jim Naish of Port Credit, Ont., president of the Ontario Lacrosse Association, said the group's 68th annual convention will be held in Toronto March 5, 1966.

Naish said that six Senior A teams will return next season—Brooklin, Port Credit, Peterborough, Huntsville, Brampton and St. Catharines.

Portland Ties Aces

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Visiting Portland Buckaroos finally received a bit of a welcoming hospitality in the American Hockey League at Quebec City Tuesday night.

The Western League second-placers, who lost their first two starts of a four-game swing through the eastern circuit, picked up their first point in a 3-3 tie against Quebec Aces.

That left them one up on Springfield Indians, who were beaten 4-3 by Vancouver Canucks Tuesday, making it three losses in a row in their coastal tour.

Cliff Schmautz, one of the WHL's leading scorers, accounted for both Portland goals while Terry Gray and Ed Hoekstra repaied for the Aces, who now lead the AHL's Eastern Division by 11 points.

THERE'S TUBE SHORTAGE

TORONTO (CP) — An acute shortage of color picture tubes may prevent Canadian manufacturers getting into mass production of color television sets for up to two years, Canadian manufacturers say they may be able to satisfy only a fraction of the color set demand when color broadcasting begins in Canada next fall.

Thousands of geese each year use the refuge as a rest stop. Many others, however, decide the area is far enough south and stay until spring. The Trots

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Rita Feagan of Goderich, Ont., the first Canadian to win 200 harness races in one season, was shut out Tuesday night at Mohawk Raceway but still clinched the Canadian championship.

Feagan, 25, drove three winners Monday night to run his season total to 113, good enough for the title among trotting and pacing drivers.

He scored his 200th victory Nov. 16. Three nights later Gilles' Lachance of Montreal registered his 200th win at Montreal's Richelieu Raceway.

The meeting here continues through this Saturday, but the season officially came to an end Tuesday night.

Sloe Gin was an upset winner in the second race and combined with May Scot, winner of the first race, for a daily double worth $100.80.

Mr. Breedlove Shudders

Wife Gets Racing Bug

Last month, Breedlove set a world land speed record of almost 401 miles an hour in his jet-engine racer Spirit of America on Utah's Bonneville Salt Flats.

"I shudder every time I think what I let my wife, Lee, do at Bonneville," said Craig. "I put her in the cockpit of the machine, showed her the controls and how they worked. She said she would love to drive it, so I let her take the first run at idle and she went 99 m.p.h.

"Then she said she wanted to try it faster. I raised the power setting and showed her how to operate the parachute system. Away she went at 230 m.p.h.

"I turned her around and she made the next run a 388. Then I just had to say it. I told her if she wanted to go back she could set the women's record.

"I about choked when she said she wanted to do 350. I raised the power setting and she went 352. The 308.56 average (for two runs) gave her the land speed record for women."

Breedlove thinks record speed is now in his wife's system and if another woman breaks her record she cannot resist the challenge to try to regain it.

Sarah Lindsay, 9, Breaks Male Monopoly on Soccer

WEST VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — Brown-eyed Sarah Lindsay, 9, has broken the male monopoly on juvenile soccer in West Vancouver.

It took just about two years of lobbying around school before she fastened successfully onto a guy whose dad coaches one of the teams.

"I could find nothing in the rulebook covering this," says Tom Gay, mentor of the West Van Spartans, "so I said she could play."

Play she has. In her first five games she scored a goal and made openings for two others.

"She has played various positions in the forward line," says Guy. "She was more than adequate in every one. Last Saturday she played two games. I lent her to another team and she starred there too."

Guy says he has decided to trade Sarah to another coach in the league.

"She needs the benefit of his good coaching," he said soberly.

"She could be made into a wonderful player if she stays at it."

Sarah likes to give credit to her first soccer teacher.

"You see, we had a maid and she was sort of a tomboy herself and she taught me."

Sarah's mother reports that in order to keep up her training and game schedule, Sarah has quit Brownies.

How long will she stay in the game?

"I'll play till I have to leave," she says.

WOULD CHANGE LAWS

LONDON (Reuters) — The House of Lords Tuesday night voted 67 to 3 in favor of liberalizing Britain's 100-year-old abortion laws. The bill—if it wins approval in the House of Commons—would legalize abortion after pregnancy by rape or incest, and in cases in which the mother is incapable for health reasons of assuming moral and legal responsibility for the child.

Young Ladies Top Hunter Safety Class

If you think hunting has no appeal for young people, don't believe yourself. Ask Dave Buchanan.

Dave is the hunter safety instructor for the district and knows whereof he speaks.

The go-go, wanzel, frug and monkey have their places in the teen's "blow-off" agenda, but there's another "go-go" that appeals to a lot of them.

It is Int's "go-go" a buzzing.

And it is not confined to the male of the species.

Mr. Buchanan told the Fish and Game Club last night that 140 youngsters had taken the hunter-safety course, 110 during the past three months.

And who do you think topped the class?

Two young ladies whose examinations results revealed 100 per cent success. Another recorded an 89 per cent mark.

Twenty - year - old Nancy Longhurst, daughter of Mrs. Amy Longhurst and the late Stan Longhurst, 18 Mattney Street, topped the class with Mary O'Neill. Barbara Pringle had the 89 per cent.

Eleven of the successful 110 hunting candidates were presented with their safety badges last night.

Those included Mrs. Longhurst, Wayne Parrinder, Richard Seeley, Andy Watson, Michael DeGeroos, Gerald Champagne, Richard Brown, Jim Anderson, Walter Barrage, Greg Brown and Larry Pope.

Miss Longhurst has yet to get her first deer — but she is fully equipped for the big moment when it presents itself.

And a six-year-old sister Laura-Lynne may not be too far behind. Laura-Lynne already has shown an interest in fishing. So the hunting yen could be in the making.

GRANDSON OF 'SEVEN'

The Magnificent Seven, a Hollywood remake of a Japanese film success, is to be followed by The Return of the Seven. .

Death After 6 Episodes Averted by Viewers' Favor

VANCOUVER (CP)—Barbara Parkins was supposed to die after six episodes but viewers liked her and she was permitted to live. Now she's a full-fledged star after 135 episodes of the television serial "Peyton Place."

The 21-year-old Vancouver-born brunette, home to relax after two hectic years without a holiday, conceded that television and Hollywood have been good to her.

But she added that there is much about the film capital that repels her and described TV as just a means to an end.

Barbara, then 17, went to California with her widowed mother 4½ years ago intending to be a dancer. She joined a drama group and was spotted by two agents.

Her first part was a bit role in a "Dr. Kildare" show and she later was given an audition for "Peyton Place," the program based on Grace Metalious's sex-oriented novel about life in a New England town.

Barbara admits she is far from being the most popular girl in Hollywood. She says she doesn't make close friendships easily, can't stand phoneyness and refuses to conform to the pattern of life so many actors and actresses feel is necessary for success.

She adds that she stopped giving interviews to fan magazines because they came up with some blood-curdling stories and headlines about her, none of them true.

And she recalls turning down one writer's advice on how to be Hollywood's hottest star with the rebuke: "I'll be the hottest star without being involved in a torrid love affair."

Hollywood "flourishes on psychiatrists, social life and prestige" and she indulges in none of these, says Barbara, adding:

"It's pretty wide open on moral standards. Everything is extremely free. But the trouble is that what they do so openly is liked about behind closed doors."

She says stars get into trouble when they no longer can differentiate between reality and fantasy. And the place is especially hard on young people—"so many pleasures are placed in front of them it's impossible to settle for just one."

With her TV earnings Miss Parkins has helped her mother, Ethel Mae Parkins, buy a small home in Vancouver. The young actress has bought an expensive sports car, a mink coat and some Los Angeles real estate.

She plans to leave the Peyton Place series, perhaps in another year, three years at most, and then hunt for good movie roles. Eventually she'd like to live in Europe where she thinks she can find people who inhabit a real world, not a Hollywood fantasy.

Duties as Club Manager Charles Farrell Resumes

By BOB THOMAS

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) Charles Farrell is back at his old stand, looking at 64 just as athletic and as handsome as in his heyday as a Hollywood leading man.

Farrell has resumed his duties as managing director of the Racquet Club, which he founded (with Ralph Bellamy) in 1934 and built into the favorite desert playground of the stars. Six years ago, he sold his interest for a reported million dollars, remaining to oversee the operation.

But Farrell differed with the owners over policy and became estranged from the Racquet Club. The place was sold again, and the new owners saw the wisdom of inducing Charlie's return.

"Well, I ought to know the operation by now," grinned the one-time star, whose genially can keep guests and help happy.

One such recent visitor was Janet Gaynor, who dropped in with her new husband, producer Paul Gregory. Her reunion with Charlie created a wave of nostalgia, the pair having costarred in Seventh Heaven and a string of other romantic films of 30-odd years ago.

Minus his wartime navy service and six co-starring years in the TV series My Little Margie, he has wintered here half his lifetime. He once served as mayor of Palm Springs.

He is dedicated to pursuing the fortunes of the Racquet Club and the good life. His interest in the former is more than that of managing director.

"I own the first mortgage on the place—something like $700,000," he said. "The payments come in monthly, which makes it very nice."

Farrell is now entertaining a new generation of resort guests who know him not as a romantic leading man but as Gale Storm's bedeviled daddy in My Little Margie. He is grateful for the series for reviving his fame. He no longer profits from the television showing of the series.

"Gale and I should have made a million apiece from Margie, he said. "We both owned 10 per cent of it. But Hal Roach Jr. lost it when he went broke, and we never got paid."

AT THE PARK — A threesome that's hard to beat — Elvis Presley is flanked by lovely Ursula Andress and Elsa Cardenas in this scene from "Fun in Acapulco" in Technicolor, opening Thursday at the Park Theatre. Jerry Lewis' new production for Paramount was filmed almost entirely in Acapulco. On the same program in color "Who's Minding The Store" starring Jerry Lewis. Complete shows 7.00 and 8.50 p.m.

Tighter Rules For Non-Banks Are Advocated

TORONTO (CP) — Tighter regulations for non-banking institutions which carry out banking functions should be drawn up quickly, A. William Nicks, president of the Bank of Nova Scotia, says in the bank's annual report released Monday.

He said inadequacies in safeguards for financial institutions were "sadly demonstrated this past summer."

This was an apparent reference to the financial troubles of Atlantic Acceptance Corp., which went into receivership in June, and British Mortgage and Trust, which had problems following the Atlantic failure.

As a result of bitter experiences moves were taken more than 40 years ago to improve and strengthen supervision and inspection of chartered banks, he said.

"The same safeguards unfortunately do not apply to other institutions which, though not chartered banks, have moved increasingly into the area of banking operations, seeking short-term deposits, offering chequing facilities and endeavoring to compete in other ways."

Just a Year Turns Bubbling Mr. K Into Obscure 'Unperson' in Russia

By SIDNEY WEILAND

MOSCOW (Reuters)—In just over a year, the obscurity of Nikita Khrushchev has become almost complete, and Russia's new rulers are busy covering the last traces of the former premier.

The Communist who made the greatest impact on Russian life since Lenin and Stalin and who raised the Kremlin's world image to new heights, Khrushchev now is a weary, ailing pensioner of 71.

The Soviet people over whom he ruled with boundless zest for 11 years sometimes remember his rumbustious ways with affection, but mostly he is forgotten, a relic of history.

Little more than a year ago, the podgy presence of Khrushchev loomed large over the world scene, and Soviet destinies seemed woven with the premier's bluff, bubbling personality.

His abrupt dismissal Oct. 14, 1964, by the Communist Party Central Committee, on grounds of "advanced age" and "deterioration of health," came as a shock to the world, a bombshell to the Russians.

For a few hours, with the ruling caucus heavily against him, he stood in a Kremlin committee room, fighting back arguing, sometimes pleading for a political future.

JOINED IN VOTE

When the debate ended, he raised his hand with the others, and voted himself out of office —into obscurity.

Khrushchev stepped into an oblivion rarely experienced by a defeated politician in the West. There are no political conventions for him to rally, no garden parties to open, no memoirs to write. Nobody asks any more what he thinks and, it seems, nobody cares, except for foreign newspaper men.

The man who made more headlines than any other Russian is fast becoming an "unperson." He is never mentioned by the newspapers, his name is being slowly edited out of the reference books, his portraits have vanished, and Kremlin spokesmen shrug when asked about his health.

Last March, he made a brief appearance to vote in local Moscow elections, and tears glistened in his eyes when curious sightseers applauded.

It was one of several fleeting appearances in Moscow early this year. Lately, less has been seen of him.

He has a government apartment in the city, a chauffeur-driven limousine, and still a Kremlin bodyguard. He is apparently free to come and go, and his pension is adequate.

LIVES IN VILLA

Khrushchev apparently spends most of his time at a riverside villa, 25 miles from Moscow, walking in the woods, fishing and re-reading the Russian classics.

This summer he was in the hospital for several weeks, under treatment for gallstones. Friends say he made a good recovery, without the need for surgery, but that he looked tired and had lost weight. The old bounce had gone, they say.

In a continuing pattern of internal change since October, 1964, the Central Committee recently broke apart the decentralized economic machine introduced by Khrushchev in 1957.

It was the second major step by his successors to change the framework he had decreed for Communist society. Last November, they reunited the Communist Party organization—he had split it into two halves—for industry and agriculture.

Until October, 1964, Khrushchev's impact and often his personal idiosyncracies dictated Soviet policy. He disliked skyscrapers, so house-building was limited to five-storey structures. Now, the architects are aiming for the sky again.

CURBED PROFITS

Khrushchev disliked peasants making private profits, and so he curbed the size of their personal land and cattle holdings. The new leaders have given the holdings back to the farmers. His pet crop was corn, and he tried to forbid the rotation of crops; both trends have been halted.

The party claims the new trend toward "scientific communism"—instead of Khrushchev's "hasty, hare - brained scheming" — will bring better results. And many observers agree the new administration's sober, unmelodramatic drive for economic reform shows serious promise.

In foreign policy, little has changed fundamentally. The easier relations with the United States for which Khrushchev worked have been translated into a near-freeze, but this is due to the Viet Nam war rather than to deliberate decision by the new rulers.

Rawdon

RAWDON — Mr. and Mrs. Garfield McMullen of Hughendon, Alberta are visiting and Mrs. Jack Bury of Calgary have been holidaying with Mr. and Mrs. Fennell Hutchison at Moneyloay. Last week they visited their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hutchison at Alton.

Kalvin Sharp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Sharp of Mount Pleasant, won several prizes at the 4-H Club Awards Night. He also received the Hastings County Warden's Trophy.

Ralph Jaffs, president of Rawdon circuit A.O.T.S. Men's Club, and his committee gathered paper and bottles on Saturday. On Monday about three tons of waste paper were taken by truck to Belleville. The bottles will be disposed of at a later date.

EUCHRE PARTY

The Rawdon Fire Department sponsored a euchre party in the Fire Hall in aid of memorial dystrophy. There were 12 tables in play and the prizes were awarded as follows: Mrs. Howard of Carmel, Mrs. Garth Joslin of Mount Pleasant, Glenn Hinds of Wellman's Mr. Archie Bailey of Carmel and Gordon Webb of Springbrook.

Refreshments were served by the committee in charge and a social half hour enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tamlin of Woodville are spending some time with Robert H. Hoard and Mrs. Hoard at Manwaring.

Twenty people from Mount Pleasant attended Masonic Ladies Night supper and program on Saturday evening in Stirling.

Mrs. George Howard of Shemerly Dawn Rubell and sons are now residing at the R.C.A.F. base and Greenwood, Prince Edward Island. Her husband was stationed there after his return from overseas. Mrs. Howard and sons spent the past month with her grandmother, Mrs. N. Ferguson at Carmel.

Will Appeal Her Conviction

TORONTO (CP) — Dorothy Cameron of Owensound sentenced Tuesday she will appeal her conviction on seven charges of possessing obscene films at her Toronto art gallery.

Miss Cameron, fined $30 on each charge last week and last week, said the issues are far too important to the community at large to let the matter rest.

WORTH SLIMMING FOR

LONDON (CP)—Ian Powell, 32, was told he could not join the RAF unless he reduced his weight from 224 to 200 pounds. He went on a crash diet and lost 34 pounds, just enough to pass the medical examination.

To The Ratepayers of Rawdon Township

During the past three years it has been my privilege to serve as your Reeve of Rawdon Township. I have given of my best at all times with complete honesty and integrity. I would like to solicit your support for another year for the following reasons.

1. As Warden this year I have worked closely on three large projects, Hospital, Jail and County Home, and would like to see these source completion.
2. Immediate past Warden's experience can be a help both to Township and County.
3. 5 out of 6 Wardens are returned by their municipality. Is Rawdon Reeve the same?
4. Obtained many road construction jobs on Rawdon County roads, as past chairman of roads can be of assistance in getting road construction.
5. Plans for construction, 10 Can. Rawdon, west of Springbrook completed, can be of assistance to see that these are carried out.
6. Many projects in township have been completed while I have served as Reeve, such as fire protection, etc.
7. By careful planning the tax rate has been held down and still able to provide good services.

I would like to call at your homes, but due to pressure of County business till the end of the year, this is impossible.

I respectfully ask that you vote for me as your Reeve for 1966 on Friday, Dec. 3rd. Anyone wishing transportation please phone Stirling 395-3011.

O. F. U. Locals Gather For Protest Meeting

ENTERPRISE — Approximately 275 people attended a "protest meeting" sponsored by O.F.U. locals, in the Community Hall here Saturday. Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington, Frontenac, and Leeds counties organized the meeting, inviting the Provincial and Federal Ministers of Agriculture and M.L.A.'s and M.P.'s of the district. After the announcement of the meeting, Hon. W. A. Stewart reported that the drought relief program would be changed to allow up to 75 per cent relief for those counties if farmer applied and proved the need for extra feed. There were other vital items of protest and suggestion as the meeting was held as scheduled. Eldard Powers of Renfrew County was chairman.

Two M.P.'s for Prince Edward - Lennox and Hastings, Douglas Alkenbrack and Lee Grills, attended. John Dolmer, Provincial President of O.F.U., Barry Haggett, Leeds Co., Walter Miller, 2nd vice-pres., O.F.U. were platform guests.

READS BRIEF

Barry Haggett read the brief prepared by the farmers' committee. Speakers emphasizing the different points of the brief were Harold Leeder, Leeds; Joe Murphy, Lennox and Addington; Stuart Carroll, Frontenac; Harold Wilson, Hastings; Harvey Homan, Corbyville presented request for aid on grain.

Mr. Alkenbrack, M.P., brought greetings and emphasized that he as M.P. had not been dragging his feet and outlined his work attempted and accomplished.

He said that farmers rise united, in time of catastrophe and suggested that farmers will come into their own and be in the driver's seat. He urged action be on a high plane consistent with high ideals. He cited the March to Ottawa as being a credit to agricultural industry, to farmers and their families. Action must be firm, the purpose realistic and the means creditable to Ontario and Canada. Thousands, who are not farmers are supporters of the farmer's efforts.

TALK BY LEE GRILLS, M.P.

Lee Grills, M.P., spoke briefly stating that producers' prices were too low — far too many hours of labor for the work buys more food than ever. Consumers get quality food at low prices and the farmer gets prices needed by the farmers. Big corporations and chain stores set prices — not the farmers. He urged the organization of farmers as a real voice of their own to speak for themselves. He stated the organization should be strong and the membership increased.

Farmers participated by questions and comments to the platform. It was noted that the farmers in attendance were roused to do something for themselves. The feeling was that if farmers had been getting satisfactory prices during the last 10 years, the present drought crop insurance plan that the farmer could afford to purchase would not be asking for relief — they would be able to meet disaster.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED

Two resolutions came from the meeting and these were: That the executive of O.F.U. be authorized to carry out further action demanded by farmers' brief "That copies of the brief be sent to the Ontario Minister of Agriculture and the Federal Minister of Agriculture with a demand for announcement of action by the Ministers of Agriculture within 15 days. If the answer is not satisfactory to the farmers that further action be taken by the farmers to save themselves from disaster."

A wash basin and two pails appeared and donations of over $200 were given for an "action fund."

Napanee News

MARKS 83rd BIRTHDAY

NAPANEE — Mr. W. S. Bailey of 12 Bridge Street East, Napanee, recently celebrated his 83rd birthday in the home where he was born, and where he has spent most of his life. All available members of the family joined their parents for a celebration dinner, including their daughter, Mrs. Marian Howitt, a teacher in Toronto. About 20 years ago Mr. Bailey was well known in Belleville, where, for ten years, he was the inspector for the Budweiser Breweries.

FRACTURES HIP

HOLD REUNION

Several residents of the Napanee district were members of a remarkable Scottish family last Sunday to meet the prospective bridegroom of a family member, Barrie Anne Jamieson of Hamilton who will be married to Ewan Fraser of Toronto in the near future. Among the 30 members of the family who gathered at the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Jamieson, Hamilton, were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boe of St. Catharines, and brother Gilmour, the famous marksman. Guests were present from Hespeler, St. Catharines, Brantford, Toronto and Napanee. Most members of the family of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Caldwell of the Deseronto Road were guests, including their son Billy, at home, and daughters, Mrs. Al Sinclair and Mrs. James Alkenbrack of Napanee and their husbands, and Miss Barbara Caldwell of Toronto, and son John A. and Mrs. Caldwell of Lindsay.

PRESENT BIBLES

Twelve study Bibles in memory of David Darling were repeatedly presented to Trinity United Church, Napanee, to be used by young folk of his own age. David, who was 18, was killed in September while attending a school for mentally young people in Interlaken, Switzerland. Among the flowers received for the memorial service held for David in Trinity Church, were tributes from Pierre Berton, whose daughter is a pupil of the same school, and June Callwood, whose son was a fellow pupil. Both are well known authors and radio and television personalities. Held in the son of Mr. and Mrs. Graydon Darling, and had returned with them about a year ago from Bolivia, where they had resided for a year. Mr. Darling is a geologist.

World Famed Violinist Given Honors

LONDON (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth Thursday honored the world famed violinist Yehudi Menuhin, who is a United States citizen, by making him an honorary Knight commander of the Order of the British Empire (KBE).

The foreign office announced that Menuhin, who now lives in Britain, will be invested with the insignia of the order by Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart next month.

Menuhin, once a child prodigy as a violinist, has recently taken a leading part in the founding of the Bath musical festival in the west of England and in the annual Edinburgh arts festival.

The only other leading American artist to receive the honorary KBE is Douglas Fairbanks Jr., who was given the award by the Queen's father, King George VI, for his services to Britain during the Second World War.

Robarts Declares Ontario Needs Skilled Immigrants

LONDON (CP)—A shortage of skilled workers is the "chief hindrance to an increase in manufacturing exports from Ontario," Premier John Robarts said today.

The province is pushing vocational - training programs, but the shortages "can only be filled by the pursuit of an active immigration policy," he said. "This we intend to do."

Speaking to a group of British and Canadian businessmen at a luncheon here, Robarts spelled out Ontario's place in the Canadian economy in detail and extolled the province as a market for foreign investment capital.

It was his second speech here in a week. He spoke to the Canadian Chamber of Commerce last Thursday. He flies back to Toronto Thursday.

"Ontario offers abundant opportunities for participation by anyone who is prepared to contribute, in terms of skills, skills and enthusiasm, in the further development of the world's potentially most prosperous nation."

Canada was always dependent on foreign capital to develop its resources, Robarts said, and will need to continue that policy despite a growing concern over the fact that the United States industrial concerns may exercise inordinate control in some sectors of our economy."

Ontario was concerned about such domination, but it realized that to exploit its natural resources "capital is needed beyond the capacity of a mere 19,000,000 Canadians to provide."

"We, therefore, welcome participation by foreign investors in our development and we would welcome greater investment of capital from the United Kingdom."

He also urged British manufacturers to set up manufacturing or sales-and-service operations in Canada, or to enter joint ventures with Canadian manufacturers.

"Let us work together, to the end that we both prosper," Robarts said.

Prince Edward Conservation Body Proposed

PICTON — Two municipalities of Prince Edward County have each agreed to send a representative to a meeting arranged by the Conservation Authorities branch of the Department of Energy and Resources Management.

This may be a first for Prince Edward County, which may be the way into a new type of conservation authority in Ontario.

A number of such authorities are already in existence across the province but all of these are based on th watershed areas of one or more rivers.

Prince Edward County lacks such a major watershed but is considering a conservation authority under a section of the Conservation Authorities Act which allows such authorities by joint agreement of several municipalities.

Interest in a conservation authority here was started by Norris Whitney, MPP for Prince Edward - Lennox riding. He has urged county councillors to investigate the possibility for Prince Edward and feels conservation authorities are a good thing.

Among the benefits the county might enjoy if such an authority is formed are special grants on conservation parks, water control and storage projects. Another potential benefit which may be of value to this county is a special program for converting low quality farm land into forest.

The special meeting has been called for 2 p.m. Thursday in Shire Hall and the general public, though not eligible to vote, is invited to attend.

Santa to Visit Picton Saturday

PICTON — Santa will make his official visit to Picton next Saturday afternoon between the town's shiny red fire truck. He will be paraded through the town's main street to Dundonald Park, where he will meet the children and distribute treats. While parents do their Christmas shopping, the children can attend two showings of special films at the Regent Theatre.

From 4 to 5 p.m. there will be free skating at the County Centre at the Fair Grounds. Already the town is taking on the air of Christmas with gay street lighting and the huge Christmas tree has been erected in front of the Armories.

Fred Jennings, Prince Edward County assessor for eight years and assessment commissioner for two years, has submitted his resignation and is to become assessor for the Darlington Township in Northumberland County. His resignation, submitted to County Clerk Treasurer Thomas Wright, is effective December 25th.

Mr. Jennings pioneered the county assessment commission system in Ontario about two years ago when he became assessment commissioner. A few months ago, county council decided to appoint a deputy commissioner. Mr. Jennings decided to take that job and help county hire a new department head. Sydney Manley, formerly of Copper Cliff, was subsequently appointed assessment commissioner for the county.

Vietnamese War Casts Tragic Shadow Over UN

By BORIS MISKEW
UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The Vietnamese war casts a tragic shadow across the United Nations as the world organization looks the other way and tries hard to concentrate on questions of disarmament and peacekeeping.

The 117-nation organization has been remarkably successful in adopting resolutions during the current session on a world disarmament conference, the halting of the spread of nuclear weapons and on the Indian-Pakistani dispute which resulted in a ceasefire in September.

But the United Nations, set up after the Second World War to preserve peace in the world, so far has been unable to get permission from member states to try to put out the flames of war in Viet Nam.

The escalating conflict in the midst of the current session of the General Assembly has given clearly to the frustrating situation in which the UN still finds itself, that is, the inability to grapple effectively with what today is the biggest single threat to world peace.

A number of delegations, including that of Canada, have spoken during the session of the seriousness of the conflict in Viet Nam. Until now that is about the only attention given to the crisis, with the exception of Soviet-American exchanges that involved U.S. charges against the Communist Chinese for provoking the war and Soviet accusations of American aggression against North Viet Nam.

Paul Martin, Canada's external affairs minister, called early in the session on member states to spare no efforts in trying to bring a settlement to the Vietnamese conflict. Other nations have issued similar calls.

The biggest obstacle to a constructive discussion in the UN on a possible solution to the Vietnamese war is that neither South Viet Nam, where the rebel Viet Cong forces have taken a hold of a large part of the country, nor North Viet Nam is a member of the world organization. And neither is Communist China, alleged by Washington to be the culprit behind the rebellion.

The only member of the UN that has become more and more entangled in the Vietnamese spider web is the United States but neither the U.S. nor the Soviet Union, which once stood solidly behind Peking, has shown any eagerness to have its the conflict placed on the already heavy UN agenda.

The U.S. instead is pouring more men and military equipment into the war which once was fought mainly by South Vietnamese government forces and the Viet Cong, while Communist North Viet Nam is sending supplies and reinforcements to the rebel bands scattered across much of South Viet Nam.

The U.S. has issued a warning in the face of heavy losses by the South Vietnamese government forces that it will take "counter action" against the "escalating infiltration by North Vietnamese regular troops into South Viet Nam.

As the war in that Southeast Asian trouble spot threatens to spread its flames to neighboring countries, the most the UN can do is hope that this does not happen as it continues to work for peace along the channels now open to it.

But while the current, assembly emerged itself in passing resolutions on such items as a world disarmament conference and the non-proliferation of nuclear weapons, there is a danger that it may be remembered as the one that fiddled while Viet Nam burned.

Ban Milk Sale Due High Level Of Pesticide

GRAND FORKS, B.C. (CP)—For the second time in less than a year residents of Grand Forks farmers have been forbidden by the federal government to sell dairy products from their cattle because of a high level of pesticide in their milk.

The federal food and drug directorate announced in Ottawa Monday the pesticide chemical dieldrin had been detected and the milk will be banned for human consumption.

The directorate did not say what caused the latest buildup of pesticide in the cattle. However, the first ban was blamed on Grand Forks area potatoes [illegible] levels of pesticide but fed in unusually large [illegible] to the cattle.

After the first ban, last February, the federal and provincial governments purchased contaminated cattle from the three farms to help avert financial hardship for the farm-

Zambia Agrees To Accept RAF Planes And Men

Slight Stride To Goal

By BORIS MISKEW

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United Nations took a slight stride toward its goal of complete disarmament Wednesday by giving overwhelming approval to a proposal aimed at making the African continent a nuclear-free area.

The UN General Assembly's main political committee passed by a 105-to-0 vote, with three countries abstaining, a resolution calling on "all states to respect the continent of Africa as a nuclear-free zone."

Canada, whose preoccupation at the UN is mainly with disarmament and peacekeeping, gave her support to the resolution along with the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union.

France continued to abstain from voting on resolutions dealing with disarmament, and was joined Wednesday by South Africa and Portugal.

Both South Africa and Portugal said they favored the principal objective of the resolution but could not support it because it called on the Organization of African Unity to take the initiative in carrying out the resolution.

The OAU has been hostile to South Africa for her racial policies and to Portugal for her colonial policies on the African continent.

WILL BE FIRST

The resolution urges all states to refrain from testing or introducing nuclear weapons to Africa and, if it is carried out, Africa will be the first area in the world to be assured of nuclear-free status.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Mainly sunny mild weather is forecast for most of Southern Ontario while cloudy conditions will persist over Georgian Bay and Lake Superior. Friday is expected to bring continued fair and mild weather to southern and central areas and in the north considerable cloudiness with local snow.

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson agreed with President Kenneth Kaunda today to supply RAF planes for the defence of Zambia. He said fighter planes could move in immediately.

He said discussions about ground troops were continuing.

Wilson told the House of Commons: "Agreement has now been reached on all terms and conditions relating to the stationing of RAF planes and the RAF regiment in Zambia . . . there is nothing to stop immediate entry of planes into Zambia."

Wilson said agreement on the dispatch of planes was reached at talks in Lusaka between Commonwealth Secretary Arthur Bottomley and President Kenneth Kaunda.

Earlier, Wilson had declared virtual economic war against Zambia's neighbor, Rhodesia, with a set of sanctions that cut off 95 per cent of British trade with the rebellious colony, ruled by a white minority.

A squadron of Javelin jet fighters and large air transports waited in Nairobi, Kenya, for orders to fly to Zambia. The 44,000-ton aircraft carrier Eagle cruised off the east African coast. Its Buccaneer strike jets and Sea Vixen fighters carry more punch than the entire Rhodesian air force.

Ground troops were reported at staging depots in Africa, Britain and the Far East British protectorate of Aden.

Wilson offered Kaunda . . . battalion of ground troops, a fighter squadron and a radar station, but the two were reported to have disagreed over command of the British force. Wilson wants the British to give the orders while Kaunda wants at least a share in the command structure.

WANTS BAN PROTECTED

Kaunda asked for the British forces to guard his country's electrical supply from the Kariba Dam, which the Rhodesians operate on the border between their countries. The power is used in Rhodesia. He wants the British troops to invade Rhodesia and overthrow Smith's white-minority government.

Wilson told the House of Commons the troops will fight if necessary to protect Zambia's power supply, but he ruled out any unprovoked attack against Rhodesia.

Wilson also disclosed that British planes would go into Zambia only if the British were given control of the country's airports. This would enable the British to oppose any attempt to bring in air forces from other powers.

Wilson said the Zambiad president had "emphasized his desire that the British should "capture and safeguard" the Kariba Dam, which provides

Informed sources said they also discussed disarmament, with particular attention to halting the spread of nuclear weapons, and Soviet-British relations.

There was no indication of any change from previously known Soviet positions.

The sources said Kosygin and Stewart covered much of the same ground that Stewart had already covered with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. Gromyko was present at today's meeting in the premier's office.

This was the only meeting with Kosygin scheduled for Stewart's five-day visit. He is expected to see Leonid I. Brezhnev, first secretary of the Soviet Communist party, but a time still has not been fixed.

Stewart and Gromyko will talk again Friday. They have already had three meetings.

Discuss Separate Quebec

TORONTO (CP)—The Association of United Ukrainian Canadians wants a new constitution making Quebec and the other provinces two sovereign nations in a voluntary political union.

But the Canadian Protestant League, Ontario region, says a constitutional Quebec as an associate state would eventually dissolve Confederation.

With these views and others before it, the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism today embarked on the third of four days of public hearings.

Wednesday, the commission heard B. E. Kierstead, professor of political economy at the University of Toronto, say it mised as a nation.

ible to let Quebec formulate its own monetary and fiscal policies if that province is recognized as a nation.

The Czechoslovak National Association of Canada said it is prepared to help Quebec change the Canadian constitution "so long as they would not jeopardize Canadian integrity."

However, the association's brief said it is up to French-speaking Canadians "to enjoy fully the advantages of their existing autonomy within a larger political and economic unit, rather than by seeking constitutional changes."

The Protestant League's brief also called for schools to teach the truth about Canada's history: History books should stress Wolfe's victory over Montcalm on the Plains of Abraham in 1760 and recall that French-Canadians are a conquered people.

The league also called for an end to efforts to preserve bilingualism. French and English should be spoken only in Parliament, the Quebec legislature and the Supreme Court of Canada. Otherwise, English should be used in vote the country.

However, the institute of citizenship of Toronto differed in its view of bilingualism. French should be taught in Ontario from grades 3 or 4 up. And in-

Most U.S. Troops in Viet Nam Are Tied Down Guarding Bases

Continue Mandate --Martin

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Acting Prime Minister Martin says the United Nations Security Council will have to renew the mandate of the UN force in Cyprus.

The external affairs minister added in an interview that he hopes contributions by UN members to meet the force's $6,500,000 deficit will be made early enough to avoid an "agonizing reappraisal" by UN Secretary-General U Thant on continuation of the force.

The mandate of the 6,000-man UN group in Cyprus, to which Canada contributes 1,000 men, SAIGON (AP) — Despite the huge American buildup, allied forces in South Viet Nam remain insufficient to carry the fight to the Viet Cong guerrillas effectively.

An important reason: Most U.S. and South Vietnamese troops are pinned down by security jobs—including keeping what they hold—so that surprisingly few battalions are available for searching out the Viet Cong.

An influx of troops from North Viet Nam has in effect reinforced the situation to where it was earlier this year, before a surge of new U.S. forces tipped the balance temporarily in the allies' favor.

The Communists in recent weeks have shown themselves willing to sacrifice hundreds of troops. Man for man, they are as well-equipped as the U.S. infantryman and have as much, if not more, firepower. Seldom mentioned any more in Saigon is the theory that a U.S. platoon, because of its firepower, could easily wipe out a Viet Cong company.

The war now probably will produce bigger and bloodier battles. It seems likely that only if U.S. troops can wipe out

OAS Not Ready For Canada

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Organization of American States is in no position to invite Canada officially to join, observers here suggest.

They say it won't be until the fundamental overhaul begun at the just-concluded inter-American conference at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, makes more progress.

They were commenting on the statement Tuesday at Kingston, Jamaica, by Prime Minister Pearson that Canada will consider seriously an official invitation to enter.

"It was an invitation for an invitation," one diplomatic source commented. But he added that the Latin American nations are aware of and sympathetic to the Canadian view that it cannot seriously contemplate joining a hemispheric organization afflicted with se-

Russia Likely To Discuss A-Arms Curb

MOSCOW AP — British sources said today Russia may reconsider its stand that prevents Atlantic alliance discussions on nuclear protection schemes would block a nuclear non-proliferation agreement.

This tentative conclusion was drawn since Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin met for two hours with British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart. Viet Nam also was discussed.

The British informants said Stewart now believes the Russians are re-examining their position that the West must abandon all multi-lateral nuclear schemes in NATO before the Russians would discuss further a treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons.

Stewart appealed to Gromyko Wednesday night for both sides to forget recriminations over the background to what Stewart called "the cruel war" in Viet Nam. He asked that they look ahead to trying to find a solution for it.

The appeal followed an exchange of statements issued by public positions of Britain and the Soviet Union on Viet Nam. Gromyko declared in essence that the U.S. is guilty of aggression in Viet Nam.

Britain and the Soviet Union are co-chairmen of the 1954 Geneva conference on Indochina. Supporters of the Communist cause in Viet Nam continually urge a return to the Geneva principles.

However, Britain has met Communist reluctance on its efforts to reconvene a Geneva conference to consider Viet Nam. The Hanoi government in-

Unemployment Insurance Fund Over Hundred Million

OTTAWA (CP)—The unemployment insurance fund is back above the $100,000,000 mark again, twice-yearly as high a year-ago level. It hasn't been as healthy since 1962.

Only 20 months ago it was more than $50,000,000 in the red.

This year's marked increase in employment, more than matching a decline in unemployment, has sent fund revenues soaring while expenditures have dropped.

On Oct. 31, latest date available, the fund's balance was $126,822,111. During that month the fund added nearly $24,000,000 to its bank account on revenues of $34,132,103 and benefit payments of only $10,232,836.

Last year the balance at Oct. 31 was $56,750,970.

The fund traditionally reaches its annual low point in May, drained by the high unemployment of late winter and spring. This year it was at $22,721,000.

This year was the first since 1962 in which the fund has paid out in the red. In the spring of 1963 and again in 1964 it had to be supported by federal loans until the summer job upturn allowed it to recover and pay back the loans.

The fund, set up in 1941, is financed by equal contributions from employers and employees with the federal government contributing 20 cents for every dollar thus raised. Ottawa also picks up the bill for administration.

Premium payments are mandatory from all workers earning less than $5,460 a year or who are paid on the basis of hours, days mileage or piecework. Premiums, split between employers and employers, start at 20 cents on weekly earnings of $9 and under. Top rate is $1.80 on $60 and over.

The fund's high point was $200,000,000 in 1956. Two years later it had dropped to $744,000,000 and by the spring of 1961 it was down to $184,000,000, hard hit by the heavy unemployment caused by an economic recession.

Alarmed by the drop, the Diefenbaker government ordered a special study of the unemployment insurance situation in 1961. The inquiry filed a report in 1962 urging that compulsory coverage be enlarged and seasonal workers—biggest strain on the fund—be excluded.

No action ever was taken on these recommendations.

There now are 4,600,000 workers covered by the program, which pays weekly benefits of $37 to single persons and $36 for married persons.

Quebec Notaries Would Make Ottawa Bilingualism Symbol

MONTREAL (CP)—A Canada bilingual from coast to coast may be "pure Utopia" but a start along these lines could be made with the Canadian seal, Quebec notaries said Wednesday.

Officials of the Board of Notaries of the Province of Quebec, they urged their idea on the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, which was rounding out three days of hearings in Montreal.

The notaries pointed to the language problem as the big barrier to Canadian unity.

"Although the board views Canada-wide bilingualism as Utopian, it suggests that it might be possible to begin with a nucleus at the centre of Canada which would be bilingual and bicultural in the legal, economic and social fields," said spokesman Denys Pelletier.

That centre was Ottawa, which should be made into "the symbol of the nation and the mirror of its culture."

The notaries recommended that a commission be established to make the necessary studies and to tell the federal government, as well as the Quebec and Ontario governments and the cities of Ottawa and neighboring Hull, how the model area should be set up.

Rev. Leonard Mason, representing the Unitarian churches of Montreal, said churches of all denominations and on both sides of the language barrier should be leaders in achieving bicultural understanding.

Fair play for immigrants was a dominant theme among officials of societies representing associations of Hungarian and Italian origin.

Speaking in French, officials of the Canadian-Italian Business and Professional Men's Association, a Montreal - based group, said immigrants should be helped in adjusting to Canadian conditions.

One way of doing this was for government at all levels to have officials available in their more important departments who could speak the languages of large immigrant groups.

Among other representatives giving the commission their ideas Wednesday were members of a Nicolet, Que., hiking club.

French-speaking teen - agers, they gave Co-chairman Andre Laurendeau and his colleagues an account of a summertime trip to British Columbia.

The result of their experiences, said the young hikers, convinced them of the need for cultural unity in Canada and the "inadequacy" of separatism as a future way for Quebec.

"We are the avant-garde of Latin and French civilization on this side of the world," said the members of the Nicolet club to the beaming commissioners. "We don't have the right to make an island out of ourselves."

The club came back feeling, among other things, that Toronto "doesn't seem so British and anti-French as it is often described."

Clearing Passage in Canal To Allow 30 Boats to Enter

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tugs began moving a grounded freighter out of the Welland Canal Thursday morning, thus clearing enough to enable some 30 ocean going vessels to prepare to enter Lake Ontario on their downward passage through the St. Lawrence Seaway.

The Seaway locks at Montreal were scheduled to close Dec. 3, but will remain open on a day-to-day basis, weather permitting a seaway spokesman said today. Vessels had to clear the Welland by midnight Wednesday to make Montreal by Friday.

Fear is mounting that some of the 96 vessels still in the seaway may have to winter away from home ports, causing the lost 24 hours winds gusting to 25 miles an hour and the grounded freighter have tied up efforts to clear the seaway.

Twenty-three vessels waited at Cape Vincent, N.Y., at the Ontario start of the seaway system. Lock 7 at Iroquois, about halfway between Kingston and Montreal closed Wednesday and the Americans had closed the Soulanges and Beauharnois locks on their side of the system at Massena, N.Y.

Labor troubles are also plaguing seaway shipping as the season closes.

In Montreal, a labor conciliator, was scheduled to meet today with representatives of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild (CLC) and the Lake Carriers Association in an effort to avert what appears to be a mass resignation of first officers on lake vessels.

Guild officials said some of the 18-member companies of the association have been receiving 48 hours notice from mates in what appears to be a mass resignation rather than a strike.

The guild has been negotiating for almost a year with the association for a new contract. Talks broke down last July and weren't resumed until the union requested a federal conciliator.

Police Cracking Down On Shoplifting at Area Shopping Centre

Two more people were sent to jail this morning by Magistrate T. Y. Wills — the latest in a series of shoplifting charges as police crack down on pilfering at a Belleville - district shopping centre.

Scene of the theft spree has been the Ritenay store complex on the western outskirts of Belleville.

Close to 10 charges have been laid by police in recent weeks and Magistrate Wills has been following a strict rule of even days imprisonment on conviction for the offence.

The defendants so far have all been married with families and the magistrate has allowed them a week's grace to arrange domestic affairs before imprisonment.

The two sentenced this morning were among two young married couples charged jointly. The magistrate has also alternated the periods to be served between the husbands and wives in both households.

In all, there were nine shoplifting charges on the magistrate's docket this morning — all involving alleged pilfering at the Ritenay.

Six of them were laid over for hearing until next month.

EMPLOYEE CHARGED

The last charge aired involved an employee of Ritenay — young married woman facing theft counts' between September and October. Total value of the goods involved was under $50.

Because she had a psychiatric problem, Magistrate Wills placed her on suspended sentence for two years — on the understanding she would take treatment.

Shortly before, the court had heard a plea of guilty from another young married woman whose wife time the wife of an airman stationed at Trenton AFB base.

In this case, a police officer testified, the woman had taken two sets of men's underwear and two greeting cards for the sum of $4.

Magistrate Wills once more gave the woman a week to put family affairs in order and told her to appear in seven days' time.

"You go in on Thursday and you will be out Monday," he told her.

While the amounts in all cases vary down to the minor sum involved in the charge against the airman's wife, police authorities nonetheless are taking a serious view of the situation.

The attitude was summed up Crown Attorney John Pringle as he requested a fall sentence for the woman.

"There has been a rash of this sort of thing," he told the magistrate. "The amount stolen here is not great. Nevertheless, a theft has been committed."

Public Mischief Charge Brings Fine of $150

A 17-year-old youth who instigated a manhunt for an armed bandit in the Belleville area, today was fined $150 for giving police false information.

Boyd Bruce, a native of Denbigh now working at Preston, pleaded guilty before Magistrate T. Y. Wills to public mischief — the charge laid after he admitted to police his story was fictitious.

"His parents claim that he tells fantastic stories," corporal constable W. G. Willis told the magistrate as he outlined details of the intensive manhunt caused by Bruce November 13.

A cordon was thrown around the city area fter Bruce reported he police he had picked up a soldier hitchhiker near Tweed, who robbed of $47 by him at gunpoint near Corbyville, shaged on the head and left unconscious in his car.

The area was immedia ely covered by five police cruisers to search for the assailant . . . Belleville police covered the hotels and poolrooms . . . Five other cruisers surrounded the area to search for the wanted person. No one was found to answer the description of the assailant.

However, police became suspicious and checked his story.

They discovered while the youth claimed he was travelling Highway 37 he actually was in Picton watching television at an uncle's home.

"This is a case of a boy who called 'wolf' once too often," commented Crown Attorney John Pringle.

Instead of a fall sentence he demanded a stiff fine "to reimburse the public treasury" for the time and manhunt instigated by Bruce's story.

Magistrate Wills gave the youth one month to pay the $150 or an alternative one month in jail.

Arrested Man Has Vanished In Barcelona

TORONTO (CP) — John D. Laun, German-born operator of a pig raising project in which investors lost thousands of dollars, has vanished after being arrested in June in Barcelona, Spain, provincial police said Wednesday.

Laun is wanted here on fraud charges.

When provincial police asked Spanish authorities when they could send someone to bring back Laun to Canada, they were told his whereabouts was unknown.

Police here have asked Interpol, the international police organization, to try once again to locate him.

Laun was the promoter of a scheme under which 1,135 persons invested various sums of money in buying pigs and feed. The amounts were to be raised at Sunderland, 30 miles north of Toronto.

The operation, called Piggyland, went bankrupt in March, 1962, with a net deficit of $1,613,250.

ists on complete American withdrawal from South Viet Nam as a prior condition, and Moscow supports this stand. Gromyko told Stewart Wednesday.

The two foreign ministers also discussed German unification without advancing significantly beyond known positions, British sources said.

REVIEW ARMS QUESTION

They also have reviewed attitudes on disarmament with particular reference to possibilities of a treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons.

Before Kosygin and Stewart opened their formal talks, Soviet and British newspaper men were permitted into the Kremlin conference room.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, quoted Stewart as telling Kosygin the talks with Gromyko had covered a wide range of problems "on which mutual understanding is beginning to appear."

Kosygin was in a jovial mood and joked with the correspondents.

There had been a heavy fall of snow overnight in Moscow and when one correspondent suggested that Britain was expecting it to Russia, Kosygin smiled and said: "But some Mayor can say the cold comes from the east."

Stewart and Gromyko were scheduled to sign later today an agreement on consular relations between their two countries.

Largest Crowd In Years Attends Debating Club to Hear Municipal Candidates

By CLAIR HOY

The building itself appeared innocent enough.

The old structure was small, but the men kept coming and coming and coming, and coming.

Soon it was standing room only.

Then the walls bulged. Rafters creaked. The floor sagged rather noticeably.

Smoke filled every nook and cranny of the place.

What at first was relatively orderly rows of men sitting in chairs was now human sardines sitting and standing every which way, wherever there was the slightest opening.

The municipal candidates had arrived.

Chairman Jim "Snipe" Mathews announced the meeting was ready to start . . . then ah-hem — broke loose.

The Warf Street Debating Club was, incredulously enough, the 55th time, and by reports had the biggest, though perhaps not the noisiest, crowd ever. The heckling though never ceasing, was good natured and invariably met with hearty laughter.

Before the candidate-toasting began Mathews' address was presented with a life membership to the Club. He has never missed one of the meetings and was so honored for his faithful service to the Club.

Secretary Gerald Robbins presented the certificate of membership to Mr. Forban. Mr. Robbins said Mr. Forban's work was to say a few more during the course of the evening. Mathews said Secretary Ellis was the first candidate to speak, or at least try to speak over the din of the hecklers.

TO KEEP MOVING

Mayor Ellis said, "Despite all the signs; despite all the rumors and gossip around town that is going around, in the last couple of years we have got Belleville moving and we are going to keep it moving."

Someone in the audience replied, "Yeah."

The speaker continued "We've started a lot of projects that have been talked about, have been there, the streets, bridges, and so on. They have inconvenienced you a little bit but they will benefit you in the future. I hope to continue with this progress if I am elected."

Alderman Don Whales, candidate for mayor, was the next speaker. Mr. Whalen said, "My friend Mayor Ellis seems to be scheduled to sign later today an agreement on consular relations between their two countries.

A hearty round of applause was interjected.

"I do not think any of us can hold our heads very high with respect to our welfare here. Also, I believe there is a lot of room for improvement in our industrial appeal."

Someone added, "Amen!"

T. A. Carruthers said, "I was born and raised this year to being an industry to Belleville, the Tender-Check on Station Street. I pledge myself to further industrial expansion on your behalf."

It's an awful lot brighter in here than it is on the streets of Foster Ward," said Gerald Robbins.

A heckler returned, "That's the brightest comment we've heard tonight."

Mr. Cunningham continued, "I would like to stand on my own legislative record. I have served Belleville in the United Appeal, on the hospital board, and was active in the formation of our new planning board. I believe in the future of Belleville and am working for that future.

Enos David said, "My record on council is clear. I am prepared to stand on it. I will continue to be the watchdog of your council, voting for truth and honesty."

TOO MUCH ICING

"There's been too much money spent on the icing," said Ken Sidney. "Let's first clean up those culverts, those streets and things before we start putting so much on the icing such as a big pavillion on Zwicker's Island."

"You tell 'em Jack," a gentleman added.

In the spirit of the occasion, candidate Paul Fleming followed with a succession of quips, all playing on the names of current council members. As example: "Everybody is wondering who the 'Fly' is running for mayor and wishes the 'Fly' a fly guy would stop his crying and whining."

The Senator liked it, and even added a few of his own.

Mr. Whalen said, "I think the children of this city need a new arena. This will be my main platform."

"Who's going to pay for it?" a heckler called.

Whalen came back tazes you people owe," Mr. Joss replied jokingly.

Questions are many unanswered Art Keegan commented questions in this community. I believe that many of them like no answers were given. I believe in an informed public and believe these answers should be given to the people."

Mr. Keegan, standing on tip toes to kee over the microphone said, "I'm the smallest man running, and I need all the help you can give me."

Little men and big men alike applauded.

NEED INDUSTRY

Ed McKinney commented on the time taken to fix Pinnacle Street, "I understand," he jibed, "the workmen have been there so long they've taken out squatters rights.

"We need a more beautiful downtown area to attract shoppers," he said, "and we need industry. There are two ways to get new industry, one, provide incentives for them to come and two, we must go out and sell Belleville to them."

Dr. Russell Scott said, "After 20 years on the school board this is the 21st time I've asked for your vote. I will continue to work hard as I have done in the past."

"That was pretty short," the Senator quipped.

"Action speaks louder than words," a fan replied.

Ken Soldan said, "I've sponsored baseball teams here for kids from peewees on up and when I get on council I'm active in the Parks and Recreation Commission. I believe we accomplished a lot, but there is much more to be done. Also, I believe we need a new four-lane bridge on College Street to replace the old horse bridge."

He made himself some friends.

Don Williams added, "I've been chairman of the Parks Board and I think we've done a good job. Given your support, I will continue to work towards making things even better."

Hastings South MP Lee Grills attended the meeting. "I'm only sorry I can't stay longer," he said. "I've just come from a 50th wedding anniversary and am on my way to another one."

"Freeloading, eh Lee!" someone called.

COMMISSIONERS HEARD

Lee was laughing too hard to reply.

"Seriously though, I think we are living in the best city in Canada and I will work with the municipal body you elect to make it even better."

The three candidates for Public Utilities Commission, Gerry Hyde, Lyle Langabeer and Harry Wallace spoke next. The public school board and separate school board candidates followed. About four years ago Mrs. Robert Lucy, Lawrence Rashotte and Gregory Whalen

Public school candidates speaking were William Townley, Robert Leighton, Clifford Smith, Gerald Joyce, Gerald John Brennan, Harvey E. Bronson, Charles Bristol, Murray Arnott and Gord Hutchinson.

Maurice Calahan, secretary-treasurer of the Debating Club, added, "We are taxed here $55.02 every year. It used to be $1. Most of this property is not even in the city, it's on the water.

"The council hasn't done much for Foster Ward and yet it raised our taxes."

Senator Rollins, naturally, was the last speaker. However, in a serious moment, he appealed to the Club's good nature to donate to a fund being raised to put an extension on the present hospital.

Thanks were also given to Orliff "Boiler" Lloyd for donating the public address system, and to Jack Bush, George O'Brien and George Rutledge and Ray Grant for donating the chairs.

One thing about the meeting . . . it was democracy in action. And not for, by the end of the evening the building was still standing, though some of its inhabitants weren't.

Student Fees Should Be Doubled Claim of Dean Of University of Toronto

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — The chairman of the commission on financing higher education said Wednesday the commission should have recommended that student tuition fees be doubled rather than recommending they remain at their present levels.

Dean V. W. Bladen of the University of Toronto told an alumni meeting here that educationists generally underestimated the cost of education in discussions with the commission while it was making its survey.

The commission estimated the 1970 cost for universities at $1,250,000,000 with the annual cost rising to $2,000,000,000 by 1975.

Dean Bladen said Wednesday the 1975 figure will probably be $2,500,000,000.

"I think we made a mistake," he said of the report's recommendation on tuition fees, "and we did not have the courage of our convictions."

While we do not argue that fees should be eliminated or reduced, what we should have recommended is that they be doubled. I would rather support the students than reduce the fees.

"Social cohesion demands that the beneficiaries (the students) pay a share of the cost." He also suggested that students should be getting five times more aid than they are currently getting, but a part of this should be in the form of loans.

Universities should get 100 per cent of the cost of necessities from governments and students with extra paid for by donations, he said.

Dean Bladen said additional income needed to raise tuition to a minimum one per cent of the annual income of alumni would be enough. The commission now gets $300,000 a year from alumni, "it should be $7,000,000."

"The rational total should be $60,000,000 a year, which may not sound like a lot next to the 1970 estimate of $1,250,000, but it is $60,000,000 worth of icing."

He added that the affluent universities in Canada need an immediate 50 per cent increase in revenue to make up for present inadequacies, while the Maritime universities need a 25-per-cent increase.

The Bladen commission was set up by the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada.

Voters will be asked to decide if the town should invest $75,000 for a swimming pool in the community gardens' area. Strong opinions on Sunday movies and Sunday sports will also be asked.

TRENTON — During November, 14 permits were issued from the office of building inspector William Anderson. Total values were estimated at $92,980, bringing to $1,368,707 the total for the year Mr. Anderson said today it was unlikely the total would reach the million and a half mark by the end of the year.

New home construction, however, goes on apace, with $80,000 of the November total earmarked for construction of eight new dwellings. Other permits were: one dwelling repair, $630; three signs, $2,250; two demolitions, no value.

East Ontario Orchestra Gives Concert

TRENTON — Last night's Rotary-sponsored concert in the Trenton high school auditorium by conductor Stephen Choma, and the members of the East ern Ontario Concert Orchestra, left nothing to be desired in variety. The orchestra swung with ease from the Light Cavalry Overture of Von Suppe to "On the Trail" from the Grand Canyon Suite by Ferde Grofe.

The slice of Americana was followed by themes from the minor piano concerto by Tschaikowsky, and the stirring Hallelujah Chorus from Handel's "Messiah."

Trumpet Concerto by Haydn highlighted one section and the latter part of the program took the listeners from the gypsy trail of Rumania, back to America, with Peter De Rose's "Deep Purple," and then to the modern experiment in special lzed democracy with "Exodus," which brings to mind the ageold history of oppression of the Hebrew race, and the modern attempt to lead the wanderers home to the Promised Land.

Soloist Joseph Burchill contributed a classic, "Allegro Moderato," for trumpet, followed by "The Holy City," "Bless Thi House" and finally by (bringing down the house) an Al Hirt number.

Behind the "Glass"

An event that is unique and will be most interesting will be staged at the Quinte Curling Club on Friday and Saturday of this week. It will be a portion of the Medical bonspiel for the Province and rinks in Kingston, Cataraqui, Napanee, Brockville and Belleville will be used to accomodate the number of rinks that have been entered. The rinks that will play in Belleville will declare winners that will proceed to Kingston Curling Club for the finals that will be played on Sunday.

Dr. Jim Loynes and Dr. Jim Nelles of the local club have been busy for months as part of a committee in charge of arrangements and with two other doctors, Bentlle and Loder will form a rink that will play in the spiel. The rinks playing in this city will play only on the afternoons of the two days and all will proceed to Kingston on Saturday night for the banquet and entertainment that is being provided.

While the curlers are in the city they will enjoy full course meals provided by the Women's Section of the Club, Mrs. Helen McCorquodale, being the chairman of a most energetic committee. The public is cordially invited to witness the matches and some excellent curling is expected. There are a number of firstclass rinks in this bonspiel and will come as far north as the Soo and Sudbury, west to Windsor and east to the Quebec border. It is understood the prizes for the winners are merchandize of the highest class.

Mac White's rink that will contest the district playdowns leading to an Ontario title has received an invitation to compete in the Tournament of Champions to be held at Lambton on December 28th and 29th. Ten rinks from across the Province have been invited and the winner will be declared on a point basis. Carl Charleton, Al McCollam, Ron Benn and Mac White will compose the rink for winter's play.

Diefenbaker Ready to Start On Vacation

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Conservative Leader Diefenbaker was to fly back to Ottawa today to clear up minor business before heading off on a Caribbean vacation.

One of Mr. Diefenbaker's aides said the Opposition leader would "look after odds and ends" in the capital before leaving Dec. 11 on a 10-day Caribbean cruise.

Most of his speeches during a 48-hour visit here were non-political in nature, but during a speech to a combined service club meeting Wednesday, he indicated the Conservatives would steadfastly examine all government programs during the coming session of parliament.

"That's the function of the Opposition," he said. The Opposition had to ensure "everything shall be dealt with carefully."

Mr. Diefenbaker said some people argue that Parliament could be run more efficiently.

"But Parliament is not an industry, to be run along the lines of private business. That would be to assign to Parliament a function it never had. Parliament deals with the soul of the nation, its idealism and its hopes."

Police Officials Convene For Conference on Crime

Police officials answered a collective summons to Belleville yesterday in a closed door conference on crime.

The session was the latest in a series organized by police forces in the province and drew officers from the RCMP, the Quebec and Ontario provincial forces, railroad and service police and the U.S. border patrol.

About four such conferences are now held annually through. out the Eastern Ontario region.

Chairman of yesterday's assembly, for which Belleville police were hosts, was Chief John Rankin, Nepean township.

The day-long conference, discussing developments in crime and crime-combatting, was held at the Tops Motel.

Shoot to Miss

54 Die But 3,500 Succeed In Fleeing East Germany

By HUBERT ERR

BERLIN (AP) — Year after year, East Germans have been shooting East Germans along the borders of their former capital and at the wall that cuts it in two.

The gun has been in deadly earnest ever since the East German Communists more than four years ago built the wall to stop a flow of refugees that was bleeding their Soviet - backed state of badly needed manpower.

The four-year toll at the 10-mile wall and along some 90 miles of fence separating West Berlin from East Germany stands at 54 officially confirmed deaths.

"We know the death toll to be at least three times that figure," Ernst Lemmer, former minister for refugee affairs, has said. Many more have been injured.

West Berlin police, however, say the East Germans do much more shooting on the side or in the air than shooting to kill.

"If the East German border guards always aimed to kill or maim every time they see, hear or suspect a refugee, there would be a bloodbath far worse than we have had."

ARMED GUARDS STEPPED

Since August, 1961 when the wall was built, about 3,500 persons have managed to make it into West Berlin. Some have spectacular escape adventures, but most of the estimated six to 15 who daily attempt to come across take advantage as best they can of darkness, fog or what little natural cover the East Germans have left standing.

Many never make it past the 300-yard "death strip" the Communists have thrown around West Berlin.

West Berlin police list more than 2,000 persons known to have been arrested on the Communist side of the wall and 1,000 more captured along the East German zonal frontier. Those caught average a year in jail. To stop escape the East Germans have three Volksarmee (People's Army) brigades around West Berlin. These total 14,000 men, with 3,600 always on guard.

They have 197 watch towers to aid them, plus spotlights, floodlights, flares and 211 dog stations. There are three companies of boat troops equipped with fast patrol craft.

According to West Berlin police, light machine guns mounted in the towers are intended to cover lateral gaps between the towers. For close work near the boundary itself, foot patrols have shorter-range sub - machine - guns, hear gas grenades and anti-tank bazookas.

They are backed by motorcycle and truck patrols behind the "death strip." In some critical areas armored cars are brought up, especially at night.

GUARDS CROSS OVER

Despite all Communist precautions, at least 435 uniformed guards have taken advantage of their posts near West Berlin to cross over.

Capt. Hackbarth says the Communists try to make sure their men do not defect—and that they shoot when they are supposed to.

"At least 80 per cent of the guards are married or have families in East Germany who depend on them," he said. "Most of them, usually draftees serving three years, are Reds or are not Berliners.

"They are always paired and whenever possible never in the same pairs two days in a row so they do not become friendly.

"Then there is fear of punishment and betrayal through a network of secret police agents within their ranks."

About 400 West Berlin police are posted along the border each day. They too are armed with sub - machine - guns and have tear gas grenades. The border patrols are drawn from an all-purpose West Berlin police force of 13,000 men.

There have been 13 occasions when West Berlin police opened fire to cover a refugee in danger of getting killed. One East German guard was killed in such an exchange and three others are known to have been killed by fire from their own comrades.

Fed. of Agriculture Hears Talk About Farming in Britain

A bumper crowd filled to overflowing the auditorium of the County Memorial Building in Napanee for the annual banquet of the Federation of Agriculture Tuesday evening. Those who attended enjoyed a double treat when Sir Barker Burnell of which the Maple Leaf Women's Institute catered, add the interesting and illustrated address given by Barton MacLean, son of four young people who spent two weeks in Great Britain last summer on a Federation of Agriculture scholarship.

A graduate of Kemptville Agricultural School, and widely experienced in 4-H Club and Junior Farmers' work, Barton is also well acquainted with practical farming, assisting with the work of the home farm. Consequently he was well equipped to make the best of his visit to the British Isles, and brought back with him an appreciation of the methods used by the farmers, not all of which are better than Canadian methods. During their stay, the four young people were entertained at farm homes in Ireland, Scotland, England and Wales, and Barton's faithful camera enabled him to bring home many unusual pictures. There were pictures also of the various agricultural fairs which they visited. The ground for one of these covered 600 acres. He kept up a running comment as the slides were shown. Even those who had toured the British Isles found much new in the evening refreshing.

Barton was introduced by Garnet Mills, agricultural representative and thanked by Harold Creighton.

Serving at the head table were: A. Douglas Aitkenbrack, MP; Norris Whitney, MPP, and Mrs. Whitney; Mayor or Lorne Smart and Mrs Smart; Rev. R. L. Wilson and Mrs. Wilson, as well as the officers. President is Manly Hart of R.R. 6, Napanee, and secretary is Mrs. H. A. Edgar of Napanee.

Viet Nam—A Long War

The latest word from Viet Nam—discouraging as it is—gives no cause for surprise.

According to U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara, North Viet Nam is preparing to "escalate" the war by sending in more troops to back up the Viet Cong guerrillas. Despite heavy losses in manpower, the communist side is said to have at least 250,000 men available for the fray.

Another disquieting revelation is that almost a year of bombing by U.S. aircraft has had no significant effect on the North Vietnamese war effort. Rather than breaking their morale, it appears to have had the opposite effect.

All the indications point to a long war. "The North Vietnamese have already said they are prepared to fight indefinitely. Defence Secretary McNamara, following his latest visit to Saigon, is convinced it will be a long conflict and is ready to meet the challenge.

These are unsettling prospects. The longer this appalling war continues the less likely peace will endure in the world at large. Even if Russia and China somehow remain outside the conflict, other than in an advisory and supply capacity, the end result is likely to be a country devastated beyond belief, the cream of its manhood shattered, its civilian population, already suffering grievously, scarred terribly.

Yet that is the price some peoples have to pay. It has happened before. Less than a hundred years ago, the manhood of little Paraguay, in South America, was all but decimated in a disastrous war with its neighbors. Today Paraguay, if not the richest of nations, is one of the quietest and most peaceful—under General Stroessner's benevolent dictatorship.

Is it too much to hope that in Viet Nam too, in the not too distant future, there will be an end to conflict and an opportunity for all the peoples of that divided country to prosper in a land of peace.

The Two Irelands

Prime Minister Sean Lemass of the Irish Republic said recently, not for the first time, that the Dublin government's ultimate objective is to unite north and south.

"I believe this can be done and still leave Northern Ireland room for some local government. There is some resistance in the north to this idea, but this resistance is not as strong as it used to be. The problem is largely one of misunderstanding."

Mr. Lemass appears to be living in a dream world, in a latter-day Celtic twilight. He must know there is more than just "some resistance" in the north to the idea of unity, that resistance to this premise is as strong as ever.

Certainly there has been increasing co-operation between the two Irelands of late, but Ulster spokesmen have made it clear this does not mean unity is only a matter of time. It is difficult to reconcile this with Mr. Lemass' statement that if his exchanges with Ulster premier Terence O'Neill bear fruit, there would be two Irish governments but only one constitution.

The talks to which Mr. Lemass alludes were actually initiated by Mr. O'Neill, with increased co-operation, but not Irish unity, in mind.

Northern Ireland had an election the other day. The Unionist government, which is pledged to maintain Ulster's position as an integral part of the United Kingdom, was returned to power with its most convincing victory since 1949.

U.S. Christmas Boom

U.S. News and World report says that color television is the sensation of the Christmas season. Sales, once estimated at about two million sets, are now expected to total more than three million.

Rising incomes are behind what is expected to be an unprecedented spending spree in the United States. Not only pricey items like color TV, but high-priced cars, equipped with extras, are in big demand. Furs, jewelry and other luxury items such as crystal, china and silver table accessories are selling well.

Toy sales will likely break all records and, significantly, ski shops are doing a bustling business. The latter trend could mean an increasing number of American visitors to Canadian ski resorts.

Personal income in the U.S., according to News and World Report, is estimated to be running at 476 billion a year after taxes, nearly 30 billion above this time last year. The magazine adds that many people also received a windfall recently in retroactive social security benefits and pensions, and there were pay increases for military and civilian employees of the government.

It all adds up to the greatest Christmas boom in U.S. history—an estimated $54 billion in retail spending, almost 10 per cent more than last year.

Indian Names For Quinte Area?

Editor,
The Intelligencer

Recently Mr. J. Keith Fraser, executive secretary, The Canadian Permanent Committee on Geographical Names, announced the decision of the committee that the name "Nigger" as applied to three geographical features in the Bay of Quinte, be dropped because they are regarded as terms of contempt and ridicule to the Negro race. Substitute - names are being sought of local or historical significance to replace these.

I would like to suggest three Indian names of local origin based on both legend and mythology and abutting historical fact. For Nigger Island, substitute — Deganawidah Island; For Nigger Narrows, substitute, Garoweyo Narrows; for, Nigger Narrows - Shoal, substitute, Segonaska Shoal.

The name, Deganawidah Island, would be most fitting as this Island of The Five Nations was born on the working - model of United Nations). He was born on the shores of the Bay of Quinte, Kente, on early maps) and at that time of customary warring tribes, was indeed, "an island", with his startling vision of peace and mutual alliance, an alliance that in succeeding generations extended to the British and Dutch, being Canada permanently under The British Crown and defended this attachment through the American Revolution, the War of 1812-14 and the First and Second World Wars.

The term Garoweyo, derives from Deganawidah's, white-wampum, Message-of-Peace, or Peace-Belt-of-the-Nations. These first belts are now on display at The National Museum, Ottawa.

Segonaska was the original Ojibway name of the Moira river at Belleville and this name should be restored to some nearby geographical feature as I have above suggested. The "Segonaska" idea would coincide with the meaning of Segonaska, as, "choppy waves caused by strong currents."

The proposal of these three names is in the nature of a peace offering in maturity, from Canadian white men to acknowledge now to present-day Indians our awareness of the great heritage of those good qualities and assistance given to us so freely over the years by The First Canadians, the Red Indian nations and tribes especially those in the beautiful language-terms passed on to us of this generation.

Toronto Doffs Its Hat to Ottawa

Ottawa Journal

A good banker shot is always pretty to watch, or a flycaster getting clear of the willow branches. We enjoyed, too, the Toronto Globe and Mail yesterday regretting that train communication between here and Toronto is so inadequate.

The trick for the Globe, of course, was to get around the fact that on a day-to-day basis it is dedicated to the proposition that Toronto is Canada and all else is beyond the fringe.

Toronto suffers the rest of us, but not gladly, and suffers too a kind of neurosis that arises from not being loved. It is sad, rather, for it could be such a nice city, on the lake and all that and with really quite a number of people that the rest of us are glad to call friends.

Well, the Globe in the face of this could hardly regret Ottawa being cut off from Toronto, and so it does a piece saying it is a pity that Toronto (and the rest of Canada) is cut off from Ottawa. It feels, understandably, that outlanders must come to Ottawa from time to time to ask favors or to find out what is the law of the land. It admits, though a little unwillingly, that all roads lead to Rome (Ottawa) and that none should be cut off or narrowed. The Globe couldn't be righter, of course, and we beg it to assure Toronto of Ottawa's complete understanding of their desire to keep in touch. It is a pretty tribute to their taste and sense, though we say it as shouldn't.

Disney Touch For Expo '67

Montreal Gazette

Expo '67 may consider itself very fortunate indeed to have won the interest, support and advice of Walt Disney. And Expo is certainly right in believing that this help can be used throughout the Expo complex.

For Walt Disney is far more than a highly successful entertainer and cartoonist. He could not have achieved such respect and praise for so many years if he did not put the stamp of quality and excellent organization on everything he does.

Disneyland is an obvious example. One of the many reasons for the enduring success of Disneyland is its success in keeping large numbers of people busy and happy. It is a difficult thing to avoid long waiting periods, confusion, uncertain crowds, as the New York World Fair showed.

The Disney organization has a fund of experience at its disposal in this field. And it is obvious that Walt Disney is anxious to put his resources at the service of Expo. By taking advantage of this generous offer, Expo should gain new insights into the organization of large exhibitions.

Strictly Personal

Hate Is Basis Of Some Friendships

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: Some people are incapable of forming a friendship unless it is based on a common hatred of some other people; and all "hate groups" are eventually self-liquidating, because they are composed of alienated members, whose only bond is a negative one.

What we call "justice" becomes our goal only after we have suffered injustice; before then, we are concerned mainly with self-interest and self-advancement.

The truest and tersest psychological observation was made by Coleridge, when he said: "No man does anything from a single motive."

An imitation becomes exactly the opposite of the thing it tries to imitate — for instance, those crowns and crests on the pockets of men's sports shirts, for seeking to look regal, succeed merely in looking deplorably plebian.

The murderer is merely a person who does not really believe that other persons exist in the same way that he does; therefore, murder is only somewhat different in degree from indifference to others, which is the father of all wickedness, and is only a specially shocking form of hard-heartedness.

Man is an integral part of nature, and yet man is the only unnatural thing in nature, the only creature that can distort and destroy its own essence; unless we come to terms with this paradox, we cannot begin to cope with the future, and will be obliterated by the very forces we have set in motion.

Education liberates intelligence, and ramifies stupidity — just as a great deal of exercise makes some supple, and others muscle-bound.

(Speaking of stupidity, the word "moron" seems so fixed in our language that it is hard to believe it is a made-up word devised as late as 1910 by Dr. Henry Goddard for the use of the American Association for the Study of the Feeble-minded, to indicate a level of intelligence somewhat higher than "idiot" and "imbecile.")

Men who talk about women would do well to keep in mind Simone de Beauvoir's trenchant comment: "One can, to an almost laughable degree, infer what a man is like from his opinions about women in general."

For every one person who does wrong by giving way to his passions, another does wrong by following his reason further than reason ought to go.

Churchill's American Indian Ties

Stratford Beacon-Herald

A Stratford Canadian Club audience has had a little lesson in Canadian history from Miss Kahn-Tineta Horn, the young lady from the Caughnawaga Reserve near Montreal, who is currently the best-known voice of Indians in Canada.

"It is only because of the loyalty and courage of the Iroquois that your city is English, speaking," she said. It was a much-simplified version of history, and simplified to her own purposes, as it was natural, but she could produce evidence to back up the statement. It would be difficult to expose with her view of two phases of North American history, the Seven Years War of 1756-63, and the Revolutionary War of 1775-83. The fighting strength of the Iroquois tipped the scales for the British and against the French in the Seven Years War; half-a-generation later, the fighting strength of the Iroquois was thrown in the Loyalist side, against the revolutionary armies of the Thirteen Colonies, and helped save Canada for Loyalist settlement.

Miss Horn made another claim for the significance of her own people to the history of the English-speaking world, when she noted that Sir Winston Churchill was one of the Iroquois; in Kahn-Tineta Horn's version, Churchill's great-grandmother was a Mohawk. Some historians would give the small argument on this point. Sir Winston's Indian ancestry came through his mother, the beautiful Jennie Jerome of New York. It may have been Cherokee, rather than Mohawk, the argument does not upset Miss Horn's claim that Churchill was one of the Iroquois, because the Cherokee, although they were not one of the Six Nations of the Iroquois Confederacy, were a people of Iroquoian stock, speaking the same language. Their homeland was in the territory which is now eastern Tennessee and the western parts of the Carolinas. After the American Revolution, they ceded most of their land by treaty to the new United States Government. In the 1830's, the United States cancelled the treaty and took the rest of the Cherokee lands; the forced removal of the Cherokee people to Oklahoma in 1838-39 is one of the ugly stories of American policy in dealing with Indians. About 25 per cent of the Cherokee nation died of starvation or exposure while they were being herded by United States troops on a thousand-mile winter move.

In the course of making her case here for the importance of the Iroquois in the shaping of history, Kahn-Tineta Horn paid the customary courtesies to the importance of Stratford as a centre for the dramatic arts. "I think Shakespeare would have enjoyed knowing my people, and writing about my people," she said.

She could have noted a more obvious link between Stratford and the Iroquois. Her people gave us a name for our main street. "Ontario" has been variously translated from the Iroquois languages to mean, "beautiful lake," or "the great lake." It is likely that either translation can be correct, depending on which of the subdivisions of the Iroquois family of languages is treated as the source.

To Your Good Health

Frequent Urination Common Among Old

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Sir: I am in my late 70's and have to get up frequently at night to urinate. People my own age say it is glandy trouble and that I must have an operation on the prostate. I was of the opinion that all old people had to get up at night like I do.

If the operation is not serious, how long would it take me to recover? — M. J.

Age alone doesn't cause your leading to frequency of urination. Although conditions are more common as we get older.

Enlargement or disease of the prostate is, to be sure, rather prevalent, but sometimes kidney or bladder causes frequency, too, so let your doctor decide what is wrong. Prostate surgery is required in 10 to 14 days in the hospital.

Dear Dr. Molner: How successful is surgery for cancer of the prostate gland? My dad is 82. Nothing else seems wrong but would mean a lot to him. — B. G. L.

There's a good deal that is encouraging, and for this we can be thankful, since cancer of the prostate is the common form of malignancy in the male.

A specific answer to your question is easy, because the degree of success depends on the circumstances. When the tumor is confined to the gland itself, and the entire cancer tissue is removable, results are most encouraging.

If the cancer has extended to involve other areas, complete removal is not possible. Even then, however, there are other procedures — radiation by X-ray, implantation of hormone therapy; and castration, which by altering the hormonal balance of the body retards progress of the malignancy.

While complete removal of the malignancy is the goal to be desired, when that is impossible the other methods afford very helpful measures of success.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have an ingrown toenail and would love to get rid of it. My doctor said surgery, but surgery sounds very involved. The nail does not hurt except when pressure is applied to it. Is it dangerous to let it go? I can't eat it for eight months. — Mr. A. W.

It's surgery if you have a mole removed or even pick out a splinter, so don't let fear of a word (s-u-r-g-e-r-y) prevent you from stopping that pain in your toe.

When you say it doesn't hurt except when pressure is applied, you are sort of trying to kid me. Isn't that, now? Because unless it hurt quite a bit you wouldn't have gone to your doctor, and if it weren't the beginning of a lot more pain your doctor wouldn't say "surgery."

Many nails, treated early, often can be corrected by inserting bits of cotton under them until they grow out straight and no longer dig into the flesh.

But if the process has gone too far, the only sensible solution is minor surgery to remove the offending portion of the nail.

Note to H.A.: Sodium (whether in ordinary salt or other forms) is present naturally in so many foods that its entire avoidance is doubtlessly impossible. In fact, a certain amount of sodium is necessary for health. For practical purposes then, we should think of a low-sodium or low-salt diet, but not a no-salt diet. Just avoid (a) salt, whether at the table or in cooking; (b) any salted foods which includes all sorts of preserved meats; (c) any food or preparation when the label says it contains sodium. This compounds tenderizers, "fizzing" agents.

The French armies led by Napoleon defeated the combined armies of the Austrian and Russian emperors 160 years ago today in 1805 — at the battle of Austerlitz. Anything that could help would mean a lot to him. — B. G. L.

There's a good deal that is encouraging, and for this we can be thankful, since cancer of the prostate is the common form of malignancy in the male.

A specific answer to your question is easy, because the degree of success depends on the circumstances. When the tumor is confined to the gland itself, and the entire cancer tissue is removable, results are most encouraging.

If the cancer has extended to involve other areas, complete removal is not possible. Even then, however, there are other procedures — radiation by X-ray, implantation of hormone therapy; and castration, which by altering the hormonal balance of the body retards progress of the malignancy.

While complete removal of the malignancy is the goal to be desired, when that is impossible the other methods afford very helpful measures of success.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have an ingrown toenail and would love to get rid of it. My doctor said surgery, but surgery sounds very involved. The nail does not hurt except when pressure is applied to it. Is it dangerous to let it go? I can't eat it for eight months. — Mr. A. W.

It's surgery if you have a mole removed or even pick out a splinter, so don't let fear of a word (s-u-r-g-e-r-y) prevent you from stopping that pain in your toe.

When you say it doesn't hurt except when pressure is applied, you are sort of trying to kid me. Isn't that, now? Because unless it hurt quite a bit you wouldn't have gone to your doctor, and if it weren't the beginning of a lot more pain your doctor wouldn't say "surgery."

Many nails, treated early, often can be corrected by inserting bits of cotton under them until they grow out straight and no longer dig into the flesh.

But if the process has gone too far, the only sensible solution is minor surgery to remove the offending portion of the nail.

Daily Bath Inadvisable

Peterborough Examiner

We are heartened to see that an American authority, Dr. R. V. Platou, chairman of the department of dermatology at the Tulane Medical School, has firmly opposed daily bathing. He says that frequent bathing can remove many of the natural skin secretions which are beneficial. "We should be careful where we are dirty and only when needed," he says. "Otherwise our skin should be left alone."

This, of course, is only a more scientific way of saying what grandfather has long held to be true—that frequent baths remove the skin's natural oils and threaten the subject with pneumonia.

Dr. Platou's view will also be comforting to today's young rebels who, if newspaper and magazine accounts can be believed, disdain the touch of water as much as their grandfathers did.

Rednersville AOTS Club Given Charter at Banquet

REDNERSVILLE — Arnold Wetherall of Albury, the first president of the Rednersville United Church's (AOTS) Men's Club received the club's charter last night at a banquet to mark the occasion. The presentation was made by Taylor Franklin, business administrator of Albert College, Belleville, active in the church's brotherhood organization.

Mr. Franklin drew attention to the Consecon club's progressiveness and suggested that members of the founding club should be congratulated for their effort. He mentioned that Consecon had also sponsored successfully clubs at Wellington and at Avonmore north of Cornwall.

Success in making the organization grow is for the new charter members here to start looking around to charter a club of our own, he told the Rednersville group. Your charter is number 780, he continued, which means the movement has continued to expand since it was started in 1950. Just stop to think what it means in man power for building the Christian way of life on this earth? AOTS membership numbers 25,000, he revealed.

Mr. Franklin said he was inclined to agree with the critics of the United and Anglican churches who blamed them for failing to develop a program of effective Christian service. The churches should be leaders instead of the followers, he contended, noting a change in the layman's approach was underway and he looked for brighter since he had adopted the theme "Going Active." Criticism may irk us, he pointed out, but I'm afraid we do serve it.

Re-emphasizing the importance of AOTS involvement in the church's mission to develop a new image Mr. Franklin sparked his remarks with a challenge for club members to pick up the reins and go ahead in order that the gavel he presented to the people so they can accept it.

Jury Awaits Judge's Views On Klansmen

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)— A white federal jury waited for instructions from the judge today before beginning deliberations to decide the fate of three Alabama Ku Klux Klansmen.

Opposing sides rested their cases Wednesday in the trial of Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr., 22, of Fairfield, Ala.; William Orville Eaton, 41, and Eugene Thomas, 43, both of Bessemer, Ala.

They are charged with conspiring to violate the civil rights of American citizens in the killing of Mrs. Viola Gregg Liuzzo, a Detroit mother of five, although she is not specifically named in the indictment.

She was shuttling demonstrators from here to Selma after the march to this Alabama capital March 25 when she was shot by shots fired into her car.

At the close of final arguments, U.S. District Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr. delayed his charge to the jurors and warned them to reach no opinion until they have been instructed of the laws involved in the federal trial.

WIND UP CASES

$200 Fine Imposed on Guardsman

A charge of failing to report a car accident came at the most inconvenient time possible, a 21-year-old Canadian Guardsman told Magistrate T. Y. Wills in Belleville today.

"I'm sorry it happened Your Worship," Patrick Lloyd Gervais said. "This is a bad time for it to happen to me. I'm getting married on Saturday.

"Well, we can probably arrange not to interfere with that," replied the magistrate.

OPP constable G. F. Hiuser said the accident occurred on the Foxboro-Frankford county road November 3 when a farm truck was hit as Harold Phillips backed it out of his driveway.

The car responsible continued on — but later a neighbor of Mr. Phillips, Mrs. Patricia Beaudrie spotted two men examining a damaged car on the same road and took the number.

Gervais, stationed at Picton army camp, said the car was owned "by my future brother-in-law."

Magistrate T. Y. Wills imposed a fine of $200 payable over a month and Gervais automatically loses his licence.

"I wouldn't want to "frustrate a wedding," summed up Crown Attorney John Pringle. "I only hope the bride is a driver."

Service Bureau Officers Told Of Act Changes

At a recent school for Service Bureau Officers of the Royal Canadian Legion held in Branch 90, Belleville, and conducted by Mr. Ian Urquhart, Dept. of Veterans Affairs, Ottawa, the chief speaker was Mr. W. T. Theobald, Sub-Regional Supervisor for the Veterans Land Act from Kingston.

The speaker answered many questions regarding the benefits to the veteran as contained in the Veterans Land Act.

Recent amendments to the Act have made more money available to veterans and have broadened the scope of the Act in several ways.

Information relating to the changes or other matters relating to the V.L.A. can be obtained by phoning W. Graham, Federal Bldg., 962-5866, Belleville.

James Jenkins Hurt in Mishap

A Belleville hotel owner was admitted to hospital early today with severe scalp injuries when the car in which he was a passenger went out of control and rolled over on Highway 2 near Trenton.

Injured and admitted to Belleville General Hospital was James Jenkins, operator of the Hotel Quinte.

Mr. Jenkins was a passenger in another automobile driven by Aleen Day, of Belleville. Mr. Day, his brother Clarence, and John Patterson, also of Belleville, escaped injury.

Police said the car went out of control on a curve east of the truck road into Point Anne. It rolled over several times and struck a hydro pole. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

Ann Landers Picks Hubby's Pocket; Not Right, Says Ann

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The question is simply this: "To filch or not to filch." I don't mean from the supermarket. I mean from the wallet of a stingy husband.

For 30 years I lived like a pauper. I had to beg my husband for every extra dime. It was always, "Wait till next week" or, "I'm a little short right now — can't spare it."

ANN LANDERS

One day I helped myself to $3 out of his billfold and 75 cents from his pocket. He never missed it. I've been at this routine for three years now and it's amazing how quickly the dimes, quarters and dollars have mounted in my private bank account.

For a God-fearing woman who was in a decent home I'm curiously immune to the pangs of conscience. I do not consider it stealing. If you wish to be analytical you might describe this practice as "subconscious revenge."

If this is true, Ann, revenge is sweet. My bank account is growing along with my confidence and my personal dignity. The greatest satisfaction stems from the knowledge that my husband, with all his penny-pinching, hasn't saved a cent and I have healthy boodle.

What do you think of this? Right or wrong? — LIGHT FINGERED.

DEAR LIGHT: Wrong. And all your fancy, high-falutin' rationalism doesn't make it right.

Of course it's rotten for a wife to have to beg for spending money and I don't blame you for being bitter. A wife is entitled to part of what her husband makes. And this is no hand-out, it's her due — for being a homemaker and a partner.

Your healthy savings account is proof that the satisfaction you get from filching is more important than the money. If you really needed spending money you'd be spending it, not saving it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We have been married less than a year. I am 18 and Gerald is 19. I say "married" but it sure hasn't been much of a marriage so far. We have not had two nights in a row together. Either he wants to go shoot pool, play cards, bowl, or go to a movie, or the stock car races or a ball game. I am never included in these nights out. They are strictly for the boys and all except Gerald are single.

When we are at home for an evening, either four or five of his buddies drop in or he goes to the phone and calls somebody. When I tell him I would like a night with just him he says, "I work hard all day driving a truck. At night I want to have some fun."

When we were going together I seemed to be plenty of fun for him. What happened? Help me, please. — LIKE IGNORED.

DEAR IGNORED: Your sad story is a good example of what can happen when teen-agers legalize playing house. Neither of you was ready for marriage.

Mother's Helper

WHEN MOVING your residence, remember these precautions for the comfort and security of your small child. Keep a few familiar objects to take right along with you and the child; his blanket or favorite teddy bear, his own dish, a book he treasures. Be sure the crib and high-chair are the last things on the van so they will be the first off. He may want the ball light left on the first night—or most other extra attention. Small fry are creatures of habit, and a big change takes some getting used to! (Thanks to Mrs. Michael Lombardie, New Rochelle, N. Y.)

Root of Problem Lies In Family Unit Says Montreal Neurosurgeon

By H. L. JONES

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dr. Wilder Penfield of Montreal, one of the world' foremost neurosurgeons, warned Wednesday that there "is a crisis in the society of the western world" and the root of the problem lies in the family unit.

The noted, 74-year-old American-born, naturalized Canadian who has made many trips behind the Iron Curtain, said one does not find there the great increase in crime, delinquency and alcoholism to be found in the West.

The reason is that the Communist peoples are "fired with a purpose" and life is puritanical to the point of being in a sense, an altruistic religion.

The basis for this kind of society lay in strong family units where loyalties ran high.

Dr. Penfield spoke at a press conference and in a speech to the men's Canadian Club of Vancouver.

He was appealing for support for the newly-formed Vanier Institute of the Family, of which he is president and of which Governor-General Vanier, who proposed the idea of the family education organization, is patron.

Dr. Penfield said it was hoped that the Institute as a centennial project. An endowment of about $8,000,000 would be needed, with perhaps $2,000,000 coming from public subscription and the rest from government.

Dr. Penfield foresaw two years spent on research. After that the importance of the family unit in the Canadian scheme of things must be brought home through publicity and education.

"We can and we must examine our society and identify the causes of the upsurge of crime, violence, immorality and alcoholism," Dr. Penfield said in the prepared text of his speech released to the press before delivery.

"I need hardly quote statistics to persuade you that there is a crisis in the society of the Western world . . . the object of the Vanier Institute will be to build attention into family life through education, not to shut the family away as in the Victorian era.

"But moral are not old-fashioned. Our young people must have a sense of right and wrong. They should know that free love is wrong when they leave the family. They must be taught much more the meaning of honor and discipline. They must be given a working religion, whether orthodox or not."

SOMETHING FOR THE OVEN

Dear Susanna: Did you ever find yourself with a beautifully stuffed 20 pound turkey all ready to be trussed and no way to do it?

At this point it's time to play rob-the-sewing-basket. "A few clean, shiny, drapery hooks will hold everything nicely in place through the roasting period and they are a cinch to remove when the turkey is cooked.

First thing in the morning, when I am confronted with a new bottle of marmalade or jam to open, I don't fool around. I find a discarded pair of kid gloves I keep right in the front corner of the kitchen drawer just for this purpose. Slip them on, give the jar a good no-slip twist, and whomp, off comes the lid . . . easier on the hands, too. — Mrs. Manley.

. . . not only that, it makes one feel so s-t-r-o-n-g. — SUSANNA

Dear Susanna: To smooth gravy that is slightly lumpy, give it a good whisking through with your hand or electric beater. The same idea applies if you are warming up some cooked cereal; add a little hot water, and beat. All smooth in no time. — Grandma

GENUINE ITALIAN PIZZA

Calling at the door of my conscience is a small voice: "Mary, remember the young crowd that prefers casual pop-up parties". You see, I know very well that much of the Christmas cooking I have been describing here is involved and sometimes expensive. I remembered the happy reception you gave my recipe for Genuine Italian Pizza last May. Common sense dictated that I repeat it for the sake of the young or the young at heart.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

THURSDAY

Cream of Tomato Soup; Corned Beef Sandwich (see Wed.); Generous Tossed Salad Greens; Citrus Fruit Cup; Refrigerator Cookies; Coffee.

SUNDAY (Guests)

GENUINE ITALIAN PIZZA (two 12"):

Dough: 1 cup lukewarm water, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 package granular yeast, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ cup cooking or salad oil, 2¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour.

Topping: 1 teaspoon oregano, 1 teaspoon salt, one 6-oz. can (2/3 cup) tomato paste, ⅓ cup water, ½ lb. sliced or cubed Mozzarella cheese, 2/3 lb. sliced Polish sausage (or cooked pork sausage), 1/3 lb. sliced mushrooms (gently sauteed 3 minutes in 1 tablespoon butter), 12 sliced stuffed olives (or salad olives), 2 or 3 tablespoons chopped green pepper, 2 tablespoons olive or cooking oil, 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan or old Cheddar cheese.

To make Pizza dough add the 1 teaspoon sugar to the 1 cup lukewarm water in large mixing bowl and sprinkle yeast over top, give it one stir and let soak for 10 minutes. Then add the salt and oil and all but ¼ cup of the flour. Mix as well as you can, then turn out on board floured with the remaining ¼ cup flour and kneed 100 times. Return to greased bowl and let rise covered until doubled. Punch down dough and with floured hands divide into 2 balls. Have ready 2 large oiled baking sheets or proper 15" pizza pans and on each press a ball of dough with palms to form a very thin uniform circle 12" in diameter, slightly thicker at edges.

To make the topping, in a little bowl mix together the oregano, salt, tomato paste and water (using water to rinse out tomato paste can). Set aside. Then on each round of dough arrange all over in rings, the Mozzarella cheese, then the sausage, mushrooms, green pepper and olives. They will overlap. Spoon half of the tomato sauce mixture evenly over each. Sprinkle half of the oil and half of the grated cheese over each. By this time the dough has risen a little and it is ready to be baked. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. about 25 to 30 minutes until dough is well baked on bottom, cheese is melted and top is bubbling hot. Serve hot if possible.

NOTES:

1) I like this variation: Use 1 small can drained anchovies instead of the sausage. 2) If you use pork sausage sprinkle a little garlic salt over pizzas before baking.

Visiting teams are expected from other reserves, and the Tyendinaga teams will return the visits.

WILL PROMOTE CO-OPERATION

The objective is two-fold. The first is, naturally, to promote an interest in bowling among Canada's widely separated first citizens. The second, and perhaps more important, is to bring Indians from different reserves together on an informal basis, so that they may discuss their common problems and pass on to each other the ways in which these problems are being solved by the Indians themselves.

The visiting Indians were entertained in their hosts at the Council House, both on their arrival about noon, and before their departure following conclusion of the games. Each of the visitors was presented with a brochure of Deseronto and its vicinity, and a small souvenir though the courtesy of the Canada Optical Company.

VISITORS LISTED

In the pin fall for three games the score for the Tyendinaga men was 3033; for the Brantford men 2843; and for the Tyendinaga mixed 2614.

Ladies' low — Marguerite Marcle 82; men's low John A. Brant 86.

PUMPING WAS NO USE

GUERNSEY, Channel Islands (CP) — Guernsey's open - air swimming pool was emptied of 200,000 gallons of water so that a swimmer could look for a false tooth. Jean McKenna, 35, lost the £5 tooth while taking an early morning dip, but it was not to be found even when the pool was drained.

Yule Theme Highlights Tabernacle U.C. Bazaar

Tabernacle United Church bazaar was held in the church parlors on Wednesday afternoon.

A supply of gift paints, spangles, egg cartons, glitter, ribbons, old food cans, baubles, sugared cereals, and tinsel, several ingenious and industrious ladies produced a centre table to arouse the Christmas spirit.

Surrounding the spacious room and as eye-provoking as the centrepiece, the various booths must have left no one with the frustrating thought, "What shall I give for Christmas?"

MILADY'S BOUDOIR

"Milady's Boudoir" displayed imaginative accessories for bath or boudoir, each article tagged with a bit of verse to add interest. A delicatessen of salads, preserves and casseroles and a home baking table of breads, buns and pastries doubtless provided dinner for the families of many of the ladies present. A fine assortment of sweets was on display at the candy table. The fancy work, novelties, aprons, children's wear and toys displayed all deftly superlatives. In separate rooms there was a "trading post" complete with fox pelts and Indian clad ladies, and a room presided over by the gentlemen and containing for sale numerous miscellaneous items.

Mrs. M. G. McFarlane, Mrs. H. Bailey, Mrs. Peasey, Mrs. Salisbury and Santa Claus, with his tuffilled sleigh and new reindeer "Ringo," received the guests.

The bazaar was officially opened by the pastor, Rev. M. G. McFarlane who welcomed the visitors and remarked, "This is not a bazaar by the ladies, but a "church bazaar" encompassing the efforts of men, women and children.

ATTRACTIVE TEA TABLE

Hostesses who welcomed the guests at the tea room entrance were: Mrs. A. Firth, Mrs. W. MacKay, Mrs. H. Burley and Mrs. R. Bolduck.

The tea table was covered in white linen damask with a fluffy white, illuminated and baubled tree flanked by red candles. Each small table had a white luncheon cloth and a centre of sparkling red and gold net with a white candle and gold leaves. These net table centres were created by Mrs. C. Shaw.

The general convener of the bazaar was Mrs. Clifford Templer, who, unfortunately was ill and unable to see the result of her planning. Mrs. Harry Bailey was the co-convener.

Fancy work and novelties were convened by Mrs. Ray Lockyer; home baking and delicatessen by Mrs. Ross Irwin; candy by Mrs. L. Wright; aprons by Mrs. N. Wessels; toyland by Mrs. H. Burley and Mrs. G. Reynolds; children's wear by Mrs. W. Dougherty; Christmas decoration by Mrs. C. Booth; Hi-C trading post by Miss Joan Pearson; Milady's Boudoir by Mrs. Robert Aikins; men's booth by Mr. Percy Kerr.

Convener of the tea room was Mrs. H. Robinson, with Mrs. C. Walker and Mrs. R. Bolduck as co-conveners.

Pouring tea were: Mrs. M. McFarlane, Mrs. A. Cornish, Mrs. B. Salisbury, Mrs. H. Bailey, Mrs. N. Patterson, Mrs. G. Priest, Mrs. M. Graham, Mrs. K. Day, Mrs. J. Babiak and Miss Ethel Horton.

GIRLS KNOW UNIVERSE

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP)—More than 20 local girl guides qualified for their gold cords after a two-month course conducted by William Young of Owen Sound. Set up five years ago, the course includes elementary knowledge of the causes of the seasons, eclipses of the sun, the tides and the rotation of the universe.

Union Head Is Speaker At Banquet

MARMORA — Members of unions should take an interest in political affairs, Bill Mahoney, national director of United Steelworkers of America, told guests at the Union Local 4864 banquet on Saturday evening at the Reim Club in Marmora.

"You cannot live in a world that believes in the brotherhood of man without trying to do whatever you can for other people," Mr. Mahoney said "Our standards are never secure as long as someone else is living in starvation. I hope that at the end of our lives we can say that you and I have built a better society in democracy than we were born into."

Head table guests at the banquet were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Mahoney of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Powe's of Peterborough, Rev. J.M.D. McLeod and Mrs. McLeod of Marmora, Margaret Thompson, editor of "Steel Labor Magazine", Reeves John Wilbee and William Shannon, and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Bell.

After dinner the 85 couples attending enjoyed an evening of dancing. The money raffle war won by Bill Nyman, R.R. 2 Picton; Thomas Lindale of Madoc and William Bedore, Roy Frost and Joe Barrons of Marmora.

SEEKS BONUS FOR BITES

MAIDSTONE, England (CP) British mailmen were bitten 1,684 times by dogs during the last nine months, says the member of Parliament for this Kentish town. He is campaigning for some sort of compensation and suggests the dog-licence fee of about $1 be raised and the extra money used to insure people for whom bites are an occupational hazard.

Birth Not Registered, Now Wants Pension

DEAR DORIS: Please tell me what I can do to get a pension. I was born out of wedlock and christened 10 years later by another name. I am 70 years old now. Where do I apply for it and for a birth certificate, as I know I am not registered? — HEART BROKEN.

DEAR HEART BROKEN: First of all, get your application in for old age security, at your provincial welfare department, so that no time is wasted. You make a signed statement about your age. Then write to the Registrar General of Ontario, 70 Lombard Street, Toronto 1, who will help you track down a record of your birth. There may also be school or church records which would give a clue. Send him all such details, and the name you were first known by, as well as the one on your baptismal certificate.

DORIS CLARK

For a small fee his department will search the official records for the five years surrounding the approximate year of your birth. Tell him all you know about that vital event.

If it should so happen that there just is no document to prove anything, a tribunal of the provincial welfare department will have a conference about you and decide about your age for official purposes.

DEAR DORIS: If possible could you send me the complete wording of the poem that begins: "I cried because I had no shoes, until I met a man who had no feet." — TRAVELLER.

I'm not even sure there is a whole poem, although the quotations is familiar. We can't track it down here. Could a reader help?

Confidential to CONFUSED: I'd guess you are several years younger than this belittling mate and that he took the upper hand right from the start. It may startle you when I say that your good-natured obedience only makes him worse!

No, I don't suggest a psychiatrist. I say a good practical social worker could give you insight and the gumption to stick up for yourself.

Confidential to MIXED UP: Talk to boys — yes! But no dates or individual flirtations for the next two or three years. Better wait until you begin preferring boys who are nice all the time, whether adults are around or not.

DEAR DORIS: I would like to know the best way of asking others to do something. For example, when you want them to sing or help along at a projects. — GROUP CHAIRMAN.

DEAR G.C.: First, know your group member's special talents and link up his job with it. If he loves singing he'll help there. If he's good with figures — the kind you write down — he'll handle the money without too much coaxing.

Second, let him know you really need him and his individual contribution of interest and talent.

Third, show enthusiasm and friendliness — the kind which will make others want to have a part in things.

Mother of Two Elected As Police Commissioner

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — The next commissioner of the 140-man Bergen County police department will be a shapely five-foot-five, blue-eyed blonde.

"I get a lot of ribbing but being a police commissioner is not strictly a man's job," says Mrs. Doris Mahalick, 41 - year - old mother of two teen-age daughters.

"I'll be working in areas such as juvenile problems and traffic safety, where a woman has just as much insight as a man," she explained.

As commissioner, she will be one step above Chief Charles LoPresti and directly responsible to the board of freeholders (county council). As one ergessani put it, "She'll be the ultimate boss."

Mrs. Mahalick, who assumes her new duties Jan. 1, is no novice when it comes to police administration. She also was the first woman police commissioner in her hometown of Wallington, N.J.

When she was appointed to the post in 1962, some local residents were apprehensive.

EXPECTED DRAPES

"They all expected me to start hanging drapes in police headquarters," she recalled.

But, instead of picking pink upholstery for prowl cars, madame commissioner, during her one year in office, obtained funds to purchase badly needed electronic equipment and to raise police salaries by an average $1,200 — eliminating a morale problem.

Mrs. Mahalick comes to the post by virtue of a victory in the New Jersey state elections Nov. 2 as freeholder (county councillor). Her Democratic colleagues then named her chairman of the county's public safety committee, which makes her the police commissioner.

Throughout the freeholder campaign, Mrs. Mahalick was introduced as "the most beautiful candidate anywhere"—much to her despair.

"If I had been in a beauty contest, I'd have loved it," she said. "But while it was flattering, I thought it detracted from my candidacy."

REDS STRIP BACKWARDS

BUDAPEST (AP)—A reverse striptease has been recommended as a selling gimmick by Logobo, a Hungarian magazine. The periodical suggested a model's starting off "rather naked" and dressing in the latest fashions to a sound-track of sales-talk about where each item could be purchased. It styled the whole idea "dress-tease, the Hungarian way."

U.C.W. Meetings

CANNIFTON U.C.W. EVENING UNIT

The evening unit of Cannifton U.C.W. held its November meeting in the church on Monday evening.

The president, Mrs. Phyllis Parks, welcomed the members and visitors and conducted the business. An invitation was read from the afternoon unit to attend its meeting next Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Douglas Brenton.

It was decided to hold a short business meeting on December 28th when Doris Pound will present a new slate of officers.

Mrs. Joy Putman showed the book to be presented to the Sunday School library in memory of Wayne Avery.

The worship service opened with a hymn, Mrs. Avery led in prayer, Doreen Reynolds read the Christmas story from St. Luke, Mrs. Avery read an appropriate poem and the hymn followed. Mrs. Doris Ellsworth closed with prayer.

Carol singing took place until the arrival of Mrs. Cloyce Sullivan who gave a very interesting talk on bees. Mrs. Sullivan began her talk with several Scripture references to honey. Mrs. Sullivan said the bee is a very intelligent insect and life within the hive is like a little city of its own. She described the bees, different activities and how they actually wear themselves out working. The bees that make the honey never live long enough to eat it themselves.

Lunch was served and a social hour enjoyed.

PUSH NEW PLANTS

The Canadian department of agriculture introduced 40 new plant varieties in a recent five-year period.

What Women Are Doing

Scout Ladies' Auxiliaries District Committee

Mrs. H. S. Thomson, President

As the trend of the time is changing - so also is the Scout program, hence the re-organization of the Ladies' Auxiliaries. From the old executive board for ladies auxiliaries of Boy Scouts of Canada, who used to have one liaison member on District Council — a Belleville district committee was formed eight years ago comprising of 21 groups with 19 registered auxiliaries. All were striving to serve the needs of the boys by so operating in conjunction with group committees; also Cub, Scout and Rover leaders who give as much of their time, effort and talent to the boys.

The District Committee with its president Mrs. H. S. Thomson, is over all the auxiliaries of Avondale, Cannifton, Corbyville and Melrose, as well as all those in the City of Belleville.

All mothers of all Cubs, Scouts and Rovers are automatically members of the auxiliary to which their boys belong and when a mother signs her consent for her boy to join a Cub Pack or any other group she also signs it as her obligation to support the auxiliary in all their projects whether it is holding an office, attending a meeting to plan a father and son banquet or taking her turn to cook and serve meals at a Cub camp.

Within recent years (January 1965) a national body was formed to co - ordinate the work of the Provincial Advisory Board with Mrs. A. E. Standing as chairman, who since 1948 has been Assistant Provincial Commissioner for Ladies Auxiliaries in Ontario. Recently Mrs. C. W. Witherall was appointed chairman of the Ontario Provincial Advisory committee. The Provincial committee is composed of regions with Mrs. George Hodgson of Peterborough as representative of which the Belleville District Committee is a part.

Since the formation of the Belleville District Committee those who have served as presidents include Mrs. Lionel Blaker, now of Peterborough, the late Mrs. P.J. Gelsthorpe and immediate past president Mrs. A. Fort.

This region consisting of 75 auxiliaries held a conference recently in St. Thomas Parish House, Belleville. This was a combined effort with the local district committee as hosts.

The group committee is appointed by the sponsoring institution to give general support, vision to the Scout Group. With the mothers' support the Ladies Auxiliary co-workers with Scouters and the group committee will aid in the development of character of boys and will make contribution to the continuing growth of the movement.

A meeting will be held at Education Hall, Bridge Street United Church with the 11th Belleville Auxiliary as hosts, on Wed. December 8. Members of the executive of the district committee along with the various auxiliary presidents or their alternatives are requested to attend at this time.

This is the 36th in a series about women's organizations in Belleville and their activities.

Children Give Opinion On War Toys

OTTAWA (CP)—The annual argument about whether war toys make suitable Christmas presents for children is shot to bits in regular climax again.

—"Well I think it is good if they want the guns. And if the parents agree. But they should stop them when they get to about 10 or 11. Not any littler or they will grow up like Hitteler."

—"I think war toys are in a way dang e rous. But why should parents worry. We aren't going to start a war. Like these grenades that exploding are dangerous but that is around the only thing. Parents are silly to worry. Some of their own husband are in the army and they do worry."

—"I think that the grownup people are right. We are all hoping to have war and yet the stores are selling war toys. All the boys are getting war toys and everything was quite and now all you hear is bang! bang! and they are pulling it on the telefone."

—"Why do adults don't let us have army toys? They don't hurt us. What harm has it done. And if we don't buy how will the store keeper sell things to get money."

—"I personaly think war toys are harmful, not to the body but to the mind. Children who growup with guns and who like to see men shot or blown up easily like to kill just for the fun of seeing things destryred."

—"My mother is right that toy guns are very much fun to play with. When I grow up I will try not to buy a real one and if I do I will shot myself."

—"I don't like war toys because soldiers died for us. War toys should not be in stores. In the store they should have games like 'catch the mouse' and all the others. At Christmas don't ask for soldiers."

MORE YOUNG CRIMINALS

REGINA (CP)—Crimes committed by juveniles in Regina increased 20 per cent last year to 559, says the police department's annual report. Most of the crimes were theft or burglary, but crimes of violence increased as well.

225 Bilingual Canadian Girls Will Be Required As Expo '67 Hostesses

MONTREAL (CP)—Expo 67 Wednesday officially launched its campaign to seek out 225 bilingual Canadian girls to serve as hostesses during the April-to-October centennial year fair here.

Expo officials are hoping they will be able to find hostesses from each province, including 77 from Ontario.

Officials admit this system of proportional representation may break down because all applicants must speak French and English, but they are announcing the campaign early to give girls across the country "a chance to brush up on a second language."

And proficiency in languages other than French and English will put an accepted applicant in line for a higher salary and one of the 10 to 16 more responsible jobs to be created for hostesses.

Andre Mercier, deputy director of visitor services for Expo, said having hostesses who speak French and English will serve as an example of Canada's ability to become a truly bilingual country.

SET AGE LIMITS

Expo has specified that applicants, besides being bilingual, must be between 20 and 35 years of age, preferably single, physically fit, intelligent, attractive, neat and pleasant, of good character and Canadian citizenship.

Minimum education requirement is Grade 11 or the equivalent.

The girls will be employed for nine months and will be given a 10-week training course.

Application forms are available at all provincial and national employment offices.

After applications have been screened by the employment offices, Expo officials will travel across Canada for interviews and tests. Successful candidates will be notified by mail in October, 1966.

TRANSPORTATION PAID

Hostesses selected from outside the Montreal area will have their return transportation paid. Accommodation will not be provided, but assistance will be given in securing suitable lodging at reasonable rates.

Although only 225 hostesses are required by the Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition, the names of applicant not accepted by the corporation itself will be given to various Canadian exhibitors who will also need hostesses for their pavilions.

Mr. Mercier said this should mean 700 or 800 Canadian girls will be hired altogether.

The hostesses will work in four main areas and their duties will be rotated. They will assist in Expo's theme pavilions, in providing information, special interest to businessmen, in escorting VIPs and visiting newspaper men and in information booths.

Six hostesses, all from Montreal or Ottawa, are already on staff.

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

There was a joke told in Saskatchewan during the Depression about a man who fell into the Saskatchewan River. Five men leaned from the bridge and shouted questions, asking him his name and where he worked. Then they raced off to pray for his job, leaving him to drown.

Miss Braithwaite relates the story in Why Shoot the Teacher (McClelland and Stewart), a fictionalized account of his teaching days in Saskatchewan. However, he adds: "I never laughed at that joke. It was too close to grim truth for humor."

Teaching in small communities on the Prairies in those days was no joke either.

Dust - bowl farmers, faced with rock - bottom prices for their produce, bitter winters and parched summers, tended to regard the school teacher, overworked and underpaid as a necessary evil they could still afford.

Braithwaite, a native of Nanaimo, Sask., and now a freelance writer living in Orangeville, Ont., tells a lively, humorous tale of the trials and tribulations of one such teacher.

The teacher — no one ever calls him by name—takes a job fresh out of normal school with the Willowgreen School District into the narrow and often cruel society of a small farming community.

LIVES IN BASEMENT

". . . I have stepped out of the world of electricity, radios, and well-marked streets into a world where few of these existed and where nature's odd law of be tough or perish was still very much in vogue."

The humor is most evident in the teacher's attempts to coexist with the de-science in the basement of the one - room school house, the classes—The library consisted of a book by James Oliver Curwood . . . and, of all things, a green-covered volume entitled While Slavery Is Horrible Traffic in Young Women—and a delightful description of the fifth-form debate held in the school house.

The people are excellently and sympathetically portrayed, from Dave McDougall, dour secretary of the school district, who meets the teacher in mid-winter with gunny sacks wrapped around his feet because "the literally didn't have the $3.98 to send to Eaton's for a pair of ove shoes," to Alice Fiske, who met her husband in London during the First World War and followed him the New World, to find a vast and terrifying difference between life as a prairie farmer's wife and life in Lambeth.

Winston Churchill's four-volume work, "A History of the English - Speaking Peoples," has been compressed into a 406-page book by American historian Henry Steele Commager. It is to be published Oct. 25 with McClelland and Stewart the Canadian distributor.

Kenneth Orvis has produced a passable bedtime spy story in Night Without Darkness (McClelland and Stewart), a novel about a power-hungry scientist with Communist sympathies who develops the ultimate weapon, "paralysis mist," in the United States, then decamps in the direction of Bulgaria.

Adam Breck, top agent with the most dreaded secret service organization in the world, is in pursuit.

Medical Soc. W.A. Lists New Officers

The annual meeting of the W. A. to the Hastings and Prince Edward Medical Society was held Thursday at the home of Mrs. F. R. Ross. Each member brought a Christmas gift to be sent on to patients in the Ontario Hospital at Cobourg.

The president, Mrs. A. Rota, presided over a lengthy business meeting which included the annual reports and a discussion of the plans for the forthcoming fashion show, "Fantasy in Fashion," to be presented in the spring.

Committee chairmen were announced by Mrs. K. Douglas, this year's fashion show convener. Mrs. J. Empson reported on a workshop meeting held recently in Toronto by the W.A. to the O. M. A., and attended by the president and herself.

The acting chairman of the nominating committee; Mrs. S. Morphy, presented the following slate of officers for 1965; past president, Mrs. A. Rota; president, Mrs. J. Empson; vice - president, Mrs. J. Trembley; recording secretary, Mrs. R. Bateman; treasurer, Mrs. E. MacLeod; corresponding secretary, Mrs. P. Scott, press secretary, Mrs. S. Gibson.

On accepting the presidency, Mrs. Empson tendered a vote of thanks to Mrs. Rota for her inspired leadership during the past two years.

The meeting was followed by a social half hour.

Two Indian Women Prove Pioneer Spirit Not Dead

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (CP) Is the pioneer spirit dead? Is there a weaker sex?

Carl Monk, fisheries management officer with the Ontario department of lands and forests, asked these two questions.

Then he answered them with a resounding No.

Recently, he and other conservation officers were patrolling the wilderness around Northern Light Lake, 75 miles northeast of the Lakehead.

On a quiet island they noticed signs of life and found two trappers living in a log cabin.

The trappers had made their way up from Gunflint Lake, a route on which there are 10 portages over which they carried enough supplies, traps and equipment to last the whole trapping season.

It was obvious the trappers were not tenderfeet. There was a neat pile of firewood near the cabin. The canoe was carefully turned upside down to protect it from the weather.

They had set their No. 4 beaver traps, an operation requiring great strength, four days earlier and had caught 20 large beaver. The trappers were about to leave for a swamp to collect willow limbs for stretching the pelts to dry.

On a line between two spruce trees were beaver castors (scent glands) carefully removed from the carcasses. These will bring about $4 a pound at the fur sales in North Bay, Ont., where they are bought by perfume manufacturers as the base for their product.

The trappers also had moose licences and had seen a bull and cow several times on the lake. At first, they were too heavily laden to go after the moose. Later they couldn't bring themselves to shoot the animals, feeling they had become part of the family. Besides it was too early in the year for the meat to keep.

Officer Monk figures this was enough evidence to support his contention that the pioneer spirit is very much alive and the weaker sex may well be a figment of someone's imagination.

The two trappers were both women—Indians who admitted they were over 30 but who wouldn't tell their exact ages and who modestly requested that he keep their names a secret.

PAPER MACHE jewelry can be a fun rainy-day project for your pre-teen Junior Miss. For a beautiful bracelet, choose a glass of proper diameter for the wrist size. Tape a strip of waxed paper around it. Soak strips of newspaper in a solution of thin wallpaper paste and wind them around the glass to a thickness of about ¼ inch. Smooth and let dry several days, after which it can be decorated with paints and finally shellacked. Your daughter may start a fad in her crowd! (Idea from Laura Gray, Hinsdale, Illinois.)

Five Men Against de Gaulle Really Building for Future

Five candidates are running against Gen. de Gaulle in France's presidential election. In this story Canadian Press reporter Peter Buckley discusses the five men and the type of backing, or lack of it, they can expect to obtain.

By PETER BUCKLEY

PARIS (CP)—The five candidates who oppose Charles de Gaulle for the French presidency are being forced to look beyond the election.

None of the five can really hope to stop the general's bid for a second seven-year term as president. Their only alternative is to build toward the day when de Gaulle is gone from the scene.

Three of the candidates—representing the left, the extreme right and the centre of French politics—are regarded as "serious." The other two are being dismissed as lacking broad support.

The presidential election next Sunday will have a decisive effect on the future of French politics.

The opposition has been frustrated so far in its attempts to maintain party loyalty because de Gaulle deals separately from every sector of the voting public. His critics have invented a catch - phrase for it—"gaullisme" (post-gaullism), to describe the period when de Gaulle has gone and party lines find back into shape.

The man who places second to the de Gaulle president in the election — assuming de Gaulle leads the poll—can expect to have a large voice in the political regrouping which many French politicians predict will follow the presidential election.

HOPE FOR SECOND VOTE

The dream of the opposition is that de Gaulle will not get an absolute majority Dec. 5, making a second ballot necessary Dec. 19. In this case, only the two leading candidates would be matched.

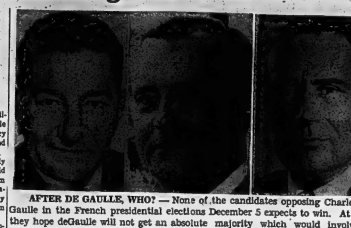
Not even the wildest dreamers can foresee de Gaulle being beaten in the second vote, but the general's critics are sure the need for a second ballot would hurt his prestige and make him more "reasonable" in his approach to power.

Several leading opposition candidates have pledged to press for political reorganization before elections are held for France's National Assembly, where de Gaulle's supporters now hold a small majority. Such elections are due within two years and there is speculation that de Gaulle — if re-elected — will call them next spring.

The opinion polls which give the 75-year-old general a firm lead over his combined opposition have established Francois Mitterand as the most likely runner-up.

Mitterand, an athletic 49-year-old lawyer, has managed the rare feat of getting both Socialist and Communist party backing for his candidacy. He has also attracted some radicals, several of the trade union federations and a few militant women's groups.

STRONG ON PAPER



A politician with 20 years in the National Assembly and Senate—including 12 separate cabinet posts in the post-war Fourth Republic—Mitterand is a sharp-eyed professional, a strong speaker and a firm organizer.

In fact, there is no guarantee that any of the groups officially supporting Mitterand can deliver their members' votes when de Gaulle is on the ballot.

Several young Socialist organizations have protested against the Popular Front—d union of Socialists and Communists. The once powerful Communist party, whose membership has waned in recent years, is unlikely to obtain absolute discipline for Mitterand after the Eastern bloc countries openly welcomed de Gaulle's candidacy.

Campaigning in North Amer-

AFTER DE GAULLE, WHO? — None of the candidates opposing Charles de Gaulle in the French presidential elections December 5 expects to win. At best they hope deGaulle will not get an absolute majority which would involve a second ballot with the two leading candidates December 19. Considered the most likely runners-up is Francois Mitterand (right), backed by Socialists, Communists and several trade union federations. On the extreme right is Jean-Louis Tixier-Vigancourt (left) whose campaign has attracted enough support to worry the moderate moderates. Jean Lecanuet (centre) was picked by the centre parties after the top centre figure, Antoine Pinay, defected to deGaulle.

ican style, Mitterand uses hell-reapers and fast cars to press from public meeting to press conference to factory gate.

He supports the repeal of anti-birth control laws and denounces de Gaulle's decision to build an independent French nuclear force. He is pro-European and says he would reopen Common Market negotiations if elected, he would dissolve the Assembly and seek a sympathetic majority.

WAS SECOND CHOICE

Lecanuet is the "nice guy" of the campaign. And he may prove Leo Durocher's baseball maxim about nice guys finishing last.

Lecanuet, 45, a former senior civil servant who left the presidents Republican party (MRP) to enter the campaign, is a serious, intelligent family man. But he only came into the campaign when the middle-of-the-road parties failed to persuade former premier Antoine Pinay to run.

Despite a Kennedy-like smile and a youthful image, Lecanuet has been hurt by his own second-fiddle role and by the defection of numerous centre-party figures to de Gaulle's side—including Pinay.

Lecanuet has had little time to build a meaningful platform or a substantial personal following. His supporters have nightmares about the possibility that he will trail Tixier-Vigancour in the vote, damaging the centre's position in any post-election realignment.

Tixier-Vigancour, a 58-year-old lawyer and self-styled "candidate of the national liberal opposition," has been campaigning long and strenuously. His mid-summer caravan through France's beach resorts has been followed by a series of packed public meetings.

CALLS FOR AMNESTY

"Monsieur T-V" as he is called, demands an amnesty for former French "patriots" who fought against independence for Algeria, recalls the Vichy wartime regime with something close to nostalgia, and attacks de Gaulle, foreign aid and communism with equal vigor.

"Enough of this international de-sagoy with France's money!" he shouts. And his well-heeled campaign has been attracting enough support to worry the more moderate conservatives.

The other two candidates are universally regarded as also-rans.

Senator Pierre Marcilhacy, 55, whose six feet seven inches gives him an advantage in height even over the towering de Gaulle, has been campaigning since April but is still almost unknown. A moderate, he has been mainly addressing youth groups—whose members are often not old enough to vote —and sparsely attended press conferences.

Marcel Barbu, 58, an 11th-hour surprise candidate, is the ce ile se ordre ral, rob ife lm 1 father of 11 children, a former deputy and something of a pioneer in labor and housing programs. He has no official party support and has been accused of becoming a candidate so he can get nation-wide publicity for his social ideas.

But the most any of the opposition candidates can really hope for is to make a good enough showing against the general to become nationally known in preparation for the years "apres de Gaulle."

Death Toll in Viet Nam Can Never Be Known

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—Nobody will ever know the death toll in the Vietnamese war.

Few wars lend themselves to the tidy calculations of casualty statistics, taking civilians into account, and this is doubly true in Viet Nam. It becomes ever more so as air strikes against the Viet Cong insurgents in rural areas of the south keep mounting in intensity, hitting friend and foe.

This new aspect of the war, credited as the main reason why the Viet Cong has not struck as hard as it had been expected to do this summer, is raising some concern about the impact on the civilian population.

As postulated in critical American newspaper dispatches from South Viet Nam, it raises the question whether people facing almost daily assaults by bombs, rockets, napalm and bullets make likely converts or loyal elements.

No one has any idea precisely of just how many are dead or wounded, or are being killed and injured daily. Much of the news issued by official sources in Saigon on the word of "agents" on the scene after the planes have gone.

Eighty-five per cent of the 15,000,000 South Vietnamese live in the country. The percentage is smaller for the 17,000,000 in Communist North Viet Nam. Effective administration in the south from Saigon is virtually nil.

Latest American military casualty figures show 635 deaths since 1961, 3,463 wounded, 52 missing and 20 prisoners of war. There now are more than 12,000 American troops in Viet Nam.

Australia, which has 100 military advisers and 1,000 combat troops in Viet Nam, has reported 10 soldiers killed and 21 wounded. New Zealand, with a contingent of 120 artillerymen, has reported two dead and one wounded.

The U.S. defence department has on file South Vietnamese army casualties from 1961 but these figures—which the Vietnamese embassy says are available otherwise only from the general staff in Saigon — seem patently conservative.

For 1961, for example, casualties are listed as 9,000 with a rule-of-thumb calculation that one-quarter were deaths. The 1962 figures show 4,400 dead, 17,300 wounded and 1,300 missing or captured.

This compares with the 1964 figures of 7,000 dead, 16,700 wounded and 3,800 missing or captured.

Monthly figures for 1965 to date reflect the sharper fighting but still seem low and conspicuously out of line with reports of the heavy desertion rate afflicting the South Vietnamese forces.

One estimate of total Vietnamese deaths as good as any comes from Bernard Fall, a French professor of history at Howard University here who writes frequently about Viet Nam. Effective administration in the south from Saigon is virtually non-existent, he says, and on the basis of personal observation — the - spot knowledge dating back to the French withdrawal.

Fall suggests in a recent book review that the war north and south in the last 20 years has taken at least 250,000 lives.

The kind of war it is magnifies even the problem of keeping track of the living. Families of Viet Nam in 1954 is said to have sent 1,000,000 refugees south and north.

Today, refugees fleeing in the south from the Viet Cong and the hazards of bombs and bullets from both sides are estimated between 500,000 and 600,000. These live in wretched conditions.

There are an estimated 22,000 to 25,000 amputees needing treatment.

The reason why the toll is dead and wounded among the civilian population is expected to rise lies in figures showing that U.S. air strikes north and south now number around 13,000 a month, compared with 2,000 last January. The U.S. Air Force has said privately it believes it has accounted for 15,000 "kills" so far this year.

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—On a busy street not far from the centre of Moscow cab driver Yuri Naliotov stopped to pick up a passenger.

He got the destination, then wheeled his Volga taxi across the centre line to make a U-turn—directly in the path of a motorcycle coming down the other side of the street.

Naliotov, 32-year-old father of one child and a driver for 14 years, was brought to trial more than two months later, charged with criminal negligence.

It was an open-and-shut case. All indications were that Naliotov had indeed been negligent. Nevertheless, the trial offered an interesting glimpse of the working of Soviet justice at the workaday level.

PROSECUTOR DOMINATES

The two clearest impressions of a first-time spectator were: The dominating position of the state prosecutor in the Soviet court system; and the emphasis on judging the defendant within the context of his place in society rather than simply as someone who had committed an offence.

Though Naliotov pleaded guilty, the trial went ahead as if he hadn't. It lasted two hours and was held in people's court, the basic court of Soviet justice and roughly comparable to magistrate's court or police court in Canada.

The trial was presided over by Vladimir Karpenko, 45, a former welder and radio technician who studied law for six years by correspondence and became a lawyer in 1959. Three years later he was elected a people's court judge.

Sitting with Karpenko were two so-called people's assessors, one a man and the other a woman. Seconded from their regular work for two-week periods, they are supposed to represent the general public in the administration of justice and theoretically have the same voice as the judge in rendering verdicts.

The prosecutor, named Gulperin, read a long, repetitive indictment. Naliotov had made the turn without looking, he was careless, hadn't observed [illegible]

DRAWS ACCUSED

Then Gulperin began questioning and berating Naliotov, a somewhat passive-looking man with a Grade 5 education and, as the court was told, not a Communist party member.

In answer, the defendant insisted he had looked both right and left, but his range of vision was only 70 metres.

"The law says you should have 300 metres view to make such a turn," scolded the prosecutor. "If you had only 70 you should have looked twice."

"How could you have had such a filthy accident?" he demanded sternly, referring to Naliotov's previously accident-free record.

A number of witnesses who [illegible] testified to the [illegible] you in an appearance but the [illegible] way, by unanimous consent.

OTHER PARTY ABSENT

Among those conspicuously absent was the accient victim, Panarin, though he had long since left hospital.

In a statement read to the court Panarian said he misjudged the speed at which Naliotov was making the turn. He added, significantly, " I do not insist on the guilt of the accused."

Also notably missing from the trial was the passenger. In the confusion following the collision he ran off.

Two elderly ladies, who might have stepped straight out of the pages of Tolstoy or Dostoevsky, were called to the witness stand in their kerchiefs and dark, formless clothing they fitted exactly the popular image of what are called here babushkas—literally, grandmothers.

The first gave some corroborative evidence, telling of how she heard a noise and a scream but insisting she hadn't actually seen the accident. She then left the witness stand muttering audibly, apparently upset by some incorrect questions from the defence counsel.

The second was no more helpful, saying she saw an injured man lying on the pavement but "I don't remember anything else because I was so frightened."

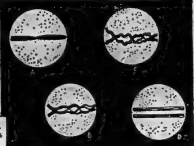
Land to testify was a policeman, Pozharsky. His testimony was notable chiefly for a stiff rebuke he drew from the judge for saying the accident was "largely" the fault of the motorcyclist — because he didn't slow down—though the law was on his side.

"It is not your business to say who is at fault," Karpenko told him. "Just state the facts."

In his summing up statement Gulperin lectured Naliotov again, this time on the need for greater driving care as the number of motor vehicles in Moscow increases.

"A taxi driver has to be more careful than anybody else," he said.

Then he softened a more soothing tone, noting that Naliotov had always fulfilled his work plan, earned bonuses, took part in social work. It was significant that Naliotov had not been fired following the accident. That means his employers believe in him."



The defence counsel in summing up reiterated that Naliotov was a "good worker" and asked for a suspended sentence.

The judge and two assessors were absent from the courtroom for 25 minutes. When they returned Karpenko read the verdict: Defendant found guilty, sentenced to a year of reform or corrective labor.

This simply meant that Naliotov would continue to work at the same job, but would forfeit 10 per cent of his salary to the state.

It was discovered that pairs of chromosomes in fertilized cells sometimes start to WIND AROUND one another. Scientists believe that they tend to GROW TOGETHER where they touch. When the cell splits to form new cells, the chromosomes divide longitudinally as is normal. But because they have grown together, they now have to test themselves apart and do not so in their original form. This process is called "CROSSING OVER" and explains why each new generation does not necessarily have the same characteristics of the former.

large Communist units will the opposition return to the harassing hit-and-run guerrilla-type war.

Allied forces in Viet Nam total slightly more than 685,000. Of these 165,000 are Americans, 300,000 South Vietnamese, 18,000 South Koreans, 1,200 Australians and 300 New Zealanders.

In addition, the U.S. Navy has major forces deployed off the coast. At least four aircraft carriers and numerous destroyers are in action in the South China Sea all the time.

PROVIDES FIRE SUPPORT

One carrier provides aircraft only for South Viet Nam. Destroyers are used with greater frequency to bombard Viet Cong facilities and provide fire support for villages and outposts under attack.

U.S. strategy is to punch deep into enemy territory and hold as much of it as required to operate base installations. One U.S. aim is to keep its major base installations outside the range of Communist weaponry.

But putting bases deep in Communist territory, the U.S. command has found, requires plenty of troops to defend them, and this defence job has eaten up battalions.

Jungle areas like Chu Lai, An Khe and Ben Cat, where up to six months ago the Communists moved freely, have become American base locations. Now that the bases are set up, the question is: "Where do we go from here?"

The allied buildup thus far seems at least to have had the effect of containing the Communists. Open invasion across the border by North Vietnamese troops has drastically changed the picture.

New U.S. forces had been brought in early this year to forestall a dangerous Viet Cong buildup. Communist ranks were swollen by southerners who had gone north in 1954 when the country was partitioned, and who returned as indoctrinated "liberators."

COUNTER U.S. BUILDUP

Now, countering the U.S. buildup, North Viet Nam has sent in its 325th Division, mainly troops born and bred in North Viet Nam, and set the situation back, from the allied viewpoint.

In view of this, there seems little doubt that U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara will recommend a large increase in American troops in his report to President Johnson following his visit to Viet Nam early this week. Officials speak privately of having as many as 300,000 U.S. troops.

The conflict has become something like a boxing match. Each side leaves its corner for a tussle in the centre of the ring, then retires to safe territory until the bell rings for another round.

The U.S. Army's 1st Cavalry Division rang it at Ia Drang by airlifting men deep into viet Cong territory. The Communists hammered them, and themselves took heavy losses. The cavalrymen pulled out last weekend.

The Communist side rings the bell by attacking government outposts and base installations.

The 81-millimetre mortar, the popular Viet Cong weapon, has a range of four to five miles. U.S. commanders say that if they have security up to three miles from their main base installations, they are reasonably safe from accurate enemy mortar fire. But this will change if the Viet Cong start using their bigger 75-millimetre howitzers more frequently. These have an eight-mile range.

As the Americans establish more base areas for heavy artillery, they will need more men to secure them. There is a debate going on between U.S. military headquarters in Saigon, wanting bigger artillery in more places, and the U.S. Army 1st Division, preferring fewer artillery bases and more freedom for troops to move.

Slight Stride

tions, came three days after the 117 - nation General Assembly adopted a resolution setting the wheels in motion for the convening of a world disarmament conference.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg, who supported the resolution on the world conference with reservations, told a press conference Wednesday he hopes progress toward "sensible disarmament" can be achieved with or without the participation of Communist China.

"We have made great steps in this area (disarmament) in the past without their participation. In the partial nuclear test ban treaty — and I would hope that we would continue to make constructive steps in the field of disarmament," said Goldberg.

But the ambassador reiterated that the United States is willing to take part in the preliminary planning for the world conference and expressed hope that Peking will take part.

The General Assembly's budgetary committee adopted a French resolution which calls for the setting up of a 12-nation committee to study possible ways of saving money by the world organization.

Ghana Wants Action Now In Rhodesia

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (Reuters)—Ghana today called for military action now against Ian Smith's breakaway regime in Rhodesia.

John Botsio, Ghana's delegate to the Organization of African Unity conference opening here Friday, said on his arrival that British moves so far had been inadequate.

If Britain will not act immediately the OAU should be prepared to step in, he declared.

Thirty-six nations are attending the conference of OAU ministers called to decide what action to take against Rhodesia.

Botsio, Ghana's minister of national planning, said in a prepared statement at the airport:

"Ghana wants effective military action right now.

"We are ready to this end, and the Ghanaian people have already responded well to the call of President (Kwame) Nkrumah for mobilization of a people's militia.

He said about 4,000 people had volunteered for this militia.

rious and basic problems of renovation.

Just when those may be cured is a good question in itself. But when the OAS itself is satisfied that repairs have been made, it seems inevitable that formal offers will be extended after consultation with Canada, Jamaica and Trinidad - Tobago. The latter two other Commonwealth members have expressed more interest in joining than Canada, last pressed hard in public by President Kennedy at Ottawa in 1961.

All three countries had observers at Rio. Of particular interest and satisfaction to Canada, it is known, was the build, to all intents and purposes, given the American hopes for a permanent peacekeeping force in the hemisphere.

The 19 - nation conference—Cuba is suspended and Venezuela declined to attend because of the right-wing military rule in the host nation of Brazil—refused even to discuss the matter as a sign of Latin American resentment caused by the American intervention in the Dominican Republic. The U.S. had made up its mind well before the conference not to press it.

Canada was opposed because the peacekeeping force was to be kept under the United Nations. Canada and numerous other countries saw, by the proposal originally made by President Johnson as an open invitation for African, Asian or other areas to conduct various military adventures in other lands outside the UN when it happened to suit them.

As for the conference itself, American views vary but there seems general agreement that the U.S. fared better than might have been expected in the wake of the Dominican Republic affair.

While the conference, twice postponed because of that episode, did ignore the hemisphere peace force concept, it also politely sidetracked a Colombian resolution sharply critical of United States interventions.

Further, depending on what progress is made in the next year, the conference performed useful and harmonious spadework. The emphasis was on cooperation in economic, cultural and social areas and the U.S. pledged itself to extend the Alliance for Progress, created by President Kennedy, beyond the original terminal date of 1971.

Some observers also professed to see a new trend among the Latin American nations of banding together to offset the powerful influence traditionally wielded by the U.S.

Another meeting is planned next year. The conference just concluded was the first in 11 years.

Zambia Agrees

for Zambia's copper mines. Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith had insisted that Rhodesia has no intention of shutting off the power supply of Zambia.

The British prime minister said Kaunda was under extreme pressure from African nationalists in his own country and in other African states to move against Smith's regime and reject the British terms for help.

Much of the pressure is coming from the Organization of African Unity, whose council of ministers meets Friday in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, to consider the Rhodesian situation.

BANS BRITISH PLANES

Cairo newspapers reported that the Egyptian government had delivered action on a British request to fly military planes to Zambia over Egyptian territory. The reports said the Egyptians were waiting until the OAU meeting and meanwhile had banned British military planes from using Egyptian air space.

Smith declared independence Nov. 11 after negotiations broke down over Britain's insistence on Rhodesia's acceptance of moves to assure eventual control of the government.

The new economic sanctions were designed to hit Rhodesia's 220,000 whites more quickly than those imposed after the independence declaration. The new measures increased the trade ban between Britain and Rhodesia to 95 per cent.

The latest financial restrictions virtually cut off investments by anyone in Britain in anyone in Rhodesia—even non-Rhodesians.

They include a ban on payment of British pensions to Rhodesian nationals, many of whom served in the Second World War and had received veterans' allowances.

Wilson also banned payment of wages to employees of British subsidiaries in Rhodesia and payments of dividends to British government stockholders in the breakaway colony.

Britain already had suspended Rhodesia from the sterling area and banned import of Rhodesian tobacco and sugar.

SIGN FRENCH PACT?

The Daily Mail said bankers and oilmen expected South Africans acting for Rhodesia to sign an agreement this week under which the French Total oil firm would supply Rhodesian requirements, thus bypassing possible oil sanctions.

The paper said that in return Rhodesia probably would have to give valuable business, financial and exploratory concessions which British firms in Rhodesia never enjoyed.

The paper said the French government had a "determining" 40 per cent control of Total.

The trouble in Africa brought Wilson political dividends at home in the threat of a split in the opposition Conservative party.

Right - wing Conservatives were restive at the extent of the measures Wilson has taken—and the support he has been given by the Conservative Leader Edward Heath.

Now Wilson, according to the opinion polls, stands farther ahead of the Conservatives than ever before. And ironically the most biting Conservative intervention in Wednesday's Commons exchanges was made not by Heath but by Douglas-Home.

Editorial comment today stressed that Britain now is embarked on a course of total opposition to the Smith regime in Rhodesia.

is due to expire Dec. 26. The UN Security Council is scheduled to discuss the issue about Dec. 10.

"The need for the force continues," Mr. Martin said.

"This need had been made clearer than ever in recent weeks when the force, entirely on its own, brought under control a dangerous incident between Greek and Turkish Cypriots in the eastern port of Famagusta.

MEETS ENVOYS

Mr. Martin talked with Turkish Ambassador Taha Carim Wednesday and called in Greek Ambassador Aristide N. Pilavachi for a meeting today.

He said Greece, Turkey and Cyprus appear agreed on the need for continuation of the force for at least another six months.

Canada and Britain are the only countries represented in the force which have paid their own way. The cost to Canada from March, when the present force was established, to this month has been $7,000,000.

Mr. Martin said 35 countries have made voluntary contributions for upkeep of the force. Of these, 18 had made substantial contributions.

This is not a broad enough basis for support of the UN operation in Cyprus, Mr. Martin said.

He added he hopes that before the end of the current UN General Assembly there will be consultations to produce "defendable and recalcitrant" UN members not only for the Cyprus force but for other peacekeeping operations far in debt.

The chief defaulters have been Russia and France.

NATO Secretary - General Manlio Brosio is expected to report to the NATO council, meeting in Paris Dec. 16-16, on his watching brief on Greek-Turkish relations.

Gemini Rendezvous Team Holds to Saturday Blastoff

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The opening launch in the Gemini double-head held firm to its Saturday blastoff schedule today as astronauts and officials met to review all aspects of the space shot.

Gemini 7 astronaut Frank Borman and his co-pilot, James A. Lovell Jr., conferred with the Gemini 6 crew, project officials, contractors and weather experts.

Dr. Charles A. Berry, Gemini flight surgeon, said both crews "are very relaxed" and in good physical condition."

Weather conditions are expected to be satisfactory at Cape Kennedy for the 2:30 p.m. EST blastoff.

Air force Lt.-Col. Borman and Navy Cmdr. Lovell plan to spin around the earth 206 times in 14 days.

Nine days later, Dec. 13, Gemini 6 astronauts Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. and Air Force Maj. Thomas P. Stafford plan to go into orbit, rendezvous within a few feet of Gemini 7 and fly in formation with the sister craft 185 miles above the earth for six hours.

The Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada called for federal government co-operation with the provinces and commercial interests to develop industry based on Indian skills and handicrafts. Revised history textbooks should be written to give justice to the Indian's pioneering role in the country's development.

The Canadian Council of National Groups said in a brief it is time to stop misunderstanding that exists between French- and English - speaking Canadians and give the various cultures in Canada the recognition they deserve.

The council thought it strange that the commission's preliminary report, published last February, had not been discussed by party leaders during the Nov. 8 federal election campaign.

At Wednesday's hearing, the Canadian Institute of Cultural Research and W. Harry Giles, president of the Toronto French School, both urged government aid in the spreading of various forms of culture.

The institute suggested the federal government should set up a centre to study the contributions of all cultures sponsor plays, concerts and exhibitions.

Such a centre would develop ways of helping people of different backgrounds understand each other and overcome old animosities and misunderstandings existing in their homelands, said Institute President John Grudeff of Toronto, a retired family court judge.

U.S. Defence Secretary Changes Tune on Success Of Americans in Viet Nam

By KEN PRITCHARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Robert McNamara, United States defence secretary, returned to Washington from South Viet Nam this week and declared: "It will be a long road ahead."

The secretary is the man who in 1962, against state department advice, told the public the war against the Viet Cong guerrillas was going so well that all U.S. servicemen would be able to return home by the end of 1965. But the educatlon of McNamara has proceeded apace.

After this most recent trip to South Viet Nam —his seventh —he secretary did not even say the South Vietnamese and their U.S. allies are winning. He just said: "We've stopped losing the war."

The sober appraisal in 1965's waning days comes against a background of l e g i t being American casualty lists and growing demonstrations within the U.S. against Viet Nam policy. Bombing attacks against limited North Vietnamese objectives and the use of prodigious firepower in the south has led to f o r c e Communist leader Ho Chi Minh to the negotiating table.

The sharp increase in U.S. casualties during November was no surprise to close observers. Large areas of South Vietnamese jungle and swamp have been used for years by the Viet Cong as refugees immune from ground attack. These strongholds have come under heavy air attack whenever identified but the only way to make them untenable is to overrun them. The 165,000 U.S. troops in Viet Nam have been preparing to do that job.

The hard fighting in the Ia Drang Valley in November resulted directly from the placing in jeopardy of a principal Viet Cong stronghold by U.S. First Cavalry troops. The Communists had either to abandon a key base or stand and fight. As other strongholds are menaced, further heavy fighting can be expected.

North Viet Nam has met head-on the threat to the Viet Cong movement li has nurtured so many years by sending regular-army troops into South Viet Nam. An estimated nine regiments — about 18,000 men—have been moved south over the Ho Chi Minh Trail, which goes through part of Laos. The U.S. says the infiltration of men into South Viet Nam has tripled recently.

It may be necessary, some observers feel, for U.S. and South Vietnamese troops to take physical possession of part of the Ho Chi Minh Trail. The Laotian premier, Prince Souvanna Phouma is unlikely to oppose such a move. He doesn't control that part of Laos. In the meantime, air attacks on the trail, carried on quietly for a long time, are likely to be stepped up dramatically.

The U.S. objective remains unchanged—to bring an end to the attacks on its ally, South Viet Nam. President Johnson's unconditional offer to begin negotiations on Viet Nam still stand, but Hanoi gives no indication it is listening.

President Johnson said July 28 and McNamara repeated this week that the U.S. will commit as many troops as are needed to ensure the independence of South Viet Nam. Eventual buildup of U.S. forces to 300,000 men is being predicted, along with a huge increase in air strength and an escalation of the attacks on North Viet Nam.

Despite home-front agitation against the Viet Nam struggle—as expressed by the march of 25,000 persons in Washington last weekend—the U.S. administration is determined to pursue what it regards as the only honorable course for the U.S. It will increase the military pressure against the foes of Saigon until the struggle becomes too costly for the Communists and they either quietly discontinue armed action in South Viet Nam or begin negotiations.

3 Sentenced To Three Years In Penitentiary

WELLAND (CP)—Three men were sentenced Wednesday to three years each in penitentiary after they were convicted of defrauding Atlas Steels Co. Ltd., of Welland of $1,264,069.

They are Sydney Troester, 46, and Hyman Jack, 49, both of London, and Emmett Sullivan, 54, of Welland.

Troester and Jack operated Trojan Alloys of London, a major supplier of scrap steel to Atlas. Sullivan was foreman of the scrap-receiving yard at Atlas.

The Crown charged that between 1961 and 1964 Troester and Jack delivered to Atlas less weight of scrap than paid for and lower-grade material than ordered.

A defence lawyer said the conviction likely will be appealed.

The jury deliberated nearly five hours before bringing in its verdict.

In his charge to the jury, Judge H. E. Fuller had described the Crown's evidence as "quite inconclusive."

"You might properly find on the evidence that the Crown has failed to prove Atlas steels did not receive the materials it paid for," he said.

"If you do agree with my opinion . . . you must find the three accused not guilty."

He said there was direct evidence against Troester but that other testimony was in his favor. He said Jack's partnership in Trojan did not in itself mean he was familiar with all the business.

He said all evidence against Sullivan was circumstantial.

When the verdict was announced, Jack, who recently suffered his third nervous breakdown, screamed "no" and pushed his leg against the prisoner's box so hard that he damaged an oak rail.

When sentence was announced he fainted and was unconscious for about 10 minutes. As he was led from the courtroom he picked up an oak armchair and dashed it to the floor, breaking the arm of the chair.

The three passenger coach Railiner will make stops at Gananoque, Kingston, Napanee, Belleville and Cobourg and will make the run between Belleville and Toronto in just one hour and 46 minutes.

100 GUESTS

Yesterday CN Rideau officials at Belleville were hosts to approximately 100 guests on a trial run of the new Railiner from Brockville to Toronto and back.

Included on the trial run were municipal officials from the centres being served by the new Railiner, area members of parliament and press, radio and television representatives.

It is with justifiable reasoning that the new Railiner service is being dubbed the "shoppers' special".

When the service goes into effect on December 15th, the Railiner will leave Brockville at 6.30 in the morning and after stops at Gananoque, Kingston and Napanee will arrive in Belleville at 8.02. Then, after a half run from Belleville, the train will arrive in Toronto Union Station at 9.50

The return run will leave the Union Station at 6.30 after downtown Toronto stores have closed for the day and will arrive back in Belleville at 8.15.

MODERN CARS

The Railiner cars are the last word in air conditioned comfort with a seating capacity of about 80 passengers. Each of the three passenger cars has its own diesel-electric power unit slung beneath the floor of the coach. Power controls in all three coaches are connected for front end operation.

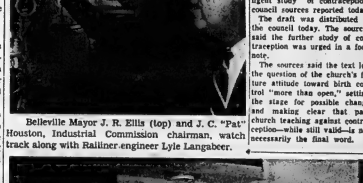
There will be no meal service on the Railiner, but a feature will be a coffee bar "manned" by a trimly uniformed female CN employee.

Kenneth Fleming, passenger sales representative for the Rideau Area, told trial run guests that the Railiner service was CN's answer to numerous requests for a fast, convenient, low-cost trip between Brockville and Toronto.

"We hope that we have accomplished just this with the Railiner," he said.

Area Manager H. J. Fast said that the Railiner was an experiment aimed at enticing people who normally drive the highway in Toronto, to leave their cars at home and take the train.

REJECTS DEMANDS



UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) Britain rejected Wednesday African demands for economic sanction against South Africa, but warned the Pretoria government that its race-separation policies might make future international intervention "inevitable."

Belleville Mayor J. R. Ellis (top) and J. C. "Pat" Houston, Industrial Commission chairman, watch track along with Railiner engineer Lyle Langabeer.

LAST WORD in passenger comfort is offered by Railiner with air conditioning and reclining seats. Enjoying comfort of trial run are Mrs. Frank Murray and Mrs. Kenneth Fleming (nearest seat facing camera) and Mrs. W. E. Sandercock and Mrs. Lee Collins.

NEW RAILINER starting December 15th will offer run of one hour and 46 minutes between Belleville and Toronto. New three - coach Railiner is seen as it stopped at Belleville yesterday during trial run between Brockville and Toronto.

Further Birth Control Study Is Advocated

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The latest draft of the Vatican ecumenical council's statements on birth control urges "further diligent study" of contraception, council sources reported today.

The draft was distributed to the council today. The sources said the further study of contraception was urged in a footnote.

The sources said the text left the question of the church's future attitude toward birth control "more than open," setting the stage for possible change and making clear that past church teaching against contraception—while still valid—is not necessarily the final word.

OTTAWA (CP) — Ben Levy, executive vice-president of Levy Industries Ltd. of Toronto, testified Wednesday that either he or his firm arranged payment of hotel bills, gifts and stock allocations for Brig. John Baxter Allan.

His testimony came at the 12th day of the trial of the former vice - quartermaster-general of the Canadian Army on a charge of accepting advantage or benefit to a value in excess of $8,000 arising from payment of hotel bills, for merchandise and transfer of shares in Levy Industries.

The charge alleges the advantage or benefit came from Morris, Mark, Edward and Benjamin Levy, who in their capacity as directors of agents of three Toronto firms, or one or more of them, had dealings with the federal government.

Mr. Levy told the court he met the accused in Toronto "about a dozen times or so" at the Westbury Hotel and "in some cases we paid the hotel bills." This was authorized by "myself or my brother M. P. (Morris Pep Levy)."

The Levy firm paid for the brigadier's room and sometimes for meals "because he was my guest." The Levys often entertained "foreign buying interests" and Brig. Allan was "asked along because they had common interests. . . . Of course I paid the bills."

Mr. Levy identified batches of correspondence brought in by Crown Attorney John Cassells as communications between himself or the Levy firm and the accused. The firm often sought "manufacturing drawings" (blueprints) on obsolete military parts the Levys had purchased from Crown Assets Disposal Corp.

The witness identified another letter addressed to himself from Brig. Allan. It read in part:

"Thanking you most heartily for your generous gifts that arrived during the holiday season. The smoked turkey was excellent."

Mr. Levy was asked whether Brig. Allan received any common shares in Levy Industries "from you."

Mr. Levy said: "Yes, Brig. Allan agreed to take five preferred shares" and later "I told Brig. Allan I'd put him down for 2,000 shares of common."

Earlier Mr. Cassells asked Mr. Levy to explain part of a letter from himself to the accused in Viet Nam which said: "By the way we are accumulating inventory for your return."

"What did this refer to?" asked Mr. Cassells.

"To some very old scotch," retained the witness, and the jury broke into laughter.

The trial continues.

Must Change Attitude Says Kenora Mayor

KENORA, Ont. (CP)—Mayor Edward Norton has told an election forum that residents must change their attitudes toward the Indian population in the area.

He said they have "a small responsibility to look on the Indian people with a slightly different light" but warned the "patronizing attitude toward Indian people has to come to an end. . . . They want to earn their own living."

Mayor Norton, who is not seeking re-election, spoke at a forum at which local candidates presented platforms for next Monday's municipal election.

About 450 Indians marched through Kenora streets 10 days ago to a town council meeting in protest against discrimination, lack of jobs and squalid living conditions.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Active support for Canada's Indian population was promised late Wednesday by George Burt, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers Union (CLC).

In a statement, Mr. Burt said his union was prepared to offer the support "to eliminate many social injustices to which they are subjected because of racial discrimination."

He said that the recent march by 400 Indians in Kenora, Ont., demonstrated that Indians do resent the discrimination which Canadians practice against them and are demanding better treatment."

Mr. Burt said his union intends to raise the Canadian Indian problem with the union's fair practices department and "have the full attention of our International union brought to bear on it."

"Our likely first step will be to respond to the recent request of the Ontario Federation of Labor for financial backing for its human Rights committee so that professional staff may be provided for working with Indian leaders on a full-time basis.

"In this way we would hope that the momentum gained at Kenora will not be lost," he said.

Mr. Burt said the brief the Indians presented to the Kenora town council "is one to which all fair minded Canadians can subscribe."

Oppose Marks For 'Phys. Ed.'

TORONTO (CP)—Youth volunteer groups and the value of giving marks in school for physical education were discussed in briefs presented to the legislature's select committee on youth Wednesday.

The committee, including Chairman Syl Apps, agreed with George Cass, a teacher, that not giving physical education marks in schools is poor public relations.

Mr. Cass, past president of the men's physical education section of the Ontario Education Association, said school physical education is geared too much to the good athlete.

River Banks Form No-man's Land Between Two Countries

LONDON (CP)—The banks of the Zambezi River form a sort of no-man's land in the tense standoff between white-governed Rhodesia and black Zambia.

The Zambezi, which rises in Angola, provides two great spectacles in a 1,633-mile journey that takes it between Rhodesia and Zambia and thus through Mozambique to the Indian Ocean.

Then it writhes through wierdly twisting gorges until, 70 miles downstream, it flows into Lake Kariba, the largest man-made lake in the world and site of the Kariba dam, which provides hydroelectric power for both Rhodesia and Zambia.

This landmark is vital in the calculations of Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith, striving to maintain independence, of Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda, worried about his power supply, and of British Prime Minister Wilson, who has offered token troops and RAF jet planes to Zambia.

Sitting in the hot low country of the Zambezi River, the $330,000 Kariba project is the main source of power for Zambia's copper mines and for Rhodesia's factories. The two territories jointly own and administer the dam, which turns out 1,200,000 kilowatts, the world's third-largest output.

As Wilson was careful to point out, Britain has a direct stake in Kariba. The British taxpayer financed much of the project and Britain needs the products of Zambia's copperbelt, third largest producer in the world.

Because the power plant is on the Rhodesian side of the border, Zambia fears Smith may cut the supply—an idea rejected by the Rhodesian leader even before he made his unilateral declaration of independence Nov. 11.

Zambian and Rhodesian soldiers are able to observe each other across the Zambezi River, narrow compared for instance with the St. Lawrence. But Kariba Lake, described by Wilson as one of the marvels of the modern age, is up to 20 miles wide in places and is 175 miles long.

The Kariba dam—one of Africa's greatest industrial exploits — was built during the troubled life of the Central African Federation, which for 10 years until the end of 1963 linked Rhodesia, then Southern Rhodesia, with Zambia, then Northern Rhodesia, and Malawi, then Nyasaland.

More than 10,000 men toiled for four years in the killing heat of the Zambezi Valley, and the rescue of wild animals from the ensuing lake, stretching the 2,000 square miles, become a colorful story of its own.

Actually, the project is not yet completed since construction on a power station on the Zambian side of the dam, which is 420 feet high, is scheduled to start soon. But not soon enough to reassure Kaunda.

Cup Officials Goofed

Fans Not Told Of Rule Change

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

No one doubts that the Canadian Football League is staffed with competent men. But one wonder how they could be so negligent about the league's public relations.

Possibly these chaps still don't realize that they are in the entertainment business and, as such, consideration should be given to the guy who pays the shot—the fan.

The CFL has been criticized over the years for its boob-league operation, but the critics him hasn't sunk in yet. A prime example was last Saturday's Winnipeg-Hamilton Grey Cup final at Toronto.

Game officials conferred with the Tiger-Cat and Blue Bomber coaches prior to the game and agreed, because of the high winds—30 to 40 miles an hour—a punt of about 14 to 20 yards, and between the ends, would be whistled dead as soon as a receiver touched it.

FANS IN DARK

There is a rule in the book that says the ball may (and the word "may" is important here) be ruled dead at any time after a punt at the discretion of the referee. It has been used in some games in Western Canada where the wind has affected play.

It certainly is the prerogative of officials to change the word "may" to must in a game as important as the Cup—if only to remove any ambiguity from the rule—but, the question remains:

Why didn't CFL officials let the fans know about this?

There were two key plays in the game, which Tiger-Cats won 22-16, that left fans who paid up to $12 a seat wondering what in earth was going on out on the field. One was in the third quarter and the other in the fourth.

The first occurred when Winnipeg's Ed Ulmer punted into the wind and saw the ball float back toward him. He grabbed it but Tiger-Cats' John Barrow snatched it and ran toward the Blue Bombers goal line. The touchdown was called back, however, because the play had been whistled dead when Ulmer touched the ball. Tiger-Cats were given possession but promptly lost it on a fumble.

BOMBERS GET BALL

In the wild fourth quarter, Joe Zuger, Tiger-Cats quarterback, punted from deep in his own end and appeared to have taken the ball from Winnipeg receiver Dick Worthy. But under the newly-adopted rule Bomber retained possession because, after some confusion, the officials ruled the ball was dead when Worthy touched it.

In both instances, Tiger-Cats suffered. And it was fortunate that the outcome of the game wasn't altered by these rulings.

But, more to the point, CFL officials, apparently didn't think enough of the fans who paid to see the game to tell them beforehand that one of the basic rules of Canadian football had been altered.

Canadian football is spending $20,000 to have a firm tell them how to improve their operation. Nobody has to pay anything to tell Canadian football what was wrong with the game Saturday.

DISMISS COACH

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Philadelphia Bulldogs of the Continental Football League announced Wednesday that Boris (Babe) Dimancheff, head coach and general manager, has been relieved of his duties, effective immediately.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

He was Bow Bells from his "oheads" to the top of his bloomin' 'ead. Drape his entire five-foot-four with "pearlies" and he would look like the original 'Arry from 'Ampstead 'Eath.

Plainly he was from the tripe-'n'-onions and sausage-'n-mash set. Cor, he would have looked more at 'ome with a pint of arf-'n-'arf in his hand, instead of the stack of newspapers he carried.

"Nah, then, me bucka," he bugled in rich Cockneyese. "What's this I 'ear about giving our George the bleedin' brushoff... I'm talkin' about the blokes over 'ome in Blighty and our champeen George Chuvalo."

"Ere mate, 'ave a gasper," I said in my expatriate North Finchley dialect seasoned with Bermondsey oil.

"Well, guv," he said, "They ain't my favorite Woodbines but they'll go well with a pint of bitters." He took a half dozen of the menthols.

"Now' Arry me lad, what's all this about Chuvalo and a British brushoff?"

He tossed a news clipping on the desk. "Whatza matter wiv yer, guvnor. Doncha read the bleedin' papers? Look 'ere."

The clipping said that Chuvalo arrived in England unheralded and unsung and was met by a lone fan, a girl in Mountie uniform.

He interrupted with "There's wot gives me the bloomin' willies. 'Ere's the Canadian champeen, who is the next world champ as sure as me old Dutch likes 'er gin and clover, gives the push-aside by the blinkin' British promoters.

The paragraph read: "Chuvalo's arrival here lost much of its impact when promoter Jack Solomons confirmed he is working with Laurie Lewis to get Canius Clay to defend his title against Brian London in Britain next year."

"And 'ere's sumthin else that parbolls me cacking and mussels," 'Arry harped. "They're offered 'Ali Babble Clay the biggest purse ever paid a bleedin' boxer in Blighty to knock over a bloody pauncha' blimp like London. It ain't bloody fair, it ain't."

"Come, come, 'Arry" purred the North Finchley dialect, "let's be fair about this thing. Your paper clippings also say that Chuvalo knows how to beat Clay. He said Patterson went about it the wrong way. He stayed too far away. I think I could beat him," he says.

"Ahd 'Arry," the voice insisted, "isn't that what Chuvalo said before he met a bloke named Ernie Terrell ?"

"I dunno know anythiak about that," sidestepped 'Arry, "but what I bloomin' well does know is that Chuvalo could take on this bloke Bygraves, whose 'eard the birdies chirp so often he's sprouiin' feathers, send 'im bye-bye, then put the bloody blokers on London for a chaser."

"And I don't fink for a blinkin' minute," chirped 'Arry, "that the promoters figure this bloke London can beat Clay. Me old classmates from Soho, Bermondsey, 'Ampstead and other centres of the artpint, haven't forgotten what Clay did to a codger named 'Enery Cooper even if Cooper put down Ali Babble for a four-count."

"It's purely a pounds, shillin's and pence deal. The big money is 'ere and the blighters would pay through the bloody nose to see Clay fight a charwoman, especially if it's held at Hepsom durin' Darby week."

"Couldya spare me a coupla bob to wet me whistle," said 'Arry as he rose to leave. "It seems kinda bad for Chuvalo 'cos it looks like there ain't gonna be any more big money by the time he gets around to lickin' Clay."

"And 'e'll beat 'im", 'Arry flared in his parting shot. "I 'ave it on the best authority."

"Who is that?"

"Chuvalo."

Three Assists For Hull ★★★★★

Hawks Dump Bruins; Blues, Leafs Tie

★★★★★ Shack Averts Defeat

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull returned to Chicago Black Hawks' lineup Wednesday night after a four-game absence due to an injured left knee and didn't have any trouble getting back into the points column.

Although he didn't score any goals, Hull set up three markers as Chicago dealt the Bruins a 4-2 defeat in one of two scheduled National Hockey League games.

The Hawks' victory, only the fifth at home against five defeats and a tie, moved them into a deadlock for top spot in the NHL standings with Montreal Canadiens.

The Bruins got off to an early lead in the first period when Murray Oliver took a pass from behind the net by John Bucyk and beat Chicago netminder Glenn Hall with a five-footer.

Kenny Wharram evened the count with less than two minutes remaining in the opening frame when he drove a 15-footer past Boston netminder Bernie Parent for his ninth of the season.

Chico Maki concluded the Chicago scoring in the final period. Boston was forced to play without injured defencemen Leo Boivin, Ted Green and Al Langlois. In their places were rookie Barry Ashbee, minor leaguer Dallas Smith and Ed Westfall, moved back from right wing.

Parent, Boston's rookie netminder, made several spectacular saves, despite the fact that he suffered an injury to one of the fingers on his right hand in the first period while smothering a shot from close in by Hull.

The Hawks fired 43 shots at the 20-year-old Parent.

It extended the Rangers' winless streak to four games, during which they have showered the opposition with 158 shots but managed only six goals.

Jean Ratelle and Earl Ingarfield gave New York a 2-0 first-period lead.

New York carried the lead into the third period before Armstrong beat rookie goalie Ed Giacomin.

SHACK TIES IT

Shack, a former Ranger recalled from Rochester Americans of the American League several weeks ago, tied it with his fifth goal of the season at 8:54.

New York dominated the first period, firing 19 shots at Toronto netminder Johnny Bower, while the Maple Leafs managed just six at Giacomin.

The Rangers kept the pressure on the 41-year-old goaltender the rest of the way as both teams spent most of their time in the Toronto end of the rink.

Defenceman Bill Gadsby of Detroit Red Wings is to undergo surgery for a removal of a cyst on the back of his right leg and will be out of the lineup for a month, the club announced Wednesday.

Gadsby, 38, playing in his 20th NHL season, will enter hospital today. The operation date is yet to be decided.

The loss is a crippler to the Red Wings, defending league champions, who have had rough going this season. They are tied for fifth place with Boston, who meet Detroit tonight in the motor city for the league s only scheduled game.

Big Seven

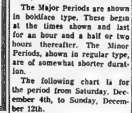
Bobby Hull, Chicago's star left winger, returned to action Wednesday night after a four-game absence due to an injured left knee and picked up three assists to bring his season points total to 24 in the National Hockey League individual scoring race.

Hull has a league-leading 15 goals and nine assists and is two points behind Bobby Rousseau of Montreal Canadiens who holds the lead with 26 points, including a league-leading 15 assists.

Stan Mikita of Chicago picked up an assist Wednesday night and remains in third spot in the scoring with 22 points. He is followed by Jean Beliveau of Montreal who has 19 points.



Bob Nevin and Don Marshall of New York Rangers are in fifth and sixth place respectively. Nevin has 18 points on eight goals and an equal number of assists.

College Officials, TV

Discuss National Grid League

TORONTO (CP) —Television interests and college officials have started discussing a national, intercollegiate college football league schedule for 1967.

Details of a meeting here last Friday of 10 Canadian university athletic directors and representatives of the CTV television network were available Wednesday.

"It is not a fait accompli," said Warren Stevens, athletic director of the University of Toronto. "Somebody presented a proposal at the meeting and it is still under consideration."

John Metras, coach of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs, said there had been a meeting and talks centred on ties a "super league", but any announcement on it is premature.

Both universities are included in the proposed 10-team league made up of five teams from the west and five from the east.

From the west are the universities of British Columbia, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, one each from Edmonton and Calgary.

The eastern division would be made up of the four existing teams of the Ontario-Quebec Intercollegiate Athletic Association and St. Francis Xavier at Antigonish, N.S. The four O-QIAA teams are the universities of Toronto, Western Ontario, McGill and Queen's.

Backing the teams is the CTV network of 12 private stations. They have guaranteed $100,000 each year for five years to pay for promotion, travel expenses and all costs over and above regular costs.

Television coverage would range over an eight-week period with one game being televised each week plus the championship game between the two division winners.

Schedule Was Tough

Indians Didn't Win West

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The American Hockey League schedule hasn't been kind to Springfield Indians lately.

When the AHL's Eastern Division tail-enders return home Saturday, they will have completed a three-week junket that took them from Quebec to San Francisco and forced them to play 10 games in 16 days.

They played the last of them in Victoria Wednesday night and took an 8-3 lacing from the Maple Leafs, leaders of the Western League, with which the AHL plays an interlocking schedule.

The defeat was the Indians' fifth in a row and their eighth in the 10 road games.

The only other AHL activity saw Hershey Bears climb into second place in the east by downing Cleveland Barons 6-4. John Sleaver scored two for Victoria and Fred Hucul, Gordie Redahl, Bob Barlow, Claude Labrosse, Dick Lamoureux and Dave Parenteau piled up their total. Bill Sweeney, Howie Menard and Brian Smith tallied for Springfield.

Three goals by Jeannot Gilbert in the third period gave the Bears their margin over Cleveland. Roger DeJordy, Gary Dornhoefer and Gene Ubriaco were the other Hershey marksmen. The Barons got two goals from Tom McCarthy and the others from Cec Hoekstra and Bob Courcy.

Says Big Bonuses Foolish

NEW YORK (AP)—Weeb Ewbank, who coaches the highest-priced bonus rookie of them all —Joe Namath—says the practice of giving big money to sign untried college football players has reached the point of foolishness.

"It's silly, just silly, what these kids are asking and what they're getting," the coach of American Football League New York Jets said Wednesday.

"Even the chances for the good ones are out of line. And all of them, all down the line, want at least $20,000 or $25,000 to sign."

Sonny Werblin, owner of the Jets, went on a spending spree last year in signing rookies and is reported to have laid out $250,000 to land his No. 1 choice this year—tackle Bill Yearby of Michigan.

Namath signed for a reported $400,000 last year.

Wings Lose Gadsby For Month

DETROIT (AP) —Defenceman Bill Gadsby of Detroit Red Wings is to undergo surgery for removal of a cyst on the back of his right leg and will be lost a month, the National Hockey League club announced Wednesday.

Gadsby, 38, a 20-year NHL veteran, will enter Detroit Osteopathic Hospital today.

The loss is a crippler to the Red Wings, defending league champions who have had rough going this season and are in last place.

Rocket's Son Plays With Carabins

TORONTO (CP) — University of Toronto Blues will have Maurice Richard to contend with when they meet Montreal Carabins here Friday night in an Ontario Quebec Intercollegiate Athletic Association hockey game.

Richard, son of the National Hockey League star, will play his second league game for the league-champion Carabins. He scored a goal last week in Montreal's 9-2 defeat of McMaster Marlins.

Deadlock Stifles Baseball Trades

"All Blocked"

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Frustrated major league executives continued their attempts today to break a deadlock which has stifled trading at the annual winter meetings.

"Everything is all blocked up," said Bobby Bragan, manager of Atlanta Braves. "None of the trades so far has helped anybody.

"I don't know what it is going to take to get something going," said Bragan, who has been trying to acquire a relief pitcher.

No major swaps have been made since baseball officials gathered last Sunday for the minor league meetings at Fort Lauderdale. A few trades of veterans were made Wednesday on the eve of the opening of the major league convention.

The Braves sent Houston pitcher Jack Lamabe to Chicago White Sox; outfielder Dave Nicholson of the Whiles for to the Colts' Oklahoma City farm club; San Francisco Giants' outfielder Matty Alou to Pittsburgh for Pirate pitcher Joe Gibbon, and Kansas City Athletics' outfielder Jim Landis to Cleveland for Indian catcher Phil Roof.

Meanwhile, major league owners were set to meet prominent Wisconsin businessmen trying to get big-time baseball back to Milwaukee.

Milwaukee Brewers baseball club was invited to meet National League owners today. An informal meeting with American League owners also was scheduled.

Milwaukee lost the National League Braves to Atlanta after the 1965 season, although several court suits opposing the move still are pending.

Riteways, Rollins Win Minor Games

Rollins Construction dumped Napanee in peewee and Riteways stopped Trenton in novice action. Both games were won by 7-3 scores.

Riteways jumped into a 3-0 first-frame lead and made it 5-1 before dividing four goals in the third.

M. Coates was Riteways' lone two-goal man with one each going to T. Whelan, D. Taylor, W. Dalnard, G. Goegan and M. Thistle. Assists too were spread around with one each for Goegan, Thistle, J. Edwards, Coates, R. Barrett and A. Ricketts.

C. McLean, B. Glover and G. Martin did the Trenton scoring. B. McAlpine, R. Armstrong and McLean gained assists.

Four minor penalties were split down the middle.

Rollins staged a strong third-period rally to grab the peewee win over Napanee. It was a 1-1 game after one period and Napanee led 3-1 going into the third. Rollins' six without a reply told the story in the third.

Cliff Janitsch scored twice to tie the game in the third. Rick Meagher made it 4-3, John Mulvihill added another and Brian Cousins put the wraps on with a final pair. Robert Foster had scored Belleville's initial goal.

Cousins also scored two assists with one apiece for Dan Lapenette, Doug James, Peter Ackerman, Meagher, Janitsch and Mulvihill.

S. McGreer and D. Wilson had a goal and assist each for Napanee with Gary Tee netting the other goal.

Napanee collected four of five minor penalties assessed.

NATIONALS WIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Veteran Roger Bourbonnais scored twice to pace Canada's national hockey team to a 5-3 exhibition victory over Minnesota Rangers of the Central Professional Hockey League Wednesday night.

To Cleveland's Jim Brown

Records Things To Be Broken

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Brown needs only one more touchdown to tie Lenny Moore's season record of 20 in the National Football League.

With three games to play the Cleveland Browns' fullback may break that record by so much that nobody will touch it.

Brown already owns a host of the NFL records, including 124 career touchdowns and 12,077 yards in 115 games. He is within reach of another mark, most touchdowns rushing in a season, 19, set by Jim Taylor of Green Bay in 1962. Brown scored 15 times by rushing and four on pass receptions in Cleveland's first 11 games.

Brown is assured of an eighth rushing crown with a lead of 499 yards on his closest competitor, Timmy Brown of Philadelphia who has 810 yards.

Brown also is the scoring leader with 114 points, followed by Tommy Davis, San Francisco's place-kicker with 90.

Rudy Bukich, Chicago Bears' quarterback, has taken over first place in passing.

Dave Parks of San Francisco 49ers still leads the pass receivers with 59 for 1,093 yards, but Pete Retzlaff, Philadelphia veteran, is close behind with 54 for 1,001 yards. Each has scored nine touchdowns.

Bobby Boyd of Baltimore Colts and Dick Lebeau of Detroit Lions each have six interceptions.

Leroy Kelly of Cleveland tops the list in punt returns with a 17.5-yard average. Tom Watkins of Detroit is leading in kickoff returns with a 34.4-yard average.

The All-America Squad

NEW YORK (AP)—Mike Garrett of Southern California and Texas Tech's Donny Anderson, a repeater, are the halfbacks on the 1965 Associated Press all-America college football team named Wednesday.

Rounding out the offensive backfield are Steve Juday, the man who sparked Michigan State to No. 1 ranking, and Illinois fullback Jim Grabowski, first draft pick in the American Football League.

Notre Dame's Nick Rassas, Johnny Roland of Missouri and George Webster of Michigan State are the defensive backs selected on the 23-man squad which, takes into account the two-platoon game.

The 23rd man is Charley Gogolak, the Hungarian-born, soccer-style place-kicker from Princeton. The inclusion of a placement specialist honors a player of remarkable, record-breaking ability in this field. Gogolak converted all 33 conversion tries and booted 16 field goals from as far away as 54 yards for 81 points.

Syracuse's Floyd Little was an outstanding ball carrier edged by Garrett and Anderson. Pat Killorin, 1964 all-America offensive centre from Syracuse, was bumped to a second team berth by once-beaten Alabama's Paul Crane.

For the second successive year, Tommy Nobis of Texas, much better known as a linebacker, was named at offensive guard.

Nobis, picked in the pro first-round draft by Atlanta and Houston, is joined at guard by a future choice of '66, Notre Dame's versatile Dick Arrington who also worked at defensive tackle. He was drafted by Cleveland of the NFL and Boston of the AFL.

Als Seek Fulltime GM, Scout

MONTREAL (CP) — Ted Workman, president and co-owner of Montreal Alouettes, said Wednesday the Eastern Football Conference club is seeking a man who will fill the post of full-time general manager and scout.

Speaking of the head coach job, open since Jim Trimble was kicked out three weeks ago, he said:

"We need a proven man, possibly from within the Canadian Football League."

Minor Hockey

Three games were played in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association's tyke division last night.

Hawks whipped the Leafs 6-1, Roger Chapman sparked the Hawk win with a four - goal performance. Howard Meens and Semor Jianopoulos netted the other goals. Michael Kirby was the lone Leaf marksman.

Wings and Canadiens battled to a 3-2 stalemate. Raymond Skelly and Barry Wallo potted the Wing goals. Edward Hawley and Ricky Mofina hit the hemp for Canadiens.

Rangers won slight 3-2 decision over the Bruins. Eric Powell had two Ranger goals and Michael Crawford bagged the winner. Michael Meeker scored both Bruin counters.

Million Dollar "Foot"

WASHINGTON (AP)—Princeton's Charlie Gogolak, a soccer-style kicker who rewrote the record book for college placekickers, has signed to play with Washington Redskins.

The Redskins, who selected the 5-foot-10-inch, 180-pound Gogolak No. 1 in the National Football League draft, said Wednesday Gogolak was signed Tuesday night in New York by Redskin president Edward Bennett Williams.

Terms were not disclosed. Washington said it plans to feature Gogolak's right foot for $1,000,000 with Lloyd's of London.

Gogolak is the first kicking specialist ever made a No. 1 pick by an NFL team.

Writer Defends Court In Condemning Exhibit

By JACK HUTTON

A friend of mine is midway through his formal education as an artist and I asked him the other day how he intends to make a name for himself in the Canadian art world.

"I'm going to be as controversial as I can — right from the start," he said.

How many classmates, I asked, felt the same way? "All of them that matter," he replied candidly. "The rest will wind up as happily-married nobodies working 9 to 5 in commercial studios."

Happily - married nobodies! What's wrong with that, I asked. And what wife is going to object to a regular pay envelope from a 9 to 5 job?

PUBLICITY

As we talked I suddenly realized what the goal of my friend was: to get a picture banned! The picture, its quality, didn't matter. It was the principle of the thing, or perhaps, the publicity.

"You saw what happened in Toronto last week," he said. "A magistrate ruled that several pictures in the Dorothy Cameron Gallery were obscene. That was a terrible violation of artistic integrity. Why don't you write about that?"

I'm doing just that — and I'm addressing it directly to friends like my neophyte artist who hope to crash the Canadian Art World.

This may shock you, friends, but I happen to agree with Magistrate Fred Hayes, the man who ruled that the seven pictures by Robert Markle, Lawrence Chaplin and Fred Ross were obscene.

LONE VOICE

This makes me possibly the only person in Canada to publicly come to the defence of the magistrate. In the week after the decision I read editorial after editorial claiming that this should be appealed to a higher court.

Did you see the exhibition? Well, I did. And, although I have the highest respect for the gallery owner, Dorothy Cameron, I couldn't help feeling that the display was organized for shock value.

One of the pictures would have been jarring in any single exhibition. When they were grouped together, you felt that somebody had just stepped over a boundary of taste.

The people I saw looked at the controversial pictures, then looked quickly away. I felt embarrassed for the women passing through.

NO PRUDE

Am I a prude? I don't think so. I've visited art galleries in Paris and London, and enjoyed pictures that have been the centre of controversies over the centuries.

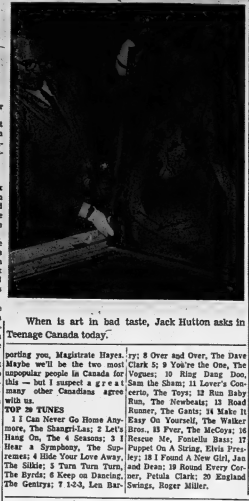
Several days after Magistrate Hayes became the centre of a growing storm I sat down with his written judgment (it took 40 minutes to read in court) and followed him through all his arguments.

And I'd suggest that anyone who wants to knock the written decision in coffee house chatter (how do you knock with sandals?) should do the same thing first.

The same thing goes for art students or instructors who want to sound off on Magistrate Hayes' reasoning. I believe that every art college in Canada should get a copy and make it a debating point.

THE 'IN' THING

It's a strange commentary on Canadian life that the safe thing to do right now is to defend the seven pictures which have now been legally declared obscene. Do that and you'll be considered "in", an advanced thinker.



The "out" thing, which I'm doing, is to suggest that the magistrate was speaking for a community interest which may be of greater importance than the so-called integrity of artists who want to dwell on sexual themes.

The day after Magistrate Hayes spoke against the display, we saw thousands of words expressing the opposition of many people. Who were they? Art gallery owners, artists or art critics.

Well, here's one fellow supporting you, Magistrate Hayes. Maybe we'll be the two most unpopular people in Canada for this — but I suspect a great many other Canadians agree with us.

Are You an Old Fogy? Friends May Not Tell

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Are you an old fogy?

Sometimes you can become one without knowing it. Even your closest friends may not tell you—particularly if they are old fogies themselves.

Like to try a little test? It is a reasonable assumption that you are an old fogy—or in imminent danger of becoming one —if:

You've never fallen in love with a movie star since Mary Pickford was in curls.

At night the only thing you dream about is the problems of your job.

You cannot name at least two of the dignitaries and tell what instrument they play.

You're not caught sure what a discotheque is, but you suspect it is something a French athlete throws during an Olympic track and field event.

At the office none of the girls would dare to surprise you with a kiss on your cheek on your birthday.

You never read a new novel or a new poem because you believe all modern writing is trash.

In summer as well as winter you wear garters, because you can't stand the idea of sloppy socks.

You have a couple of pairs of pants stashed away in your closet because, after all, they might come back in style again.

It makes you cranky if birds sing outside your window early in the morning. Don't they realize a man needs his sleep?

You think that every man under 60 who wears a beard is either a beatnik or a showoff.

Oatmeal is your favorite breakfast food because, thank heaven, it is at least silent.

Whenever you see a car parked in a No Parking zone, you begin brooding about the breakdown of law and order.

You are convinced that all doctors and dentists are robbers and all politicians are crooks.

You are never caught without a raincoat on when it rains, because you never forget to read the weather forecast before leaving home.

You'd rather drink warm milk out of a glass than champagne from a lady's slipper.

If you had your way, they'd get rid of buses and bring street cars back.

State Secretary Defends U.S. Policy in Viet Nam At White House Luncheon

By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP) — The "principal pillar of peace in the world," U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk said Wednesday, is the American commitment in Viet Nam and elsewhere. It is not kept, he said, it could be "the Communists to "monstrous miscalculations."

Rusk spoke to a windup luncheon of a three-day White House conference on international cooperation. His audience—more than 2,000 men and women leaders in dozens of fields of international affairs.

The secretary defended U.S. policy in Viet Nam as one of toughness, coupled with patience and prudence. He said the United States is in touch with "the other side" regularly, "every week," and has found no sign of willingness to take the conflict out of the battlefield, and to a conference table.

In both his speech and his replies in written questions from panelists, Rusk attempted to answer and disarm criticism of the U.S. administration's policy in Viet Nam and the continued U.S. bombings of North Viet Nam.

REFLECT MISGIVINGS

The questions reflected deep misgivings about the role of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency in foreign affairs, the wisdom of the Viet Nam war and the bombing.

Rusk asked any in the room who thought they have "sure and solid answers"—to these complex problems "to approach it somewhat on your knees."

The question, he said, is "how best to establish peace," and added:

"This is a question that makes pygmies of everyone."

As to a halt in the bombings as a means of inducing the Communists to open peace negotiations, Rusk said "I am not now excluding the possibility of stopping the bombing."

But he said "when you sit where I sit it is not necessary to speculate" about what the results would be. He said there is adequate contact with the other side to know what the reaction would be.

Rusk said that bombing had been halted briefly once before and "on the third day we had our answer from each of the Communist capitals involved. They did not ask us to extend the halt so they could talk things . . . they said it was an insult, or they didn't answer."

ITS INTERNATIONAL

Rusk said "a full nuclear exchange is an irrational act and cannot be used as an instrument of policy." Similarly, he said, the sending of divisions of troops across frontiers is "too reckless and dangerous to be used as an instrument of policy." Nevertheless, he said, the Communists today are using infiltration and other means just short of general war.

"The nature of the human race has moved from a metaphor to operational reality," he said, adding that U.S. presidents from Dwight D. Eisenhower on have had to face problems no president ever faced before.

That is why prudence and patience must be followed, Rusk said, with every effort to leave open doors for peaceful solutions. "It is too late in history to solve these issues by war," he added.

Somebow, Rusk said, the "appetite" of China must be turned to peaceful co-existence, as that the Communists realize that it is "their best attitude as well their own. . . Then the human race may be able to look ahead for a considerable period without the threat of nuclear war on the horizon."

OFFER GOLD FOR GUNS

SANTO DOMINGO (AP)—The Dominican Republic's provisional government is offering rewards for weapons turned in, to speed up its disarmament of the civilian population. After a two-week grace period, during which a pistol fetches $20 and a bazooka $300, the possession of any weapon will bring a court charge.

ROTARY CLUB MEETING

NAPANEE — Professor H. S. R. Ryan of the Law Faculty of Queen's University, Kingston, was the speaker at the Tuesday meeting of the Napanee Rotary Club luncheon. He spoke of the freedom which the individual has under the law.

Professor Ryan informed the members that he had come back to a town which inspired him with wonder when he was a boy. He was born and educated in Newburgh, and each weekend his parents brought him to Napanee when doing their weekend shopping. To him it was quite a metropolis.

He was introduced by Dr. A. E. Fyffe and thanked by Envoy Frank Phelps of the Salvation Army.

At a meeting of the board of the Lennox and Addington County Hospital Wednesday, it was revealed that the hospital is approximately 75 percent completed.

The equipment committee decided to go to Toronto Thursday to look over equipment in preparation for the opening of the hospital March 1, 1966.

TEACHERS TAKE SIDES

LONDON (AP) — More than 300 British teachers have agreed not to accept posts offered by South African universities, an anti-apartheid group announced. MP David Ennals, its president, said only 15 of 2,000 people approached said they could not support the movement. Among the supporters are Iris Murdoch and Angus Wilson, prominent novelists and lecturers.

Montreal and Its Suburbs Watch Ile Jesus Experiment

By RICHARD ABBOTT

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal and its suburbs are watching an experiment in amalgamation that has at least temporarily sidetracked a campaign by the city to annex its neighbors.

The object of their attention is the new city of Laval (pop. 185,000) which came into existence in August in a merger of municipalities on Ile Jesus in the St. Lawrence River.

Ile Jesus, which 14 years ago had a population of 40,000 and figures to reach 1,000,000 by the end of this century, and neighboring Montreal Island are part of a larger metropolitan problem.

With two dozen rambling municipalities on the south shore of the St. Lawrence, the metro area is rapidly becoming unwieldy. But the city and suburbs often disagree on what to do.

Several years ago Mayor Jean Drapeau opened a campaign for annexation and ran into objections from the suburbs. The proponents have since tried to find new words for much the same thing: Amalgamation, unification, fusion, merging of municipalities.

Even the suburbs still see them as meaning annexation and those still separate from Montreal have formed an Inter-Municipal Co-ordinating Council to fight to retain their independence.

In 1833, Montreal proper had an area of 6,298 acres out of more than 115,000 on the island. Today it covers more than 40,000 acres.

BABEL CLAMORS

Some time ago Montreal Councillor Gerald Charness spoke of the area as "an island of Babel with 29 municipalities clamoring to be heard." His view, shared by others who favor annexation, is that suburbanites get all the benefits of the big city, usually working there, but not paying their fair share for public improvements.

The suburbs have recognized the need for some over-all authority to deal with common regional services. But they disagree with the city on how much power it should get.

One such body, the Montreal Metropolitan Commission, died in 1959. It gave way to the Montreal Metropolitan Corporation, an organization some say is already moribund.

The corporation still holds regular meetings but has little power to deal with common problems. As a result the Quebec government last year set up a commission under Camille Bller, assistant deputy minister of municipal affairs, to look into the question of metro organization.

Last January, the commission submitted its report, suggesting the establishment of a General Council of Montreal to succeed the Metropolitan Corporation. The report recommended integration and co - ordination of services in common services, particularly those of police and fire protection, health and social welfare, uniform property assessment and public transport.

GOVERNMENT WAITS

When the report came out, Pierre Laporte, minister of municipal affairs, said he would ask a committee of seven members of the cabinet to consider the recommendations.

Recently, Mayor Reginald Dawson of the Town of Mount Royal, one of the members of the commission, said he believes the government "is letting the thing slide along for a while to see how effective its moves are on Ile Jesus."

In creating the new city of Laval, the government ignored January referendums in six of the communities in which residents voted against amalgamation.

It acted on the recommendation of a commission under Judge Armand Sylvestre who declared: "We deem it undemocratic to ask the people to vote on a very complex question such as this without prior instruction."

A supporter of the move to establish the new city is J. Noel Lavoie, member of the legislature for Laval who was appointed temporary mayor pending elections Nov. 7. This will be the first test of whether he and the government can escape the wrath of the people for ignoring referendums.

Wealth of Working Tools Available to Discriminating Criminals in United States

By ARCH MacKENZIE

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (CP) — Two men walked into Ye Olde Hunter gun shop here last March 30 and purchased two Finnish Lahti anti-tank cannon with ammunition.

One weapon was recovered Oct. 30 from Long Island, N.Y., waters and linked with the $400,000 robbery-by-cannon of a Brinks vault at Syracuse, N.Y., the weekend of Oct. 24.

Another was recovered in Quebec City last February after an abortive assault on another Brinks vault. Canadian Joe Singer, 23, of Chomedy, Que., is wanted in the Syracuse case and three other Canadians as well, while Singer's uncle, Canadian-born Jack Frank, has been arrested in the U.S.

The anti-tank cannon, seven feet long and firing a 20-millimetre shell, were used in the 1939-40 Finnish defences against Soviet tanks. They illustrate the wealth of working tools available to discriminating criminals in the United States today.

Their availability was cited last spring by Attorney-General Nicholas Katzenbach in testifying before a Senate inquiry into a bill to tighten federal controls on firearm sales.

SEEK RESTRICTIONS

The U.S. government now hopes that a tighter firearms bill can get speedy congressional approval early next year after prolonged stay led by Senator Thomas Dodd, Connecticut Democrat.

Meanwhile, Ye Olde Hunter shop continues to list the price of a Lahti anti-tank rifle at $1138.50—it was $928.50—and the ammunition runs from $1 to $1.50 a shell in lots of 100, depending on quantity and quality.

Ye Olde Hunter is a retail outlet for the International Armaments Corporation on the banks of the Potomac River here. Interarmco, as it's called, is owned by a former arms expert for the Central Intelligence Agency called Samuel Cummings, now a resident in tax-free Monaco and a millionaire.

In the shadowy regions of the international arms supply business, Interarmco can supply anything from a submarine to the jellied gasoline called napalm currently in use against the Vietnamese Viet Cong. The word is that Interarmco's foreign sales follow guidance from the state department—and that perhaps the firm helps the state department keep tabs on where the global arms market is warmest at the moment.

NONE GO TO CUBA

At any rate, it does not appear to have sold any arms to the sensitive Caribbean area since Fidel Castro's Cuba fell out with the U.S.

At home in the U.S.—and owner Cummings told the Senate arms inquiry in July that half its sales are domestic—Interarmco offers a considerable array of firearms on a mail - order basis. There are some restrictions depending on federal and the various state laws.

In the case of the two anti-tank weapons sold March 30, for example, a check showed the buyers gave a bogus address here. The FBI were tipped and it is another story of how police authorities — apparently including the RCMP—lost the scent.

Interarmco apparently has imported nearly 1,000 of the Finnish cannon in the last few years and sold more than 500.

Cummings testified on a bill which would prohibit interstate mail-order sales of weapons and shipment of such arms. It would increase the current federal gun-seller's license of $1 to $100 and outlaw interstate arms traffic in machine-guns, tommy guns and anti-tank guns as well as grenades and grenade launchers.

CHEAP GUNS BLAMED

Cummings said the chief culprit in supplying criminals is the cheap foreign pistol or revolver which Interarmco has never handled.

At the same time, experience flowing from race riots such as the recent outburst in the Los Angeles area shows a drastic increase in arms sales at the time. In campaigning for the Virginia governorship recently, American Nazi leader George Lincoln Rockwell was able to appear on paid television brandishing a rifle which he urged "white" Americans to keep at hand.

Evidence before the Senate inquiry cited by Senator Dodd showed an arsenal taken from the fanatic right-wing movement called The Minutemen which included bazookas, Finnish and Soviet mortars and a grenade-launcher.

Dodd said 75 per cent of the world's surplus military firearms wind up in the U.S. and Katzenbach said the Finnish anti-tank cannon and similar arms help account for an increase of 27 per cent last year in bank robberies and a rise of nine per cent in murders.

Senior Citizens Entertained At Kinsmen Club Banquet

PICTON — The Kinsmen Club of Picton last night held their sixth annual Senior Citizens banquet at the Eastern Star Temple. The Picton Kinsmen Club has sponsored the work with Senior Citizens of Prince Edward County for some years and each year meet with greater success with their program for assistance for this worthy cause. Present for the occasion as head table guests were A. Douglas Aikenbrack MP, Norris Whitney MPP and Mrs. Whitney, Mayor H. J. McFarland, Mr. Douglas Ellis District Governor from Brockville, President and Mrs. Ron Holston of Picton Kinsmen Club, Mr. and Mrs. Bill McWilliams Home Supervisor, and E. M. Williams Vice President of the Senior Citizens Club.

A. Douglas Aikenbrack MP, addressed the gathering brought greetings from the House of Commons. He paid tribute to the senior citizens of the county for the work they had done in the past and commended he Picton Kinsmen Club for their enterprise. He said that the County of Prince Edward from the time of the U.E.L. on had made great contributions to Canada and "It is a great tribute to the senior citizens", he said," for you have them here tonight."

Norris Whitney MPP who also addressed the banquet said that few realize that due to modern medicine and drugs the life span has now increased to 76 years. Many he said are retired from their life's work at the age of 65, when they still have good productive years ahead of them and should still be leading useful lives in Society. Now faced with an inadequate pension, with which many have to support themselves they face grave problems. Mr. and Mrs. McWilliams of the County Home have a good cheerful atmosphere in our Home but there are still gaps that need to be filled. The worst thing that can happen to our senior citizens Mr. Whitney said / is that they be made to feel unwanted and useless. These citizens have made their contribution and this evening is a fine gesture on the part of the Picton Kinsmen Club to make them feel at home. Other speakers included His Worship Mayor H. J. McFarland and District Governor Doug Ellis of Brockville.

Breath Analyses Inadequate Says Coroner

TORONTO (CP) — Breath analyses are inadequate in determining degrees of intoxication, Coroner Dr. Eli Cass said Wednesday night.

Speaking as a private citizen after presiding at an inquest, Dr. Cass said he was shocked by testimony that police had not told the witness what the analysis was for or that he had a legal right to refuse it.

The inquest was into the death in hospital Oct. 25 of Julia Ann McKibbon, 7, of suburban Etobicoke.

Julia, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Wilfred McKibbon, was struck by a truck Oct. 17 while riding her bicycle near her home.

The coroner's jury exonerated truck driver Edgar Gerber of any blame in the girl's death.

POLICE TEST HIM

Mr. Gerber testified police gave him a breath analysis test after the accident. It showed he had been drinking.

Dr. Cass said after the inquest:

"The proper way (of making a test) would be to inform a citizen of the test and of its possible consequences . . . The proper way (to test suspected alcohol content of the blood) would be to take a proper blood sample and have it analyzed by three independent laboratories."

Breath analyses devices "are only machines and as such they can be quite wrong," said Dr. Cass.

"Personally, I would refuse to be tested by one."

Mr. Gerber testified his truck brakes failed when the girl darted across his path on her bicycle.

Ice Capades Show on CBS Glittering Entertainment

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — About once a year somebody signs up a smooth professional ice show, hires a big skating rink, adds some familiar show business names. Then, lo, it turns up as a television special, usually in a holiday period.

It may not be a new idea, but it is a good, watchable one. Wednesday night's Ice Capades of 1966 on CBS was a handsome, glittering entertainment.

It was made even more effective for color television by the skilful use of color in the costumes and backgrounds.

The chorus of skaters performed with precision. The star performers leaped effortlessly and whirled like dervishes in their solo numbers.

Choice of Arthur Godfrey as host was a happy one. He was on skates, sufficiently in practice to take a few spins.

The only two performers who seemed uncomfortable and out of place were the non - skating entertainers. Liza Minnelli appeared for one song, Gypsy in My Soul, which would have been unrecognizable if one had not heard the familiar lyrics. Roger Miller wandered awkwardly around a giant model of a record player as he sang two of his hit songs.

Ice skating, particularly when it can be taped in an enormous auditorium like the Atlantic City Convention Hall, which permits long shots of the skaters and shots from above, is well adapted to pleasant television viewing. And ice shows are infrequent enough to make them a treat.

NBC's daytime game show, Fractured Phrases, had its premiere late in September and will disappear Dec. 31.

Replacement will be another game show, this one called Eye Guess, described as a quiz game that will test the contestants' powers of observation.

Game and panel shows, for the most part, do not make impressive showings in the ratings. In a recent survey of daytime shows published by the trade paper Variety, only five shows placed in the top 20 time show list. Nine in the top 20 were soap operas.

Frederick Loewe Devotes Self to Pursuing Pleasure

By BOB THOMAS

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) As soon as he walked in the door, Frederick Loewe kicked off his shoes and loosened his tie.

Loewe had returned from dedicating a golf course at the Palm Springs Hospital, to which he has donated musical royalties that may amount to $1,000,000 plus other gifts of cash. It was a significant but brief interruption of the composer's daily routine, which is devoted to the pursuit of pleasure.

A small man whose energetic manner belies the fact that he suffered a massive heart attack last year, Loewe sat down in his luxurious living room to explain his withdrawal from the world of the musical theatre.

"I quit on Dec. 3, 1960, the night that Camelot opened on Broadway," he said. "I knew I wasn't going to work any more. I was asked if that meant I was retiring. 'No,' I said, 'I'm simply not going to work any more.'" And he hasn't.

The grand piano, on which rested leatherbound scores he wrote for Brigadoon, Paint Your Wagon, My Fair Lady and Camelot, remains unlowered. Loewe said he hasn't the slightest urge to compose again.

LIVES LIKE KING

With his returns from shows, especially My Fair Lady, he can live like a king—and he does. He spends two summer months aboard his yacht on the Riviera and takes September to tour the major capitals—Paris, London, Vienna, New York. Then he returns for nine more months amid the desert scenery he loves.

Loewe came to the United States in 1924 as a concert pianist.

"My first 21 years here were extremely lean," he said. "It wasn't until 1942 that I got one and I had our first success, The Day Before Spring.

He teamed for his longtime collaborator, lyricist Alan Jay Lerner, to write On a Clear Day You Can See Forever especially sponed on Broadway. It was the first work since Camelot for Lerner, who collaborated with Burton Lane after an unsuccessful attempt with Richard Rodgers.

Loewe philosophized: "You can't make a finer dinner merely by assembling the best of ingredients. Somebody must know how to cook it."

PERMIT VALUE UP

TORONTO (CP) — Building permits valued at $182,126,550 were issued here during the first 11 month of the year compared with $167,667,617 during the full 12 months of 1964. The 1965 total is expected to exceed $200,000,000.

Oder-Neisse Border Remains Controversial Issue in Germany

The Oder - Neisse line, fixed in the 1945 Potsdam agreement as the provisional border between Poland and Germany, has been a major issue in the complex German question ever since. Anthony Grey, Reuters correspondent in Berlin, recently visited the area.

By ANTHONY GREY

GORLITZ, East Germany (Reuters) — Gorlitz has 91,000 inhabitants and two names.

The western half keeps the old German name, the eastern half has been re-named Zgorzelec. One half is German, the other Polish.

For the city stands on the River Neisse, which forms part of the controversial Oder-Neisse Line fixed in the Potsdam agreement of 1945 as the provisional border between Poland and Germany. To cross the bridge to the eastern bank of this town, a German citizen now needs a pass—which costs him, if he gets it, five East marks (about $1.25).

The Oder - Neisse Line has long been one of the major bones of contention between East and West in the complex German question.

The Poles claim it as their permanent western boundary and assert that the former German territories to the east of it now are part of Poland.

The East Germans signed a treaty in Zgorzelec in July, 1950, recognizing the border as permanent and hailing the Oder-Neisse Line as a "frontier of peace."

REJECT AGREEMENT

But the West Germans declare that the agreement is not valid, that Germany's frontiers can only be fixed as part of an over-all German peace treaty.

The issue flared up again in September when Polish Prime Minister Josef Cyrankiewicz said that during a visit to Paris French President Charles de Gaulle supported Poland's efforts to have the border recognized as permanent.

In October, a sharp controversy was sparked in Germany by a document published by the Lutheran Church urging the need for an approach on a new plan to the Oder-Neisse question and advising the federal government that it should "hesitate today to lay claim to the return of territories which have become an economic necessity for Poland."

At intervals along the River Oder and its tributary, the Neisse, red-, black-, and gold-painted wooden posts mark the East German bank. Each post has its red- and white-painted counterpart standing on the Polish bank. The placid waters in between are neutral.

In a recent 120-mile drive along East German roads close to the rivers, this reporter saw only a few bored-looking Polish and East German soldiers keeping watch on the border.

GUARD BRIDGES

Poland, with some fences and flood lights and an ore closed watchtower, seemed to be more security conscious than the East Germans. The latter appeared to guard only bridges.

At the bridge between Gorlitz and Zgorzelec, traffic was checked as it any other frontier post. East German customs men and soldiers scrutinized Polish women hurrying across to the western bank with shopping baskets over their arms.

On the Polish side of the river, only 20 yards wide in some places in the town, there are lamps which light up the border at night, and occasional lengths of fence. But the border fences are by no means continuous, or impregnable.

On the East German side, apart from barbed wire on the banks under the bridge checkpoint, there are no visible fortifications or guards. An occasional notice nailed to a tree announces: "State border — no photographs!"

The main crossing point from East Germany to Poland is at Frankfurt-on-Oder, where the autobahn heading east from Berlin crosses the Oder.

Claims in West Germany that the Polish border is as strongly fortified as the inter-zonal border between East Germany and West Germany are obviously unjustified. But a young Polish worker in Gorlitz said that in Stalin's time and even as recently as three or four years ago the border was more heavily guarded on the Polish side.

WORK IN GERMANY

In Gorlitz the local people seemed hardly aware that they are living on a border which spells tension at the negotiating tables of the world. Polish housewives cross the bridge on day passes to shop in Gorlitz, while their menfolk come to work on the East German side because of a shortage of labor.

East Germans can also apply for day passes to visit the eastern bank. But they do not always get them, and they cost five marks.

The Poles in Zgorzelec drink water piped across from the East German side and cook their dinners with East German electricity.

Polish and East German miners work side by side underground in a brown coal pit which lies under the border.

Few foreigners are allowed into the border area, entry to which is strictly controlled by the East German authorities.

On West German maps, the Oder-Neisse Line is marked as the boundary between "Middle Germany" and "German territory under Polish administration." But if prospects of reunification of West and East (or Middle) Germany seem distant, the chance of these lost eastern territories ever being reincorporated into Germany is even more remote.

In the immediate years following the Second World War, more than 10,000,000 inhabitants were driven out from the provinces of East Prussia, Brandenburg, Pomerania, and Silesia and the area, representing one-quarter of Germany, was placed under Polish administration pending a final peace settlement.

The Poles, who received the area in compensation for parts of eastern Poland seized by the Russians, moved millions of settlers into the empty towns and farms, and have treated the area ever since as an integral part of their country.

West Germany has renounced the use of force to settle its frontier claims, but refuses to renounce these eastern territories.

It is, in any case, difficult to see how Germany can hope to turn the clock back and restore the status quo of Sept. 1, 1939, the day when Nazi troops used these very same disputed territories as their jumping - off ground for Hitler's attack on Poland.

Some Germans favor the thesis that Bonn is keeping recognition of the Oder-Neisse Line as a lever with which to wring Communist concessions in other sectors in an eventual peace settlement.

Blame "Freshness of Man"

Flea-Training Being Scratched Out

And one of the reasons for this is the personal freshness of modern man, he claims.

Mathes, part-time ringmaster of a minuscule circus but usually a mechanic, complains, is common with most West German employers, of an acute staff shortage.

"The personnel shortage is one of my biggest problems," he says.

"Modern living conditions and especially sleeping facilities are simply unbearable for fleas.

"You just cannot get fleas from private people any more — only from scientific institutes."

The art of training fleas is at least 500 years old, says Mathes, who reports that a medieval English monk was burned at the stake because he knew how to tame fleas, an art then considered witchcraft.

But, because of the flea shortage, the day of the flea circus is nearly over, he says, adding that besides his there are only two others operating in West Germany.

Mathes inherited the secrets of flea-training from his uncle Roloff Ottowa, who took his troupe all over the world. His uncle even presented shows to Queen Victoria, Kaiser Josef of Austria and Pope Leo XIII.

On engaging a couple of dozen artists from a scientific institute that breeds fleas, he puts a minute thread around the neck of each one, to prevent escapes.

With the aid of warmtha ad light, Mathes trains his menagerie to perform great feats.

Some can drag objects up to 300 grams in weight, draw tiny brass coaches and turn a carousel, while others juggle with a little ball, which they can throw a distance of about eight inches.

Mathes reveals that one of the most important tricks of the flea circus trade is proper feeding of the fleas, who give their best performance when supplied three times a day with fresh human blood.

Mathes' performers drink their fill for an hour on his arm, but they don't require much.

"I can nourish a hundred fleas with one drop of blood," he says.

Seeing Man Die Tangled in Harness Made Boy Decide to Be Bareback Rider

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Four years ago Dick Nash, Canadian all - round champion cowboy of 1958, became tangled in the rigging of a saddle bronc and was trampled to death at a rodeo.

Watching was eight-year-old Dougie Vold of DeWinton, Alta. The accident shaped the youngster's rodeo-riding ambitions.

"That's why I want to be a bareback rider," he explained after riding his first competition bareback bronc at Edmonton's Little Britches rodeo this summer.

"There's no rigging to get hung up on. Only thing is, those bareback horses go for the fence."

Dougie, son of rodeo contractor Harry Vold, won nearly $300 as rodeos this year, $200 of it in the boys' steer-riding event at the Calgary Stampede.

"I practise when my brother Wayne and Dad work on their team-roping," he says. "They let me ride the steer after they catch him."

Dougie, who now has won more than $800 in three years of competition, isn't satisfied with just the rodeo circuit.

"Next spring I figure on buying six head of cattle. Dad thinks $50 a head in the fall so I should make $300 there."

"You don't have to look scraggly and unkempt to sing a protest song," says R. Dean Taylor of Toronto. Nor do you have to look that way to write one. The 24 - year - old singer - composer is clean-shaven, neatly attired and wears his hair only a little long. Taylor has sold a protest song Let's Go Somewhere to Motown Records, Detroit's successful rock 'n' roll recording company.

Students from poor, rural families are the most likely to become high school dropouts, says Prof. L. B. Seimens of the University of Manitoba.

He bases his conclusions on a questionnaire conducted among 2,000 students in a bid to determine why Manitoba has the highest ratio of high school dropouts in Western Canada.

Students from high - income families and from urban centres tend to be more ambitious than those from poor families living in rural areas, says Prof. Seimens.

Among city students from high-income families, 75 per cent of the boys and 68 per cent of the girls indicated they planned to complete high school and attend university. Among low-income families, only 21 per cent of the boys and 14 per cent of the girls were planning on attending university.

Prof. Seimens says broken homes do not necessarily affect the child's academic achievement. Nor was ethnic background an appreciable factor although the survey showed Icelandic boys somewhat more ambitious than Russian and Ukrainian youngsters.

The survey suggested that parents with a high academic standing tend to produce children who also seek more education. And children attending Anglican, United or Lutheran churches appeared to be more ambitious than those attending Roman Catholic or Ukrainian Orthodox churches.

Dr. Russell Scott
One of Ablest To Offer Services

In Belleville's coming election, a number of sincere and qualified men are competing for seats as aldermen on the city council. One of these men is Dr. J. Russell Scott, whose outstanding record of past accomplishments is ample proof of his business and administrative ability.

Dr. Scott, a World War II veteran, is a graduate of Queen's University and has been a highly respected medical practitioner in the Quinte area for many years. His determined character and vigorous drive have brought him success in many community and business enterprises. He has held such positions as Chairman of the Belleville Library Board, Chairman of the United Appeal, Past President of the Belleville Fair Board and has been a member of the Belleville Public School Board for 12 years — of which he was Chairman in 1963. As the enthusiastic General Chairman of the Hastings County International Plowing Match held here several years ago he brought considerable favorable publicity to this area.

Dr. Scott is a respected family man with a keen interest in community affairs. Well informed and with a successfully proven background in administration, he is an outstanding choice for alderman in Belleville where these qualifications would be of great value. If elected, Dr. Scott would prove to be a tireless worker with the welfare of the city always foremost in his mind.

Soviet Experts Teach English To Those Asleep

By JOHN BEST
MOSCOW (CP) — Soviet experts report some success in a field that has long intrigued man—teaching a person while he sleeps.
Tape recordings were used to teach English to an experimental group of 35 at a Moscow boarding school.
The course lasted 35 days and was followed by an examination. Two students received marks of three, the rest got fours and fives. In the Soviet grading system, three is satisfactory, four good and five excellent.
During the course about 1,000 commonly-used English words and expressions were learned. The newspaper Uchitelskaya Gazeta (Teachers Gazette) said:
"They had been learned so thoroughly that people who had not known a word of English before this could speak freely now, using colloquial words."
The recordings lasted one hour, about six nights of the course. They were preceded by 15 minutes during which the students and teachers—scientists and engineers) read over the lesson before falling asleep.
Leonid Bliznichenko, a phonetics expert at the Ukrainian Academy of Sciences, explains there are five stages in sleep: drowsy state, light or superficial sleep, average deep sleep, deep sleep and very deep sleep.
CALLED HYPNOPEDIA
"In the first three states individual brain cells, the so-called watch centres, are in a state of wakefulness. At such a time the brain can receive and master information. . . .
"Such a condition can last for about an hour after sleep sets in, and then begins again about an hour before the person awakens."
The process of slumbertime schooling is called hypnopedia here. Its proponents say it's not hypnosis but merely an accidental method of facilitation—one that accelerates and facilitates the study of subjects in which mechanical memory is important.
"One of the chief conditions for successful study is good, normal sleep," says Bliznichenko. "That is why we absolutely insist on the fulfilment of certain demands respecting daily schedule and diet: the student must go to sleep at the same time every day, eat supper not later than two hours before bedtime, eat no chocolate or spicy foods, drink no coffee or cocoa at night."
Bliznichenko denied the possibility of brain disturbances resulting from hypnopedia. Examination has shown that neither functional changes nor additional fatigue arose.

New Zealand Navy Meets Embarrassing Misfortunes

AUCKLAND (CP)—The Royal New Zealand Navy, a service with a fine record and proud traditions, is writhing with mortification over a series of misfortunes.

Its dismay is the greater because it feels it has been given a hopeless task in carrying out a formidable program of operations with wornout ships so decrepit that they would have been scrammed long ago by many navies.

Troubles began early this year when the 16-year-old frigate Rotoiti was condemned as not fit to go outside sheltered waters because of serious deterioration in her hull. Soon after a sister-ship, the Pukaki, also was found to be in poor shape and not worth refitting.

To fill the gap, the navy was forced to bring out of retirement a 23-year-old minesweeper given by Australia to New Zealand 13 years ago as no longer useful to the Australians, and kept in mothballs in New Zealand since. This slow and venerable craft was pressed into service as a training ship.

Meanwhile, a number of New Zealand naval ratings, lacking seagoing ships of their own, were sent to southeast Asia to man British minesweepers helping in the defence of Malaysia.

'VOYAGE OF MISERY'

The crowning indignity came when the flagship of the New Zealand navy, the cruiser Royalist, began steaming back from the Far East after a period of attachment with British vessels there.

The crew of the Royalist called high marks for efficiency during the Far East tour of duty and in exercises with an American fleet won a rating of "outstanding" for gunnery.

However, the 23 - year - old cruiser was second hand when acquired by New Zealand from Britain and, like the frigates before her, was nearing the end of her useful life. She was due to be phased out in 1966, but did not quite last the distance.

On the way back to New Zealand she sprang a leak and had to be repaired at Hong Kong. Then off the Solomons came complete disaster. Severe salt water contamination got into engines brought the ailing cruiser to a halt. She wallowed helplessly in the tropical swell for several days until a relief tug was able to take her in tow.

Later a New Zealand supply ship delivered engineering supplies which enabled the Royalist to be repaired sufficiently to limp home under her own steam. But she will not go to sea again.

FRIGATES TOWED

While the Royalist was under repair, another New Zealand's superannuated frigates were under tow in the Indian Ocean and narrowly escaped by Hong Kong scrap merchants.

The total strength of New Zealand's navy today is a wartime operational role now cut down to two modern frigates.

Another 1,400-ton built in Britain and the government has been negotiating to borrow an ended fleet of a striker. This sent

But the recently-retired chief of the defence staff, Sir Peter Phipps, has warned that even the new ships will be in grave danger of breakdown within 12 months if they are worked as hard as at present. Even if the gates are being run at war pace in the meantime," he said.

The whole situation is given point to a bitter comment some time ago by Defence Minister Dean Eyre that New Zealand had tended to rely for defence on Britain "when in grave danger and on Americans when in peril" and

REWRITE OLD STANDARDS

GILLINGHAM, England (CP) Rev. Wolf Muller, 37, thinks most of the hymns in the hymnbook have lost their meaning because the language is archaic, so he wrote three modern-style hymns. "If there has been any criticism it has been from the younger people who would like to see me take the modern theme even further," he said.

Robarts Makes Pitch for Tobacco Trade

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (CP) — British tobacco importers remained cautious about the chances of buying more from Canada after a meeting Wednesday with Premier Robarts of Ontario.

Members of the British tobacco advisory committee, representing major manufacturers here, indicated that any new import commitments must await a decision on how long the present embargo against Rhodesian tobacco is likely to last.

Robarts met committee members on the eve of his return home today after a 12-day visit to Britain. He and advisers from Ontario House conferred for an hour with Sir Alexander Maxwell, chairman of the tobacco advisory committee; E. J. Foord, managing director of Gallaher Ltd., and C.H.Clements, deputy chairman of Imperial Tobacco Ltd. of Britain.

An Ontario government spokesman said afterwards that the meeting produced a detailed discussion of the short-term and long-range prospects of increasing Ontario tobacco sales in Britain.

Robarts said he would be consulting with his agriculture minister, William Stewart, after his return to Toronto before making any further statement.

'IT'S TOO EARLY'

"It is too early to say anything about replacing Rhodesian tobacco," Maxwell said. "We have good stocks on hand. If it becomes necessary to replace the Rhodesian supply, the prospects for Canadian tobacco are as good as they have ever been."

Clements said British manufacturers have stocks of tobacco to last between 18 months and two years after heavy purchases in the last two years.

"Our present attitude is waiting and seeing," Clements said. "Our major sources outside Rhodesia are the United States, Canada and India but I wouldn't anticipate whether we shall be making bigger purchases from these suppliers."

Britain last year imported about 250,000,000 pounds of flue-cured tobacco, including about 85,000,000 pounds from Rhodesia and 39,000,000 pounds worth about $20,000,000 from Ontario.

Before meeting tobacco importers, Robarts paid a brief courtesy call on Conservative Leader Edward Heath and addressed a meeting of British and Canadian businessmen at a luncheon.

Melrose

MELROSE — Mr. Allan King is a patient in Kingston hospital.

The fourth anniversary supper of Melrose United Church, held recently was well patronized when more than 400 people ate at the two servings.

Several Melrose ladies besides the delegate (Mrs. Jack Macfarlane for Wednesday and Mrs. Don McLaren for Thursday) attended the two-day Area convention of the Women's Institute held at Club Canara this past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim McLaren of Rochester arrived here Wednesday evening, leaving again on Saturday morning. They visited the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William McLaren and other relatives while here.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Morris and Earl of Bloomfield were guests of Mrs. Roy Badgley last Sunday.

Edward Lazier of Moira Secondary School was among the geography students who visited the museum and city hall in Toronto on Tuesday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Mac Lazier and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Macfarlane spent two days at the Winter Fair. The ladies attended a luncheon in connection with 4-H Homemaking Clubs.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Miller of Napanee and Mr. and Mrs. Newton Thompson, Belleville, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sherry Demille.

A class of 4-H Club girls and leaders sponsored an afternoon tea at the home of Mrs. Roy McLaren on Saturday afternoon. Despite unfavorable weather a large crowd gathered and enjoyed the program. Mrs. A. English spoke on Food Customs in Denmark. Excellent work is being done with the girls of the community, as evidenced by the dainty sandwiches and cookies provided for this event.

Hope For Viet Nam Peace Talks Quickly Wrecked By Alo of Russian Attitude

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—The possibility of a multi-nation peace offensive on Viet Nam became doubtful today.

The hope was triggered Thursday when British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart proposed that his country and the Soviet Union take the initiative in setting up a conference aimed at achieving a ceasefire.

State Secretary Dean Rusk, following a four-hour conference with President Johnson, then announced that the United States is prepared to attend almost any Southeast Asia peace conference.

This was the Johnson administration's direct response to the Stewart suggestion, made over live television in Moscow and thus interpreted as possibly indicative that the Russians were interested.

But today, Stewart told a Moscow press conference that the Soviet viewpoint on Viet Nam "does not, at present, seem to open a door" toward settlement.

Asked if Russian Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko reacted sympathetically to the suggestion, Stewart replied:

"No, I don't think he did . . . he simply insisted that the Soviet Union has no authority to negotiate."

The earlier glimmer of hope for peace talks followed by scant hours Johnson's own first significant pronouncement on Viet Nam since his Oct. 5 surgery. Addressing by telephone top business leaders in Washington, Johnson said from his ranch at Johnson City:

"I have said it before. I say it again now. This nation is ready to talk, unconditionally, anywhere, with peace as our agenda. Peace will come because it must come."

Rusk flew to St. Louis after his meeting with Johnson and told a Press Club dinner that "somebody's going to be hurt" if the Hanoi government doesn't turn toward peaceful settlement.

Stewart's Moscow suggestion was that the Soviet Union and Britain, as co-chairmen of the 1954 Geneva conference that worked out a settlement in Viet Nam, join in setting up a new conference with the hope of arranging a quick ceasefire.

Rusk was asked after his meeting with Johnson for his reaction to the Stewart proposal.

"We have indicated for some time," he said, "that we would be prepared to attend a conference on Southeast Asia, or any component parts of it."

Rusk noted that Hanoi and Peking "have indicated they consider the Geneva convention is the suitable machinery, rather than such agencies as the United Nations."

In view of this, he said, the attitudes of Britain and the Soviet Union—stated plainly in Britain's case and perhaps implied in the other by the mere fact of Stewart's television appearance—"will be quite important here."

de Gaulle Appears Shoo-in

By PETER BUCKLEY

PARIS (CP)—The brief but pointed campaign for the French presidency ends tonight with President de Gaulle and his five opponents making a final plug on the publicity owned TV network for the voters' favor.

Campaigning is forbidden Saturday. Voting takes place Sunday throughout France and its overseas territories, with more than 28,000,000 eligible voters being called on to decide who will be president of France for the next seven years.

The presidency, with its formidable powers, is the only issue on the ballot.

The fact that the campaign ends tonight with television broadcasts, except for a few last-gasp public rallies, could help opposition candidates who, in the two weeks they have been staging their case on TV, have been steadily picking up steam.

No one is putting much money on the chances of de Gaulle losing. But a sudden surge of public interest in Francois Mitterrand, the left-wing candidate, and centre-party rival Jean Lecanuet has prompted followers of French politics to speculate what might happen if de Gaulle fails to win Sunday.

MUST GET MAJORITY

If one candidate fails to get an absolute majority in the first vote, a second vote will be held two weeks later, with only the two leading candidates on the ballot.

There is widespread speculation, echoed with alarm in Gaullist quarters, that the 75-year-old president will somehow be fails to win Sunday.

That type of rumor could help de Gaulle by convincing his more reluctant supporters that they must vote.

Some public - opinion polls have shown de Gaulle lacking an absolute majority but have been being taken with a grain of salt.

The speculators are not content with de Gaulle's reelection, however. There are endless discussions about how those who opposed him will use their ballot—but would vote when faced with Mitterrand as the alternative, with the acknowledged support from the Communist party.

Would Lecanuet's supporters be influenced more by their dislike of de Gaulle or by their distrust of the Communists? What about the followers of

80 Abortions Yearly Among U of T Girls

TORONTO (CP) — Spokesmen for a University of Toronto student organization advocating dissemination of birth control information said Thursday night "it may be only a matter of time until a death results" in one of an estimated 80 student abortions performed illegally every year.

President Daniel Cooper and vice-president Joseph Steiner, of University College's Literary and Athletic Society said:

"We believe we can no longer pretend that U of T has no problems in this area. It has been estimated that up to 80 girls at this university have abortions every year.

"Many of these cases may be the result of lack of information on the availability of, and relative merits of, different means of birth control."

Kaunda Insists On Soldiers

From AP-Reuters

LUSAKA (CP) — RAF transport planes and jets landed today in Zambia, but President Kenneth Kaunda said he is not satisfied with Britain's military assistance against Rhodesia, Zambia's white-ruled southern neighbor.

"We want Britain to take over the entire Kariba Dam area, to neutralize it, including the part in Rhodesia," Kaunda told a press conference. "That is where the power installations are."

The British air fare refused Kaunda's demand that their troops invade Rhodesia and seize the dam, which furnishes power to Zambia's rich copper mines.

Commonwealth Secretary Arthur Bottomley, who left Lusaka by air for London after talks with Kaunda, said Britain believes movement of British troops into Rhodesia would result in war if the Rhodesian regime felt itself provoked.

Kaunda said he reserves the right to call in troops from any country to protect the dam spanning the Zambezi River between the two countries.

The president refused to say which power he would call on. He said if he called on the United States, the request

Sixty Ocean-going Ships Have Chance To Clear Seaway Before Winter Sets In

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Warmer weather Thursday at Montreal gave an estimated 60 ocean-going ships a good chance of clearing the St. Lawrence Seaway before the winter freeze-up.

The water temperature at the Quebec port was 38 Thursday, 1½ degrees warmer than Wednesday. On Dec. 2 last year, the water temperature at Montreal dropped to 32 and ice began to form.

High winds have also plagued the ships, both in the St. Lawrence locks and the Welland Canal.

Three locks in the St. Lawrence system were closed Wednesday because of gales but reopened again Thursday.

The Welland Canal also opened again Thursday after tugs freed a freighter that had been blown on to a mud bank. The ship that had been grounded, the Norwegian freighter Ferngrove, cleared Port Weller, at the Lake Ontario end of the Welland Canal, late Thursday afternoon. Behind it in the canal were 17 ships, 13 of them ocean-going.

At anchor in Port Colborne, at the Lake Erie end of the canal, were 32 ships, 17 of them also headed for the Atlantic.

A spokesman for the seaway authority said some of the ocean-going ships anchored at Port Colborne might be four or five days away from clearing the seaway.

Priority in the canal was given to the downbound vessels, holding back 22 ships at Port Weller awaiting passage into Lake Erie.

Shipping was moving smoothly in the St. Lawrence locks. Altogether, some 20 ocean-going ships moved out of the seaway Wednesday night and Thursday.

The Montreal locks, set to close at midnight tonight, will be kept open on a day-to-day basis as long as weather permits.

The Welland Canal is to close Dec. 15.

Canada's Satellite In Path

By BOB MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—The orbit of Canada's Alouette II satellite is less than two per cent off its planned path, the Defence Research Board said Thursday.

Since its Sunday night launching at Vandenberg air force base on southern California, Canada's second orbiting spacecraft has had a few shakedown problems. But none was due to the satellite itself.

"We had a few problems due to ground stations but they are essentially cleared up now," said Dave Boulding, satellite controller at the DRB's communications station at nearby Shirley Bay.

Mr. Boulding said latest orbital figures show Alouette II's path around the world takes it to a maximum altitude of 1,350 miles and a minimum of 312 miles, compared to planned figures of 1,368 and 306.

First indications after launching gave the maximum and minimum heights as 1,337 and 329 miles.

"Those would have been acceptable but the new ones are even better," Mr. Boulding added.

Laidlaw Lumber Company To Open Warehouse Here

One of Canada's biggest wholesale lumber distributors, R. Laidlaw Lumber Company, is opening a giant warehouse in Belleville early in 1966.

Mayor Jack Ellis announced today that Laidlaws will operate a 13,000 square foot headquarters and warehouse in this city's Industrial Park in the northeast section of the city. This is the fifth firm to purchase property from that area.

The Belleville warehouse, to be the company's headquarters in eastern Ontario, will operate on a less-than-a-load basis. The company expects construction to start January 15 and be ready for occupancy by April 1.

Company officials are coming to Belleville next week to discuss the proposition. They plan to contract a local firm to build the single-storey $100,000 warehouse and are negotiating with the CNR for a spur line into the plant.

Most of the material will come into the plant by rail and be shipped out by truck. The company is locating in Belleville in an attempt to service this part of Ontario that has been too far from their closest plants in Ottawa and Toronto to offer complete service.

City officials have been negotiating with the company for two months before the deal was finalized.

Laidlaw's Belleville warehouse, which, due to it being a distribution centre, will not employ many people, will be the company's 10th warehouse. They have others spread throughout Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba. Established since 1871, Laidlaws are the biggest lumber distributors in Ontario, employing a total of 425 person.

Weather Worries Spacemen

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) Weather, the bugaboo which has plagued many U.S. man-in-space shots, remained the only question mark today as Gemini 7 astronauts Frank Borman and James A. Lovell Jr. made final preparations to start off Saturday on man's longest space venture.

Space agency weatherman E. A. Amman reported he is concerned about a fast - moving trough of rainy weather going across the southern United States toward Florida.

Amman said he hopes the trough will pass through before Saturday's scheduled 2 p.m. EST blastoff of the Titan II rocket and the Gemini spacecraft.

Borman, an air force lieutenant-colonel, and Lovell, a navy commander, are scheduled to circle the globe for a record 14 days.

On the ninth day, Dec. 13, the Gemini 6 astronauts, navy Cmdr. Walter M. Schirra Jr. and air force Maj. Thomas P. Stafford are to blast off from the same launch pad and attempt to rendezvous and fly in formation with Gemini 7. The two space ships are to conduct a series of close-in manoeuvres

Viet Cong Forces Seek Rest

SAIGON (CP) — U.S. planes ranged over North and South Viet Nam launching heavy bombing raids, while on the ground a lull went on for the third straight day today.

All 13 persons aboard a U.S. marine helicopter shot down by Viet Cong snipers near the big U.S. air base at Da Nang were presumed dead.

The nuclear-powered carrier Enterprise sent up 118 planes on her second day of combat. Spokesmen said the structures were destroyed and 65 damaged.

Of the pause in the ground action, a U.S. spokesman said: "We've had these lulls before. We're beating the bushes for the Viet Cong. When they want to start it up again, they can."

Guam - based B-52s roared over South Viet Nam again during the night, hitting three battle-scarred targets with their heavy bomb loads. Two of the sites were near the big abandoned French rubber plantation 45 miles northwest of Saigon where the Viet Cong nearly annihilated a government regiment Saturday.

Another raid was on Chu Pong Mountain towering over the Ia Drang Valley of central Viet Nam, where U.S. 1st Air Cavalrymen fought a savage nine-day battle two weeks ago.

Madoc Court Clerk Faces Theft Count

The woman clerk of Madoc magistrate's court today is in Hastings County jail — charged with theft of court funds.

In custody is Marjorie Mary Lahey, 44, clerk and court reporter on the circuit of Magistrate R. C. Jackson for the past five years.

She was remanded in custody early today before Belleville justice of the peace J. Clair Hayes who set bail at $10,000.

Police have refused to divulge any details of the charge and merely say investigations are still continuing.

The court against Miss Lahey formally charges her with theft of Ontario government funds in excess of $50.

Her arrest followed an investigation believed to have started about five weeks ago.

Both Provincial Police and Ontario government auditors haye been conducting the probe, with Inspector Archie Ferguson of the OPP Criminal Investigation Branch co-ordinating details of the investigation.

Miss Lahey is a native of Madoc. Police say she will appear for formal remand in Belleville magistrate's court next Tuesday.

"Hastings Crown Attorney John Pringle said today he will not be prosecuting the charge against the accused woman. Bruce Affleck, Ontario County Crown Attorney, is expected to conduct the case for the prosecution.

Bilingualism Foes Out-talk Advocates As Commission Holds Toronto Hearing

TORONTO (CP) — Sharply conflicting views on the worth of extending the French language and characteristics across Canada were heard Thursday as the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

The opponents of bilingualism out-talked the advocates. One argument was that Roman Catholic clericalism in Quebec was trying to spread its influence to the rest of the country.

The commission heard some of the strongest denunciations of bilingualism in its two-year history from the Ontario section of the 5,000 - member Canadian Legion. However, it called for an end to "forts to extend the use of French, which spokesmen for the "imposition" on other parts of Canada on Quebec's behalf.

"We feel there's nothing about French culture that needs to be nationalized," said Rev. Stanley Wellington of Brantford, a Baptist minister who is the league's national secretary. He contended only that a country such as Alouette might rate recognition, but the rest of Quebec culture was "parochial."

The league considered that forcing biculturalism was an attempt to impose French, Roman Catholic characteristics—including church holidays—on the whole country. That was "a violation of the democratic process."

"If Quebec wants to keep its characteristics, that is all right," Mr. Wellington said. "We object the idea of trying to make this part of national life at public expense."

Rev. Jonas E. C. Shepherd, national president of the league and a Presbyterian minister in London, Ont., termed Quebec the "spoiled member of the Confederation family" and said "special privileges" should no longer be extended to one province.

"Every time he bollers, something has to be sacrificed to give him his own way," the minister said. "He wants not equality but superiority."

Co-Chairman Davidson Dunton observed that the league's stand did not coincide with

Candidates to Place Views Before Public At Civic Night Meet

Candidates for public office in Monday's municipal election will have another opportunity tonight to place their programs before the public.

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce is holding its annual candidate's night at the Corby Public Library with the speech making to get underway at nine o'clock after the downtown stores close.

But in view of the large number of candidates in the field only aspirants for the mayoralty, public utilities commission and city council will be asked to speak.

Thursday night the Park Dale Ratepayer's Association held their own candidate's night and although there was something less than a 100 per cent turnout of candidates the various elections issues were well presented.

"Brad" Bradley, manager of the local chamber of commerce, expressed regret that there would not be sufficient time to hear the 36 candidates for public and separate school board at tonight's meeting.

It was emphasized, however, that this year's election for school board members would be by general city-wide vote instead of by the ward system which has formerly prevailed.

In other words, voters from all parts of the city will be entitled to cast their ballots for eight public or separate school board members, instead of voting for candidate running in their own particular ward.

Ex-champion Cheesemaker Will Be Dairy Show Judge

Mr. T. S. Aiken of London Ont., and many times champion cheesemaker at the British Empire Dairy Show in Belleville, will be one of the two judges of the regular cheese classes at this year's dairy show to be held December 8th and 9th.

This year's show is being held at the former Victoria and Grey Trust Company offices directly across from Front Street in the city hall.

A former cheesemaker at Belton in Wagara Ontario, Mr. Aiken is now working for the Ontario Department of Agriculture. As a judge, he visits the Belleville cheese show championship more times than any other man.

Other judges for the show will be Mr. Lukes from the Kemptville Agricultural School and J. M. McMillan grader in charge at Belleville. Mr. J. F. Robinson, chief instructor for Eastern Ontario, will be the judge for the mature cheese classes.

HOLD CONVENTION

As in former years this year's cheese show is being held in conjunction with the annual convention of the Ontario Cheesemakers' Association. The convention sessions will be held at the Hotel Quinte next Wednesday and Thursday, with the annual cheesemakers' banquet and dance to be staged Thursday evening at the Club Canara.

One of the features of the dairy show will be the appearance of Ontario Dairy Princess Ruth McKinney, recently returned from a trip to the United Kingdom.

Miss McKinney will appear at the dairy show and will speak at the cheesemakers' convention. She also will be guest of honor at the cheesemakers' banquet and dance.

As has been custom at recent cheese shows, some of the prize cheese will again be offered for sale at the cheese show.

Sales Brisk As New Plates Go on Sale

There wasn't exactly a line-up but business was brisk Wednesday at the auto license issuer's office on lower Front Street.

Issuer George Olsen said that approximately 140 sets of markers were sold on December 1st, the first day on which the new licences were on sale. Belleville markers for 1966 start at J-42051 and for station wagons X-13101.

The new licence plates are blue numbers on a white background, the reverse of this year's white on blue.

Lieut. T. Summers draws the attention of Major A. Cunningham, John Semark and Jack Boyle to the plaque in memory of the men and ships of the RCN donated to the Belleville ANAF Unit 201 last evening by the Quinte Naval Veterans.

Quinte Naval Veterans Give Memorial to ANAF

The willing integration of the three Canadian Services Armed Forces was replenished Thursday evening as the Quinte Naval Veterans disbanded and in doing so set up a memorial to the men and the ships of the RCN in the Belleville ANAF, Unit 201 club rooms.

Finding themselves in an unusual position, having funds but nothing to do with it, the Quinte Naval Veterans felt a permanent memorial was the answer.

The memorial consisting of three photographs; L/Gen. H.D. G. Crerar, Commander First Canadian Army; Vice Admiral G. C. Jones, C.B., Chief of Naval Staff and Air Chief Marshall L. S. Breadner C.B. D.S.C. and the plaque to the Navy was unveiled in a ceremony conducted by John Semark, president of the Quinte Naval Veterans.

Dedicating the memorial ANAF Padre Brig. B. Bernat Salvation Army, urged the veterans to maintain a patriotic glow and ever remember the comrades who gave their lives that we may live.

Also taking part in the unveiling ceremony were Jack Boyle, president ANAF; Lieut. T. Summers, representing the RCN and Sea Cadets; Major A. Cunningham, Canadian Army; Wing Commander T. Duff, RCAF, with Jack Lambert, president Dominion ANAF Command and J. P. Nevins, Ottawa, Dominion Command secretary-treasurer.

Portraits of Sir Winston Churchill and Jack Lundrigan were also presented and will be hung in the ANAF club rooms.

Story of Books Related At Historical Society Meet

Books are "the distillation of an age," R. C. Greig told members of Hastings County Historical Society at their annual meeting at Corby Library. Mr. Greig, a teacher at Moira Secondary School, together with T. S. Ransom, society president, spoke on the history of books, both before and after the invention of printing.

The oldest books in a great European library are often the greatest books, Mr. Greig said. Only the highest quality materials were used in their production, and books had tight covers fastened with clasps which protected them from wear and fading. Mr. Greig illustrated his remarks with manuscript pages from books copied by hand during the medieval period. All books of this period were works of art, copied in black letter on vellum pages. Chapter headings and initial letters were rubricated, that is, colored in red ink and decorated with scrolls and flourishes. Less expensive books were turned out by the scribes for schools or who could not afford the price of rubrication. The tedious and expensive work of hand copying a volume priced books and learning out of the range of anyone except churchmen and aristocrats.

BOOKS DOCUMENT TASTE

"The history of modern taste can be documented by considering Victorian books," Mr. Greig said, in introducing a discussion of the advantages of collecting easily available books from the 1800's.

New technical processes, such as the invention of wood pulp paper made, books cheap and plentiful in the 19th century. The Victorians' faith in Progress and their urge to get ahead resulted in the publication of "how to" books, still best sellers on publishers' lists. Books have been the most important factor in influencing public taste from 1830 to the present day. Mr. Greig suggested that beginners in book collecting specialize in the cheap and easily obtained Victorian books which illustrate the changing social standards of the last 150 years.

PRINTING HISTORY OUTLINED

Using early books from his collection, Mr. Ransom outlined the history of printing, invented by Gutteburg in 1450. He compared several of his 16th century volumes with Mr. Greig's manuscripts to show the audience how early printers tried to imitate the hand written black letter manuscripts of the scribes. Fifty years after the invention of printing, book sellers shops had sprung up in the major cities of Europe and one Englishman said in 1610 "The disease of the age is the multiplicity of books."

Newspapers soon appeared on the scene with the first North American newspaper being printed in Boston in 1690. From the fifth edition of The Intelligencer, printed in 1894 and now in Hastings County Museum, Mr. Ransom read an advertisement for an apprentice in the newspaper office. This would have been the ad that attracted Sir Mackenzie Bowell, who began his newspaper career at the age of 14, and later became editor of the Intel and Prime Minister of Canada.

Mr. Ransom concluded his talk with tips for book collectors and a demonstration of the repair of damaged books.

Battle Scenes Are Recalled To Veterans

Memories of overseas landmarks and European battle scenes, were recalled Wednesday night for members of Branch 99 Royal Canadian Legion when at their monthly meeting they were addressed by Archdeacon A. S. McConnell, of St. Thomas Anglican Church.

Picture slides of Old London, including Big Ben and Westminster Abbey, were shown as well as shots of cathedrals and places of interest where Archdeacon McConnell had been stationed during his period overseas as a wartime padre.

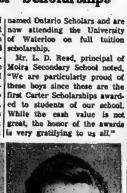
The former padre's picture trip took his viewers through the south of England to New York from where the Canadians left for France.

Here, the Archdeacon said, he had called a meeting to discuss what they would have done if the Germans instead had landed their troops in New Haven.

"We would have driven them out," the former padre asserted the man as saying.

This despite the fact the men guarding the coast at the time had only one shotgun between ten men.

"It was spirit such as this that helped to defeat the German," said the Archdeacon.



Views of Grosebeck and other continental cemeteries, where Padre McConnell had buried members of his unit, were shown as well as other scenes at Vpres and Vimy Ridge.

—Scenes of Scotland, including Queen Elizabeth's Scottish home and pictures of old Irish buildings dating back to the Normans, were included.

Electioneering Discarded In Favor of Discussion

TRENTON — The severe surcharge ("a most unpopular tax," to quote Mayor James MacDonald), "Zigman's business with the town"; why the town has hired an appraiser to deal between two town bodies and Jack Bond's Pundat Street East trailer camp were a few of the subjects discussed at yesterday evening's "Meet Your Candidate Night," sponsored by the Trenton Jaycees.

The candidates met each other, a few Jaycees, a handful of citizens and members of the press — all of whom they presumably know before. Twenty - eight in all attended the meeting. In view of last year's capacity audience at the Jaycees' event, this year's lack of numbers was put down to the fact that there had not been enough advance publicity.

It must have been the friendliest political get-together in history, with nobody "getting mad" at anybody, with those who should have been displaying out and out rivalry treating each other with the greatest of respect. Candidates, who had come armed with speeches, drew long breaths or relied when the meeting dissolved into a discussion group.

Everyone seemed satisfied with the mayor's explanation that (a) the town was expropriating Zigman's property; (b) it was to everyone's advantage, with an appraiser to rule on a land deal between council and the board of trustees; (c) the town was getting the best deal possible by charging Jack Bond $4 per month, per trailer, in "trailer tax," and (d), if people who now have no sewers are ever going to get them, all trailer users must continue to pay the sewer surcharge on their water bills.

Eligible Voters' Number Declines

TRENTON — There are 7,097 eligible voters in Trenton this year. Last year, when there were 7,500 voters, 2,600 of them exercised their franchise.

In 1952, when Mayor James MacDonald swept back into power with 1,485 votes to 955 for his opponent R. E. (Hoby) Whitley, 2,450 of around 7,000 eligibles got out to vote.

On Monday, all Trenton school children will take home letters, got out by the Chamber of Commerce, urging their parents to get out to vote.

Six Families Find Shelter

TRENTON — All six of the families burned out in the Nov. 26 fire in a Bay Street terrace have found accomodation, according to the latest word from the office of welfare administrator, Gordon Davis. Furniture and clothing have been provided for the grownups and the 26 children involved.

However, one of the mothers has a crying need for two dressers in which to store the children's clothing. Readers who could supply these items may phone Mr. Davis at 392-9264.

Employment Record Better Than in '64

TRENTON — The employment picture in Trenton in November was better than last year (during the same month), but a little down from October of this year, an official at the National Employment office said today.

In November, 288 men and 311 women were registered for employment at the local office. Excessive rainfall in November slowed down construction projects, including the minimum security penitentiary at Warkworth, the official said.

Power Failure Being Probed By U.S. Govt.

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — A power failure that momentarily blacked out four key U.S. military bases and plunged 1,000,000 persons into darkness in New Mexico, Texas, and Mexico has brought a federal investigation on orders of President Johnson.

The two-hour failure, triggered in El Paso, was a small-scale version of the blackout that left 30,000,000 persons in the northeastern United States and southern Ontario without power for up to 13 hours Nov. 9.

Diefenbaker Says PCs Will Oppose Report

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Conservative Leader Diefenbaker criticized the Fowler committee report on broadcasting Thursday — and said his party will strongly oppose implementation of the report when the new Parliament meets in January.

Will Be Mid-Month Ere Curling Starts

TRENTON — Trenton curlers are off to a bad start this year.

Curling was scheduled to start at the Trenton Curling Rink, Nov. 1, but the ice-making machine broke down. Sent away for repair, it still refused to operate properly upon its return.

Now it is in operation, but George Moir, club manager, said yesterday it was unlikely curling would start much before the middle of this month.

Rotarians Continue Plans To Build Pool

TRENTON — In view of the many requests received from interested citizens, a statement with respect to the intentions of the Rotary Club to continue with their plans to build a swimming pool has been obtained.

The Rotary Club has reconfirmed this intention and planning is and will continue to go forward. A trust fund has been established and deposits made as previously announced. The original board of trustees is set up consisting of Mrs. W. A. L. McDonald, Mr. John Dowsley and Mr. R. N. Smithrim, and confirmation has been sought that all voluntary contributions to the trust fund will be tax deductible.

The Rotary Club intends to approach the town council for a statement as to its own intentions in regard to a pool as soon as the results of the forthcoming plebiscite are known as it believes a pool could well be available by the summer of 1966.

Hasty Pees on Exercise

It's Not an Invasion!

If you are downtown Saturday morning about nine o'clock and are confronted by some fierce looking young soldiers in full battle dress, don't worry—they are friendly. It's just the Hasty Pees carrying out a short exercise in congested city conditions before they travel to Camp Picton for their monthly weekend training.

One of the training duties is that of preventing infiltration of an enemy into a defended friendly area.

On Saturday morning several roving and standing patrols will protect the Front Street - Moira River area from infiltration by an imaginary enemy to the west.

Infantry patrols will provide local protection at vital points in the downtown business section, and will ensure no enemy enters via the footbridge.

Simultaneously, two anti-tank standing patrols will locate at the upper and lower bridges to prevent penetration by "enemy" vehicles or armor.

But Santa Claus need not worry. The "enemy threat" will have vanished and the patrols will have been withdrawn to another locale—Camp Picton by ten o'clock in the morning, before the parade is due to start.

The remainder of the weekend will be spent in normal infantry tactics in the vicinity of Camp Picton.

A sports period Saturday night and the annual pre-Christmas pay parade on Sunday afternoon will round out the training.

Panel Will Discuss Sunday Sport, Films

TRENTON — Sunday night, following the evening service, a panel discussion will be held in King Street United Church regarding Sunday sports and Sunday movies. Members of the panel are Paul Tripp and Jack Boon, for the affirmative and Rev. James Payton and Fred Love for the negative.

Community Apathy

Last weekend's snowfall at the Lakehead—a monumental 17 inches—and considerable precipitation in this area, particularly from Kingston eastwards along the Seaway, focuses attention on one aspect of centennial planning in Canada—the winter carnival.

It may not have occurred to many, but winter carnivals will be the foremost activity of the 1967 celebrations, which seems only natural in a country dominated so extensively by what is both the most rigorous and most beautiful (unless it be autumn) season of all.

Near at hand the city of Kingston is having difficulty stirring up interest and public support for its fourth winter carnival scheduled for January 28-February 2. Carnival chairman Phil Quattrocchi blames public apathy for last year's poor response and a deficit of $2,000.

The prospects of the 1966 carnival seem only fair. For one thing, only 40 persons showed up at a recent meeting of the carnival committee. And Mr. Quattrocchi's appeals for volunteers to help with special committees were met with silence, so that he stopped asking before half the meeting was over.

Mr. Quattrocchi summed up the situation aptly when he said the city was in the throes of an "indifference cycle". Not only the carnival but a number of other community projects were floundering because of lack of support.

On the credit side, the agenda included discussion of a snowmobile race between area mayors and reeves, a letter from Miss Dominion of Canada offering her services to the carnival committee, and an offer from stock car racers to stage a race during Carnival Week.

Kingston's predicament is one which is duplicated to one degree or another in other communities throughout Canada. Apathy, indifference, call it what you will, is a phenomenon of our day, a concomitant of the affluent society and a blot on society.

Despite such enterprises as the forthcoming centennial, Expo 67 and all that, there is a massive lack of urgency on the Canadian scene today. There is a lifelessness in our communities and a could-not-care-less attitude among high school and university students, not to mention citizens at large. The old pioneering spirit is gone and in its place there is the "indifference cycle" to which Kingston's Phil Quattrocchi alluded.

No community can expect to progress, move with the times, if its citizens are not concerned about its welfare and not prepared to give of their time and energy to support community projects. This applies in Kingston and in Belleville, as it does anywhere else.

Women Propagandists

William Joyce, or "Lord Haw-Haw" as he came to be known, was an Irishman who broadcast German propaganda to British audiences during the last war. Convicted of treason, Joyce was executed after the war. Nevertheless, he had set a pattern in the ways of propaganda that has been exploited ever since in sundry smaller conflicts.

Nowdays the dulcet tones of young women are being heard more and more. In Viet Nam, where women seem taking a prominent part, even fighting alongside the men, both sides have their female propagandists.

In the communist north it is Hanoi Hannah who regales U.S. servicemen with slanted news items on the fighting, reading U.S. newspaper and magazine comments critical of the U.S. role.

By comparison, Saigon Sarah, South Viet Nam's counterpart to Hanoi Hannah, seems to play a less militant part. She plays romantic music for U.S. troops and occasionally entertained love poems. No mention, however, of what she beams to the enemy side.

Soldiers who have been warned beforehand about such broadcasts are usually able to resist their blandishments and distortions, so that their morale remains unaffected. As one U.S. army man put it, philosophically: "She (Hanoi Hannah) talks a lot of tripe—but she sounds okay as a doll."

Through the Back Door

In the current issue of the National Geographic Magazine, Lynda Bird Johnson, elder daughter of the U.S President, describes a trainer vacation she and friends made last summer. The journey took them from Arizona to the vast wilderness region north of Lake Superior, on the Minnesota-Ontario border.

Miss Johnson relates how she set foot on Canadian territory, by swimming a lake. "Across from our camp about half a mile was the Canadian shore. Suddenly I felt adventurous and decided to swim there by myself. It had been a long day for canoeing, so I was tired to begin with. I had to take it slowly, but what a great thrill it brought actually to swim from Canada to the United States."

In that primitive region of woods and lakes, Miss Johnson would not have been troubled by customs and immigrations regulations. What an intriguing thought, though: the president's daughter entering Canada by a back door, as it were.

To Your Good Health
Should Watch Calories Of Overweigh Infant

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My 2½-year-old daughter weighs 43 pounds and is 39 inches tall. She still takes a bottle of juice at nap and bedtime. Is she dangerously overweight? She eats only an average amount but likes fattening foods better than vegetables. Should I have a thyroid test made? — Mrs. S. V.

She is very substantially overweight. Whether this is "dangerously" so depends on what one means by danger. There may not be any immediate threat to her health, but there is real danger that she is establishing an eating pattern that will keep her fat all her life, and, according to statistics, will shorten her life. Eating habits start in babyhood.

If you are right in saying that she eats "only an average amount," then the answer to her weight must be that too high a proportion of her food is too rich in calories for her needs.

It seems to me that the answer is obvious. See that she gets her fruits and vegetables first. If she rebels don't make an issue of it. Just stop and wait until the next meal. Children being logical, get the point very quickly. Indeed, you may encounter no rebellion at all. But be ready in case you do.

Second, substitute lower-calorie foods for some of the things she now eats, particularly desserts. A cookie and some applesauce, for example, are better than cake with frosting. Simple gelatine desserts are better than puddings.

Third, no snacks between meals. Nibbling can knock an otherwise satisfactory diet into a cocked hat. Most decidedly, no candy. Many children are wisely bribed by never tasting candy until they are considerably older than your daughter. They don't need it.

If they haven't had it, they don't miss it. But if your girl already has a sweet tooth, you can substitute a slice of apple or other fresh fruit as a treat.

Fourth, you mention that she has a bottle of juice at nap and bedtime Citrus or tomato juice once or twice a day is a fine source of Vitamin C, but why give her more when it's bedtime?

Fifth, no, I wouldn't suggest thyroid tests on the basis of weight alone, until you've seen what adjustment of her eating habits will do. Glandular disturbances can occasionally be involved, but this is extremely rare as compared to the number of children who merely need guidance in eating habits.

Dear Dr. Molner: The toes and ball of each foot are numb most of the time, and it is getting worse. I am male, 45, 192 pounds, solid, very healthy otherwise. I began taking a drug to curb my drinking about the time the numbness set in. — M. G. T.

I would suspect that your weight as well as the drug could be a factor. Try trimming your weight — but also tell your doctor about this numbness. He may want to change the dosage of your drug.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a 16-year old girl and have not yet started to mature. I have a figure like an 8-year-old. Is there any way I can increase my bustline? I mean, speed up the development. My measurements are 28-24-31. — R. M. K.

Lots of girls are slow in developing, and often the late-blooming ones have the best figures later on. You can have our sympathy right now, because you are impatient and worried, but you shouldn't be and there's nothing you can or ought to do to make Nature hurry.

Just one thought, though: Are you accumulating some excess weight? If so, watch your diet to the extent of eating all you need of the basic foods, but go easy on surplus calories. And get plenty of exercise. Your figure will shape up. Just give it time. In fact your measurements are in the proper ratio for a good figure.

Samuel Crompton, inventor of the spinning "mule," was born 212 years ago today—in 1753—and was originated five years later. His mother made the boy spin a quantity of yarn each day, and aggravated by the imperfections of the hargreaves "spinning jenny" set him to inventing a better machine. When the machine was finished, in 1779, Crompton could not afford a patent, as a private supplier of fine yarn. Industrialists persuaded him to sell its secrets for £67, embittering the inventor for the rest of his life.

Strictly Personal
Fulfillment Through Selflessness

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A college student in California asks me to explain more clearly what I meant in quoting Goethe's remark that we can understand others only by delving into ourselves, and can understand ourselves only by observing others.

Most people assume exactly the opposite — they seem to believe that one can get to know oneself better through introspection. But this method has always failed, and always must. We can study an object to know it, but when we are both the subject and the object, our interest for self-knowledge is doomed from the start.

To try to understand oneself through introspection is a never ending process: there is always a layer beneath the layer, and a layer beneath that. Plunging into the murky waters of "the essential self" is exploring a bottomless sea; and sometimes there is no way up to the surface of life again.

This is not at all what Socrates meant in his famous injunction: "Know thyself." For it is a basic paradox of the personality that we can "know" ourselves only in relation to others; only by expressing ourselves to them, by acting with or for or against them by feeling and moving in response to them, by giving to them, by accepting them.

Many persons believe, erroneously, that psychiatric help leads the patient to "know" himself better; but this is dangerously half-truth. What such help does is to generalize the feelings of the patient toward himself and others. It releases him from bondage to his neuroticism and can enables him to relate to the present more freely and voluntarily.

It is on this "narrow ridge," to use Buber's phrase, that religion and psychiatry meet. For this is what the Bible means when it tells us that a person cannot find himself until he loses himself. To seek for the self, consciously and relentlessly, is always to miss it; it is only when we are able to accept the reality of the other, to make contact with living outside ourself, that we come closest to our own personality.

For the task of the personality is "to become what it is," to realize its potential, as an acorn becomes an oak tree. And this potential can be realized only by opening oneself to the other; by self-knowledge. No one can know himself better than he comes what he does; and that there is no "essential" self beyond and beneath this complex of emotions and attitudes and acts and responses.

No man has ever "thought" himself into self-knowledge. No man has ever been able to put down on paper his "real self," as even such candid diarists as Gide have painfully found out. The one thing the eye cannot see is the eyeball.

The Many Faces of the White Man

By Kingston Whig-Standard

It is not very often that much sense is displayed when white men discuss Indians in this country. When that happens it is worth noticing. Recently some rare wisdom was expounded by an expert on Indians and Indian education. Father Andre Renaud, an Oblate priest and Professor of Indian and Northern Education at the University of Saskatchewan. What he said should be carefully considered by those responsible for Indian affairs and by all citizens with a conscience.

In the first place, according to Father Renaud, the Indian is basically different from the white man. Indians live in an integrated atmosphere; they are brought up in a climate of love and warmth and are accepted as themselves under all circumstances" by their own people. When an Indian works side by side with a white worker and becomes friendly with him on the job, he is puzzled when, at the end of the working day, the white worker puts on his a going-home face. White children are brought up to live in different rooms, put on different clothes for different places, and think different thoughts for different occasions. They lack the harmony with their surroundings which is part of the Indian heritage.

Indians, says Father Renaud, are usually considered shifty and unreliable on the ground that they are nomads. But they are no more nomadic, we are told, than the many whites who are now always seeking betterment. There is no basic difference between a trailer and a tepee. The Indian is "mobile," he points out, and so are many modern white workers.

When it comes to producing, the Indian considers work as something you do until the job is finished. Then you take time to use the money you get for your work and even, possibly, to contemplate the product of your work. Indians fail, says Father Renaud, to understand the need for producing without let-up in order to accumulate possessions. And the reason for this attitude is that the Indian economy is the product of his industry since, in modern industrial society, that product is so far removed from the individual worker. The correlation is not clear to Indians and they need help in understanding it.

Father Renaud has developed a specific approach to help Indian students. These students, he tells us, are eager to learn and are as intelligent as any students. But they need to be taught in a way that relates what they learn to their actual situation. It is to be hoped that the knowledge and wisdom possessed by Father Renaud will be made use of by our Indian affairs specialists. There is no doubt at all that they are badly in need of help.

Ottawa Offbeat
Canadians Showed Contempt For Multiplicity of Parties

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Now that the high feelings of the election have subsided, it is interesting to look back at the effect of the minor parties on the outcome.

As is known, the Liberals took almost half of the seats in Parliament, but did so with little more than 40 per cent of the total vote. In fact, the Conservatives and NDP together got close to 55 per cent of the total vote, but together hold only 118 seats in the House.

This is the strongest possible argument, of course, for redistribution to be carried out as swiftly as possible.

Surely the total votes of the parties and the number of seats they hold should come more or less closer together on a percentage basis.

This might have been the case, except for redistribution, if there had been only two parties running in the election, although voters in some ridings would still not have as great a voice in those ridings.

As it was, with New Democrats, Socreds and Creditistes in the running (to say nothing of the odd Communist and two representatives of the Labor Party), the vote did not provide true majority representation.

In only 81 seats did the winner take enough votes to see to it that his opponents lost their deposits. (To hold their deposits, losers must gain more than half the number of votes taken by the winner.)

ABNORMALLY

On the other hand, there were 17 seats in which no candidate lost his deposit, which means that more votes were cast against the winner than for him. The prime example is in Algoma West, in Ontario, where a recount is being held. Liberal George Nixon took 12,023 votes, Conservative Russell Ramsay got 11,234 and Socred Gerald Delaute, Erhart Regier, got 9,564.

That means Mr. Nixon received only 35.89 percent of the vote, yet he won the seat, unless the recount should alter the outcome, in which case Mr. Ramsay would be in much the same position.

The percentage varies, but the same holds true in the other 16 such ridings and, to a lesser extent, in more than 100 others.

For instance, the combined votes against Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson would have defeated him if they had all gone to one man. NDP Leader Douglas would have won, although one of his opponents managed to keep his deposit.

Prime Minister Pearson's opposition Leader Diefenbaker and Créditiste Leader Real Caouette would have similarities in their home ridings.

Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Caouette have swamped three opponents, while Mr. Pearson turned back two.

All told, however, the Canadian people showed their dislike of a multiplicity of parties by concentrating many of the candidates of the minor parties.

$96,000 LOSS

There were more than 1,600 candidates and 480 of them lost their deposits, enriching the Receiver-General by $96,000.

But out of that total of lost deposits, Liberal and Conservative candidates accounted for only 113 — the Conservatives going down worst in Quebec, particularly where Creditistes won, and the Liberals on the Prairies.

This would appear to indicate that the minor parties find least favor with the voters, who still tend to give the greatest support to the two major parties.

The voters' redistribution is put into effect in the next session of Parliament (hopefully), this attitude should become even more pronounced, spurred on, no doubt, by a general feeling that it is time the country once again had a majority government of some sort or another.

The voters appear to have spent the necessity of throwing the minor parties out.

The Liberals and the NDP are not too far apart in their thinking now and could become closer, while the Conservatives, Socreds and Creditistes all appear to be supported by the body of voters which once voted only Conservative.

Coalitions could solve a lot of problems.

An Old Story Of Neglect

Toronto Star.

The plight of the northwest Ontario Indians is general among Indians elsewhere, as repeated surveys have shown.

In Canada as a whole the new Indian home in sight has running water, more than half have electricity, and 16 percent of Indian families live in conventional homes. Yet poverty, lack of training and exclusion for jobs perpetrates apathy, and public neglect or disregard compounds the misery.

The situation would be deplorable if the Indians were just a few thousand whose plight had gone unnoticed. But it is a shameful, utter disgrace. For governments and white people have long known the state to which the Indians are consigned, and one of every hundred Canadian is an Indian.

But a modern society cannot just hand out a few patronizing services, and some money for subsistence, and then wash its hands of the problem. Indians will help to help themselves, but they need more help than we've given them to do it in this complex, mechanized world which has destroyed their traditional values and livelihood.

The two basic requirements are adequate housing and adequate education. Ottawa and the provincial government must share responsibility for these.

Oscar Wilde's Classic Farce Given Sparkling Presentation

By LINTON D. READ

As Earnest or Algernon might say, "Golly good show"! Another milestone in the unabating life of the local Theatre Guild was reached last night in its sparkling presentation of Oscar Wilde's classic farce "The Importance of Being Earnest". It has been said of the play that Wilde "wedded the utmost propriety to the utmost preposterousness; to the most elegant settings he reeled off the topsy-turviest of plots", The producers and actors therefore set themselves an awesome task in presenting this perennial but very demanding favorite. To say that they did extremely well is in itself a fulsome compliment; to be able to add that they approached professional standard is a joy to any reviewer of an amateur production.

As is usual in any first night situation, both the players and audience relaxed increasingly as the action proceeded with the happy result that more and more of Wilde's brilliantly satirical repartee evoked gales of laughter from an appreciative audience in the BCI auditorium. Certainly the players in amusingly and cleverly presented as one could possibly expect. Certain actors stood out, of course, e.g. Lady Bracknell's first scene with "Jack" and the scene in full bloom between two confused young ladies. Generally, however, under the obviously skilful direction of Jim Alexander, a lively tempo was maintained, entrances and exits were managed smoothly and many individual touches gave lively artificiality and subtertuge essential to Wilde's intent.

THE ONE STAR

One cannot choose a star at this time; the play does not lend itself to this and the consensus of nearly all the players was comparable. Certain roles, such as Lady Bracknell's first entrance, need a more dramatic and colorful interpretation than others but in only one case was real weakness evident.

A remarkably neat Harry Mulhall handled a heretofore lively, smooth and poised performance. Mr. Mulhall has the enviable ability to become the entire person, physical and emotional, in his role; he evokes loungers aplenty and therefore, despite a seemingly permanent tilt to his head, he brought a fine air of professionalism to his work.

It is unfortunate, perhaps, that the other principal—Jack Worthing, Williamson as John Worthing, J.P.—has a voice very similar to Mulhall's in range and production so that of Mr. Mulhall. Since they worked together so much a greater contrast would have helped. Despite this drawback, however, Mr. Williamson's highly expressive his ever increasing confidence, vitality and verve created a thoroughly convincing, charming, likeable and delightful Jack Worthing, J.P.

The two young ladies, Gwendolen (Margo Hall) and Cecily (Sandra Sharpe) were excellent contrasts and foils to each other.

Miss Sharpe, although possessed of a graceful carriage and a clear voice, tended to mimic a high and monotonous quality in her voice which coupled with an unnecessarily haughty angle to her chin led us to come through as one would hope. She was, however, charming, likeable and skilful in her interpretation of the role. She will do even better tonight.

Miss Svendsen's fresh, unsophisticated beauty and coquish ways endeared her to the audience. Her work was consistently good. The two fiancees certainly added much to the evening's entertainment.

LAUDABLE 'HEAVY'

For many years Mrs. Yanover has so well established her thespian talents that little more can be said of her. As the arrogant, supercilious Lady Bracknell her work was both very audible and laudible. Given the "heavy" role, Mrs. Yanover never fails to sail in with all flags flying and all guns roaring. Her interpretation was near perfection.

As the unconscionous but not so insensitive (or should one say insensuall) clergyman Dr. Chasuble, Peter Kitcher was cleverly cast. His resonant voice, pontifical delivery and superior costuming and make-up - all aided by first rate acting talents - contributed tremendously to the play's success.

The lesser roles of Miss Prism, Lane and Merriman were competently played by Karen Williamson, Jim Peterson and Al Harvey. Mrs. Williamson's costume and roiffure were exceptionally appropriate; her whole demeanor smacked convincingly of the subtly predatory female. She did a good job.

As usual the costuming, scenery and properties were been pinpointed for the United States Explorer XXXI satellite that was boosted into space aboard the same Thor-Agena B rocket, both DRB and U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration scientists feel the U.S. craft will stay within the required range.

KEEP CRAFT CLOSE

One joint experiment of the two satellites, involving temperature measurements, requires that the two craft stay within 1,000 miles of each other for at least a month.

Tracking figures Wednesday showed the two satellites were only 27 kilometres (16.8 miles) apart and were separating at the rate of only 1½ kilometres (about one mile) a day.

"This gives us comfortable margin for the one-month period," said Frank Davies, chief superintendent of the Shirley Bay telecommunications establishment.

Unemployment up in Nov. But Down From Year Ago

Canada's

Anybody want some interior decorating done?

If so now's the time to get those rooms done over and to get that kitchen painted.

The fact is that house painters are now more plentiful in the Belleville area than at any time in recent months. There are 25 painters listed at the national employment office in Belleville as compared with only nine a year ago.

All of which indicates that following one of the best October's in local history, dread winter unemployment is starting to rear its ugly head in the Belleville district.

At the end of November there were 652 men and 442 women for a total of 1,099 persons out of work sharply up from October but still down about 12 per cent from last year at this time. On the other hand job placements during November were about the same as a year ago — 348 as compared with 346.

The office claim load at the month end was down about 12 per cent from a year ago.

By

Claire Hoy

For 28 Cents, Even

Some things are worth getting upset over and some things are not. Just where, I ask, can we draw the line.

I don't like to talk about my wife in public, but sometimes a fellow has to take a stand.

Surely happiness is worth more than 28 cents.

That's right. 28 cents.

It all started when my wife bought a zipper for a new dress she was making. It was on sale for 28 cents and because of this, because the color matched, she bought it.

I was going to a hockey game the other night when I made my mistake.

"How does that new zipper fit dear?" I asked.

She smiled politely. "Oh, I'm not quite ready to put it on yet."

"Oh." (I was non-committal.)

"By the way, where is that zipper?"

"I don't know dear, where did you leave it?"

"It was right here. I know it was right here." (Hysteria was taking hold.

"Maybe it's in the living room in your sewing basket," I suggested.

"What would it be doing there?"

(I confess, the question stumped me.)

Hysteria had by now completely won the battle.

"Oh I won't even bother to make that dress," she fumed. "I won't even go to the party."

"It's only a 28-cent zipper," I reminded her.

"It is not. It was on sale for half-price."

"Well, you only paid 28 cents for it dear."

"Oh, you men are impossible!"

"What does a fellow see to that?

"Maybe I threw it out in the bag," she said.

"Oh I don't think so," I replied, fighting off the inevitable request that I forage for something.

A word of explanation. My wife had a bad cold, it was chilly outside, the wind was blowing strongly and it was pouring rain. Also, she is expecting in January and we live up two flights of stairs. I was standing at the door, my coat on, ready to go out. She had her housecoat and slippers and on her hair in curlers.

"I guess I'll have to go down to the garbage and look," she said.

A guy would have to be a brut . . . "I'll go and look."

Clomp, clomp . . . that's me going down the stairs . . . out into the rain I went and around to the side of the building. I pulled the lid off the full garbage pail and was just nicely getting into it when a neighbor came rushing up to the house.

What do you say to a person when he catches you rooting through garbage pails at night in the middle of a storm? I mean how do you explain?

He stared at me incredulously.

"Nice night," I sputtered.

"Yeeeeeessss." (I could have sworn he hurried even faster to step by me.)

We had just thrown out a bunch of newspapers that night, and when I placed them on the front step ascent mindedly, she had went to work. Soon I was chasing newspapers all over the yard. I may be a neurotic, but I am not a litterbug.

When I gathered up the soggy newspapers and got them back in the garbage pail, I lifted up the one bag of garbage to put it in the pail and whoof — you guessed it — the bottom gave out. This gave me the opportunity to scrutinize the contents closely. The zipper was not among them.

And so, tired, discouraged and wet, I plunked back up the stairs. Who should meet me at the head of the stairs, all smiles holding a zipper in her hand, but my wife.

"Guess what dear?" she asked.

I never could have guessed.

"I found the zipper."

"That's nice dear. Where was it?"

"In the sewing box."

"The sewing box."

"Yes."

I was too shaken to fight.

"Well, I'm glad you found it," I said.

"So am I. Of course, I could always have bought another one tomorrow. They're still on sale."

Not only that, but we lost the hockey game that night.

Deseronto U.C.W. Holds Tea, Bazaar

DESERONTO — Despite the blustery weather, and the fact that there were three other church bazaars in the district Wednesday afternoon, a goodly number of folk were on hand to enjoy the delightful tea at the Deseronto United Church and to patronize the various booths to take home good things for supper or to tuck away for Christmas gifts.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. Ralph Aylesworth, the president of the United Church Women, and Mrs. Russell Finley, wife of the church minister.

The Christmas motif was carried out in the decorations. Lights twinkled on the gaily decorated tree and both the tea table and the small tables were centred by Christmas arrangements. Two candelabra, each with red candles, also graced the tea table, covered with snowy damask.

Mrs. Gerald Lott and Mrs. Gladys Gould in turn presided over the silver tea service. Mrs. Rockwell Hawley and Mrs. Fern Cole, who had made arrangements for the tea, also saw to it that the plates were kept filled with delectable goodies. They were assisted by Mrs. Ross Neal, Mrs. Hugh Fingland made sure there was always plenty of hot tea.

BOOTHS WELL PATRONIZED

All the booths were well patronized. Mrs. William Stewart, Mrs., Joe Reynolds and Mrs. Luther Gaylord were in charge of the fancy work, which included such practical items as aprons and mitts.

Mrs. Harold McCaul, Mrs. Clinton Rendell and Mrs. Maurice Carol, all farmers' wives, appropriately looked after the customers who flocked to the farmers' booth, with its supply of vegetables, canned goods and some baking.

The evening unit, with Mrs. Hetty Bannerlille and Mrs. Sid Brown in charge of sales, had stocked a variety booth with sewing and Christmas decorations among the popular items.

Mrs. Herbert Aylsworth, Mrs. Russell Boyer and Mrs. Ethel Vandewater were kept busy dispensing the baked goods, everything from bread and buns to cakes and cookies.

A number of ladies with clever ideas and clever fingers, had demonstrated their ability by constructing all sorts of things from otherwise useless material. Clever plastic bottles had been transformed into attractive flower containers, and scraps of this and that had been made into attractive doll clothes. Mrs. W. H. Sills and Mrs. Leila Shea were the saleswomen.

It was a pleasant afternoon in a relaxed atmosphere. The ladies of the U.C.W. are grateful to all those who aided in making their annual tea and bazaar a success.

BUILD A BETTER BASSINET

Dear Susanna: The bassinet that my young friend covered while she was expecting her last baby is exceptionally pretty. She had a very lovely but outdated crinoline with lace and bows, etc., and she simply stripped it right over the outer edge of the bassinet she had for the baby. Everyone thought she had gone to a great deal of trouble making it. Almost wish I could have another baby myself, but guess I'll settle on dressing up a bassinet for a grandchild!

When my daughter returned from a long trip this summer, she brought back two wonderful travel posters. I pondered over the best way to hang them and came up with a terrific solution. For anyone with beautiful colorful posters rolled up and tucked away, just because they are so awkward to hang, here is what to do:

Start with four strips of half round that are two inches longer than the width of the poster. Paint them if you like. Tack the top edge of the poster to the flat side of one strip of wood and cover this with the second strip. Next, slide a snug-fitting curtain ring over each projecting end of the half rounds and repeat the whole operation on the bottom edge of the poster. Now attach cord to the top curtain rings and this lovely framed picture is ready for hanging. — Mrs. Wm. Thomson

Strangely enough bassinets and travel posters have a certain kinship . . . like, sitting home with baby while dreaming of faraway places . . . best thing to going, isn't it? — Susanna

Genuine Need for More Women in Politics Says Liberal Quebec Member

REGINA (CP) — There still are definite barriers against women trying to enter politics, Mrs. Margaret Rideout, Liberal MP for Westmorland, said Thursday.

Mrs. Rideout told the annual meeting of the Saskatchewan Women's Liberal Association there is a genuine need for more women in politics but they must work twice as hard as men to get elected.

She was elected in a November, 1964, byelection following the death of her husband, the sitting member. She defeated seven candidates for the nomination in the New Brunswick riding and was elected with a larger majority than her husband. She retained the seat for the Liberals in the Nov. 8 general election.

"In the Maritimes, women work behind the scenes when it comes to politics and do not have always careful to give them credit for having helped get them elected. But it's the other way around when the time comes for men to work to get a woman elected. There's a definite change of attitude, you have to work hard to convince them you can do the job."

ENTERS NEW PHASE

Mrs. J. O. Asselin of Montreal, president of the Women's Liberal Federation of Canada, told delegates the party is entering a new phase across Canada.

"Prime Minister Pearson has never before had such a chance to reform the cabinet, to reform Liberal policy and to make sure everyone in Canada has a chance to share in the wonderful future our country has," she said.

"A country as diversified as Canada demands much of its people. Our problems will only be solved when we learn to put aside suspicion, distrust and regional differences and work for the good of Canada as a whole.

"We, the women, have the responsibility and intelligence to solve the problems but every man and woman must become involved personally and individually in the running of our country," Mrs. Asselin said.

More than 100 women from across the province attended the one-day meeting held before the annual meeting of the Saskatchewan Liberal Association today and Saturday.

Nursing Profession Less Attractive Due to Low Salaries Says Official

OTTAWA (CP)—Low salaries have made the nursing profession less attractive than others to career-minded women, the educational assembly on hospital administration was told Thursday.

Dr. Helen Mussallem, executive director of the Canadian Nurses Association, said pay and working conditions of nurses "have not kept pace with the rising level of income in Canada."

"It because of low pay the nursing profession ceases to be attractive to young people, what then of the future of the profession and the nursing care it seeks to provide?"

She said the national nurses organization recognizes it has "a social obligation" to ensure a satisfactory income and working conditions for nurses. A special staff has been recruited to tackle the problem.

Dr. Mussallem also gave the assembly an advance peek at the soon-to-be-released report of the royal commission on health services dealing with nursing education.

CHANGES NEEDED

She said the report refers to well-documented evidence that changes should be made in educating nurses, calls for co-ordinators of nurses only and asks for a "crash program" to prepare nurses for leadership positions in nursing education and services.

The report criticizes hospital-based training as "service-centred and based on a poor apprentice system."

Such programs "are geared towards service in hospitals and do not provide the student an opportunity to understand the nurse's role as a member of the health team to provide total care," said the report.

There also is a lack of qualified instructors for nursing schools "and "approximately 75 per cent of the instructors in hospital schools do not have the minimum qualifications for their positions."

University schools should provide 25 per cent of the nurses. The remainder should come from diploma programs.

WILL DISAPPEAR

Dr. Mussallem said she believed hospital schools will disappear in about 20 years, that diplomas in nursing will be granted by junior colleges and institutes.

She said the royal commission report refers "to an acute shortage of nurses prepared at post-baccalaureate level for positions in administration, consultation, research and as clinical specialists in nursing."

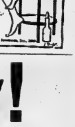
"Crash programs for educating nurses for these types of positions need immediate implementation," the report said.

Margaret McLean, a consultant in hospital nursing for the federal health department, said training of nurses must change to meet new demands.

"Is it reasonable to expect that a person with a nurse's education of 15 years ago can function well in an environment which bears little resemblance to the one in which she gained clinical experience?"

NEED SOME

All nurses did not have to function at a high level "but there seems to be sufficient of these to supervise the activities of the less well-prepared," she said.



Jean Milligan, assistant director of the Ottawa Civic Hospital, said the shortage of nurses could be met by recruiting more men, by careful selection of those entering training programs and by retaining those who do enroll.

Some 34 per cent of persons entering nursing schools do not finish the course and efforts should be made to lessen the drop-out rate.

Refresher courses also should be made available for older women who wished to return to their nursing profession.

Flat-collared Neckline Is Again Shown

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP)—The low, square, flat-collared neckline is recurring in the current flurry of spring fashion previews here.

The trend was noted most recently in designer Robert Agai's spring collection, previewed for the press here Thursday.

A high rise blouse — turtle neck or collarless with a floppy bow—is usually worn with the coats and suits with this new neckline, and it softens the otherwise starkly tailored ensembles. But sometimes the neck is left bare.

The Hungarian-born Mr. Agai, who designs for Attractive Garment of Montreal, offered several other spring fashion trends in his suit collection.

His Marie Frances group approved the popular tailored look. The single- and double-breasted suits had fairly long jackets and A-line skirts.

CONTRAST

One in brown-gold great wale corduroy contrasted vertical and horizontal lines. A growing practice among designers. Another in horizontally cut pastel yellow corduroy had a shirt jacket that was banded and trimmed with vertically cut fabric.

A white double breasted corduroy suit had a low round neck and large widely-spaced buttons.

Checked wools were used for casual suits, and one in navy and white had high patch pockets and a long jacket. A yellow, straw and brown suit of striped linen tweed had 3-quarter jacket with a double row of off-centre buttons.

Flannel showed up by itself for a chuckie-length suit jacket that had a belt laced through large pockets. The skirt was almost straight.

Teamed with off-white a frequent spring combination, camel was used for several other costumes.

IT'S BURNT ORANGE

The most interesting fabric was a double-faced linen tweed that was shown in burnt orange faced with purple. The iridescent-looking material was used for a suit with a purple collar and for an evening skirt with one side slit in front.

The evening skirts shown were worn with matching tailored jackets. These costumes were indicative of two spring trends—two solid color combinations and double facing.

Another new fabric was shown in off-white. The diagonally-textured Italian import combined knitting and weaving techniques and was used for boxy street and evening ensembles.

For theatre wear was a semi-fitted suit of blue brocade with ruffled collar, slender skirt and single-breasted cut away jacket.

The wardrobe ended with the ensembles included plastic bonnet vinyl, leather jockey hats, paisley silk turbans, helmet variations and casual back-of-the-head scarf hats.

Readers' Friday Column

Question:—Would you have a recipe for a cake to which you add a package of jello—any flavor. Not a cake mix—Mrs. S.—Lon.

Answer:—I think you are referring to Rainbow Cake. I gave it here in July, 1961, and it was popular for children's birthday parties. I am pleased to repeat it.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

RAINBOW CAKE with Constrasting Boiled Frosting

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt and soda and sift together. Cream shortening well, add sugar and jelly powder gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy—about 3 minutes. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each—about another 3 minutes. Then add flour mixture, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Pour batter into 2 round 9" layer pans, 1½" deep, which have been lined on bottoms with buttered paper. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 25 minutes, or until they test done. Cool on racks. Spread Colored Boiled Frosting between layers and over top and sides of cake.

Colored Boiled Frosting: Dissolve half package (3½ tablespoons) any flavor jelly powder (but a contrasting color to that used in cake batter—I used lime), in ½ cup very hot water in top of double boiler. Add 1¼ cups sugar, dash of salt and 2 unbeaten egg whites; beat about 1 minute, or until thoroughly mixed. Then place over rapidly boiling water and beat constantly with rotary egg beater (or at high speed of portable electric beater) for 13 minutes; or until frosting will stand up in peaks. Remove frosting at once. Fill bottom of double boiler with cold water and stand top of double boiler in it and beat until of spreading consistency—about 7 or 8 minutes. Note:—Wipe water from outside of top of double boiler before holding it near the cake to spread between layers and on top and sides.

Music Class Presents Concert

TWEED — St. Carthagh's auditorium in Tweed was filled to capacity for the variety musical program presented by the music class of St. Carthagh's convent under the direction of Sister Mary Hubert.

The program opened with the entire class singing "God Bless Canada," followed by, "Dance With Me", "Santa Lucia" and "Music Everywhere." The accompanists for all singing and dancing were Peter Marchen and James McCormick, senior students in the class.

Fifteen pupils performed a song and dance version of "Step in Time." Also from "Mary Poppins" was "Supercalifragilisticepialidocuis" sung by all the boy students with Kenneth Brouson as soloist. "Do Re Mi" was followed by "Mister Banjo" sung by the boys in their pants with Gene McCormick as "Mr. Banjo." Nine girls sang "Hang Mr. Banjo, Won't You Play a Tune" with Greg Trudeau at the piano.

Holly Holmes and Donald Campbell sang "My Own True Love and I" followed by "Getting to Know You" performed by Anne Merrow and Ronnie LaValley.

A vocal triple trio, "Distant Bells" was harmonized by Heather McDonald, Gaye Longford, Lois Merow, Dianne Gunning, Nancy Moynes, Shirley Dunne, Margaret Merrow, Gay Hunt and Jane Barnett. Jane Barnett also sang a solo entitled "Be the Best of Whatever You Are."

PRINCIPAL SPEAKS

Throughout the program pupils who had taken lessons in June played piano solos. After the presentation of certificates, Mr. Hamilton, principal of the Tweed and Hungerford District High School, congratulated Sister Mary Hubert and her students. He explained to the audience the various grades of music examinations which the Department of Education accepts as full options in high school and Teachers' College. He concluding he thanked the high school music students for their generosity in assisting, particularly as accompanists, in their school music activities.

Six senior girls: Shirley Dunne, Anne Dunham, Jane Barnett, Nancy Moynes, Maureen Rasbotte and Denise Roy, displayed a double piano trio "Le Chase." Also performed as a double piano trio was "Bosary Skating Waltz" by Larry Jardine, Jimmie Bush, Doug Moynes, Margaret McCrea, Louise Cassidy and Beverley Paquette. Other ensemble players included Phillip Wannamaker, Donna Roy, Michelle Rasbotte, Karen Gray and Sharon McCrea.

To conclude the program Peter Marchen and James McCormick gave an outstanding rendition of a three movement concerto performed on duo pianos.

Can. Woodmen Of the World Enjoy Party

On Wednesday evening the local branch of the Canadian Woodmen of the World held their annual Christmas party at St. George's Mission Hall.

Members, their families and invited guests sat down at a well decorated table and were served turkey and all the trimmings.

Following the meal the meeting was called to order by the District Deputy Consul Commander of Ontawa who introduced the officers of the local camp who were seated at the head table.

After a short talk by the master of ceremonies about the principles of the organization, Alice Storms, pianist, led in the singing of Christmas carols.

Entertainment for the evening was provided by ten pupils from the Ettore's Accordion College of Belleville. The program opened with a polka number followed by the playing of a carol by Frank Kosir of Trenton. Continuing, Mike LeBaron favored with an appropriate number. Arden Lewis, leader of the group, rendered a favorite polka selection and a duet by Donna Lazariuk and Arden Lewis was favorably received. Steven Bobko played another polka and Veronica Kosir, who won first class honors in 1964 at the CNE favored with a special number.

The entire group gave a selection and the program concluded with a solo by nine-year-old Barry Van Zeeren, who has been recommended for the Ted Mack show, and who has won a second at the CNE and medals at Stirling and Peterborough, gave a fine solo rendition.

The appreciative audience gave the young performers a hearty ovation for their fine efforts on the occasion, after which Santa Claus arrived and presented a gift to every child present.

Doctor's Love Talk Must Be Forgotten

DEAR DORIS: I've heard the jokes about women falling for their doctor, but what do you think would be in the mind of a doctor who told a woman patient, out of the blue, that he loved her very much? I was too astonished to reply, even when he looked me square in the eye and repeated his statement.

In the year or so since, he has been very polite, very courteous, very professional. He does not joke with me like he does with other patients. We are both in our forties and, of course, both married. I've often wondered why he should have said such a thing but lack the nerve to ask him. What do you think? — CORNELIA.

DEAR CORNELIA: Perhaps he meant it. The fact that he is now keeping his distance may show that he respects you and wants to keep his unruly feelings under control. Or he has changed his mind! It would be absolute folly for you to raise the question again, if you value your happy home.

DEAR DORIS: If you like a person when you are with them, but you wonder if you really like them when you are not with them, what does this mean? If you like a person, should you have any doubts at all? — IN LOVE (I think.)

* * *

DEAR IN LOVE: Such is the perversity of human nature that we may find ourselves liking and disliking the same people at different times. We may tend to steady down, but we don't eliminate this emotional turmoil entirely, even as we grow older.

There is excitement in the physical presence of a dear one; so much so that someone coined the saying "Love is blind." And this is why we need to be grown up before we commit ourselves for life.

Confidential to Tongue-Tied: Sharing the same interests does not mean that you necessarily agree about everything. I'd rather you both have friendly dispositions and would get no joy out of a quarrel.

Taking up bridge, or golf, or book-reading, together, might help your conversations and your joy in each other's companionship. But I agree that it is not important to talk all the time. People in love have been known to go for long walks scarcely speaking, and end up feeling they have had a wonderful time!

Confidential to JUDY AND FLO.: It's the hotel manager who says what age he prefers in his waitresses. A waitress is not usually expected to wash dishes, but this the manager also clarifies.

It is highly likely that the local N.E.S. can tell you more about the requirements of the employer where you want to work, but why not go and ask for yourselves?

Confidential to BACK IN CIRCULATION: Good for you for keeping control of things. The "marrying or craving to give a lot back" just shows you are a normal, red-blooded Canadian girl. Write in again, this time sending me a stamped, self-addressed envelope, for my list of recommended books on "Sex and Dating." There is much you need to know.

Mom Distrusts Docs, Son's Acne Untreated

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a boy 16 years of age and I never thought I'd wind up on your couch, but here I am.

Kids have written to you about acne before and lots of them have it bad, but mine is the worst case anybody ever saw. I'm such a horrible mess that some days I walk around the block four times before I can get up the nerve to go to school.

ANN LANDERS

Ever since a dentist pulled the wrong tooth in mom's head, she has had very little faith in dentists or doctors. She says if I just leave the acne alone it will clear up by itself because acne is something that must be outgrown. According to her, too many people over doctor themselves and wind up in worse shape than before.

I consider you a friend to teen-agers. If you say Mom is right I will shut up. But I do hope you'll take my side and be my buddy for life. — HIDEOUS SIGHT.

DEAR FRIEND: A skin specialist can help you and I hope you will go to one immediately. A change of diet, proper medication and lamp treatments can make a world of difference. Get going, Buddy. (And—If you have any trouble with your mother show her my answer.)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hear so much talk about how cold and unfeeling people are these days. I am now of the opinion that folks who complain about shabby treatment darn well deserve it.

I can't count the times I have held the door for women at the supermarket only to have them walk right past me as if I were paid by the store to give this service. Yesterday when it happened for the umpteenth time I felt like letting the door go right in the woman's kisser.

I try to be considerate and courteous. When I drive I often let other drivers in ahead of me. One driver out of 25 will wave a sign of appreciation. Most of the hogs keep right on going as if you owed them the favor. From now on I plan to live by the rule, "Nice guys finish last." — FORMER DO-GOODER.

DEAR FORMER: Forgive the cliche, but it does indeed take all kinds of people to make a world and I'm sorry you are running into so many of the wrong kind.

Instead of acting according to your best instincts you are reacting to the worst behavior of slobs. Darned if I'd let these low types make me one of them.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am getting a divorce from a miserable heel and I'd like my maiden name back. I don't want anything around me to remind me of the man who brought me so much agony.

My friends tell me it would not be right to do this because of my children. They say it would be embarrassing and confusing if Johnny and Susie Brown's mother was Miss Mary Green.

I need your advice. — NAME PROBLEMS.

DEAR NAME: Even if you don't want anything around to remind you of the heel, you're going to have two constant reminders — Johnny and Susie.

Children deserve to have a mother with a Mrs. in front of her name. Unload your anger some other way and keep your husband's name for the sake of the children.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

MOIRA W. I.

MOIRA — The Moira Women's Institute held its December meeting at the home of Mrs. Gordon Foster with an attendance of ten members and one visitor.

The president, Mrs. Jean Thompson, opened the meeting in the usual manner, after which some business was discussed and a number of letters read. Members decided to send gifts to the mental hospital.

The meeting was turned over to the program conveners: Mrs. Wallace McInroy and Mrs. John Holden. As this was the Christmas meeting the program was based on this theme. Mrs. Gordon Foster contributed a Christmas carol and readings were given by Mrs. Elmer Thompson and Mrs. John Holden. An appropriate solo was rendered by Mrs. Angus Munby.

District president, Mrs. Don Chisholm, gave an address and spoke on the theme "Christmas is more than a day" which was most interesting. She was presented with a small token of appreciation on behalf of the members, after which there was an exchange of gifts.

A reading was given by Beulah Holbert and Mrs. McInroy conducted a contest.

To conclude the meeting lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants.

TEL AVIV (AP) — The last plane for Tel Aviv had already left when Brazilian reporter Yeheskel Juri arrived at Rome Airport Thursday night on his way to see his seriously ill father. WEDDING

WATSON — HERMAN

The Church of the Redeemer in Deseronto was the scene of the marriage on November 27, 1965 at 2.00 p.m. of Lorraine Beryl Herman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Herman of Deseronto to Roy Alexander Watson, son of Mrs. D. Evelyn Watson of Deseronto and the late Mr. Watson. Rev. Gerry Morton of Kingston was the officiating minister and Mrs. Frances Walker, organist, accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Blake Moore.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of net over taffeta with a bodice of lace trimmed with sequins. The bodice featured a square neckline and long lily-point sleeves of lace. The skirt was accented with the same lace and with net ribbon. A seed pearl tiara with drop rhinestones held her shoulder length nylon net veil, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses, ivy and lily-of-the-valley.

The bride's attendant was her sister, Mrs. Leonard Foster of Deseronto. She wore a street length mint green net over taffeta dress with a nylon bow head piece and circular veil. Her flowers were a nosegay of white and yellow mums.

Mr. Douglas Young was groomsman and the ushers were Eric Herman, brother of the bride, and Clinton Thompson.

At the reception, held at the Legion Hall in Deseronto the bride's mother received the guests wearing a rosewood lace over crepe dress with a slim crepe skirt and matching jacket. Her accessories were black and she wore a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore a blue on grey brocaded jacket dress with black accessories and a corsage of white and pink carnations.

For her wedding trip to western points the bride chose a two piece beige brocade dress with fur trim, brown accessories and a corsage of red roses and white mums.

On their return, the couple will live in Deseronto.

Says Butter Shortage Faces Canada

TORONTO (CP) — A butter shortage faces Canada and the federal government should institute policies to expand both production and consumption, T. B. Cooper, president of the National Dairy Council, said Thursday.

He told the annual convention of the Ontario Creamerymen's Association the answer is not to reduce consumption by raising the retail price.

The folly of this approach has been shown in the last two years with government - controlled price increases. It reversed an upward consumption trend.

"It seems to me there is a tremendous potential for higher butter consumption in Canada and that federal policies designed to expand both production and consumption are in the national interest," Mr. Cooper said.

An extension of the deficiency payment support system would give producers higher returns for raw milk to be turned into butter. This would increase production.

Meanwhile consumption "should be encouraged by maintaining or if necessary, lowering retail prices."

CHARITY WORKS STILL

HALIFAX (CP)—The Halifax Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor distributes 1,220 pints of milk and estimated cookies each day to 15 primary schools. Each year, the association distributes the interest from its endowment this way until the money is exhausted, in March or April.

Sunday School Lesson

Strength From Within

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

The prophet Isaiah had a vivid imagination. He could imagine God as a cosmic Ball Player (Isaiah 22:18) or the Carpenter of events. (Isaiah 22:23) In one of his greatest passages, he imagines Judah as a disappointing vineyard. (Isaiah 5:1-7) God, he says, planted a vineyard with "choice vines." He looked for it to produce grapes, but to His great sorrow, it produced "wild grapes." For God, he says "looked for justice," but instead saw "bloodshed." He looked for "righteousness," but instead heard a "cry" of the oppressed.

"The vineyard of the Lord of hosts," he explains, "is the house of Israel, and the men of Judah are His pleasant plant-ing." (Isaiah 5:7 RSV) With a heavy heart, for he loved his country, he set out to apply his parable to life. He attacked the avarice of the rich, and their forgetfulness of the poor. He attacked widespread drunkenness and excess. Most of all, he attacked idolatry, and those who stupidly worshipped idols made by their own hands.

Like every great preacher, Isaiah spoke to his own time as well as the ages. And it was a time of great tension. He lived through two attempted invasions of his country. In 734 B.C. the incredible happened. The King of Israel, the Jewish kingdom to the north that during the reigns of David and Solomon had been one with Judah, teamed up with the king of Syria to invade Judah. Before this threat, the people "shook as the trees of the forest shake before the wind." (Isaiah 7:2 RSV) But Isaiah predicted these kings would never carry out their threatened invasion. He saw their attention diverted by another threat before which they would fall. That threat was the growing might of Assyria. And so Isaiah advised his people, "Be quiet, do not fear, and do not let your heart be faint." (Isaiah 7:4 RSV)

GOD OF GOD'S ANGER

The threat of Assyria was a more serious matter. Isaiah saw Assyria as a rod of agger in God's hand to punish nations that had defied His will. (Isaiah 10:5-11) But again, Isaiah refused to believe Assyria would conquer Judah. His faith was vindicated in 701 B.C. when the Assyrian army met with a strange disaster at the very gates of Jerusalem. (Isaiah 37: 36-37)

During these trying times, Isaiah tried by a series of oracles to interpret God's hand in history, and to give comfort and assurance to his besieged people. He warned against an alliance with Egypt. He had no faith in Egypt's willingness or ability to come to Judah's defence. If Judah stood, it would be because of inner strength, not because of outside help. That strength must come through faith in God. And so the heart of Isaiah's message was, "In returning and rest you shall be saved; in quietness and in trust shall be your strength." (Isaiah 30:15 RSV)

But the people would not listen. Though "the ox knows its owner, and the ass its master's crib," the people rebelled against the very God who had reared them. (Isaiah 1:3) Judah was sick from head to foot. In their stupid blindness, many turned to worship gods they themselves had made. (Isaiah 2:8) And yet for all who would return there was wonderful forgiveness and grace. But returning to God must mean more than ceremonial religion. The people must "cease to do evil, learn to do good; seek justice correct oppression (Isaiah 1:16-17)

IF ISAIAH SPOKE TODAY

What Isaiah would say if he were in America today, we do not know. We can guess, however, that his message would not be popular. He would see a century of sinful injustices toward the Negro erupt in tragic racial violence in many places. He would see the flood of sex-crazed movies and novels. He would see the appalling growth of crime. He would see the all-pervading materialism of our time. He would see the relative indifference of the churches. And he would say, "From the sole of the foot even to the head, there is no soundness in it." (Isaiah 1:6 RSV)

The Uniform Sunday School lessons for December 5: "Isaiah", Isaiah 1:6 through 7; 9; 30:15; 31:1-3; 36 and 37.

But he would still plead, "Come now, let us reason together, says the Lord." (Isaiah 1:18) He would share the desire for peace. He described peace in unforgettable terms. (Isaiah 2:4) He dreamed of the coming of One who could establish peace. (Isaiah 9:2-7) But he knew that before there can be peace, something else must come first. Not treaties, not faith in armaments, but a genuine returning to God "that He may teach us His ways and that we may walk in His paths." (Isaiah 2:3) Ananias's greatest strength must still come from within by reason of its faith in the truths of God.

Parliamentary Notebook

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP)—Some New- Democrats view the increase in their party's share of the popular vote to a record 13 per cent as conclusive proof that the NDP has emerged from splinter status to become a national force.

In terms of Commons seats though not in the Nov. 8 election—it was the high of 25 achieved in 1945 by the old CCF—the NDP's predecessor will be built of these were elected in the Diefenbaker landslide of 1958.

The party's share of the popular vote that year was 15.6 per cent.

Most people say they are in a stronger position now than in 1945. Stanley Knowles, party whip in the last Parliament, has termed the election result a "major breakthrough."

Some others close to the top do not go that far in off-the-record discussions. One popular view is that the Nov. 8 vote may have set the stage for a breakthrough that is still on the horizon.

This in-party view is that the NDP—if all goes well—could form the official opposition after the next election and take office in the vote after that.

THINKS AHEAD

That could be eight or 10 years away in an electionweary country. However, party officials already are thinking ahead.

There is a tentative plan to step up organizing efforts with special emphasis on Quebec and the Maritimes. The party vote went up in these two regions but was not translated into seats.

Renewed emphasis on organizing would mean more full-time organizers in the field with more money devoted to this purpose. The organizers would be sent out on the Ontario pattern, one to a region, that may within two or more constituencies.

The placing of an organizer in the Northern Ontario riding of Nickel Belt and Sudbury some time ago is regarded as a factor in the NDP's upset victory in Nickel Belt and the doubling of its vote in Sudbury.

Headquarters is also planning to promote two-a-year provincial membership drives such as those that produced short increases in party card-carriers in Ontario and Saskatchewan. This has the added benefit of bringing money in through dues.

FINANCES GOOD

Officials say the party raised and spent $1,000,000 at all levels in the Nov. 8 campaign, but still emerged in fairly good financial health.

The NDP-CCF has had its ups and downs since its first federal electoral test in 1935. In that year it got 8.9 per cent of the vote. It was about the same in 1940, rising to 15.6 per cent in 1945.

Then it began a period of decline, reaching a post-war low of 9.5 in 1958—the year the Conservative landslide reduced the party's seats to a low of eight. The vote share rose to the 13-per-cent range in 1962 and 1963.

Now buoyed by its record share of the vote Nov. 8, the NDP hopes to continue the upward trend, eventually supplanting either the Conservatives or the Liberals as a national party.

The first hope to get off to a fast start in this direction under Leader T. C. Douglas with a good performance in the new session of Parliament starting Jan. 18. A party caucus is set for Montreal in the capital to discuss strategy.

Fish Deepsea Crabs in Gulf

HALIFAX (CP)—A species of deepsea crab is being fished on an experimental basis in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and federal fisheries officials are studying the feasibility of a commercial venture.

The crabs, chionoecetes opilio, belong to the spider crab family and inhabit waters ranging from 200 to 2,000 feet in depth. They are larger and much meatier than the rock crab common to inshore waters along the Canadian Atlantic coast.

Ross E. S. Romans, acting Maritimes director of federal fisheries, says the experimental project "is an interesting development in Atlantic coast fishing and might have a future." However, he says it is still too early to assess the project's potential.

A vessel out of Chetlcamp, N.S., is fishing the deepsea crabs in the gulf between Cape Breton Island and the Magdalen Islands. Concentrations of the crabs are estimated to be several miles long and about six miles wide.

They are currently fished by otter trawls and seine nets, but Louis E. Devereux of Halifax, industrial development service engineer, says "we are trying to arrive at the most economical way of fishing these crabs."

The deepsea variety yields meat similar to lobster in taste and texture but the time required to shuck the meat is nearly half that for the rock crab.

The federal and Nova Scotia fisheries departments are co-operating in the experiment.

Chinese Trio Defect to Formosa Today

TAIPEI (AP)—Three Chinese Communist airmen defected to Nationalist China today and flew their Ilyushin-28 jet bomber to Formosa the Chinese Nationalist defence ministry announced.

Two of the airmen were injured, one seriously, in landing the plane at an air force base in North Formosa, the ministry said.

The three were identified as pilot Lee Hsien Ping, a native of Shantung province; navigator Lee Tsai Wang, of Szechwan province; and radio operator Lien Pao Sheng, of Hopei. The navigator and the radio operator were injured, the navigator seriously.

The plane skidded off the runway during the landing because of bad weather and the crew's lack of familiarity with the terrain, a defence ministry official said.

The jet belonged to the 22nd group of the Communist Chinese air force's 8th Division, the announcement said.

Under a long-standing offer for defectors, the three airmen will be entitled to share a reward of 4,000 ounces of gold valued at $140,000.

The IL-28 bomber was the third Communist Chinese plane delivered by defectors to Nationalist China. It was considered their most important catch so far.

Two Communist pilots, Shao Hsi Yen and Kao Yu Chung, defected in a crop-dusting plane in September, 1961. Liu Cheng Sur defected in a MIG-15 jet in March, 1962.

Antelope Conservation Work Makes Open Season Possible

By DON MacLACHLAN

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta antelope hunters can thank a one-year conservation program for the 1965 season.

Without a licence quota program, Alberta likely would have had to follow Saskatchewan in calling off the season because of "grim" winter kill, says biologist Dr. George Mitchell of the fish and wildlife department.

After the cruel winter of 1947-48, the pronghorn population in Alberta built up to the point where more than 21,000 were counted in aerial surveys last year. Only 16,200 were spotted this spring.

Many antelope died in Alberta and others moved into Saskatchewan and Montana. Hundreds more died there as deep snow covered feed.

Since 1956 the fish and wildlife department has estimated each year how many antelope it can "afford" to have killed. A limited number of hunting permits is issued on the basis of this estimate.

Dr. Mitchell says licences for this year's week - long season ending Oct. 30 were issued for an estimated kill of 3,600 antelope. This compares with about 4,300 last year.

"We couldn't even have done that without ensuring an adequate population by controlling hunting on the licence and area basis," he says.

The resultant breeding success is taken into account when planning the "allowable harvest" in each zone.

AREA WIDENED

Up to 1956, antelope hunting was permitted in only a small area in extreme southeastern Alberta. Since then, it has been extended to an area of about 170 miles by 150 miles.

Some 8,700 hunters applied for 1964 licences, issued on a draw-from-the-hat basis. A total of 3,720 were successful. This year, 12,600 persons applied and 4,700 got permits.

"Hunter success is quite high for antelope," Dr. Mitchell says. We figure it's between 80 and 82 per cent. With this number (4,700 permits) we estimate the harvest hopefully at about 3,600."

The permissible kill was slightly increased in some zones, particularly around Brooks, 100 miles southeast of Calgary, a once - closed area gradually being "broken in" to pronghorn hunting.

But in others figures were sharply reduced. In one south-central Alberta zone, the estimated harvest was cut by 270 from 970 and in another, farther north, by 375 from 750.

"The winter kill was pretty grim in some areas," Dr. Mitchell says. "We lost 5,000 animals, though some of those were through migration. We could have had no season at all."

Saskatchewan has a fledgling scheme which operates on the same lines, Dr. Mitchell says, but "I guess it hasn't really been going long enough to be effective yet."

Hunters can list the zones in which they want to hunt in order of preference on their applications, thus getting "more than one kick at the cat" in the draw for permits.

ONE SHOT WON CASH

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—Jim Dunham was hunting when a small white-tailed deer dashed through a clearing. Before he could take aim, a wolf appeared, also hunting. Dunham across Canada from about 500 shot the wolf instead of the deer and collected a $15 bounty before going back to the woods to track the deer.

SUNDAY OBSERVANCE

The traditional observance of Sunday in our community has changed rapidly in recent years. The new freedoms our citizens enjoy make it necessary for each one to decide how far-reaching these privileges will become. Next Monday each citizen will decide whether or not he wishes commercial interests to encroach still further on Sunday. Because we believe that the financial gain for controlling interests outside our community is not a real mark of progress and because we believe that such a step will encourage other commercial enterprises to seek similar privileges so that before long we shall have a "wide-open" Sunday, we ask each one to vote against Sunday movies.

EXPERIENCE

I have served you for six years as Alderman from 1950 to 1956. All told I have served 12 years as a member of your Parks Commission. During my term as alderman I served as Chairman of many Committees when Belleville was governed by the Committee System of Government.

I was Chairman of the three man Committee set up to reclaim Victoria Park, which then was three quarters washed away owing to high water.

I was Chairman of planning for the city, and zoned the old City of Belleville and introduced Belleville's first official plan. My committee was responsible for bringing some 5,000 additional acres through annexation to the city. I stayed in Council long enough to see the City Manageship form of Government replace the old Committee system.

THE PRESENT SITUATION

Since large areas have been annexed to the City, I would like to inform you just what caused Belleville's tremendous residential growth. It certainly was not the expansion of Industry, as Belleville has the lowest Industrial assessment in Ontario. Approximately 11% Belleville's growth over the years has been caused by our role as a market place. Our Commercial Assessment has been as high as 33½ %, and has served in a radius of 25 miles approximately 150,000 people.

The Government pay roll is large from personnel at the R.C.A.F., living in Belleville. There are quite 200 Commercial travellers living in Belleville.

The Government at its various levels is probably the largest employer in the area. However a further change in the world situation or in military strategy could cause a local recession. As an example, we thought we had a new industry, Northern Electric on Adam Street but the government cancelled the contract.

The trend today is to shop outside our city. Our Commercial Assessment has dropped from 33½ to 27%. Residential has risen to 61%. Although this is not too serious so far, it has established a trend that could be serious. I believe that a definite trend has been established and we are making a big mistake if we don't act now. We must have a strong influx of Industry to create wealth within our city.

I would like to make Belleville an Industrial city. It is necessary at this time. I will consider your vote for me an expression that Industry is necessary to stabilize Belleville's sagging economy.

MY PROGRAM FOR THE FUTURE.

My Three way attack for the progress of Belleville will be:

1. A reorganization of the Industrial Commission which will return control of this vitally important body from a vested minority, to the people of Belleville.

2. One of the most important steps is to secure a Junior Trade School to take care of students from the seventh grade up. There they can learn skilled trades that could fit in with gainful employment in new Industry and expanding present Industry.

3. I would introduce a motion to apply for a full fledged University for Belleville. With an ever rising young population and with free tuition looming on the horizon, the demands for University Education are increasing every year.

The City of Belleville, as one of the largest communities between Toronto and Montreal, should be a leader in Educational facilities.

A University in Belleville would encourage more high school graduates from this area to attain the higher qualification necessary in today's competitive market. It would enable them to attend at minimum cost, and serve as an attraction for new industry. Also the opportunity of following their careers in their home city.

Only 50 miles away, we have seen the City of Kingston, which acquired Queen's University when it was only a fraction of the size of Belleville. Since then Queen's University has not only contributed to the culture of Kingston, but has also poured millions of dollars of revenue into that flourishing city. Similar benefits are being enjoyed through Trent University at Peterborough, and also at Waterloo University.

If elected I will recommend to Council that our representatives at Toronto and Ottawa immediately take action in applying for a charter to build a University here in Belleville.

British Pastime Changes To Competitive Business

By RON HOWARD

LONDON (CP)—Profit, sentiment and a chance to board a bit of gold around the house legally have turned the once obscure pastime of collecting commemorative medals into a competitive business, with British dealers shipping their wares around the world.

Less than two years ago four or five large London firms produced most of the British medals honoring important persons and major historical events.

But the untimely death of President John Kennedy in 1963 and the passing of Sir Winston Churchill this year prompted persons never before interested in medals to buy them, especially after they watched values double and triple within months of issue.

Further interest has been sparked this year by a series of important British anniversaries, among them the 750th of the signing of the Magna Carta, the 700th of Simon de Montfort's first parliament and the 25th of the RAF's Battle of Britain.

PRICES VARY

Now more than a score of British firms are striking medals in gold, silver and bronze with retail prices ranging from £1 ($3) for a 1¼-inch bronze Churchill disc to £120 ($360) for a four-ounce gold medal commemorating England's first parliament in 1265.

One range of Churchill medals—they vary among companies as to price, size, design and quality of workmanship—completely bought out earlier this year at £50 for a set of three now is being offered in North America at £190 a set.

Another firm which struck Churchill medals shortly after the statesman's death in January now is willing to pay 50 per cent over the original price to get them back.

A set of three Kennedy medals sold in Britain for £30 in February and five months later were commanding a price of more than £140.

Most manufacturers issue only a limited number of each medal — usually between 1,000 and 1,500 in gold and up to 5,000 in silver—thus giving them a built-in scarcity factor. They are all numbered and when the issue is sold, the dies are destroyed or locked away, assuring the purchaser that what he buys will not be duplicated.

The director of one of Britain's largest and oldest medallists said in an interview that not all medals are snapped up immediately by the public.

"Our medal commemorating the 750th anniversary of the Magna Carta was a poor seller because it recalled an event too long ago to be of any acute interest to the general public," he said.

"On the other hand, we had no trouble selling 10,000 single Churchill medals and an additional 1,300 set of four. A large quantity of them were exported but I would imagine their rarity value would be acute in Canada because we ship all over the world."

In addition to steadily mounting prices and sentimental values attached to coins bearing the heads of famous persons, the opportunity to have gold around the house without breaking the law intrigues some medal buyers.

The law states that no person other than an authorized dealer may buy, borrow, sell or lend gold. But within the meaning of the legislation the term "authorized dealer" is taken to include genuine collectors.

One firm even advertises: "Have your own gold reserve."

Ottawa Federal District Viewed From French Angle

OTTAWA (CP)—The oft-discussed idea of a federal district for Ottawa raises the question of advantages or disadvantages for 200,000 of the 650,000 French-Canadians in Ontario.

So far only an unofficial discussion stage has been reached about a federal district similar to that of Washington. It would be 40 miles in diameter and would include the cities of Hull, Que., Eastview and Ottawa and at least a dozen other communities. Total population would be more than 400,000.

The subject is discussed in an article in La Vie Franco-Ontarienne (French - Ontario Life), published by L'Association Canadienne - francaise d'Education d'Ontario (The French-Canadian Educational Association of Ontario).

Dr. Seraphin Marion writes that creation of a federal district would transform overnight the lives of the 200,000 French-Ontarians in the area. He says that while in the past the 650,000 French-defined in Ontario have been struggling to maintain their heritage identity against 10-to-1 odds, there would be an entirely new situation in what, in effect, would be an 11th province.

The political structure would be unique. In the area 42 per cent of the population would be French-speaking, 58 per cent English-speaking; 60 per cent would be Roman Catholic; 40 per cent non-Catholic.

The conditions would be ideal to have in the heart of the country an entity that would be essentially integrated at the bi-ethnic and bilingual level," Dr. Marion says.

EXAMPLE FOR CANADA

Although small, the area could serve as an example to the rest of the country—how it is possible for the two founding peoples to work together "in peace, harmony and understanding."

But the 200,000 French-Ontarians in the federal district "would cease to be Ontarians," and this would weaken the quantity and quality of the strength held by the French-Ontarian in his struggle to avoid being absorbed by the English-speaking population.

Among other things, says Dr Marion, L'Association Canadienne - francaise d'Education d'Ontario would have to move its headquarters from Ottawa to Toronto, "which is the personification of clericalism, anti-Catholicism and hatred of the French!"

Dr. Marion says there are 60,000 French-Canadians living in Toronto and 225,000 in the area bounded by Niagara Falls, Georgian Bay and Windsor.

"With the creation of a federal district, French-Ontarians rightly say they would lose the University of Ottawa but would still have the University of Sudbury, Cornwall and Hearst already have bilingual schools. There is need to establish a bilingual college in the Windsor district."

Dr Marion says the loss of 200,000 French-Ontarians to a federal district could cause the remaining 450,000 to despair and wallow in apathy. He urges them, although the struggle would appear difficult and unrewarding, to continue their efforts toward maintaining their identity.

Russian Toys Are Similar To Those Here

MOSCOW (AP) — Kids here like the toys that kids like in the West—guns, trains, dolls and the like.

This is apparent at a toy exposition being held here.

Christmas is no longer a real holiday here, and toys are distributed at New Year's. Otherwise, much is the same East and West. There are decorated pine trees. In place of Santa Claus, Father Frost appears in the stores. He is the same rosy-cheeked character who gave toys to children under the czar.

Not a single toy in the whole exhibit—over a block long—speaks of revolution or of the promised arrival of communism.

So young visitors show their fascination with the same gadgetry found in toy stores in North America, Britain, Italy, France or Germany.

A little brown-haired boy was entranced by a wooden Pinocchio, pointed hat, pointed nose and all. Another, a little older, peered under a metal builder set.

WOOD AND PLASTIC

Most of the toys on display in the exposition and in store windows are plastic or wood. Plastic dolls bang in profusion along the walls.

The impression of Western toy fanciers is that the quality of toys here is a long reach below those found in West Germany and Japan but the patterns are the same. A toy tank has the same trick that came out in Germany a dozen years ago. It runs around a table without falling off.

A little mechanical man periodically tosses a fried egg into the air from a little frying pan, and about every third throw it goes flying off at a tangent and doesn't fall back into the pan. As a toy, it is less monotonous that way.

There are guns, and ranks of toy soldiers, and little red wagons.

might be turned down since the U.S. is a member of NATO and would back its British ally.

To call in the Soviet Union, he added, would result in an ideological war which he did not want.

DENIES REPORT

(In Salisbury, a government spokesman today denied a report by the pro - government Weekly Express saying Prime Minister Ian Smith had confirmed reports of a plan by the Rhodesian government to blow up the Kariba dam, which supplies power from Zambia's copperbelt, if troops from Britain or other African states attempted to invade Rhodesia.

(However, the spokesman did not deny that such a plan had been drawn up. Ill' existence was first disclosed in Salisbury Thursday night by a highly-placed government source.)

Kaunda has been calling for British troops to occupy installations on both the Zambian and Rhodesian sides of the Kariba dam.

Britain has refused to send troops to take over the power plant on the Rhodesian side, but Prime Minister Wilson has said Britain would not stand idly by if Rhodesia cut off Zambia's power supplies.

The RAF planes arriving in Lusaka today were intended to guard Zambia's main airfields in Livingstone and the copperbelt town of Ndola as well as the one in Lusaka, the capital.

TRANSPORT ARRIVES

A Britannia transport carrying equipment arrived this morning in Lusaka and several Argosy freight - carriers followed. Lusaka is 85 miles from the Rhodesia border.

A squadron of RAF Javelin jet fighters, waiting in Kenya since Wednesday, was scheduled to land later in the day at Ndola, 300 miles north of Rhodesia.

Under an arrangement accepted by Kaunda, Britain will send additional four - engine transports to Ndola to beef up Zambia's air defences.

Kaunda said that so far the planes were in Zambia only to protect the country's airspace and not to protect the nation on the ground.

He said if Zambian troops had been sent to guard the Kariba dam, which is operated by the Rhodesians, the move could have provoked a shooting war. Kaunda added he was trying to avert a war and was trying to make Britain realize it alone could do that.

CONTROL AIRPORTS

Informed sources said the RAF planes and Zambia's airports would be under British control. They declined to say how many men of the RAF Regiment would accompany the planes.

In London, Prime Minister Wilson told the House of Commons: "The presence of the Royal Air Force will be a very important factor in helping cool down the situation." Their official mission is to provide air defence for Zambia—so that other African nations won't send planes in.

Commonwealth Secretary Arthur Bottomley was winding up talks in Lusaka with Kaunda and his ministers over conditions for the stationing in Zambia of British troops.

A diplomatic source said Kaunda may agree to have the troops positioned in the hills overlooking the dam, where they would be ready to go into action if Rhodesia cut off the power supply to Zambia.

The white-minority regime in Rhodesia, which defiantly declared independence from Britain Nov. 11, has repeatedly said it does not intend to cut off the power. But Britain and Zambia fear that Rhodesia might do this in retaliation for the economic boycott Britain imposed.

WANT TROOP CONTROL

The British were reported insisting that they control all ground forces in Zambia—even any troops which might be sent by other African nations. Kaunda has been pressured by the Organization of African Unity to accept forces from Ghana, Tanzania and possibly the United Arab Republic.

OAU delegates arrived in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, for an emergency conference on the Rhodesian crisis. Wilson is worried that a wide-scale war may break out if the OAU tries to take African military action against Rhodesia.

(In Moscow, the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda today said the dispatch of British troops to Zambia would really be a move to defend the rebel Rhodesian regime from joint action by African countries.

(The paper said it was not surprising that the Rhodesian prime minister was delighted by the move.)

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate

"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

A repeated complaint from readers concerns misrepresentation by brokers, sellers, attorneys and others. This letter is typical. The answer, it is hoped, will help readers distinguish between true misrepresentation and mere sales talk.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: After several months the hurt is nearly gone but I still get my story. When I bought my house practically everyone lied to me, yet no one feels the least bit apologetic.

The broker told me it was a very nice neighborhood — it isn't. The seller told me the neighbor was generous people—you can't borrow a cup of sugar without leaving your right arm for deposit. My attorney told me the mortgage bank was friendly — be a few days late on a payment and the threatening letters start. I could tell you of many other misrepresentations made to me. I'm just a mere layman, but is my treatment a normal way of doing business? — Wondering

ANSWER: You have raised the interesting question of what is misrepresentation. Let me give you an esperts opinion (and also for benefit of our readers) tell you how to sort fact from fiction.

Since time immemorial, salesmen have tried to present their product in a favorable light. A sales presentation involves generalizations (such as it is a nice neighborhood, the neighbors are friendly, etc.) and factual information (such as a roof does not leak, the house has no termites, etc.).

Generalizations usually either have no precise meaning or the truth cannot be proved. They are rather personal evaluations. Attorneys will tell you that a court can or will protect an individual from the folly of relying on generalizations of this type.

However, if the broker, seller or attorney or anyone else for that matter, misstated factual information then he is guilty of misrepresentation. If this is the case many legal remedies are available through an attorney. The complaints of our readers, however, appear to be all of the generalization variety.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We have a small park-for our neighborhood. It's supposed to be a park but actually it is a hangout for all types of unsavory characters — drunks, bums and all sorts of delinquents. Nobody in our neighborhood dares let children loose in this so-called park.

Our city council now plans to enlarge the park. All owners of the properties are against this project. Planning experts, however, have spoken to us and told us that we are wrong. After listening to their lectures for several months, I have been designated by a Civic Association to get your opinion. — Not an Expert.

ANSWER: The planning experts are giving you the textbook answer. They have been taught that a park is always a beneficial improvement and they believe it. Unfortunately, the textbook answer and the practical answer do not agree in this situation.

In low-income areas, a small park often becomes the focal point — attracting disreputable characters from a wide area. Property values in the immediate area suffer. Often, it is responsible for the more stable families fleeing the area. Since the small park has been a source of blight in your neighborhood, I agree that enlarging the park may create an enlargement of the problem.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: All my secrets are out! My real estate agent did it. Now I am ashamed to face my friends.

After 32 years of marriage I decided I've had enough. Besides, my daughter was in trouble and my son had left home after an argument to enlist in the armed forces. I resolved to sell the house and leave town. I told the agent all about my problems and the reasons for selling.

He placed an ad in our newspaper giving persuasive arguments why the house had to be sold in a hurry. You never saw such a mob. People tramped through the house all day and curiously seekers caused a traffic jam. With such a crowd, of course, the house was sold the first day.

Now I'll have to leave town. Everyone stares and whispers as I go by. What do you think of the agent who caused all the trouble? — Good -Bye Home Town

ANSWER: It's difficult to quarrel with success. Selling a house on the first day is quite an accomplishment. By many, your agent's technique is considered dynamic merchandising. However, he is guilty of an impropriety. The code of ethics most real estate groups provide is that a broker must not disclose the reasons for selling without the seller's permission.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: How do you remove wallpaper from plaster board walls and ceiling? I have been told that if it is not done the right way you can ruin the plaster board. Over the years, five layers of wallpaper have been put on the walls and ceilings. They are all in proper condition. — Two-Armed Paperhanger

ANSWER: Take great care not to use too much water. Use just enough water to soften the wallpaper paste so that the paper can be pulled easily in sheets and scraped off with a putty knife. If you use too much water, you will loosen the paper backing of the plaster board.

After you take off the wallpaper, the plaster board will have a rough surface. It is best to smooth out this surface before applying new wallpaper. Let the plaster board dry thoroughly, then apply a thin coat of shellac or varnish, let this dry and then rub lightly with fine sandpaper.

If you attempt to sandpaper without the shellac or varnish coat you will tear the soft fibres of the paper backing on the plaster board.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

STRESS NATIONALISM

De Gaulle has asked for "frank and massive support" for his policies of French nationalism, independence of U.S. leadership in foreign policy, and a brake on moves toward European unity in the Common Market.

He has accused his opponents of being latter-day representatives of the Fourth Republic; which he replaced in 1958, while he presents himself as representing order and stability.

The opposition has, to varying degrees, affirmed its support of the Common Market and NATO and its opposition to de Gaulle's independent nuclear strike force. All have accused the president of bringing stagnation, not stability, and of neglecting social reform.

Canada Casting Doubt For Means to Establish Contact With Red China

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAW A(CP) —Canada is casting about for some means to help establish a diplomatic channel, even a shaky one, between the United Nations and Communist China, informed sources say.

External Affairs Minister Martin explored the subject last week in a talk with UN Secretary-General U Thant and UN President Fanfani in New York.

Mr. Martin drew to Mr. Thant's attention his Nov. 17 statement explaining Canada's no vote in the UN General Assembly on the admission of Red China.

Mr. Martin said at that time: "We hope that some means may be found by which further clarification could be obtained as to the intentions of (Communist) China regarding membership in the UN and the way it is dealt with again in the General Assembly."

The minister said in an interview Thursday that he believes it is necessary for the UN and its members to find out whether it is possible to ascertain the views of China on the UN, Formosa and the war in Viet Nam.

MAY BE POSSIBLE

It is understood that Mr. Martin feels that it might be possible to use existing diplomatic links between China and some other countries as a channel for an exchange of views between China and the UN and all its members.

Informants said the Canadian government believes that, somehow or other, China must be persuaded to take part in the world disarmament conference in 1966 or 1967.

They also said that the problem of Chinese membership in the UN always comes up at the General Assembly without any preparation or study. This year, China had laid down impossible conditions for admission at the last minute.

Some machinery should be established to look at the problem carefully before the UN had to deal with it again next year.

Informants said there has been some suggestion that Mr. Fanfani visit Red China but that, for the moment at least, this appears impracticable.

Robarts Plans No Changes In Cabinet

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts said Thursday he plans no changes in his cabinet before the start of the next session of the legislature in January.

Arriving home after a 10-day combined holiday and working trip abroad, Mr. Robarts said he will set the date for the opening of the 1966 session within the next few days.

But he put an end to speculation that a cabinet shuffle will precede the house opening, telling reporters who met him at Toronto International Airport:

"I really am not anticipating any changes before the session opens."

The premier said Metropolitan Toronto's future is the government's chief concern. He said he hoped he could resume consideration of the matter today.

The provincial cabinet has been considering the recommendations of the report on Metropolitan Toronto by H. Carl Goldenberg, a Montreal lawyer and municipal consultant. His report, released last June, recommended the 13 municipalities in Metropolitan Toronto be consolidated in four cities with continuance of the metropolitan form of government.

The main purpose of his trip to Britain was to promote immigration to Ontario from England and Scotland, he said.

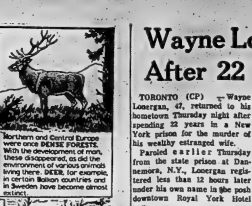
Acknowledging that the province has a shortage of skilled labor, Mr. Robarts said:

"I went over to see what I could do about it."

PREMIER IMPRESSED

He visited Ontario's new immigration centre in Glasgow and came away impressed with its effectiveness in persuading prospective immigrants to move.

Since January the two-man office, working in conjunction with federal immigration officials, had received requests from 6 Ontario companies for skilled help.



Of 509 applicants, 378 had left to travel to Ontario with prearranged jobs. The new office also processed about 1,100 immigrants without fixed jobs to come to.

Premier Robarts said the province may establish similar immigration offices in such industrial centres as Birmingham and Manchester.

While in England Mr. Robarts met trade officials to discuss possible increased sale of Ontario tobacco to Britain in light of sanctions imposed against Rhodesia by the British government.

The prospective British market was described by Mr. Robarts as "an artificially created one" because it depended upon the continued imposition of sanctions.

He called the tobacco marketing problem a complex one that he would begin to take up today with Agriculture Minister William Stewart.

Lake Shippers, Deck Officers To Hold Talks

MONTREAL (CP) — Negotiations open here today between representatives of lake shippers and the deck officers manning some 300 lake freighters, with the officers apparently respecting instructions from their union to remain on the job while talks continue.

Many of the 300 deck officers had been reported giving their companies, members of the Lake Carriers' Association, 48 hours notice of resignation in protest against delays in negotiating a new contract.

The 48 hours is all the notice they are required to give under terms of the Canada Shipping Act. The first of the resignations took effect at 2 p.m. Thursday, but no departure of any officer from any ship had been reported early today.

The deck officers apparently were respecting instructions from their union, the Canadian Merchant Service Guild (CLC), to remain at their posts while grievances are thrashed out at the bargaining table.

Guild members have been working without a contract since May, when their last contract, which had been in force since Jan. 1, 1963, expired.

The board of maritime trustees stepped in Thursday, met both guild and association representatives and asked the guild to advise its members to stay on duty.

Officers of the guild then used the radio-telephone services of the department of transport to ask their members—coast, second, third and fourth officers—to do so.

A majority report of a federal conciliation board released in Ottawa Thursday by Labor Minister MacEachen called illegal a new contract signed by the guild earlier this year with Upper Lakes Shipping of Toronto, in which the guild agreed not to sign with any other shipping company for lesser benefits.

But the report also urged that the other Great Lakes shipping companies agree to the same wage contract as Upper Lakes Shipping Ltd., a non-member of the Lake Carriers' Association, to maintain economic parity in the industry.

If accepted by the association this contract would give the deck officers a 15-per-cent wage increase over a three-year period.

SIGN REPORT

The conciliation board's report was signed by Trevor R. Smith, a Toronto labor consultant who acted as chairman and Henry G. Rhodes, a Canadian Labor Congress officer in Ottawa who was the union's nominee.

Ross Drouin, a Quebec City lawyer who was the association nominee, filed a minority report complaining that if the association members signed a contract with the guild based on the same contract as the Upper Lakes one, it would encourage the company to use the same tactics again of signing up one company and demanding that the other 40 per cent of the industry fall into line.

A tie-up of lake shipping at this time of year could mean that some ships would have to spend the winter away from their home ports.

The St. Lawrence Seaway is due to close officially at midnight tonight, but will be kept open for another week, weather permitting, to let the large number of ships still in transit downriver get out to the open sea. ...sion and the appeal is to be

Wayne Lonergan Comes Home After 22 Years in Prison

TORONTO (CP) — Wayne Lonergan, 47, returned to his hometown Thursday night after spending 22 years in a New York prison for the murder of his wealthy estranged wife.

Paroled earlier Thursday from the state prison at Dannemora, N.Y., Lonergan registered less than 12 hours later under his own name in the posh downtown Royal York Hotel here.

He had edged the Second World War off the front pages of Toronto's newspapers when he was arrested here Oct. 25, 1943, charged with the fatal clubbing in New York of the former Patricia Burton, granddaughter of a millionaire brewer. Her body had been found in her fashionable Manhattan apartment the previous night.

Lonergan was convicted of second-degree murder on evidence that he had killed his wife during a quarrel about each other's alleged infidelity. A candlestick was identified as the murder weapon.

But Lonergan told the New York State Supreme Court last spring he had been forced into signing a confession. The court rejected his bid to have his 35-years-to-life sentence set aside. His New York lawyer, Frances Kahn, has appealed the decision and the appeal is to be heard early next year.

Early Thursday, Lonergan was at work in the printing shop at the Dannemora prison when he was called to the warden's office and told he was to be paroled immediately.

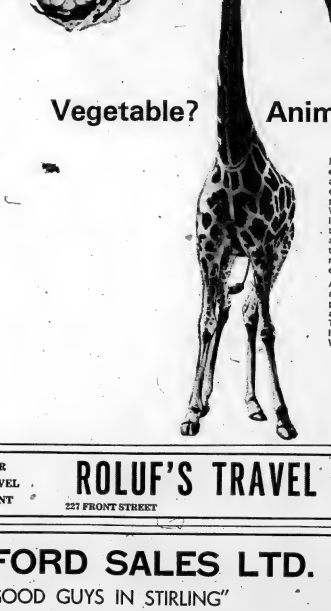
A short time later, flanked by two immigration officers, he was led out of the prison, into a car and taken to the international border where he crossed into Rouses Point, N.Y., about 35 miles southeast of Montreal.

He had a bus ticket to Toronto, where relatives live. But Scott Young, a columnist with The Toronto Globe and Mail who followed him from prison, picked him up at a bus depot and drove him to the Toronto hotel.

PLANS TRIP

Writing in The Globe and Mail, Mr. Young quotes Lonergan as saying he plans to seek a visa to go to England in a few weeks.

Questioned about the whereabouts of his son William who inherited his mother's $7,000,000 fortune, Lonergan said:



"Leave that boy alone. He's had enough troubles."

Lonergan said he wasn't seeking a share of his wife's wealth. Instead, he wanted his name cleared.

"I have money might have been what my lawyers had in mind, but as far as I'm concerned I'd like to get rid of the conviction. They got a bogus conviction against me and they know it and I just think they got away with it too easily."

Under terms of his parole, Lonergan is prohibited from re-entering the U.S. unless he is called to testify at his appeal.

"We want you to write a column" said a gravelly multi-warmed voice over the telephone, "about barring women from invading the north woods and shooting deer, bear, moose or perhaps somebody's husband."

The voice, it appeared, belonged to the spokesmen of a "bull-session" that had convened over a few foaming schooners to discuss the distaff side threat to their hunting superiority.

I discovered later it arose from a newspaper story that three young girls had passed a hunter safety test 100 per cent.

I plugged the "hot line" with the promise that something would be done about it, adding—after the line was dead—but not to their way of thinking.

The gals, God bless 'em, have as much right to don the backskins, bullet-proof vests, steel-lined leotards or whatever the Dianas wear when shunting they will go, as the man of the house

And it is a distinct feather in the feminine cap to see young girls take up the sport and prove by adaptibility shown by hunter safety test, they are as good and a heluva lot better than a lot of their male counterparts.

And we've got proof in the proven product. Mrs. Audrey Ann has been deer-hunting, in, these many years, with hubby Gordon and has brought down her doe or buck on numerous occasions.

Mrs. Lloyd Hicks, formerly of this city and now of Ottawa is one of the best sports hunters that ever downed a big bull in the far northern areas.

There are enough female anglers in the city and district—and good ones too—to start a Lady Isaac Walton fan club. The Belleville Fish and Game Club has a large number of women members.

And if they ever move the bowling alleys into the north woods with deer for pins, there'll be enough Dianas roughing it to fill a San Francisco convention hall.

Shucks, gentlemen, what have you got against the gals going into the woods and knocking off a buck or so? Besides, I'm told that some of them can draw to a pair or fill a bob-tail straight with the best of you poker sharks.

And would'nt the fact that the femmes are roaming the woods in search of game have some reducing effect on the number of hunting fatalities?

After all a lot of your ex-friends have been mistaken for a deer and sent to the happy hunting grounds. Whoever saw a deer galivanting through the woods garbed in a short frilly skirt or stretchy leotards?

I do not mean that the hunting virus will infiltrate milady's bloodstream overnight. Far from it. It will take hold gradually, what with teen-agers showing marked interest in the sport.

Among mature women—and men, too—there is a generally-held attitude that hunting is not socially O.K. for (the distaff side. It does not confer social status on a woman as does golfing or curling. And not many years ago neither golfing nor curling were considered women's sports.

Yet there are lots of women, especially those from across the pond who go for long walks in woods and fields. And no one would want to suggest that hunting skills are beyond a woman's ability to learn. The sensational success of three teen-age girls getting 100 per cent in hunter-safety examinations proves that beyond a doubt.

True, the north woods do not provide the clubhouse with its sociality and comforts that attract women to golf and curling. The male hunter has these in his hunting lodge, cottage and cabin.

Ontario abounds in natural habitats where men find great enjoyment and relaxation hunting in the great outdoors. And with more of the feminine gender showing interest in the sport, it looks like they have discovered they should have a share in it.

Petes Unbeaten in Nine

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Niagara Falls Flyers, losers of four in a row after going undefeated in their first 13 Ontario Hockey Association Junior A games this season, hope to snap out of it tonight.

The Flyers beat 6-2 to Peterborough Petes Thursday night while Hamilton Red Wings defeated St. Catharines Black Hawks 7-3.

The Petes ran their undefeated streak to nine, including seven wins and two ties, and pulled into a deadlock for second place with the Flyers. Each club has 23 points, one less than leading Oshawa Generals.

Danny Grant scored three goals for the Petes and ran his season total to 30, becoming the first player in the circuit to reach the 30-goal level. Dan Sharpe added two goals and Gord Tucker one. Niagara Falls markers went to John Arbour and Jean Pronovost.

Hamilton moved into sixth place a point ahead of Si Catharines as Eddie Hatoum scored three goals. Freddie Speck added a pair for the winners and Kevin Pettit and Danny Lawson one each. Richie Bayes scored twice for the Black Hawks and Kerry Bond once.

Ullman Gets 3-3 In Boston Rout

★★★★★ Rousseau Sidelined

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Detroit coach Sid Abel was angry Wednesday because dust prevented his team from having a full practice—but in Thursday night's National Hockey League game against Boston Bruins the Wings looked as though they didn't need a workout.

NORM ULLMAN

Before the game, which Detroit won 10-2, Abel said he was really mad about dust caused by a construction project at Detroit's Olympia Stadium.

About the only thing that fazed the Wings was an injury, taken by Gordie Howe after being presented with a floral wreath in honor of his 600th goal.

X-rays were taken of his instep where it was struck by a puck, but proved negative. The injury is not expected to keep him out of action.

But Norm Ullman seemed unaffected by the dust or lack of practice as he scored three goals and assisted on three others to spearhead the attack.

The six - point performance moved him to fourth from 11th spot in the individual scoring race and helped the Wings leap over Bruins and out of last place.

Bruce MacGregor added two goals for the Wings and Doug Barkley, Ron Murphy, Val Fonteyne, Alex Delvecchio, and Floyd Smith rounded out the scoring for Detroit.

PLAY WAS HAMPERED

Three of the goals came in the first period against regular Boston goalie Bernie Parent who was replaced at the start of the second by Gerry Cheevers. Parent's play was hampered by a hand injured in Wednesday night's game against Chicago which Boston lost 4-2.

In Thursday night's game, only John Bucyk and Murray Oliver beat Wings' goalie Roger Crozier.

Saturday, Bruins face Chicago Black Hawks at home, Detroit tackles with Toronto and Montreal takes on New York.

Bobby Rousseau, mainly responsible for the Canadiens' first - pla ce tie with Chicago, may not be able to start with Canadiens Saturday.

The scoring leader was sidelined for the third period at Chicago last Sunday by a groin ailment. The injury did not appear serious at the line but the 25-year-old right winger has been unable to scrimmage with the Habs this week.

Teammate Dick Duff turned up at practice with a sore shoulder Thursday. The left winger bruised the shoulder in collision during Wednesday's workout.

Sasky Honors Howe

REGINA (CP)—Gordie Howe, the National Hockey League's all-time leading scorer, will receive a painting of himself Saturday at the presentation to be made between periods during a hockey game at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens.

The painting, by Tex Coulter of Montreal, will be presented by Bill Sasky, executive director of the Saskatchewan Jubilee and Centennial Corporation, on behalf of the province.

Howe, 37, was born at Floral, Sask., and he received all his minor hockey training in Saskatchewan.

Cool Reception For Football TV

TORONTO (CP)—A proposal to televise Canadian college football in an East-West interlocking schedule met only lukewarm reaction among several athletic directors Thursday.

The Canadian Television Network (CTV) Thursday proposed to televise and subsidize college football for a five-year period beginning in 1967, putting up $500,000.

Ten teams were invited—University of British Columbia Thunderbirds, both the Calgary and Edmonton campuses of the University of Alberta, University of Saskatchewan Huskies, University of Manitoba Bisons, University of Western Ontario Mustangs, University of Toronto Blues, Queen's University Golden Gaels, McGill University Redmen and St. Francis Xavier University Asemen of Antigonish, N.S.

John Bassett, president of CFTO-TV, Toronto, and publisher of The Telegram, announced the plan and said he felt acceptance of the proposal is "almost certain" from the colleges invited.

"Athletic directors at the schools are enthusiastic," he said.

GUN JUMPED

But athletic directors at McGill, Western and Toronto indicated the announcement was premature.

And athletic directors at two schools not invited — Carleton University in Ottawa and Waterloo — criticized the method of selecting teams to take part.

Warren Steuves of University of Toronto said the proposal still was just an idea.

"It is not a fait accompli," he said. "It is still under consideration."

John Metras of Western agreed.

"So far it's just an idea," he said in London, Ont.

"It will need approval of the 10 members of the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association and by the universities," said Harry Griffith of McGill.

CRITICIZES COURSE

Keith Harris, athletic director at Carleton, said:

"I understand the network approached individual athletic directors of the universities involved. They should have gone to the governing body (the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union) which could have consulted with the schools and the network."

Harris said the deal is unfair because other schools may be deserving and worthy of admission in a year or two.

Bob Pelletier, athletic director at Ottawa University, said that choosing some teams and not considering others "is a sad affair."

Carleton and Ottawa are members of the Ontario Intercollegiate Football Conference.

Bassett said each of the invited teams would appear at the least once in the season. The 11 private stations making up the network would carry the games from coast to coast each Saturday afternoon. There would be nine Saturday broadcasts with the final one being the College Bowl championship game.

Bassett said CTV would consult with the Canadian Football League games.

Gary Goyer Gets Three For Perth

HAWKESBURY, Ont. (CP)—Hawkesbury Meteors defeated Perth-Smiths Falls Rideaus 9-4 Thursday in a St. Lawrence Senior Hockey League game.

Gary Goyer led the Perth-Smiths Falls team with three goals. A single was scored by Lyle Lillis.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Harness racing writers have selected Kerry Way and Romeo Hanover as the best two-year-old trotter and pacer, respectively, in the annual poll conducted by the U.S. Trotting Association.

Romeo Hanover was an easy winner in the pacer class, setting 104 first-place votes. Bonjour Hanover was second with 28 and Overstall 17.

Lucky Star Stable of Brooklyn and Morton Finder of New York City are joint owners of Romeo Hanover, trained by Jerry Silverman. The pacer won 13 of 16 starts and earned $146,947.

Bill MacFarland picked up two goals for Seattle, Larry Lund, Bill Dineen and Don Chic scored the others.

Los Angeles defenceman Howie Young was playing his first game in three weeks after a salary battle and a suspension.

Bill Orban and Leo Labine scored for Los Angeles.

Cassius Fighter Of Month

NEW YORK (AP)—Cassius Clay has been named Fighter of the Month by Ring Magazine for his performance in stopping Floyd Patterson in the second defence of his world heavyweight title.

Ernie Terrell of Chicago, recognized by the World Boxing Association as the heavyweight king, was advanced to the No. 1 challenger's post in the new rankings with Patterson dropping to No. 2. Karl Mildenberger of Germany advanced from sixth to fourth right behind George Chuvalo of Toronto, Terrell's most recent victim.

Says Legs Worth $250,000

NEW YORK (AP)—Heisman Trophy winner Mike Garrett alnited Thursday that it might take $250,000 to the college football's strongest running legs for the pros.

"If Y-erby (Billy Yerby, Michigan), a tackle, can get $250,000 for signing with New York Jets, don't see why I shouldn't think in those figures," said the star All-America halfback from Southern California.

Garrett in town to receive the Heisman award as the year's outstanding college gridder, said he is willing to weigh all offers before committing himself on where he would be working next year.

He was the No. 2 pick of Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League and the 4th selection of Kansas City Chiefs of the American Football League.

Could Bid For Winter, Summer Games

CALGARY (CP)—Canada is one of the few countries in the world that could make a successful presentation for both the 1972 Winter and Summer Olympic Games, Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal said Thursday.

Mayor Drapeau arrived in Calgary by air for a meeting with officials of Olympic '72, a Calgary-based group supporting the Banff-Lake Louise area for the 1972 Winter Olympic Games.

It was feared by some that the Calgary bid would be harmed by Montreal's intention to bid for the 1972 Summer Olympic Games.

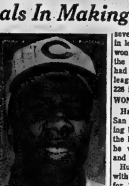
Mayor Drapeau told a press conference that the feeling Canada could make a successful bid was largely behind Montreal's application for the Summer Games.

Reds' Frank Robinson Trade Bait

Deals In Making

By RON SPEER

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Cincinnati is trying to swap off its big gun, slugging outfielder Frank Robinson, for players the Reds think might help them win the 1966 National League pennant.



"This is the biggest news of the week at the baseball meetings, in my opinion," said Bobby Bragan, manager of Atlanta Braves. "I didn't think the Reds would be willing to let Robinson go."

Bragan was involved in a major deal of his own that would give the Braves a relief pitcher they are seeking. The Braves and Kansas City Athletics are near agreement on a deal that would send relief ace Jack Wyatt of Kansas City to Atlanta for outfielder Rico Carty.

Rio" teams decided early this morning "to sleep on the deal" before making a final decision. Baltimore Orioles and Houston Astros are the clubs with which Cincinnati is known to have tried to work out deals for Robinson, but both rejected proposals by the Reds.

INVOLVES FOUR

Trades made, however, at the major league meetings Thursday sent Chicago Cub Outfielder Lindy McDaniel to San Francisco Giants in a four-player swap, and Baltimore first baseman Norm Siebern to California Angels for 22-year-old rookie outfielder Dick Simpson.

FRANK ROBINSON

Cincinnati wanted veteran pitcher Milt Pappas and a flashy rookie outfielder, Curt Blefary, from Baltimore, but the Orioles refused to give them up. Houston declined to send pitcher Larry Dierker and outfielder Jim Wynn to Cincinnati for the Reds' outfielder.

Robinson, 30, had a typical year in 1965 for the Reds, who finished fourth in the National League, batting .296 and hitting 33 home runs.

Reports that Robinson might be traded came in the wake of a deal that sent McDaniel and Jack Sanford to Landrum to San Francisco for pitcher Bill Hands and catcher Randy Hundley.

McDaniel, 29, who in the last seven years has never appeared in less than 55 games a season, won five games and lost six for the Cubs in 1965. Landrum, 29, had his best year in the big leagues last season when he hit 226 in 130 games.

WON EIGHT

Hands had a 0-0 record for San Francisco in 1965 after being brought up from Tacoma of the Pacific Coast League, where he won his first eight games and pitched six shutouts.

Hundley, a $90,000 bonus baby with the Giants in 1960, hit .240 for Tacoma last summer, but is considered a top defensive catcher.

National League owners rejected applications for 1966 major league franchises in Milwaukee and Dallas-Fort Worth, contending that "none of the applicants would be able to operate a franchise" by next summer.

They also renewed for two years their contract with league president Warren Giles.

Sports Columnist Bearded Hunter A Lady!

MONTAGUE CENTER, Mass. (AP)—Buck Masters—known to deer hunters as a rugged, bearded, hunter who crosses more have written and scores more have stalked the mighty hunting tips or the chance to go hunting with the great Buck Masters.

Mrs. Barbara Craven, with the Pioneer Valley Association, a tourist and industrial promotion organization, acknowledges that it was she who created Masters and is the author of all his advice to hunters.

She said she never signed her own name to the sport stories that appeared in several newspapers because "men won't listen to a woman regarding the masculine art of deer-stalking."

The stories, aimed at attracting hunters to Western Massachusetts and increasing the food and lodging business, would begin with a line such ass: "Well boys, it's just about time to start stalking the tracks."

Mrs. Craven said that as soon as Buck's annual column appeared she was deluged with mail and phone calls, and "the callers would always get such replies as Buck."

"Buck's out trailing. He doesn't come into the office often."

Sasky Junior Eyes NHL

Swede, 18, Is Puck Sensation

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — Juha Widing, 18-year-old import from Sweden, doesn't like the dances popular with Canadian teen-agers but he's all for this country's brand of hockey.

"You have to keep your head up, and that makes you a better player," said Widing, who has become the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League's latest scoring sensation.

The experts are even comparing the 173-pound centre with the fabulous Fran Buck, who scored a record 77 goals for Regina Pats in the 1963-64 SJHL campaign. Buck now is with Canada's national team in Winnipeg.

Widing, spotted in second-division ranks in Sweden, was grabbed by Jake Milford, then manager of Brandon Wheat Kings, in 1964. The blonde youth had happened to want to see more of the world, and a trip to Canada sounded fine.

He proved a valuable find, scoring 22 goals in his first 44 games with Wheat Kings. This season he's really rolling with 34 goals and 22 assists in 25 games to boost him into first place in the scoring race.

HAS SPEED

Juha had speed, a goal-mouth shift, good wrist and backhand shot and when he came to Canada but he credits current Brandon coach Eddie Dorohoy and Milford for creating the polish that has taken him to success.

"Over in Sweden we have no coaches. There are lots of good skaters and stickhandlers, but no one to show them how to be a good player."

Widing's target is the National Hockey League. "I want to make my living from hockey and I'm told I have a good chance of making it."

"There's no doubt about it," said Dorohoy.

If he doesn't, said Juha, "then I will return to Gothenburg as a coach. They really need coaches there, and Canadian coaches are paid very well."

In perfect English, the Swede —as his chumates call him—made brief comment on the Canadian way of life.

"I don't think too much of that canadian teen-agers dances . . .

'Mudcat' Delivers Ultimatum

FARGO, N.D. (AP)—Minnesota Twins pitcher Jim (Mudcat) Grant says he'll stay in the entertainment business if club president Calvin Griffith doesn't meet his baseball salary demands.

The 30-year-old right-hander wants $50,000 next season and said Thursday he'll hold out for that amount.

R.C.G.A. Appoints Director

TORONTO (CP)—The Royal Canadian Golf Association today announced the appointment of James F. Gaquin Jr. as its permanent executive director.

CONGRATULATIONS

It is congratulations to five of our bowlers who this week became winners in the singles division of the O'Keefe's Tournament both open and classified. In all divisions, both men and women, there were only 20 entries. As you will see from the results all of the so called big bowlers did not necessarily win. As far as can be ascertained now the other sections of the tournament are for men only. The results of the competitions in their sections are as follows.

Ladies Open - This section was won by Barb Ward with an 8 game total of 1390. Ladies Classified won by Jessie Hunter with 7 game totals of 563. Men's Open won by Jim Begley with an 8 game total of 1468 and Men's Classified had two winners Dave Burn 706, (294); and Reg Christopher 705, (150).

LADIE'S BIG TEN

Barb Ward	174
Marilyn Thurgood	167
Ruth Bateman	160
Grace Poste	158
Carm Millier	158
Barb Stone	157
Vi Bulmer	155
Audrey Hunchey	153
Kaye Rutherford	153
Millie Smith	153

FROM HERE AND THERE

The Major "A" Monday night saw the high single for the year tied as Bob Long rolled a neat 256 to tie Ann Watkin for the lead. In the Men's Classic Roots Poste with a 346 leads "A" bowlers. Bowlers see Bob Liseum with 222 in front and for "C" bowlers Ray Penney with 227 is high. In Ladie's Wednesday PM League Millie Smith's 221 continues to hold up. In the Bowlers League Maxine Messer with 234 and J. Hunter with 220 were really belting those pins. In the Ladie's Classic Grace Poste's 275 leads in the "A" section, "B" section leader is Betty Ling with 220 and "C" section finds Bev Birdie the leader with 181. In the Northern Electric Mixed League last week Eileen Kuening with 221 took over the lead, Eileen's average is something less that a 105 so she will be eligible for the Century Crest. Lou Canning's ham's 272 will take a lot of beating.

COMING EVENTS

Starting the 19th of December and running until the 22nd of December will be a Turkey Shoot. It is a single game affair with Handicap for both ladie and gentlemen bowlers. Turkeys will be distributed on a one winner for every ten bowlers.

Also just-in is a "Bowl Your Way to Europe Tournament." It is set up in 2 sections "A" and "B" so that high and low averages bowlers will get a chance and is a high game of the month in league play.

Also any men that are going to go into the Eastern Ontario Classic Tournaments had better get the application in so that they will be ready for the first Tournament on January 16th, 1966.

Aces Trim Vancouver

QUEBEC (CP)—Don Blackburn's two goals led Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League to a 4-1 victory over Vancouver Canucks of the Western League in an interlocking AHL-WHL game Thursday night.

Leon Rochefort and Ed Hoekstra rod the other goals for the American League leaders. Billy McNeill saved the Canucks from a shutout with his goal at 17:53 of the second period.

It was the first game of a six-game tour of Eastern Canada by the Vancouver team.

Oshawa, Rollins Here Tonight

Oshawa Crushmen, the OHA Eastern Junior "B" loop leaders, will make their initial appearance of the season against Belleville Rollins Construction here tonight.

Game time is nine o'clock, at Memorial Arena.

The Crushmen are coached by Ted O'Connor, well known here from his senior hockey days with the Whitby Dunlops. O'Connor has a powerful junior squad that will take some beating.

Rollins will be going all out to turn the trick before their home fans, however, and the game should be a thriller.

Paul Smith, who has turned in two strong games in the Belleville nets, is likely to get the starting assignment again tonight.

A large crowd is expected.

WANTS NAMES GIVEN

TORONTO (CP) — Mayor Philip Givens said Thursday he will order release of the names of nine landlords and a tenant who have been charged by the city in the first test of a standard-of-housing bylaw passed by council last July. The buildings department has refused to release the names of the defendants, several of whom are to appear in court Dec. 14.

Truck Building Booming

DETROIT (AP)—U.S. truck builders grabbed off a king sized share of the booming motor vehicle market this year. Preliminary indications are that a record high 1,750,000 trucks and buses will have been built when 1961 comes to an end.

The over-all, continued prosperity of the truck - building business was reflected in sales figures which showed this would be the fourth consecutive year in which more than 1,000,000 units were sold.

Before truck sales took off on the million-plus pace in 1962, there were only three previous years in which 1,000,000 trucks were sold—1948, 1950 and 1951.

Official registration figures compiled by R. L. Polk and Co., industry statisticians, showed registration in the first eight months this year passed the 1,000,000 mark with 1,003,003 commercial vehicles registered. On that basis, total sales for this year are expected to hit about 1,500,000 units, biggest in history.

In years past, the truck business was erratic, with the trend generally seeing sales up one year and down the next.

GAINS STABILITY

That has been reversed, however, and the trucking end of the business has a new stability.

Added to the optimistic outlook are recent great improvements in trucks and engines—economy of operation, greater dependability, more power and greater speeds and increased hauling capacity. The sum total would seem to be a greater need for trucks in the immediate future and that is what Detroit is banking on.

Chevrolet and Ford are waging a red hot tussle for the No. 1 truck sales spot with Chevrolet in the lead, according to eight-month registration figures compiled by Polk.

They showed Chevy had registered 373,333 commercial vehicles with 313,903 for Ford. At the comparable point a year ago, Chevrolet led by a margin of 330,286 to 271,198.

On a percentage basis, that meant Ford had increased its share of this year's market to 31.49 per cent, compared with 29.64 last year. Chevy has 37.22, compared with 36.42 last year.

Drought Cut Aussie Production

By LESLIE MURPHY

SYDNEY, N.S.W. (Reuters)—The five-state drought that has gripped Australia for the last year has resulted in an alarming drop in rural production.

Charles Adermann, Australian minister for primary production says output this year will be below that in any of the last three years. Exports would also be lower.

The hardest - hit states are Queensland, New South Wales and the Northern Territory. The only two not affected by the drought are Western Australia and Tasmania.

The wheat crop alone is expected to be at least 190,000,000 bushels below that of last year. This means a reduction in wheat export earnings of £70,000,000 Australian ($156,800,000).

New South Wales wheat areas have been the hardest hit.

LIVESTOCK HIT HARD

In Queensland and Northern Territory, thousands of head of livestock have perished. Figures released recently by the Queensland primary industry department put sheep losses at 25,000, and cattle losses at 152 since March.

Broadly, the drought area extends over the whole of the Northern Territory, through the entire western half of Queensland and New South Wales, the arid northern half of South Australia and the northwestern wheat-growing lands of Victoria.

Usually - rich grazing land, these areas are in danger of becoming a no - man's land, stripped by the drought and by the lack of financial support.

The Australian government has come under fire from New South Wales and Queensland, particularly for its reluctance to come to the aid of farmers after 12 months without rain.

SOME IMPROVEMENT

In the southern states, the stock position has improved in recent weeks as light rainfalls have brought on summer grass and some crops.

But the rain came too late to save the wheat harvests.

The Australian Wheat Board estimates that this season's total Australian harvest may be 200,000,000 to 250,000,000 bushels below last year's harvest of 370,000,000 bushels.

Only Western Australia may save the situation. There, conditions have been excellent and a record harvest is expected.

The over-all harvest is likely to be the lowest since 1957-58.

In the northwestern area, which produced 60,000,000 bushels last year, there will be practically no harvest this year. The whole area is expected to yield less than 1,000,000 bushels—not enough even for stock feed.

In Victoria, the wheat harvest is expected to drop from 72,000,000 bushels last year to between 50,000,000 and 60,000,000 bushels this year.

ONLY SURVIVOR?

MANILA (AP)—Kip McKeever, 25, of Calgary, was believed Thursday night the only survivor among 14 men aboard a 9,500-ton oil installation platform that broke in two and capsized in the South China Sea while being towed by a Dutch tug.

... By HAROLD MORRISON ...

LONDON (CP) —Lady Isabella Fyfe-Jamieson, a Wimpole Street obstetrician, says a lot of Canadian drug addicts whom she has treated have slipped out of London without paying their bills.

"Some are jolly good," the elderly, white-haired doctor said in an interview. "I've got one who is cured, is married and has two homes here in Britain.

"But with some of the others, I've had an awful experience. Their morals are bad. They didn't pay their medical bills and they didn't pay the prescribed. I'm now being sued in high court for more than £700 in one case.

"I've spent a lot of my own money helping Canadians and Americans, as well as my own here in Britain. I have a long waiting list of those who want treatment. My resources are limited, but I'll keep on doing what I can."

Addicts from Canada and other countries drift into London because of Britain's relaxed drug policy. Doctors can prescribe a daily diet of heroin and cocaine for those who submit to treatment. A daily dose formerly cost two shillings (30 cents) — the standard national health service prescription fee which the Labor administration abolished soon after it came to power.

The result of this relaxed policy is twofold: There is no major black market in drugs in Britain, but the number of addicts has soared.

A government committee recently reported that the known and registered number of addicts in Britain almost doubled to 733 in 1960 from 454 in 1958. The increase was mainly among the younger generation. In 1959, only 11 per cent of the known addicts were under 35 years of age. By 1964 this number had increased to almost 40 per cent of the total.

Recommending that addicts be channelled into well - controlled treatment centres instead of allowing them freedom to choose their own doctors, the committee disclosed that one doctor in 1962 prescribed 600,000 heroin tablets. On one occasion this doctor prescribed 900 tablets to one addict and three days later prescribed another 600 to the same patient because he allegedly lost part of the original batch "in an accident."

The committee concluded that while only about six doctors had prescribed these huge quantities to patients, some of the drugs were finding their way into the hands of new addicts. By indulging in "treatment" and peep pills, youngsters were forming habits where they eventually became "hooked" on the more dangerous drugs.

WOULD LOSE JOB

But the idea of being herded into some centralized treatment centre in order to get their daily supply of cocaine and heroin is repugnant to some of the addicts. One unidentified Canadian woman, with her back to the camera, appeared on British television to complain that she wouldn't be able to continue working if she had to sign in at a treatment centre.

She said she and her husband had come from Canada principally because of the easy British doctor-patient relationship concerning drug treatment.

"Withdrawal clinics have been tried at home and they never worked."

The British home office, in answer to a query, said it has 41 Canadians registered as drug addicts under treatment in Britain. There were nine from the United States. In addition to the known British and non-British addicts registered with the home office, there are hundreds of other doctors have not reported.

Lady Ivankau said she reports all her cases, but she opposes the restriction of drug distribution to treatment centres.

NOT VAST PROBLEM

"A lot of people are making a song and dance of 600,000 pills one doctor prescribed. This is the sort of report that is studdly thrown about. Drug addiction in this country is not a vast problem. It is nothing compared to what goes on in North America and in this country it is nothing to panic about."

She believes the best way of curing addicts off the book is through personal and private efforts between a doctor and the patient. She has been treating addicts for more than seven years and can soon tell the difference between the addict worth treating and one who is not.

If some doctors over - prescribed be devised to limit the quantity of drugs a doctor can prescribe though still allow the general practitioner and the consultant to play a part in the treatment of addicts.

But the Sun, a middle-of-the-road newspaper that has periodically sounded the alarm on the growth of addiction, says "the vital step is to cut off the flood of heroin and cocaine coming from doctors' surgeries."

"The present treatment of drug addiction in Britain is woefully inadequate," the newspaper says. "Victims have nowhere to go for full treatment except to mental hospitals. There is no organized system of after-care to prevent former addicts from relapsing."

SIU President Not Content With Decision

MONTREAL (CP) — Leonard (Red) McLaughlin, president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (ind.), said Thursday the question of the manning of the freighter Fort William was "not fully explored" by a federal inquiry into the vessel's sinking in Montreal harbor.

The Fort William capsized and exploded shortly after arriving in Montreal Sept. 14. Five men died in the accident.

The inquiry, directed by Mr. Justice H. F. Gibson, released its report in Ottawa Tuesday, saying the Fort William was adequately manned.

Mr. McLaughlin said the SIU and the survivors "were denied the right to counsel and the right to make representations before the inquiry."

The SIU president said: "There never was any real evidence before the honorable judge and his assessors relative to the question of manning."

The report found that the jumbling of heavy deck cargo of steel had been unloaded caused the ship to capsize and explode.

Former Minister Seeks to Preserve View From Home

Ottawa (CP)—Former agriculture minister Alvin Hamilton went before the Ontario Municipal Board Thursday to preserve the view from his $50,000 home at Manotick, 10 miles south of here.

Even a piggery would be nicer, he told the board hearing objections to an application for a zoning change so a car lot could be built on 300 acres next door to Mr. Hamilton, MP for Qu'Appelle.

"I moved into the country to get away from the diesel fumes," he said. "I wouldn't mind having farms around me at all. Those are nice clean smells to wake you up."

The board reserved decision after hearing the former Conservative cabinet minister's and a number of other residents' objections.

Proper Medical Attention Might Have Averted Death Verdict of Brantford Jury

BRANTFORD (CP)—A coroner's jury said Thursday night proper medical attention might have prevented the death of an accident victim taken to Brantford General Hospital Oct. 16.

The all-male jury found that Michael Finnerty, 47, of Brantford died of severe internal hemorrhaging as a result of injuries received when hit by a car. He died five hours after being admitted to hospital.

"Proper medical attention may have prevented the death," the jury said.

It recommended "serious consideration be given to the establishment (at the hospital) of a better system to provide for the immediate services of a qualified physician in the event of emergencies."

It attached no blame to nurses at the hospital and said they should be commended for their concern for the patient's welfare.

The jury took an hour and 35 minutes to reach its verdict following nearly six hours of testimony from 21 witnesses.

TREATED BY NURSES

Finnerty was admitted to the hospital at 2:45 a.m., Oct. 16, and died, the jury was told, about 7:45 a.m., after receiving treatment from nurses on telephoned instructions from Dr. G. A. Martin, who was the hospital duty doctor on emergency call.

The inquest was presided over by Dr. H. V. Coriam, Ontario's supervising coroner.

Finnerty, the jury was told, did not receive a blood transfusion.

An autopsy on the day of his death showed Finnerty also received multiple fractures of the pelvis which caused extensive internal bleeding.

Dr. Lyle Jentz, provincial pathologist at the hospital performed the autopsy. He estimated that Finnerty lost three quarts of blood before he died.

SURVIVAL POSSIBLE

Dr. Jentz said he believed Finnerty's life could have been saved through adequate replacement of the blood lost and even if it had been given to him in the last hour, it may not have been too late."

The inquest was told that Dr. Martin, on emergency call from the hospital the morning Finnerty was admitted, had been on duty on a 24-hour call basis from 8 a.m. Oct. 15 to 8 a.m. Oct. 16.

Dr. N. G. Lathouras, president of the medical staff at the hospital, testified Dr. Martin was part of an emergency call roster system operated at the hospital round the clock monthly by about 15 of the 55 doctors.

Mrs. Margaret Tribble and Catherine Turton, registered nurses on duty when Finnerty died, both testified that between them they called Dr. Martin at least four times from 3 a.m. until just before the patient's death asking him to come to the hospital to examine Finnerty.

They said he refused to come except at the final call.

RECEIVED THREE CALLS

Dr. Martin testified he received only three calls from the hospital and had only been asked to come to the hospital on the last call. He testified he was extremely tired that morning, having performed four operations the previous day, had 40 patients in his office and visited 60 more in hospital and had not finished his work until late Friday night.

Dr. Martin said he also ordered cross-matching of Finnerty's blood and that a supply saw no order for a blood cross-matching on the card. The card, the inquest was told, disappeared shortly after Finnerty's death and has not been found.

The inquest was told the splint was not placed on the leg for more than an hour after Dr. Martin said he ordered its immediate application.

Finnerty was struck by a car driven by Paul Rivard, 62, of Brantford. Rivard is awaiting trial on a charge of careless driving in connection with the accident.

TORONTO (CP) — Every graduate student at the University of Toronto should receive a fellowship as a part of strengthening the university's graduate program, an 11-man committee on graduate studies recommends. The report recommended that a single student receive $2,500, married students $3,000 and married students with dependents $4,000.

Welfare Aids Now Available To Indian Bands

OTTAWA (CP) — Indians in Ontario will be able to receive welfare and community development services through provincial government agencies, a joint announcement by the federal and provincial governments says.

Under an agreement stemming from a federal-provincial conference last year, the two governments will share the costs of providing Indian communities with the same welfare services available to other citizens.

Ontario also will share the cost of community development services.

Implementation of the agreement will be contingent on approval of Indian band councils.

Negotiations for the agreement were approved by the Indian Advisory Council of Ontario, representing bands in all parts of the province.

KENORA, Ont. (CP)—Indian leaders here don't like the publicity given to the dismissal by the Kenora Children's Aid Society of Indian social worker Fred Kelly.

Peter Seymour, chairman of the grand council of treaty No. 3, brought a message from 10 chiefs at Kenora-area reserves to a meeting of the Kenora Indian-white committee.

"We don't like all this national publicity that Fred has been getting," he said. "We fear that it is going to backfire on our own organization."

Mr. Kelly was dismissed Friday but society spokesmen said it had nothing to do with an Indian protest march last week in which Mr. Kelly played a leading role.

Mr. Seymour spoke after delegates to the committee meeting had unanimously endorsed a vote of confidence in Mr. Kelly and the work he has initiated and instructed the executive to begin "positive action to keep him here."

Dave's Hideaway

By

Dave Charles

Hi there, welcome back!

I have noticed over the past week that there has been an increase in holiday social activities in the schools.

"Let the good times roll."

I have been doing a lot of thinking about the teen scene in the city. For instance, "What is there to do in Belleville on a Friday and Saturday night?" I know that the "Crow's Nest" is open on Saturday night, but what about Friday night? Also on Saturday, there are teens who don't care for the "Crow's Nest," or any dance, for that matter. So we come back to the question, "What is there to do in Belleville on a Friday and Saturday night for the teens?"

Why not open another teen coffee house. It could be done with little rejuvenation, and a little gold (money) and work . . . sound unbelievable? I think it's worth a try.

As many remember, this past summer the teens had a little coffee house going. With just a little money and a lot of work, they created a much-talked-about teen haven, for members only, called "The Very Bottom."

However the teens cannot afford the time and the money for such an establishment.

This is where Mr. X Business Man comes into the picture. He could invest in such a business and in no time would have a growing concern. With the right atmosphere, supervision, and proper rules, this would be the spot for high flyers to light. Another possible idea would be a combined pizza palace and discotheque. There are several in Hamilton, for example, which are very popular, successful, and still going strong, because they stay with the times. Anyone for pizza?

Maybe the above idea will start a few wheels in town turning.

In the music corner this week, many new sounds have arrived, with "Hit" marked all over them. Sounds like "We Can Work It Out," by the Beatles, "The Little Girl I Once Knew" by the Beach Boys, "The Sound of Silence" with Simon and Karfunkle, "Ebb Tide" by the Righteous Brothers.

Now to Canada we have some fantabulous sounds which are definitely worth listening to. Dee and the Yeomen "And Take the First Train Home" is number 40 on this weeks new file. Vince and the Townsmen have a great new local sound which is out of this world! By the way, J. B. and the Play Boys have number 48 on the Twin Twenty File. "Poor Ann," watch it climb.

A new Canadian folk rock tune comes on strong from Bobby Chris and the Imperials who are in town at Nicholson for a bash tonight. David Clayton Thomas will be at Quinte for the biggest Christmas fling ever. Clayton Thomas is now with the Rogues, a very polished group.

Look out weather man, cause Wally West of Sounds Incorp! is planning a snowdance on the roof of his house, for a foot of snow on Christmas day.

With his luck he'll probably get a yard or two.

The "008 Yah Yah Girls" of the Sounds Incorp. show are making a big hit in the Toronto area. Especially the "Nite Owl Coffee House." The gals dance to the driving beat of "Dee and the Yeomen." The girls have a big following because of their polished dance routine.

Is your club planning a dance or party? Sounds Incorp. would be happy and overjoyed to provide the entertainment, or dances or sweep the floor up after the dance. Give me a call at CJBQ and we'll compare brooms. O.K.!!!

Starting tomorrow (I can hardly wait) the "008 Twin Twenty File" arrives at CJBQ. Join me on Preview Party for the surprise of the century.

Hey guys, play it cool for Christmas, and don't spend too much money on the girl friend's Christmas present. The odds are that you'll probably have a new bird (girl) in the new year and then you'll hate yourself just like Blunder Dumley. Blunder says that "Boy who spends many dollars on girl friend has no cents."

Believe me, Doris Dolly would be just as happy to have a chocolate bar.

In Dave's Cave we find that the "Kangaroo Song" this week is "Rescue Me" by Fontella Bass.

My favorite record is "Poor Ann" by J. B. and the Playboys. Dave's favorite three are:

Good News Week ..... Hedgehopper Ann
We Can Work It Out ..... The Beatles
The Little Girl I Once Knew ..... The Beach Boys

Hey there Bluster and Hester, don't forget about the Christmas cards for kids. Eh ! ! ! ? ? ?

Send them along to "Dave Charles c/o "Cards for Kids," CJBQ, Belleville. O.K. ?

Hope you can hack the next few weeks until the holidays arrive.

"Watch for the secret society of "Karbunkle" and listen to "At the Top" next week . . . Until forever . . . Shangri-la . . . .

Says Admit China on Conditions

By GAIL NICHOLS (Q.S.S.)

It is my opinion that Communist China be admitted to the United Nations in addition to the seating of Nationalist China. However, her admittance should be conditional — these conditions determined by the United Nations and not be Red China herself.

The recent voting in the U.N. concerning this demanding that Communist China's plea for recognition is gaining support from nations hitherto opposed. These include France, (formerly opposed because of her interest in controlling Viet Nam), Chile, Pakistan and Britain. It is generally considered to be inevitable that Red China will gain her seat. But why is it inevitable?

First, Communist China has a population of approximately seven hundred million people — one certainly cannot ignore that. These people are being trained in defensive man-to-man warfare as a precaution against border hostilities. Also, China has initiated her own nuclear program with her production of an atomic bomb. This all points to a potentially powerful nation. In addition to military importance, Red China is reviving her economic policies as a way to bring to power people adequately and be able to produce enough skilled technicians to meet her needs.

Second, Red China is overrun by Communism which threatens to spill over and invade every weak, emerging nation nearby. The United States and her allies are trying to contain China's aggressive Communistic overtures, but it seems to me that it is fundamentally wrong to suppress a nation (even one that is built around a policy abhorrent to the ideals of a free people) that has no active voice in the world. True, the cases such as Algeria and Rhodesia represent her interests, but a go-between is not as satisfactory as direct representation. If Cambodia is recognized and she is less powerful and undemocratic than is China, why cannot China be granted representation?

Yes, I know, Red China is defeating her own purpose by demanding the ousting of Nationalist China and asking for admittion of her part in the Korean War. I agree that she must modify her conditions. She must finally she has a right to participate and be heard when vital decisions affecting the world are made.

The problem of world-wide subversive cannot be solved without the full co-operation of all major and minor powers — including Red China. She must show she is growing more powerful and her people dissatisfied with opposition. Let us employ the spirit of democracy and give Communist China a hand in the tentative show of trust that she will obey the peace-keeping laws of the U.N. Only then can we hope for a true conference of nations — united nations!

Commercials Insulting to TV Viewers

... By BOB MURDOCK (B.C.I.)

By BOB MURDOCK (B.C.I.)

Commercials on T.V. are increasingly becoming an insult to the intelligence of any human being, especially around the hours of dinner and supper.

They are directed to the younger generation ("Let's put a smile on Dumb Dora's face") while the rest of the viewers must clench their teeth and bear it.

The more expensive toys, ("Only $44.50" says the helpful announcer) are aimed at the dinner hour so that junior can drag in the unwitting parent to be sold as well.

Commercials usually portray large powerful objects that suggest action both in their appearance (often due to trick photography) and the words of the announcer: "Big Jumbo by Marx" is shown in one of its fantastic feats — turning a surfect circle at two miles per hour.

Television ads don't just sell the child a toy pistol, they sell him a multipurpose semiautomatic hideaway pistol or a toy helmet ("Boys who dare will want to wear") that the parent is forced to buy as a safety helmet.

It has been said, "Kids are being seduced on behalf of someone selling a product and you can't even answer back."

However, I enjoy watching them.

Sees Great Possibilities For Today's Students

By TERRY STOLIKER (QSS)

A wall, the tears of children, a dead president; all are solemn possibilities of mankind. He may know greatness or failure in his quest for fulfillment, he may know love or hate from those he conquers, he may look upon himself with pride or with shame. So it has been through out the years that have gone to make up history and so it may be in the years ahead that go to make up this eternity called time.

We have a great potential. Many times we have come near the top and many times we have fallen to the depths.

In 1939 a war began, a war that should never have taken place, for it was preceeded by still another — "the war to end all wars." A small, unknown paper hanger became a large and powerful dictator, and once again, began the oppression and submission of the peoples of Europe. Men' young and old were brothers, yet, in essence — many were to suffer, many were to die. Not by bombs and guns alone, but in concentration camps, gas chambers and on broken heart and spirit. But in the end, here lies the strength, the conviction of those people who sought peace and freedom and out of the ashes of war was good to know peace once again.

But the lesson had not been enough and the world was not yet mature enough to find peace, and so emerged the Iron Curtain, Korea, Hungary and Berlin Wall, showing man's inhumanity to himself.

It has been my intention to portray a dismal picture, and has not all been bad, for though we have known those who lived, died, and fought for peace — those who have strived for right, truth and humanity and may thank God for the Lincolns, the Churchills and the Kennedys.

We may wonder indeed where it will all end. Shall we one day extend our hands in friendship or shall we barricade ourselves standing in our fallout shelters with guns in those shelters, trying to keep our neighbors out?

We students shall inherit the future, so create a better world for those who will come after. It must be left to you and me to say what kind our future, we make of their lives.

We have not as yet fulfilled our potential and we shall not be content in the cry for peace and freedom goes unanswered, as long as there are those who are imprisoned behind the walls of their skin, as long as a child cryys in loneliness and weeps in sorrow.

A child must become a man and the silver tears of innocence must become the golden tears of wisdom. Let us try to obtain this wisdom so that a people may not be separated by a wall and a man may not be separated from himself.

The task is great, a lifetime short. But the spark has been left. Let us kindle that spark in the night and live in an eternal flame and light the world over with peace and understanding between us.

We may look to the past with pride or with regret. But for you and for me, there is only a thousand tomorrows. And each day's beginning will surely bring us closer to that day when we might say — This is our finest hour.

Worried Over Margaret's U.S. Visit

By MIKE BRADLEY (M.S.S.)

Princess Margaret, after spending 20 days and over 50,000 dollars in the United States, has returned to an uneasy and victimized Britain. Not only do the taxpayers feel her extravagance a breach of trust, but also the aristocratic society which she represents has suffered serious shame and dishonor.

She boodwinked the British Foreign Office into paying most of the cost by claiming that the voyage was official and by agreeing to attend some public relations functions. Included in her official expenses were two personal hairdressers, two menservants, two maids of honor, a five, a secretary, a lady in waiting, a private secretary, a personal police, seven high society dinners and receptions, many Hollywood parties, and a different wardrobe every day. All this in an attempt by Britain to assist or boost her economy. Not a very practical venture by any standards.

If such dangerous excesses are not curtailed, monarchies the world over could become accepted as farces, and mark the end of a great institution.

Key Club Neophytes Initiated

Wednesday last the corridors of Moira were enhanced (?) by the strange garb of the Key Club neophytes undergoing the initiatory processes requisite to membership in this cult. Old fedoras, construction helmets, straw hats, shirts in reverse, fringed "pedal pushers" all added to the amusement of the beholder and the embarrassment of the debutant.

The weird rites of this mysterious organization culminated in a Tea Dance featuring the "Vandells" and the "Go - Go Boys"!!

In order to maintain the festive spirit generated this past week, the Key Club has organized a dance for tonight at Moira again featuring the skill renditions of the "Vandells".

Current Events

- Dance tonight at N.C.C. sponsored by the Students' Council with music by Bobby Kris and the Imperials.
- The formal opening of the new wing at Nicholson will begin at 2 p.m. Sunday.
- A dance tonight at M.S.S. featuring the Vandells and the Go-Go Boys.
- M.S.S. third invitational meet Saturday, December 18. Invitations are going only to Bay of Quinte COSSA wrestlers.

Nicholson-Quinte Students Visit Toronto After Exams

By PEGGY BARNARD (N.C.C.)

On Wednesday, Nov. 24, 11 members of Nicholson's Honor Society accompanied the Quinte 80 Percent Club on an all day trip to Toronto. The bus left Quinte at 7:30 Wednesday morning much to the grief of some "Nicholsonites" who had been celebrating the end of exams far into the night.

On arriving in Toronto at 9:30 the now wide awake group journeyed the Edward Johnson music building on the campus of the U. of T. Our guide showed us the library where were stored some very old books — most of them first or second editions — of, and about music. She also took us to one of the many auditoriums, pointing out various items of interest such as the large stage that was as large as that of the O'Keefe Centre), the removable wings, the recording apparatus, and the suspended props and curtains behind the stage.

We arrived at the new City Hall at 11:05 and our guide explained the construction of the building in general and drawing our attention in particular to the burlap on the walls — "to give warmth to the cement", the unfinished pillars and beams with the naturalness of the architects' wish. The Hall of Memory — a memorial to the Torontonians who died in the war, and to commemorate the various service groups affiliated with Toronto — was very lime or another. We were also shown the conference rooms, some of the offices, and the cafeteria.

At 11:40, about 30 famished teenagers descended the stairs onto with a vengeance. We discovered that the cafeteria had very little in the line of good solid food and Simpson's was crowded beyond belief, so the group split up in search of restaurants.

After an orgy of hamburgers and "Coke" we met again at the "Carousel". We were early enough to see a little of the theatre with Toronto's only merry-go-round. Carousel members went down to see the art gallery while those more Dora Dolls, who went out in search of refreshments and cosmetics, bought cokes. Said one sage "Angelique" A theatre this big and not a pop corn stand in sight!" Popcorn — no, we all enjoyed "Carousel" one reason (for the girls at least) being Harve Presnell, the star. The play music was delightful, and the way it was played Carrie, was a joy to behold.

We left the theatre in a flurry of tears and snatches of song to go to a shopping centre in Scarboro to — you guessed it — eat again. The trip home ended in an exuberant bootenany, or rather, bootenannie as three groups sang at the same time.

Thanks again to Mr. Donnell and the Quinte 80 Percent Club for a thoroughly enjoyable day.

Questions Library Mannerisms

JOANNE GAINFORTH (B.C.I.)

"Public Library" — so the sign claims, but this particular building is one of the most concentrated areas of discrimination next to the Southern States. Anyone less than a tolerated white-haired octogenarian is glared upon with merciless reproach and persecution. Take, for an example, the persecuted teenager. He comes seeking a quiet refuge in the hereward. Prejudice seethes all around him. Maybe he does bring a few books with him, they do "horse around" a little, but everyone was young once — or at least this is the supposition. Angry looks and disdainful "shsh's" assail his reddening ears. With injured pride and an attempt to hide his embarrassment, he applies himself to his schoolwork. But now he is so angry and hurt, that naturally he can't accomplish anything. Head bowed, he gathers up his books, swaggers a little, knocks over his chair, trips over one of the legs and drops his burden. The sacred stillness of the room is shattered and the teenager is again marked Public Enemy Number One.

However, the boundary of this cold war does not end at this unfortunate individual. It surrounds the young mother of three small and restless children. While she is returning such classics as "Mother Goose" and "The Five Peppers", the little cherubs are noisily playing at being soldiers in Viet Nam. Making a hasty retreat and dragging the three loudly-protestant prisoners of war after her, the young mother dispappears leaving a wake of comments such as "What is the younger generation coming to?"

When I was a child . . . "

Then there was taken on a different tone on the entrance of a well-dressed talkative matron. With a gay (but perfumed and aging) voice, the good lady amuses all within 30 yards of her with a glowing report of the latest funeral she attended. Not one reproach or warning for silence is uttered. Grateful dear Ressie looked in her casket and how many flowers were there and how lucky the grateful dear was to die. Everyone in the hallowed hall will return home that evening knowing how to conduct a

White Man Convicted of Slaying Negro

ANNISTON, Ala. (AP)—For the first time in recent Alabama history, a white man has been convicted of murder in the slaying of a Negro.

Hubert Damon Strange, 25, was convicted Thursday of second-degree murder by a white male jury which set his penalty at 10 years in prison.

Judge Robert M. Parker sentenstencing for today.

The conviction of Strange came as a shock to those in the calhoun county courthouse, especially to defence lawyer J. B. Sloner who had confidently predicted acquittal or, at worst, a mistrial.

Sloner was visibly stunned at the verdict. He said he'll appeal.

B. L. Rigney, a typewriter dealer who acted as jury foreman, said—race did not affect the verdict—"we made up our minds to start with that race did not enter into it at all."

Many Well-known Actors Do Well in Commercials

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — It has been several years since Betty Furness quit her well-paid job of demonstrating refrigerators and other household appliances in television commercials to pick up the threads of her performing career. But everybody in show business remembers the problems she had in dissociating herself from her sponsor.

Her experience was not unique. Last season a well-known comedian was skipped because he had been for two profitable seasons the official TV spokesman for a laundry product.

But commercials pay well indeed.

It is possible to spot some well - known faces in the current crop of commercials. The question is whether we, the viewers, find stars believable.

Few of us, obviously, believe that Jane Withers is really a lady plumber. Or that Skip Homeier, a popular guest star on the top TV shows, summers as a carpenter. Or that Pat Englund, who last season was a sharp satirist in high fashion clothes on That Was The Week That Was, is just an uprooted housewife.

ARENT HAPPY

Sponsors are not happy when an actor in the entertainment portion of shows is closely identified with another product, even a non-competitive one.

Arnold Stang, the comedian who has a busy career in films, television and radio, believes that if a performer handles himself right in a commercial and is not over-exposed, it need not put brakes to other facets of his occupation. Currently he is appearing in a series of sales on television, but in each one he is acting a different character.

"At least, I don't get typed," he said. "And I do think that there is a value in having a well-known person in the commercial. Peter Lorre wouldn't be if they were used right.

"If they are willing to pay these exorbitant fees they should use them in more ways than they do."

And predictable indeed are many voices. Herschel Bernardi, once Lieutenant Jacobi for Peter Gunn, reveals that he was making more than $100,000 a year playing the voices of fatherly characters in an insecure tuna fish and a jolly giant.

'Life of Christ' Film Acclaimed by Critics

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—An overflow audience of 1,600 persons including Governor-General Vanier and his wife, attended the North American premier film Monday of a film on the life of Christ directed by an Italian atheist.

The film The Gospel According to Matthew, directed by Pier-Paolo Pasolini, was acclaimed by both critics and clergy. Many said it was the best screen rendition of the life of Christ they had ever seen.

The movie, which won five awards at the 1964 Venice Film Festival, is to have its U.S. premiere in New York in January.

Sample comments from representatives of the various religious denominations attending:

Anglican Bishop E. S. Reed of Ottawa: "It is very suggestive and very true to the Gospel story—stark and realistic."

Rt. Rev. Raymond Limoges, vicar-general of the archdiocese of Ottawa: "This film ortings out more of the miracle of Christ than any other I've seen."

Rev. Clayton Ivay, Ottawa moderator of the Baptist Church: "It was very much impressed with the film, although I was a little disappointed in the characterization of Christ. I never thought of him as being so gruff."

LIKE GOSPEL

Rev. M. J. Carson, chairman of the Ottawa presbytery of the United Church of Canada: "This is the best film of the life of Christ I've seen. It is almost like reading the Gospel itself."

Brigadier J. J. Smith of the Salvation Army, president of the Ottawa council of churches: "This is a very unusual portrayal of the life of Christ, very impressive and very simple."

Two local film critics were almost as enthusiastic.

Gordon Sinclair of the Ottawa Citizen said: "It was nice to see Christ portrayed as an angry young man, rather than as sort of symbol. This is quite a remarkable biblical film, very stark, even static in some parts."

Victor Vieu of the Ottawa French-language daily Le Droit said: "It is a film that should be seen if only because it is so far removed from Hollywood."

Guy Biondi, vice-president for advertising and publicity for Walter Reade-Sterling Inc. of New York, the film's American distributor, told a reporter his firm plans to show the movie in at least six major U.S. cities early in the new year.

It also hopes to distribute it in Canada, but so far plans for that are being held up by the claim of a Montreal distributing company, Cinemascope Filmique Ltd., to Canadian rights to Italian and French versions of the film.

Entertainers Are Political Candidates

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Is George Murphy the opening wedge of a new political trend? Could be.

Hardly had Shirley Temple's old dancing partner made it all the way to the U.S. Senate in the first pitch in the season when candidates from the world of entertainment started popping up all over.

Actor Ronald Reagan is in the running for governor of California.

Actor Gary Merrill has his eye on the Maine state house.

Television actor Ralph Bellamy wanted to be a U.S. representative but was stymied, at least temporarily, by rival technicalities.

Actor Eddie Albert is urged by Democratic bigwigs to present himself for office in Los Angeles.

Nobody knows how many other film and TV personalities may be getting the itch in time for something. This marks a decided change.

Until recently, entertainers operated on the political fringes. They supported the candidates of their choice with campaign fund contributions, or paid for testimonial advertisements, or donated their talents to party conventions and campaign rallies.

Murphy opened their eyes.

WON NOMINATION

He won the Republican nomination for senator from California in 1964 and then defeated the Democratic incumbent, Pierre Salinger, in a state where the Democrats have a

Never Too Late to Found A Family Says Cary Grant

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —"The nicest thing about it so far," said Cary Grant of his impending fatherhood, "is the way people come up and tell me: 'You are about to have a totally new and rather wonderful experience, like something you have never known before.'

"You want to know something? I think they're right."

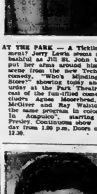
This was a new Cary Grant, a man seemingly in awe at discovering it is never too late to found a family. He looks like the old Cary Grant, which all everyone knows, is not bad at all. He will be 62 next month, and his hair is iron-grey. But he walks with the spring of a high jumper.

Grant is making his 42nd starring film, Walk, Don't Run. Reviews' scenes he seemed not at all concerned by the flood of comments and gags that followed the news that his wife, Dyan Cannon, is expecting a baby.

"How could I be tired of it?" he inquired. "It's such a completely fresh and exciting experience for me. Everyone has been wonderful in offering their congratulations.

IT'S INTRIGUING

"You know, it's intriguing to be entering the stream of life. It's nice, too, to be able to sit back and watch it go by. But when you are a father, you become a participant once more. I'm enjoying it."



His immediate problem is where to house his family. "Both Dyan and I have bachelor houses; if each one could get the two houses together, we would solve the situation," he said.

Failing that, the Grants have been shopping for a larger place. They thought they had found one in Benedict Canyon, but it turned out to be the estate where the Beatles, Rolling Stones and other favorites fend off their fans during visits here. That didn't fit into the Grants' pattern of life.

"Dyan likes to live quietly, and so do I," he said.

May Install New Tank at Sewage Plant

PICTON — A new tank may be installed at the sewage treatment plant here pending a full report on what structural defect caused a buckle in the 16-foot high tank two weeks ago.

Engineers from the Kingston consulting firm of Crysler, Davis and Jorgenson were at the plant this week to take samples back to their laboratories for testing. Officials believe it may be three weeks before tests reveal what caused the huge tank to buckle.

All the sewage had to be pumped out in order to allow the engineers to seek the root of the problem.

Meanwhile, town sewage is being chemically treated and pumped through the former municipal sewage system, the 19-year-old plant that formed the foundation for the new $200,000 plant built last year. It is called a no-power operation because the sewage is gravity feed through the treatment and disposal units.

Officials of the Ontario Water Resources Commission certified Thursday that while it takes twice as long to dispose of sewage with the old system, it is just as effective.

Rilla Pearsoll Queen

PICTON — Rilla Pearsoll was chosen "Miss Bloomfield Ward Collegiate Institute" in a competition based on beauty and talent Thursday at the PECI school.

She was chosen over four other contestants, Betty Ann Mitika Pliwischkiw, Linda Alexander and Cheryl Ferguson, who were originally nominated by their classmates for the title.

Judges at the assembly yesterday were Mrs. Carmen Slack, Wayne Ring, Dr. Lionel Dockrill and two teachers, Mrs. Norman Kerr and Robert Stuart.

Lynn Baker, last year's winner, is now attending University. Rilla will now take on her new duties as Miss PECI and will speak at local service clubs and other organizations.

Napanee News

SALVATION ARMY MARKS 81ST YEAR

NAPANEE — The Napanee Salvation Army is this year celebrating the 81st year of the founding of the corps. Sunday, November 28, this event was celebrated throughout the day. Special services were held, and a fellowship hour was held after the evening service. Envoy and Mrs. Frank Pearson are now in charge of the corps.

A huge birthday cake had been prepared to mark the event, and during the afternoon the first cut in the cake was made by the oldest soldier in the corps, Mrs. Sarah Milligan who is 90 years old. For some years she has been a resident of Hillcrest Lodge, and, as she is now confined to her bed, the cake was taken to her by the two officers in charge in Napanee. Along with other good things, the cake was enjoyed by those who met together during the fellowship hour.

SNOW WARNING

Chief Harry Bean of the Napanee Police urges everyone to see that the doors of cars are now locked, especially at this Christmas season. A woman from the Napanee district reported all the parcels pulled from her car Thursday afternoon, after she had spent the day doing her Christmas shopping. There is little hope of tracing the thief even though the car was parked on the market square, a public place. Officials are just inviting sneak thieves to steal their parcels unless they lock their car doors," the chief says.

Bilingualism

those of larger Protestant groups, and Mr. Shepherd replied that it did not represent the "ecumenism that surrenders the conviction that are the very soul of Protestantism."

Closing sessions of the four-day public hearing today heard the Religious Society of Friends (Quakers) ask for amendments to the Canadian constitution to broaden official bilingualism and promote the cultural life of ethnic minorities.

NEED ACTION

The Quakers also said the CBC should be more active in broadcasting concerts, documentaries and plays featuring contributions of the country's many cultures.

The Canadian League for Ukraine's Liberation asked for legislation to prohibit discrimination against members of ethnic minorities.

The Friends of the Children's Public Library in Sudbury wanted Canadians to help ethnic minorities preserve their languages and traditions.

The 11,000-member Canadian Federation of University women presented a brief in support of bilingualism. It also wanted establishment of a federal agency to implement recommendations expected of the royal commission.

The Toronto Institute of Citizenship urged the teaching of French classes from Grade 3 or 4 in the province and said this could lead to better understanding and an exchange of ideas between the two language groups.

WANTS IT MANDATORY

The institute said many Ontario students who would have introduced French in primary schools, but Dr. Jordan E. Hutchinson, president of the institute, said it should be changed from an optional to a mandatory basis.

Prof. G. Donald Jackson of the French department at York University said the first step is bilingualism, and the essential for establishment of linguistic equality in Canada is that there should be the establishing of French as the real working language of Montreal.

"Unless real progress is made towards the gallicization of Montreal can be made in a relatively short time," he said, "we might as well give up our efforts to shape a bicultural federation and try to make the best bargain we can with the Quebec nationals or the Americans or both."

George W. Taylor, a Toronto lawyer, said the federal government is stepping backwards in attempts to perpetuate the romantic language through legislation.

He said Canada cannot afford bilingualism in the interests of a "small percentage of the population." To advance outside Quebec, English must learn and to promote other ideas to French-Canadians smacked of "fraud and misrepresentation."

SEES DRAIN

Mr. Taylor said an "economic drain" was taking place in supporting the French language in such federal fields as the CBC, Air Canada, the Bank of Canada corporations and publications.

J. H. Bigger of the staff of the Ontario Department of Agriculture director of Visites Interprovinciales, a voluntary organization for the promotion of better between French- and English-speaking young people, suggested that no one in the federal civil service, armed forces or Crown corporations should be given high rank without being bilingual.

A brief from Jean Howarth of the editorial board of The Globe and Mail said it might be a good idea to unify now pay on an amicable, separation between Quebec and the remainder of Canada, rather than bow further to Quebec demands.

"If the price of Quebec's remaining Confederation is the destruction of responsible government, then the price is too high. We would do better to determine now upon an amicable separation, in which we could live as friendly neighbors, than to continue the illusion of government and justice dear to us, in which we could help each other as friendly neighbors.

Indonesia's Foreign Policy Now Divorced From Peking

By ANTONNE YARED

JAKART A(AP) — The split between Indonesia and China has widened and President Sukarno appears to be seriously reappraising his Peking-oriented foreign policy.

Antagonism between the two countries developed after the attempted coup Oct. 1, which the Indonesian army's leaders say was planned and directed by the pro-Peking Indonesian Communist party, the PKI.

For weeks Sukarno stubbornly resisted demands from the army and anti-Communist organizations to reshape his foreign policy. Now it seems he has conceded.

This was indicated Thursday by First Deputy Premier Subandrio, the foreign minister, who usually speaks for Sukarno.

In an interview with the army newspaper Berita Yudha, Subandrio said that because of pressure from the PKI, Indonesia's foreign policy had been influenced by the Chinese position in Peking's dispute with Moscow.

The PKI has been practically eliminated from the scene, Subandrio said, and he now is free to reform his foreign policy based on "realism."

ADMITS INFLUENCE

"In the past, in the struggle against colonialism, neo-colonialism, colonialism and imperialism), our foreign policy was influenced by the existence of ideological conflicts of one Communist party with the other.

"We admit it is their own business. I will not participate in it. . . ."

Subandrio, blaming China for the deterioration of relations, accused Peking of interfering in Indonesia's internal affairs by its broadcasts denouncing the army's crackdown on the PKI.

Subandrio said that Indonesia will do what it can to help China with or without China will continue and even increase its anti-colonialism policy. He added: "We even carry it out better now that it is not committed to Peking. Diplomatic observers doubt Indonesia can do this unless it mends its differences with China and Asian Communist countries, notably those belonging to the non-aligned bloc.

Sukarno had rejected nonalignment and committed Indonesia to Peking's hard line opposing the peaceful coexistence advocated by the non-aligned countries and the Soviet Union.

Observers say Sukarno realizes Indonesia has parted with Peking, is isolated in the world of international politics and would have to look for new friends.

Can Use Funds For Recreation

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—A recent defence department order makes it possible for the armed forces to use public funds for recreation such as square dancing, picnics and pet contests.

For recreation purposes, the order says, commanding officers of stations and units may authorize use of armed forces vehicles "for journeys within a radius of 50 miles."

Commanding officers may also authorize "the granting of temporary duty allowances" for personnel seeking recreation.

They may also approve use of armed forces transport to carry servicemen's families and "resident civilian employees" to "sports fields, playgrounds and recreational areas."

Recreation is defined in the order, issued Oct. 22, as "a free choice of participation in leisure activity which is satisfying and enjoyable and which contributes to the purposeful fulfilment of the individual."

DEFINES PROGRAMS

Recreation programs as set out in the order include:

"Social and entertainment: This may be described as activities involving groups of people which serve to provide companionship and friendly association, such as square and folk dancing, picnics, organized tours, children's parties, pet contests and hobby shows.

"Cultural: This includes such areas of interest as amateur dramatics, puppetry, public speaking, discussion groups, musical appreciation and choirs."

A separate order deals with physical fitness in the armed forces.

All ranks must undergo "minimum physical efficiency standards" twice a year.

Here are the minimum standards:

Under 30 years of age—seven chin-ups, 35 sit-ups in two minutes and a 600-yard run in 160 seconds;

Between 30 and 39—five chin-ups, 30 sit-ups in two minutes and 600 yards in 170 seconds;

Age 40 and over—four chin-ups, 21 sit-ups in two minutes and 300 yards in 80 seconds.

The tests are stiffer for a man in an army field unit. He must cover 10 miles in 120 minutes in full battle dress, surmount a six-foot wall, clear a nine-foot ditch, "landing on both feet," and carry a man of approximately the same weight 200 yards.

Wanted Man Will Fight Extradition

MONTREAL (CP) — Joet Singer, wanted in connection with a $429,000 burglary in Syracuse, N.Y., was arraigned Thursday on an extradition warrant and his lawyer said he will fight attempts to return him to the U.S.

He was remanded to Dec. 16. However, Myer Gross, acting for the state of New York, said the case will have to be postponed then because of preparations needed in the case.

Gross said he thought Singer told the court he will fight extradition.

The extradition warrant against the 22-year-old Montrealer was issued by Mr. Justice Pierre Sherrin on the Quebec Superior Court on behalf of Jacqueline Donahue, a police officer from Syracuse, where the burglary of a Brinks Express vault occurred late in October.

Singer has been on the FBI's most wanted list since Nov. 19.

The burglars are alleged to have used about two dozen blasts from an anti-tank gun into the vault's 10-inch steel walls to get at the money. One man is already being held in Washington in connection with the burglary.

Poland Makes Bitter Attack Against China

WARSAW (Reuters) — Poland today launched its most bitter public attack on China since the start of the four-year-long Sino-Soviet split by assailing Peking for refusing to join Russia in countering U.S. intervention in Viet Nam.

The attack was coupled with an dictment of the Chinese Communist leadership for rejecting proposals for a summit meeting of world Communist leaders to discuss mutual problems.

A 1,500-word editorial in the Polish Communist party paper Trybuna Ludu accused Peking of blocking unity of action for the defence of Viet Nam against American "aggression."

Observers said it was the most uncompromising condemnation of Peking ever published in Warsaw.

It also was the first clear account to the Polish public of the Soviet breach with China and indicated Poland has abandoned its earlier position of mediator and now fully supports Moscow.

P.M. Statement Draws Criticism From PC Chief

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—A statement by Prime Minister Pearson that Canada would seriously consider an official invitation to join the Organization of American States drew sharp criticism Thursday from Conservative Leader Diefenbaker.

The Opposition leader, interviewed here, condemned what he said Mr. Pearson's apparent attitude toward so important a question and added that no decision should be made before a full-dress debate in Parliament.

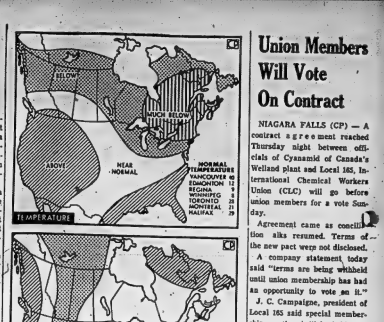
The statement was reported to have been made by the prime minister during a press conference Tuesday in Jamaica.

The matter of membership in the OAS has been considered before, Mr. Diefenbaker said, and decisions to join the organization have been advanced in the past.

"The prime minister's words did not make his intention clear, but if they do mean that he and his government favor membership in the OAS, then this is a matter of serious concern to this country.

HITS METHOD -

"Certainly the matter should not be decided in this haphazard way and announced at a casual press conference in Jamaica."



The Conservative leader said the question had been considered by successive Tory cabinets when he was prime minister and it had been decided that Canada would be better served if it remained outside the organization.

Mr. Diefenbaker would have displaced Canada in a position of having to choose between two of the United States, then if this country had sided with other states in their dispute with the United States, then Canada would have been in frequent disagreement with the U.S.

If Canada had supported the United States in these disputes, it also would have been regarded as a mere appendage of the U.S.

Hot Exchanges By Lawyers Heard in Trial

OTTAWA (CP)—Sharp differences between opposing counsel at the trial of the former vice-quartermaster - general of the Canadian Army broke out again Thursday.

Crown Attorney John Cassells and defence counsel R. K. Laishley Thursday engaged in one of their hottest exchanges in the trial.

Brig. John Baxter Allan, 51, is charged with accepting advantage or benefit to a value in excess of $8,000 from Benjamin, Mark, Morris and Edward Leyy, directors of three Toronto companies that did dealings with the federal government.

Mr. Cassells was re-examining Crown witness Ben Levy, executive vice-president of Levy Industries Ltd., when the outbreak occurred.

Mr. Levy had testified that Canadian government trade ecomcissioners and Canadian Army officials assisted the Levy firm in its foreign sales. He had also told of helping the accused obtain options on shares in the Levy firm.

ASKS QUESTION

"Did any trade commissioner ever receive any shares from you or your brothers?" asked Mr. Cassells.

Mr. Laishley interjected:

"That is one of the most reprehensible questions ever asked in this courtroom. . . . Is he a Crown counsel or is he a witch hunter?"

Judge Peter Macdonald, presiding at the case before an all-male jury, ruled the question inadmissible.

Earlier, Ben Levy testified that he was unaware of any money the accused advice to buy Levy Industries stock that caused the brigadier to lose between $6,000 and $7,000.

Mr. Levy said Brig. Allan never did anything for the Levy firm with respect to contracts with the Canadian government. The witness testified earlier that the accused helped "expedite" requests by the Levys for manufacturing drawings on obsolete equipment which the Levys sold foreign buyers.

The Crown is expected to complete its case today.

Two Escape From Jail

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP)—Police were still searching today for two men, described as armed and dangerous, who escaped from Perth County jail Tuesday night.

The search has been concentrated on an area seven miles west of Stratford, near a barn where footprints were found Wednesday.

Provincial police surrounded the barn of Orville Skinner but found no trace of the missing men.

Jail officials said Harry Hancox, 37, and Bruce Meredith, 20, both of Hamilton, escaped by cutting boards in their cell and crawling under the door to a room where they surprised the guard.

Hancox and Meredith were in custody awaiting trial on charges of possession of stolen goods.

Union Members Will Vote On Contract

NIAGARA FALLS (CP) — A contract agreement reached Thursday night between officials of Cyanamid of Canada's Welland plant and Local 163, International Chemical Workers Union (CLC) will go before union members for a vote Sunday.

Agreement came as conciliation sessions resumed. Terms of the new pact were not disclosed.

A company statement today said "terms are being withheld until union membership has had an opportunity to vote on it."

J. C. Campaigne, president of Local 163 said special membership meetings will be held Sunday "to report the results of the two conciliation meetings and to give the membership an opportunity to vote on the company proposal."

The contract dispute precipitated a wildcat walkout Nov. 16 by 450 hourly rated employees at the Welland plant.

Sharp Drop Noted in Traffic Deaths

U.S. Going to Change Plan for Foreign Aid

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States since 1954 has distributed $15,000,000 worth of wheat and their farm commodities to 114 countries, a White House conference on international co-operation heard this week.

But the honeymoon is over, as President Johnson has made increasingly plain. The U.S. feels there are strong domestic and international reasons for making a fundamental policy shift in food and other foreign aid.

Nations in need can still count on U.S. food, including the United Arab Republic and India where perilous shortages exist.

But the pattern of the entire aid program is being shifted to emphasize the do-it-yourself approach. And the U.S. intends to exact undertakings of good behavior from the beneficiaries, not only in their domestic conduct of applying the aid but in their foreign affairs attitudes to the U.S. and other nations.

NO ALTERNATIVE

How effective this will be cannot be judged. But alternative sources of help from Communist countries or others do not seem to be available on the needed scale.

Ghana's beligerent Kwame Nkrumah is one example. Ghana in effect apologized for a month Nkrumah book calling the U.S. neo - colonialist among other things, but the book had barred any discussion of help for the tangled Ghanaian economy.

President Nasser of the United Arab Republic has gone some way to tidy up relations with Washington because his needs are so great—especially for grain. In October, he was judged to have only about 10 weeks' supply available.

This week, President Johnson authorized the resumption of food shipments worth about $25,000,000 but only for the next six months. He rejected U.A.R. bids for another three - year agreement similar to the one expiring last June.

But this was done only after Nasser moved to disengage Egyptian troops from Yemen, expressed willingness to compensate the U.S. for the destruction of a $500,000 library and made other conciliatory gestures.

The pending visits of President Ayub Khan of Pakistan and Indian Prime Minister Shastri offer more opportunities for the new U.S. hard line—this time in putting on pressure to settle the war over Kashmir which embarrassed U.S. planners.

Ayub Khan will be seeing Johnson Dec. 14-15 and will get the message then.

QUESTIONS ON CHINA

Pakistan has had about $3,000,000,000 in U.S. aid—mostly military which it used to attack India. It has, in U.S. eyes, tended to use the economic slice of the aid wisely but President Johnson will ask, before any new economic aid is forthcoming, how seriously Pakistan is flirting with China, officials here say.

Shastri is due early next year —perhaps January—and is facing what Indian officials call a "natural calamity of a magnitude unknown in recent times."

India, in short, has grown to lean on one-fifth of the annual U.S.-wheat crop of about 1,200,000,000 bushels and now needs more than that. India may have to show much more flexibility than it has shown heretofore about settling the Kashmir question.

Food and economic aid to India and Pakistan has been cut to a piece-meal basis despite the annoyance of those nations. Military aid has stopped and seemed unlikely to resume for a long time.

Behind the U.S. new line is the domestic overhaul of farm subsidies. American farm surpluses are vanishing.

Aged Spinster Stabbed, Slain In Ottawa Apt.

OTTAWA (CP) — Louise Rowan, a 74-year-old spinster, was smothered and stabbed 70 times in her midtown apartment late Wednesday. Police said they are checking "numerous leads" in the search for her slayer.

The body, clad only in a housecoat, was discovered by Victoria Waddell, 62, who shared the apartment and said she had been out shopping when the killing occurred.

Miss Waddell said she gave Miss Rowan $40 earlier in the day as her share of the rent. The two $20 bills were missing from the apartment.

Detectives said the woman was already dead when the killer stabbed her repeatedly in the chest and abdomen with a thin, sharp instrument, probably an icepick or screwdriver.

Coroner Dr. J. A. Thomson said the stabbings were done by someone "in a violent fit of rage."

Entry to the apartment, at the corner of Albert and Bay streets, had not been forced and police believe the killer may have posed as a repairman.

Miss Rowan's car was stolen from her garage and discovered later parked on a downtown street with the engine running. Detectives were checking it for fingerprints.

"B" Pack

James Barlow, Michael Collyer, David Coons, Richard Howes, Jeffrey Keyes, Blake Law, Robert Miller, Donald Tucker, Dale Jones.

Jim Pearson of "B" Pack was presented with a "Collector's Badge" which is his fourth badge earned to date. The boys were prompted to keep in mind the "Paper and Salvage Drive" scheduled for December 11, 1965.

They were asked to remind parents, friends and neighbors to leave paper, baskets or bottles on their front porches for pick-up on this day.

Three leaders and twelve Scouts ("A" & "B" Troops) had a busy day at Camp Sagonaska on Saturday, November 20. This was the second outing in a series for these boys. The purpose of this series is to familiarize the Scouts with camping under adverse conditions in preparation for a full scale winter camp.

Objectives

Set up tent without benefit of pegs; cook a meal over a campfire; find directions for a hike by compass.

Accomplishments

Tents set up on snow covered ground in the rain; cooked a "bang-up" hunters' stew and hot chocolate. The boys built a cooking fire and a reflector type apparatus for warming and drying clothing. One thing the boys discovered was the difficulty of lighting and maintaining a fire in the rain with wet wood; several campfire hikes were carried out with tracking and trail signs. Long cross-country hikes used tracking skills and provided opportunity for ambushing the followers.

No casualties were experienced, although Scout Jim Hushion managed to get "slightly" wet in a swamp and the rain together with a running snowball fight as "extracurricular" activity, made it possible for all to get more than slightly wet.

Scoutmaster M. Maw and ASMs D. Pischkin and A. Dollmaier were the leaders heading up the exercise.

CONFIRM NAME

KINGSTON (CP)—A decision by the board of trustees to name the new $2,000,000 men's residence at Queen's University for Donald Gordon, president of Canadian National Railways, and Leonard W. Brockington, rector of the university, was confirmed Thursday by Queen's principal Dr. J. A. Corry.

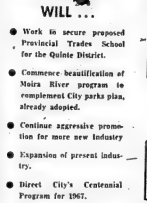
Try Bonded Stock on a friend without letting him see the label.

It's the best way to find out what people really think about a whisky: how do they like it when they don't know which brand they're drinking?

If you've tried Bonded Stock yourself, the playback won't surprise you. Bonded Stock is a great Canadian whisky. You can conceal the label but you can't disguise the flavour. It's an extremely mellow whisky with a deceptively smooth flavour.

The other thing that's deceptive about Bonded Stock is its price. But the price doesn't fool people with taste.

Bonded Stock's sensible price is a sort of bonus you get for good judgment.



And what could be finer than that?

Gooderham's have been distilling fine whisky since 1832.

Belleville Greets Santa!

Filling Belleville brimful of bustle and cheer, Santa Claus paid his annual visit here today.

His calling card introducing him was an animated, sparkling parade that drew thousands into the downtown area.

More than 30 floats, brass bands, pipe bands, scores of capering clowns and marching majorettes spilled down Front Street to herald Santa's approach.

The stream of color, comedy and Christmas cheer drew excited reactions from small fry and adults alike.

But the happiest salute of all was saved to the end — when the Grand Old Man of festive jollity himself made his appearance.

Santa's approach was eagerly watched by the crowds and enthusiastically greeted as his own specially-designed festive float rode slowly by.

His greeters—of all ages—started moving downtown about an hour before the parade and slowly gathered on the procession route as the 10 a.m. starting time approached.

Police moved extra details into the area for crowd control and to keep traffic moving up to the last possible minute.

The parade—organized for Santa by a local committee headed up by firefighters—moved off from the Moira St. firehall right on time.

It took almost an hour to return to its starting point where Santa took leave of Belleville —until Christmas Day.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A surge of colder air is now spreading southward over the forecast regions and light snow and snowflurries are occurring in many localities. Although snowflurries will continue until late afternoon in most areas accumulations are expected to be light generally one to two inches in the north with little or no accumulation in the south with temperatures in the mid-30s.

Some clearing will take place late today and tonight as higher pressure moves across the Great Lakes. This improving weather will be short lived however as another vigorous storm centre will bring more rain and

U.S. Space Team Hopes To Break All Records

By Howard Benedict

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) Gemini 7 astronauts Frank Borman and James A. Lovell Jr. stood today on the threshold of man's longest space journey — a marathon 14-day mission during which they hope to rendezvous with the Gemini 6 pilots.

After leisurely preparations, Lt.-Col Borman and Cmdr. Lovell planned to embark on the lengthy flight at 2:30 p.m. EST on the thunderous push of a nine-storey Titan II rocket.

The space agency said heavy afternoon clouds forecast for Cape Kennedy should not interfere with the launch.

The afternoon launch contrasted with previous U.S. man-in-space shots when the astronauts were up at dawn for early-morning launchings.

It is hoped the Gemini 7 flight will crack all existing world space records—most of them held by the Gemini 5 crew which stayed aloft for eight days—and provide the most extensive information yet on man's ability to physically and mentally withstand long exposure to the space environment.

ACCENT MEDICAL TESTS

Dr. Charles A. Berry, the Gemini flight surgeon, said medical experiments have priority and added, "the flight will determine if man can perform at the level we expect him to for this period of time."

In a tuneup for the rendezvous, Borman and Lovell today were to try to maintain a formation flight with the orbiting second stage of their Titan II. They planned to keep within 100 to 300 feet for about 25 minutes just after achieving orbit.

The Gemini 6 astronauts—Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. and Maj. Thomas P. Stafford, are scheduled to take off in pursuit on Dec. 13. The plan is to fly the two spacecraft in formation —perhaps only inches apart—for nearly six hours as they whip 185 miles above the earth at 17,500 miles an hour.

Most space agency experts believe they have a 50-50 chance or better to accomplish the rendezvous.

THERE MAY BE MANY SURPRISES AHEAD — Gemini 7 Command Pilot Frank Borman, right, has a surprised expression on his face as he and his fellow space pilot, James Lovell, go over notes at a pre-flight meeting at Cape Kennedy, Fla.

French Voters To Polls

By PETER BUCKLEY

PARIS (CP)—The voters of France, who elect a president by universal suffrage Sunday for the first time in modern history, were given the day off from campaign activities today to reflect on what one of the candidates called the "gravity of the gesture" they must make.

The official campaign for the presidency ended at midnight Friday.

After two weeks of increasing tension, there were final appeals on television by President de Gaulle and the five men who oppose him for the presidency, plus last-minute public rallies by the opposition and by pro-Gaullist ministers and supporters.

The stakes were defined oddly enough, by one of the candidates who is given the least chance of attracting votes —Pierre Marcilhacy, 58, a senator who has been faintly praised for conservative sincer-

To Confront Rhodesia

African Lands Discuss Joint Military Action

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (Reuters) — African ministers today discussed prospects of marshalling a joint military force against white-ruled Rhodesia, following their threat Friday night of a mass diplomatic split from Britain.

Military advisers were brought in with the foreign ministers attending today's session here of the 36-nation Organization of African Unity.

Conference sources said discussions were likely to centre on the composition and size of a joint military force and the timing of its operation.

The ministers voted Friday to break diplomatic relations with the British government unless Britain manages by Dec. 15 to crush the white-minority regime of Prime Minister Ian Smith, who seized independence for Rhodesia, Nov. 11.

Other decisions made at Friday's session of the OAU council were to step all trade and communications with Rhodesia and block Rhodesian accounts in African banks.

An OAU spokesman said the decisions are binding on all member states because the current special session of the council has the full mandate of the OAU summit conference.

A British official, commenting on the threat to cut diplomatic ties, said it was one thing to decide on this "but it's something quite different . . . to implement it."

OAU members belonging to the British Commonwealth include Ghana, Nigeria, Tanzania, Kenya and Zambia.

Predict Ocean-going Ships Will Be Out Monday Night

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Twelve ocean - going ships cleared the St. Lawrence Seaway Friday on their way to the Atlantic and seaway officials at Montreal's St. Lambert lock predicted early today that all ocean-going ships will be safely out by Monday night.

Seaway officials said there were 51 sea-going vessels above St. Lambert lock, and at mid-night there were more than 32 in the system between St. Lambert and Prescott, Ont., 120 miles upstream from Montreal.

Official closing date of the seaway was midnight Friday, but a spokesman said the authority was quite sure the system would remain open until Monday on the basis of current weather prospects.

Water temperature at the St. Lambert lock, always the first one to freeze, was 34.5 Friday compared with 32 at this time a year ago.

Authority officials at St. Catharines said Friday night they hoped all ocean-going vessels will have cleared the Welland Canal into Lake Ontario by noon today.

A spokesman said only six ocean ships remained Friday night above Lock 1 at Port Weller on the Lake Ontario end of the canal.

It normally takes ships 48 hours to reach Montreal after clearing the Welland Canal.

The spokesman said no other ocean-bound ships remained in the Great Lakes above the Welland Canal.

Wind in the canal delayed traffic twice during the last week.

Friday it forced the Norwegian freighter Anna Fresvol to halt near Lock 3 of the eight-lock canal, until tugs steamed in to help it. Wednesday, another Norwegian ship was blown on to a mud bank and held up traffic for 28 hours.

Despite southwest winds of 25 to 30 miles an hour with gusts to 35, two-way shipping was resumed Friday afternoon after several days of one-way traffic to expedite downward movement of ocean vessels.

Lakers are moving towards their home ports.

Officials said the winds made handling of the high-rising seagoing ships difficult but tugs were standing by to help them negotiate wind-exposed areas.

The five-day weather forecast to Dec. 6 the Montreal-Lake Ontario region is for near-normal air temperatures of between 30 and 19 degrees, with light winds and some rain or wet snow.

Viet Cong Blasts, Storms U.S. Billet, Nine Killed

SAIGON (AP)—A small band of Viet Cong terrorists with machineguns blazing stormed and blasted a billet for American soldiers here early today, leaving nine dead and scores injured.

The raiders escaped without a trace. The bomb they used to blast the eight-storey Metropole hotel, ripping its front off in downtown Saigon, took the lives of an American marine, a New Zealand trooper and seven South Vietnamese.

Americans number the highest casualties with 72 wounded. Others were three New Zealanders and 62 South Vietnamese, including civilians.

The Viet Cong also broke a three - day lull in the war today with attacks on government outposts from the South China Sea to the central plains of the north.

U.S. Navy Seabees were clearing the rubble left by the blast at the hotel.

Ordnance disposal men believe that the terrorists exploded a 250-pound device.

The blast came after an unknown number of Viet Cong opened fire on U.S. military police and guards and South Vietnamese police with machine-guns.

The terrorists then drove a truck loaded with the explosive to the front door and detonated it. They escaped in the darkness.

The blast shattered the facade of the hotel and blew out the fronts of other nearby buildings. The hotel did not collapse.

The explosion has been compared to the blasts that wrecked the U.S. Embassy and Saigon police headquarters earlier this year.

Specialist William Seippel, a military policeman, was on duty at the Metropole's front door. He and Vietnamese guards ducked for cover when the light, explosive - laden truck stopped about 20 feet from them.

They evaded the Viet Cong machine-gun bursts and Seippel blasted away with a 12-gauge shotgun and .45-calibre pistol.

Three girls rushed to the doors of bars opposite the hotel to see what was going on. They were ripped to pieces when the truck blew up.

A Vietnamese bodicab driver, cycling past the scene, just disappeared into the air, a navy officer walking a block away reported.

The Viet Cong left a mine behind, timed to go off 15 minutes after the truck blew up. But it didn't go off. Demolition men said its battery was too weak.

The street was a scene of smashed windows, broken glass and bloodied clothing. Order was restored after the first few minutes of panic and the wounded were taken to a U.S. Navy hospital across from the hotel.

Five patients there had been cut by flying glass. A dispensary on the two lower floors of the hotel were smashed.

BCI Teacher Says Students Not Achieving

TORONTO (CP) — Ruth Silvester, a teacher at Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, said Friday that nearly 50 per cent of the Grade 12 students in her school are not achieving their capacity.

In a paper read to the Ontario Educational Research Council, Miss Silvester also said that under-achievers make up 30 per cent of the Grade 11 class.

She identified under-achievers as students whose intelligence quotient was measured at 120 or better but whose school average was below 65.

"Under - achievers are those who could do better but will not," she said.

In a study Miss Silvester conducted, the under-achievers in Grade 11 listed girl-friends or boy-friends and television as their chief distractions.

The Grade 12 under-achievers listed outside jobs as the chief distraction with sports and TV second and girl-friends or boy-friends third.

New 13-classroom School In Park Dale Officially Opened, Before Large Crowd

The opening of a new school is a co-operative venture — just beginning.

This is how Mr. A. H. McKague, superintendent of supervision for the Ontario Department of Education, summed up Friday night as he officially opened the new 13-classroom Park Dale School.

The school auditorium was filled to capacity for the ceremonies, which saw the symbolic passing of keys, a thought provoking address from the guest speaker and congratulations extended to school board members from Mayor J. R. Ellis.

Mr. McKague told his audience of Park Dale district parents, that the building of a new school indicated population growth in the city and district.

DOUBLED IN DECADE

The increase in school population was caused by increased birth rate in the post war years, immigration bringing new cultures and skills to the country, and the fact that there is increased retention in the school system with more students going on to higher education.

Mr. McKague said school population had more than doubled in the past decade and he prophesied that H would again double by 1970.

The speaker went on to outline what a new school opening meant to the parents, to the students and to the teachers, and to the School Board.

He stressed that in today's advanced technological world, the school learning of 30 to 40 years ago was not enough and said it was the responsibility of parents to live where the right education could be provided.

BOARD PRAISED

Acting public school board chairman, J. N. McKibbon, presided over the official opening ceremonies. Board member Frank P. Clarke introduced the guests. Schools superintendent A. A. Kelk introduced the speaker with principal Mrs. Orma Slack expressing appreciation.

Mayor Jack Ellis complimented the public school board in having one of the best new pupil education coats in the province. At the same time the quality of staff instructors and school results were among the best.

Construction of the new Park Dale School was done in two stages, the first five-room building costing $121,000 being built in 1962 and the second section this year at a cost of $160,812. Hugh Murray Construction built this year's addition, while Watson and Wiegand were the architects.

The completed building incorporates 12 regular classrooms, a kindergarten, multi-purpose and health rooms, together with principal's office staff room and kitchen.

New Bridges and Industrial Expansion Some of Topics Discussed at Civic Night

Industrial expansion and new bridges for Belleville were the main topics at the annual Candidates Night sponsored by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce last night.

George Gay, president of the Chamber of Commerce, chaired the meeting, held in the Corby Public School, which filled the auditorium to capacity.

Incumbent Mayor Jack Ellis stressed his record over the past two years and outlined the city's industrial growth during that time.

"Today," he said, "I was able to announce one more good news for Belleville. R. Laidlaw Lumber of Toronto, probably the biggest wholesale lumber company in Ontario, will establish their distribution warehouse for all of Eastern Ontario here in Belleville. This will be the fourth tenant for our Industrial Park.

"Some of the critics in our industrial endeavors will likely call this another boo. Ladies and gentlemen, as I told the people in Park Dale, last night, big or small, we will take all the industry we can lay our hands on.

"Let's continue to talk about industry, our Industrial Commission, and how much money is being spent by the City to get new industry. The going rate for an industrial commissioner in Ontario today ranges between $8,000 and $10,000 a year for salary. In 1964, our industrial commissioner received a total of $4,700 and in 1965, $5,200.

THINGS MOVING CLAIM

"Despite some of the 'know-little,' 'do-little' critics say, things are moving in Belleville. Look at some of the major things that have been accomplished: the new police headquarters building — probably the finest for the money spent anywhere in Canada; the first step in the rebuild up program for North Front has been completed — phase two, mid to the front of the street next year; major sewer programs have been started and are well under way; a sidewalk program is started and going well; Pinnacle Street will be finished this month despite the setbacks placed on the project."

Mayoralty candidate Don Whalen said, "I do not like political manouvering in our civic administration. It has been rumored in the Mayor's office is being used by some merely as a stepping stone to higher political offices. I publicly declare that this is not my intention.

"I have been referred to, on many occasions, by the Mayors and fellow aldermen under whom I have served, as a hard worker. This is as I would wish, since I could find no satisfaction in dealing with the underground just for the sake of a quiet life; but rather facing the issues and solving them. I believe is in the best interest of the community.

"Mayor Ellis has stated he is running on his record. Let us examine this record, and I ask you, are you satisfied? Are you satisfied with the poor planning that has gone into the Pinnacle Street project? Should it have been started at such a time, for public convenience in that they now have found yourself wading through mud to do your Christmas shopping and in the busiest time for the merchants, who have suffered previously?

GET HOUSE IN ORDER

"Are you satisfied with the proposal for a bridge at Dundas Street, a fabulously costly project that is not today needed?" Mr. Whalen asked. "Are you satisfied that all boards and commissions are to be investigated with the possibility of abolishment from — as it is proposed that the Parking Authority be disbanded — just at a time when it is getting some of the dedicated efforts of those citizens?

"Indeed, are you satisfied with the industrial commission, the head of which commission has stated to me that Belleville is not interested in large industry?

"I believe in getting our house in order, beautifying this city, repairing our sidewalks, improving our parks where there is necessary to make this city attractive. I would like this city to live again be called Belleville the Beautiful. Drive around our city, note the generous amount of trees. Are you satisfied with what you see?

"I would not pinch pennies to the point of doing little or nothing, but I would make sure that we value for our dollar spent.

"Where will we be in 15 years? Industrially we have had no building boom. Are you satisfied? We need no crash costly program but to proceed with caution, which is wise progress."

After the mayoralty candidates' presentations, candidates for aldermen were called. All but one aldermanic candidate, Dr. Donald Ross, were present. Dr. Scott, as past president of the Public School Board, had to be present at the opening of Park Dale School last night. He expressed regrets in his letter to the meeting and to his duties kept him away from the meeting.

ALD. JACK ALLIN

Alderman Jack Allin also took a tilt at the College Street bridge project. He was past of the reason for industry not coming here.

"I believe he would work for its "immediate reconstruction."

Alderman Allin called for a meeting of the homeowners in new subdivisions on roads and sidewalks.

ALD. DOUGLAS BOYLE

Alderman Douglas Boyle called for Belleville to "stop and boost their city instead of knocking it."

He said there was need of open air skating rinks in the city and suggested that Hill and West Hill playgrounds as locations. The Fairgrounds, with its lighting, should be used in winter with natural or artificial ice.

Other civic requirements he mentioned included a secondary treatment sewage plant and a College Street bridge which he said "an anachronism of the past."

ALD. GEORGE BROWN

Alderman George Brown said he was not against industry but is industrial development to lower the tax dollar.

The College Street bridge must be replaced and given priority next year.

"I think the budget is made up for next year, I trust we will have more for our welfare department," he said.

ALD. T. A. CARRUTHERS

Alderman T. A. Carruthers said he was particularly interested in construction of a road from Bell Boulevard across the east bank of the Moira River.

"This, he said, would provide parking, facilitate store delivery service and ease Front Street traffic problems.

He said he had brought a frozen-chicken processing plant to Belleville and "I pledge myself to further industrial expansions, with a greater repre-

This Business of Voting

City business is a big business — in which we all seek big investment. It is not only important that everyone vote on Monday, but they should vote for the right candidates to safeguard this investment.

Right, now Belleville is fortunate in having highly qualified candidates running for office. For example, Jack Allin is an excellent choice because of his record of past achievements in administration. Men such as this are the kind we can desire to work for the best interests of the city.

Dr. Scott has always shown a keen interest in community affairs. He has held such positions as Chairman of the Belleville Library Board, Chairman of the United Appeal, Past President of the Belleville Fair Board, member of the Belleville Public School Board (Chairman in 1965), and General Chairman of the Hastings County International Plowing Match held here several years ago. With this background in community service, Dr. Scott's experience would be a valuable asset on the city council.

Sentenced to Die

LINCOLN, Neb. (CP)—Duane E. Pope, 23, a college football star who turned killer, was sentenced Friday to be electrocuted next March 3 for the shooting of three bank employees six months ago. The killings occurred during a bank robbery five days after he graduated from college.

He said:

"There are 10 vacant storey on Front Street," he said. "More elsewhere in the fact that there is the heart of the business district which have been destroyed by fire and have not been rebuilt.

"There are several things which have to be done to remedy these conditions, said Mr. McKinney, including making parking more accessible. Other improvements have completely transformed their downtown areas by the implementation of the Norwich plan, he said.

"It takes imagination, co-operation and civic leadership," he declared. "There is much to be done. I believe I can provide the ability and energy necessary to get this job done."

The city, he said, needs new industry, more commercial facilities immediately, outdoor hockey and skating rinks, with artificial ice and more entertainment.

ALD. KEN SODEN

Alderman Ken Soden was strongly critical of the present council. "Nothing is done and neglected his call for its replacement.

"The present unsafe one-way bridge is a disgrace to our fair city and is, in my opinion, the most urgent civic work requirement today."

He wanted it might have adverse effects on any industrial prospecting Belleville as a possible industrial site.

"A new four-lane bridge at College Street would also help the traffic situation downtown at the lower bridge."

ALD. DON WILLIAMS

Alderman Donald G. Williams said he was particularly interested in the chairmanship of the Parks, Recreation and Arena Committee, and mentioned future projects.

"In conclusion I would like to add that the people of my city to boost Belleville instead of criticizing. I believe in criticism as long as it is constructive," he said in the right place. I know that you don't get very far with criticism but you can go a long way by being positive and boosting the other fellow."

GERALD B. HYDE

Gerald B. Hyde, vice-chairman of the Public Utilities Commission who is seeking re-election to that body, gave a review of the commission's accomplishments during the past two years. He stressed the advantages accruing from the decision to sell "the old gas plant" site between Bridge and Pinnacle Streets and erect a new garage, warehouse and storeroom combination. "A safe and important decision," he said, "was to build a new Hydro building to replace the one on Reid Street.

The first year's work in a four-year program to construct a 24-inch feed main around the perimeter of the city has been completed, he said, to provide adequate water pressure in the west, north and east portions of the city. That program, approved by the voters last year, is now a fact. A pilot plant study has been made to form an effort to eliminate periodic objectionable taste and odor. A new filtration plant to be constructed when the city's population reaches 25,000 people. The city start has been made to meter all water services in the city.

"Hydro rates have been consistently improved.

Mr. Hyde said he was seeking re-election on that record.

LYLE A. LANGABEER

Challenging the return of both PUC incumbents is Lyle A. Langabeer.

Mr. Langabeer, a railroader, noted his 11-year service on the Belleville Public School Board, including his general chairmanship and service on all its committees.

As a long-time consumer, he said was "very much interested" in how PUC money is spent.

HARRY ROLLINS

Public Utilities Commissioner Harry Rollins said the commission's accomplishments have included expansion including a $217,000 works and supply centre; a new storage building at the filtration plant; the expansion of the same plant to meet growing city needs.

"This is not just a program pulled out — but one which has been given careful study by analysis and ..." he concluded.

Ameliasburg Twp. Voters Hear Aspirants for Office

By ELMER BONTER

Candidates veiling for council and school board vacancies in Ameliasburg township as a political hay at the final meeting of nominees' meeting before voting on Monday.

The attendance, close to 200, was slim to turn out for a polling election airing of records and proposed undertakings in many years. Township and afforded each aspirant an uninterrupted hearing. As people left the Hall, Ameliasburg Public School, comments and expressed by a board summed up the apparent feeling that there be had improved of the results of the balloting the interest created in township affairs by the meeting and that there can only produce better government.

Incumbent Harold Bonter seeking re-election for reeve repeated the report on his "term in office for the benefit of those who had not been present at the nomination meeting earlier.

Mr. Bonter said he had progressively conveyed tile for culverts as accused explaining the construction of ditches and the necessity of distribution of tile to the various township reeves and he had been able to allot them to the best of his ability. "I've been accused of getting things that didn't belong to me," he said. "Well, I don't mind when the truth is being told," he added, "but I don't like lies, as in this case, it bothers me."

Referring to a letter distributed throughout the township he scored reference to party affiliations and contended his opposition had been on the basis with his criticism of planning if he had municipal experience.

Reeve Bonter hit out at the attack on the administration's road building programme and implements policies asking whether his opponent knew that the province contributed from 80 per cent of the cost of road upkeep and expansion and 80 per cent of bridge construction. He maintained his experience gave him the advantage to serve in the people in the future in making his appeal for their support.

Aspirant for reeve Fred Evans of Redmerville pointed out that he was unaware he was up against incumbent. Referring to his reference to party affiliation and being opposed by a machine was evidenced by the presence of the local provincial members of the two political bustings in company with the incumbent. "The local MPP has been conspicuous by his absence in the last week." Mr. Evans said, expressing the opinion that it was his understanding that provincial and federal politics had no place in municipal elections. Contrary to it was an hearing I am no newcomer to the township, he pointed out, asserting that he was born and player in Amelisburg for 20

Monday's Civic Vote

When Belleville voters go to the polls on Monday they will do so in the knowledge that the city faces a period of intensive growth. In recent years this has been a slow process, but the trend across Canada is toward increasing population, increased services to accommodate them, and new industry to help pay for the cost of expansion and provide employment.

Belleville cannot stand still. It must progress or fall behind other communities. To avoid the latter contingency, imaginative planning and leadership are needed. And to move forward the city administrators require the encouragement and full support of an informed electorate.

In this respect the electorate too often has been found wanting. Last year only about 25 per cent of the more than 18,000 eligible voters cast their ballot. This is not good enough, and candidates in Monday's municipal election deserve better.

The main interest in this election centres around the period of growth which we are entering. Industry, the downtown area, parking, the question of a new bridge across the Moira —these are some of the immediate issues facing the new Council.

There is a two-way contest for the Mayoralty between Jack Ellis, a hard and active worker in the interests of Belleville, who is seeking a second term as chief citizen, and Don Whalen, city realtor and a seven-year veteran of Council.

When Mayor Ellis told the Wharf Street Debating Club meeting that Council had got Belleville moving and was going to keep it moving someone in the audience replied "Where to?" It was a pointed rejoinder, and one to which both candidates for the mayoralty, as well as every member of Council, should address themselves.

If the truth were known, the average man in the street is disappointed with Belleville's lack of real progress on the industrial scene. That is why the new council must work not only to keep the city moving, but keep the public informed, through its elected representatives and the news media.

It is true, however, that negotiations for new industry often take time. The Industrial Commission announced one success recently—a firm which will produce women's hosiery. Another catch is the announcement by the Laidlaw Lumber Company that it plans to build a large warehouse in Belleville. This firm has interests across Canada.

Mr. Ellis, seeking re-election as Mayor, is confident the Industrial Commission will attract more firms to Belleville. It should not be forgotten either that additions have been made to existing plants, a fact mentioned by Mr. Ellis in welcoming Canadian Manufacturers' Association delegates to the city recently.

Mayor Ellis has been active in municipal life since 1957 when he commenced a two-year term on Sidney Township council. He has served on city council boards of control, hydro and public works, which has accomplished much in the way of street improvements and related services.

In 1963 he headed the water pollution control committee, whose work led to construction of the new sewage plant.

Mr. Whalen, who is making his first bid for the mayoralty, has been on council for seven years. He is a veteran of World War II, having served in Sicily, Italy, France, Belgium and Holland. He entered the real estate business shortly after the war.

The new council will have 10 members instead of 14 as at present. There are 14 candidates for these 10 seats.

Thirteen candidates will bid for eight seats in each of the contests for public and separate school boards. Voting in these contests will be a general vote across the city, rather than a ward-by-ward ballot as in the past.

Voters are also being asked to decide whether Sunday movies should be permitted in Belleville. A fact to consider here is that Sunday movies are shown in more than 100 communities in Ontario.

A good turnout of voters would be an encouraging sign in Belleville. It would be an indication that citizens really are concerned about their community and its progress. At this time in our history we cannot afford to be apathetic or unconcerned. One way to show one's interest in the community is to vote on Monday.

Often heard—usually with a sigh of resignation—are rafle entrants who say, "I never win anything." They are almost always correct.

However, someone has to win—but why has over had such devastating luck as Mary Anne Murray, a student at Eden Hall Convent in Philadelphia, who has won three luxury cars in raffles this year. For good measure she also won a $200 hand organ, $100 gift certificate, a Bible and several other small prizes.

Miss Murray decided her luck was "unbelievably fantastic. More precisely, a statistician estimated it was a 100 million-to-one chance for anyone to win three autos in three tries.

To Your Good Health
Limit Liquid Intake If You Have Glaucoma

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What do you mean by "proper diet" for glaucoma? My doctor says that if diet affects this disease, he doesn't know about it. I would put anything to save my eyesight. — J. M.

* * *

If I misled you, I apologize. It was not my intention to suggest that eating certain foods will prevent glaucoma. However some things should be avoided. Other than that, an adequate, balanced diet is sufficient — common sense nutrition.

Glaucoma, as you know, involves increasing pressure inside the eyeball. Prevention depends on keeping tension or pressure down.

Caffein can increase this tension. Therefore, coffee is to be avoided, and the same is true of cola drinks which contain caffein. Likewise some headache pills which contain caffein.

Tea, although it contains some caffein, does not appear to have the same effect as coffee. Just why is not understood. (Decaffeinated coffee is acceptable.)

Imbibing large amounts of fluid also can increase tension. Indeed, one test sometimes used for glaucoma involves drinking a large amount of water in a short time to determine whether pressure increases. Please do not think that this means you should restrict fluid unnecessarily. Normal liquid is healthful, but in ordinary amounts only.

People who are habitual beer drinkers often put away considerable amounts of fluid in a short time — so I would avoid this habit. Likewise I have known physicians who restricted glaucoma patients to no more than one or two highballs a day with seemingly good results. Whether the benefit was from restriction of alcohol or simply of excessive fluids is open to debate.

There are the dietary restrictions I had in mind, rather than intending to imply that either eating or not eating some particular food would have an effect. "Diet" involves what we eat and drink; not just what we eat.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please send me your booklet, "Diabetes, The Sneaky Disease." The required stamped, self-addressed envelope and 25 cents in coin are enclosed.

If the retina of the eye has been damaged by diabetes, can vision ever be corrected by glasses, or is it bound to get worse? — E. C. S.

The answer depends on the extent to which the retina has been damaged already and the rate at which the damage is progressing. In many instances glasses will improve vision, but if the damage has affected the focal point (the macula) of the area upon which the light rays must fall, then glasses will not help.

Dear Dr. Molner: I was exposed to venereal disease but am myself immune to it. I have been told to by a doctor. My question is, if I am exposed to it, can I still pass it on to others, or would my immunity destroy the germs? — L. F. W.

I am astonished that a doctor would tell you that you are immune to venereal disease, and his opinion raises in my mind the question of whether he is a qualified physician, or is some sort of self-styled "doctor."

The only immunity to syphilis and gonorrhea would at best be temporary, while under treatment that would involve high enough doses of drugs to destroy the germs. Once the drug level subsides, you can contract — and give — the germs again. These diseases do not create immunity in the sense that measles, chickenpox and some other diseases do. Many people, cured of venereal diseases, have been acquired them again.

Timely Advice From Premier

Montreal Gazette

By coincidence or design, Prime Minister Pearson's speech in New York City, accepting the Family of Man Award, was extremely well-timed. It provided the right note of cautious advice to the smaller members of the United Nations not to overplay their hand; just at the moment when they were in some danger of doing so through their understandable strong resentment of the Rhodesian rebellion.

Many African members of the United Nations have been urging that military action be taken immediately to suppress the regime of former Premier Smith, without waiting to assess the effectiveness of economic sanctions. There has also been strong but sometimes vicious criticism of the British government of Prime Minister Wilson for failing to take military action.

This African anger is understandable, but, at the same time, it is fair to expect delegates to the U.N. to control their emotions, and to make an attempt to be realistic and objective. For Britain, alone or in the company of other countries, to take military action against Rhodesia would mean the unleashing of a major campaign. There would probably be terrible bloodshed. Any hopes of an eventual reconciliation between Whites and Blacks would probably be doomed. Another Congo would be created.

Rhodesia may still come to this fate in the end. But this is something to be avoided, not urged. As Prime Minister Pearson said in New York, the small nations now have immense power at the U.N. But if they use this power irresponsibly, they will merely drive the older and larger members into the wrecking corner. This misfortune could still happen over the Rhodesian problem.

Sadiron Sizzle

Windsor Star

Recently we were scanning an auction sale notice in a week by newspaper. It listed some interesting antiques, such as butter bowls, butter prints, etc. — and sadirons. It took a moment to recall just what sadirons were.

They were, of course, the old flatirons housewives used to do their ironing and pressing. The iron would be placed atop a hot wood or coal stove. The more "modern" of them had detachable handles which would be affixed to the hot iron as it was lifted from the stove.

The trick was to know when the iron was sufficiently hot. The housewife had an ingenious way of doing so. She simply would spit on the flat of the iron, and she could tell by the sizzle how hot it was.

Even a hot iron only kept hot enough for so long. Many housewives would have two or more, interchanging them as necessary so as to have no delays when ironing.

We suspect these old sadiron fetched a good price as antiques. But we suspect modern housewives would have little patience with them.

Ottawa Offbeat
Circulating Rumors Is Such Fun As Mr. Pearson Sits and Sons

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — What do the little people do when the big man is out of town?

Like, what is the Cabinet up to while Prime Minister Pearson is sunning himself and digging his toes into the sands of the Caribbean?

Circulating rumors, you might say. And you might be right.

After all, there is a Cabinet to be picked out before the end of the month and the old one has quite a few holes in it which need filling.

Mind you, there are some holes need filling in the Senate, too, and that is what seemed to give support to some of the rumors.

For instance, there was one here earlier this week that J. J. Greene, Liberal member for Renfrew South, would give up his seat in exchange for one in the Senate.

This would set up a by-election in his riding, of course, and guess who the Liberals would run in his place (according to highly-placed rumors)?

None other than Harry Hays, minister of agriculture, seatless in the Commons and resting his election-weary bones in Hawaii. That is who.

There was another good one, too. It had Public Works Minister George McIlraith, 25-year veteran of the Commons and government House leader, heading for the Senate old haven of tired politicians.

MISS JEWETT BACK?

In his place the Liberals would run in a by-election (according to those same sources) Pauline Jewett, the political science professor who went down before the Hees onslaught on Northumberland in the recent election.

Although she didn't always stand with the government on all issues, Miss Jewett was highly regarded in Liberal in other circles and might well have been named to Cabinet if she had won her seat. In short, she is wanted again.

Those aren't bad as rumors, to be added to the ones about Privy Council President Favreau and State Secretary Lamontagne.

But those latter ministers were present at Cabinet this week and showed no signs of being ready to quit or of allowing themselves to be turfed out.

It is hard to say just where Mr. Favreau and Mr. Lamontagne stand — Mr. Pearson will have to clarify that upon his return from the hillside of the southern sun.

But there is something to say about the other two.

To begin with, Mr. Greene is not a man to relish the relative quiet of the Senate, even though he speaks with an Ottawa Valley drawl, he likes to speak often, firmly and loudly. Not Senate style.

And, if he were to leave, Mr. Hays would have the smallest sort of chance of winning the seat of Renfrew South, which mostly pro-Tory, with a majority. Renfrew South does not like outsiders.

MR. HAYS' CHANCES

The odds are that Mr. Hays would be strongly contested at any nomination meeting and campaigned heavily by any Conservative candidate.

Only local boys win in Renfrew South.

As for Ottawa West (Mr. McIlraith's seat), there would be room as a Senator.

A Liberal stronghold for 40 years, this riding has more than a handful of hopefuls walking patiently (or impatiently) for Mr. McIlraith to step down and give them a chance.

The fight for the nomination would be bad enough with out Mrs. Jewett trying to step in.

Now Coffee Is in the Doghouse

It's all going too far. Before you know it, there won't be a blamed thing left except to crawl in an hermetically sealed box and just lie there.

Every last pleasure is being taken out of our lives, and a lot of necessities too. We've become so health conscious that the sheer joy of living is giving way to the sheer monotony of existing.

Take your morning coffee. Don't you feel better after the second cup? Doesn't it make your husband or wife a little better tempered; doesn't it break up the morning after the boss has blown his top a couple of times, probably because he was fed instant java that same day?

Doesn't it make the conversation more pleasant in the afternoon; help soothe the wrinkles out at dinner; pave the way for many long hours into the night solving the issues of the day between pals?

Well, you may go nuts if you keep on drinking it. You'll probably get ulcers, and you'll but we're not dealing with that aspect.

Cincinnati physician Harry M. Salzer has made a 10-year study of the effect of caffeine on psychiatric patients and neurological breakdowns and believes the correlation is definite. He studied 185 women and 115 men.

They had such psychiatric symptoms as depression, insomnia, phobias, and found such physical and neurological complaints as exhaustion, sweating, rapid heartbeat, headache, dizziness and tremors. When they weren't pregnant, they'd been drinking too much coffee.

We can't smoke because of the cancer scare; we can't drink coffee without thinking we may foam at the mouth and roll on the floor; we can't eat vegetables because they've been sprayed with pesticides; we can't breathe the air because of pollution.

Nevertheless, life is worth living. . . .

Nothing New Under the Sun

Owen Sound Sun-Times

Many a male adult of today will recall with amazement his youth when there were always "long" trousers' lents at the circus or fall fair in which, after male friends would reveal in whispers, partially clad girls wizzed and giggled. The name of the dance itself was never mentioned in polite company, but no doubt about it, the old grown man has been roundly berated by his wife when if came to her attention he had paid his dime or two bits for a look at the "dancers." The antics were considered crude, suggestive, indecent and not just by those who were overly prim and proper.

The dances were nothing compared to those enacted in millions of living rooms, generally with the young people doing the age and younger, as part of the family audiences. The girls were becomingly clad in short skirts cut in imitation of Hawaiian grass shirts. And the actions were those of the hula, the antics of a belly dancer in a reasonably respectable show form.

Today's home displays via TV feature girls in skin tight garb, the motions suggestive of their portrayal of actions which possibly would have caused pallor and of Sodom and Gomorrah blush. True of course barnyards with their flocks of hens and accompanying roosters put on quite similar displays . . . but they are considered considerably below humans in the scale of animated life.

One need not be uncanonically prudish to consider the displays as quite indecent. Yet they formed part of Sunday evening family entertainment for millions of families on the Ed Sullivan show, for instance. The enactments make one wonder about the performers. And they cast enlightment on one of the days major social problems.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

December 4th, 1945

At the cessation of hostilities a civic reception committee was formed in Belleville at the request of the Mayor, to welcome home the personnel of the armed forces. This work which has been carried on by ladies' organizations of the Army and Navy Veterans and the ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion, has meant an expenditure of approximately $2,000 per year. Funds are now needed to carry on the good work.

"There is an urgent need of well-planned and effective advertising, which would greatly increase sales of Canadian cheese on the overseas market" stressed Prof. A. L. Gibson, of Kemptville Agricultural School as he addressed the Hastings Ontario Cheese Makers' Assoc. in the city.

A Lift for Living

Turning Messy Junk Yards Into Useful, Healthy Parks

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Some years ago, in one of our southeastern states, a streetcar motorman found he had eleven minutes between his arrival at the end of one run and the time he was scheduled to start another. At this stopping point there was a plot of land nobody cared about. The neglected piece of ground was perhaps one-half acre in size. Careless people had thrown old bottles and discarded tin cans there. Every vagrant wind whirled wrappings and newspapers across the lot.

One day the motorman decided to use his leisurely eleven minutes at the end of each run to pick up loose papers. After several stops the land looked a little less littered. Then he began gathering tin cans and bottles, and on his day off he hauled them to the city dump. When spring came, he brought flower seeds, shrub cuttings and sapling trees, and at nearly every stop he sowed some seeds or planted some cuttings or a young tree. With this program of using a little time every day the motorman converted the dumping ground to a small park that delighted the eye of every passerby.

A junk yard and a park symbolize two contrasting kinds of living, jumbled and purposeful. The junk yard's ugliness is found chiefly in its disorder. The stuff that is there may be old and broken, but its ugliness is not in its age or disrepair; the goods in an antique shop are old and yet often beautiful, and a carefully stacked neatly in a repair shop may be broken without being unsightly. More than any other feature, it is the disorder of a junk yard that makes it ugly.

PLANNED PLACE

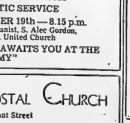
A park is a planned place. There is a plot for grass lawns, a spot for trees to grow, for streams or pools of water. Benches are there to sit on. There are walkways and places where walking is forbidden.

From this we can gather what beauty means in the realm of the spirit. The good and beautiful life is organized and controlled by high purpose, and not cluttered by ungoverned impulses. We all have impulses, good and bad. Maturing into manhood and womanhood means developing principles of conduct that rule us instead of wild, disordered impulses. Growing up is, in part, a process of substituting plan and principle for impulse and mood.

How many of us would have received an education if we had gone to school only on those days when we were enthusiastic about schooling? How many would have any credit standing if we paid bills only when we could do so cheerfully, gladly? How many would have a job if we reported for work only when we were eager for it and excited about it? Would religious faith survive in the world if only those who were caught up in religious ecstasy went to church and were loyal to the Kingdom of God?

LIVE RESPONSIBLY

All good people everywhere have learned to live above mere wishes and whims. They live responsibly. Impulsiveness is a junk yard kind of living, where desires, moods, and whims are scattered haphazardly and dominate the scenery. Purposeful living is park-like living, where high principle and plan draw all of life's components into a great design. The Christian knows what real goodness is for he has seen it revealed in Jesus Christ. Christlikeness is, then, is our goal, and Christ's own conduct is our standard.



The famed English author, Rudyard Kipling, and William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, one day met at Oxford University. It was an occasion when honorary degrees were being conferred upon them. Old William Booth was not embarrassed in the slightest by being thus conferred upon them. Old highly literate Kipling. Booth marched across the quadrangle to and asked Kipling, "Young feller, how's your soul?"

Although crudely put, that is life's personal and preeminent question: "What are you really like inside?" Beneath our veneer of worldly success and honors, beneath all appearances what are we?

Junk yards? Or parks?

Ann Landers
Never Answer to Name Which You Do Not Like

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm writing about the wife who didn't like it when an old schoolmate greeted her husband with, "If it isn't Dirty Neck Swanson." She didn't appreciate the nickname dredged up from grammar school and I don't blame her.

You advised Mr. Swanson to tell his old friend with the big mouth to "knock it off." You said: "When dealing with insensitive clods the direct approach is the only way."

I disagree. Cloddish types are heartily encouraged when they discover their needling has struck a raw nerve. Here's my story:

When I was 12 I was a shaky under 5' 5. A ANN LANDERS few friends began to call me "Shorty." Dad was afraid I'd develop a complex so he gave me this advice: "Son," he said, "you will never be stuck with a nickname you don't answer to."

And he was right. From then on, when anyone called me "Shorty" I looked straight ahead and played deaf. Anyone who wanted my attention had to try another name.

If it worked for me I'm sure it will work for others, so please pass it on. — E.B.C.

DEAR E.B.C.: Your Dad was a wise man. I wish I had thought of it. I'll use his advice the next time I'm asked.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am not one of those crazy nuts who makes my husband take off his shoes when he comes into the house. Nor do I examine objects with a magnifying glass to see if they are really clean. My vision is fairly good, however, and when I dine in a restaurant and see a lipstick smudge on a glass, or a particle of dried food on a fork, I don't think I should keep still and use it. Do you?

My husband insists it is a mark of poor breeding to complain about such trifles and that people with good manners remain silent and make the best of it. Is he right? — EAGLE EYE ELSIE.

DEAR EAGLE: I don't understand your husband's definition of "make the best of it." Is he suggesting it is good manners to use dirty silverware or a glass that has not been washed properly? Please clarify, dear, for I'm not sure how you does he expect you to go? Does he feel you should "make the best of" a hair in your soup or a fly in your salad?

An complaint should be made across the dining room. But no person should remain silent about unsanitary conditions in any restaurant for fear of being considered ill-bred.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your column is the first thing I read in the paper. You have a terrific sense of humor but your bloody sometimes borders on rudeness. I must say I enjoy your column immensely even though your advice often stinks.

Take, for example, the lecture you gave the bride-to-be who made breakfast for his folks. I thought this was quite considerate of the lad, especially since his parents were ill-tempered and unpleasant in the morning.

Most high school kids have to be dragged out of bed and waited on. You should have complimented the boy and advised him to tell his folks to "get out the bickering." — A PARENT.

DEAR PARENT: From the lad's description of his parents I didn't think they would care to be kindly to a suggestion from him that they "cut out the bickering." They would probably tell him to button his lip. My advice was calculated to protect him from further trouble.

Spring Collection Small But Full of Flair

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP)—Marielle Fleury's spring collection for Irving Samuel of Montreal was small, but full of the flair and originality that is rapidly establishing the young French-Canadian designer's reputation as a fashion innovator.

Those bemoaning the current youth craze in fashion circles were silenced at Marielle's showing here Thursday night.

The clothes were not restricted to the under-25 age group. They were elegant, luxurious, sophisticated and classic. In short, they were designed for women.

This does not mean the designer is unaware of current trends, but when she does them, she detailing on popular spring fashion ideas, she interprets them in an individual way.

To match the frequent use of two - color solid combinations, she created a simple, snugly-fitted off-white wool dress. But instead of teaming the colors in the usual square geometric pattern, she inserted a diagonal midriff strip of lime. This dress was worn with a lime and off-white tweed coat.

Another unorthodox use of two-color contrasts showed up in a beige and turquoise coat and dress. This time wool was teamed with the solid beige yokes of both coat and dress. The yokes were irregular rather than starkly geometric.

NEW COLORS

Yellow used vibrantly colored waves for her fall ensembles. Her first collection for Irving Samuel, and although her yellow costumes came in softer tones, color remained a focal point.

Not navy, red, white or any of the pastels, but bright orange emerged as her favorite spring color.

Details carried over from her first ready-to-wear collection included large round self-covered buttons that fasten with fabric loops and tucks with slightly flounced hemlines.

The flounced hemline was further developed for spring 66 in one dress - and - coat costume. The mutated crepe dress, with its flounced hem, had a white crepe sophisticated and classic. In flower accentuating the lowest short, they were designed for of backs, was a fitted A-line women. with an attached flared hem band. The accompanying ridged worsted coat in bone color came with the same hemline detailing.

Solid crepe or chiffon blouses were worn with multi - colored tweed suits. A Mexican-looking striped suit with horizontal and diagonal jacket treatment, came in shades of orange, purple, blue and green and was worn with an orange chiffon blouse.

Marielle described her collection as "very 1935" and evidence of this era cropped up in high - mounted sleeves that looked almost padded, in loosely tied sash belts and in a closely fitted silhouette.

Women's Institutes
CARMEL WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The November meeting of the Carmel Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Ralph Plumpton with a good attendance.

The meeting was opened by the president Mrs. J. Lucas. It was decided to give a donation to the Mental Hospital at Cobourg. The December meeting will be "ladies night out" at Jim's Diner on December 14th. Mrs. Clayton Sullivan, convener for Canadian Industry gave a reading. Mrs. Duane Martin, convener for education read an item dealing with school closings. The one room school over the country have been closed for a larger area and many a pupil of this generation will feel that something good has gone out of the land. A danger in the larger school area is the possibility that people won't feel it is their school. The most important fact for a sound and progressive school is a body of enlightened interested fathers and mothers who are the ratepayers and are ready to promote what they believe to be good, but who are not afraid to speak out when there is something about the school that they believe should be questioned.

Mrs. George Graham, convener for historical research gave a reading on "Leif Ericson First Here." Yale University has in their possession of a map dated 1440 A.D. which makes the Norwegian Leif Ericson the first explorer in history to land on the North American mainland in the year 999 A.D. Historians have long accepted that Leif Ericson and probably his father Eric the Red came before Columbus. Columbus was the was the colonizer, he was the man who "sold" North America to Europe.

Mrs. Russel Ritz took charge of the program and readings were given by Mrs. Allison, Mrs. Gowthorpe and Mrs. Ritz.

Mrs. Percy Reynolds introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Alex Beaudrie, who spoke on decorative icings for cakes. She displayed a decorated cake and a five-year old's birthday and for a baby shower. She explained and gave a demonstration of icing. After the cake was decorated it was auctioned to the highest bidder.

Mrs. Ritz and Mrs. Lucas thanked Mrs. Beaudrieg and Mrs. Gowthorpe presented her with a small gift. Miss Ruth Brimmell conducted a kitchen contest. Lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants and a social period followed.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Before her recent marriage, Mrs. David W. L. Cape, the former Elizabeth Dianne Genereaux of Belleville, was entertained at miscellaneous showers given by Mrs. A. E. Welch and Mrs. J. Brunner and by Mr. L. Caul and Darnel Caul. She was also entertained by fellow employees of Topp Motel.

Word has been received that Mrs. B. O'Regan, 217 Bingham Avenue, Toronto, formerly of this city, died on Friday.

"Anywhere, providing it is forward, I will go into the interior, or perish."— Dr. David Livingstone.

* * *

"Her husband, the late Dr. Hereward Livingstone was a great-nephew of the famous explorer and missionary in Africa, Dr. David Livingstone," one heard about a charming lady from Weston, Ontario, when here as a guest of her nieces, Mrs. Harold G. Crowe, 169 William Street of Belleville, and Mrs. F. J. Pete Aziz, 1 Devere Gardens of Trenton, recently.

"Yes, that is true," affirmed Mrs. Hereward Livingstone graciously consenting to relate the following account exclusively for our readers:

"The Livingstones," she began, "lived in Blantyre, Scotland.

"David had two brothers. Charles, the youngest, became a British Counsel in Africa during part of the time David was there. John, the eldest, settled in Lanark, Ontario, and after he retired from business, moved to Listowel.

"My husband's father, Neil was the eldest of John's family of ten children.

"I decided, after my husband's death, to send what possessions we had of Dr. David Livingstone's to the Rhodes - Livingstone Museum in Livingstone, Rhodesia, Africa.

"There was, for example a copy of Robinson Crusoe which had been presented to David as a child when the missionary was Sunday School. He carried it with him wherever he went, as he did a small silver pocket-knife.

"Another book was a Greek Testament which David signalled was to be given to the first nephew who learned to read Greek. Neil, my husband's father, was it. This I sent to the Museum along with letters from his brother Charles, from himself, and his last diary from Africa. The latter contained many pressed flowers and specimens of African birds. There were also various maps of places which he had explored.

"There was a photograph of Matthew Wellington. This man, once a slave, was bought and freed by Dr. Livingstone who taught him to read and write.

"When Dr. Livingstone last returned to Africa he received from him for a long time, and a New York reporter, named Stanley rent by his paper to find him, did so and greeted him with the words: "Dr. Livingstone, I presume?" which became world famous.

"Actually, the Doctor was not the first Englishman who had been stolen, and Mr. Stanley was able to supply him with some which he had.

"But it was too late. He was very ill and soon death came, they found the Doctor in the morning kneeling beside his bed.

"Matthew Wellington was one of the oarsmen who brought Dr. Livingstone's body to Zanzibar where a British Man-of-War waited, ready to bring it to England.

"The heart was removed from the body, embalmed to the best of the natives' ability, and planted under a marked tree where it still remains. The bearers dared to travel only by night for the natives would not have allowed the body to be taken away.

"Thus, to the Museum, I sent a copy of the original London Times with an issue front-page description of Dr. Livingstone's funeral; along with a small spray of flowers made from some form of pearl-like beads, which was part of the wreath that Queen Victoria had placed on his coffin as it lay in Westminster Abbey where he is buried.

"Matthew was made an honorary pall-bearer."

It had been Dr. Livingstone's hope to go as a missionary to China, but at the last minute the missionary authorities favored Africa. His motto is beneath an old portrait of him which adorns in Mrs. Livingstone's home in Weston and reads: "Anywhere, providing it is forward, I will go into the interior, or perish."

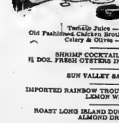
"Over a thousand natives visit the Museum each year," the Curator has written Mrs. Livingstone, "and many remark that Dr. Livingstone was one white man whom they could trust."

"Before returning to Africa for the last time," concluded Mrs. Livingstone, "David sent his great coat to John, who wore it for years in Canada.

"This coat was also returned to Africa.

"An interesting thing about this is, after the Museum in Africa received the coat, an Englishman visited the Museum, and noted the coat which was displayed on a figure in a glass case.

"He asked if it might be possible to have a good look at the coat at out of the case.



"His wish was granted.

Upon examining the coat he discovered the maker's label with the amazing proof that the coat was not only from the London Firm in which his own grandfather was employed, but actually was made by him!

"The Englishman was astonished at the perfect condition of the coat!"

Here's Help for Travellers Planning a Trip to Paris

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

PARIS — A few nuts and bolts about Paris and how to do it without tears:

Accommodations — Even more than in most big tourist cities, there are all kinds of hotels for all kinds of people. If you can afford the best — and that means an average of $30 a night for two people! — the experience of staying in a sophisticated hotel in the world's most sophisticated city is one you'll never forget.

Perhaps the most elegant hotel in Paris is the small, discreet and exquisite Raphael, about a block from the Arc de Triomphe. The Ritz is comparable, but busier and almost always filled; 70 percent of its accommodations are suites, so it will be even more expensive if you do get space. All the deluxe hotels of Paris, with their magnificent classic furnishings and decor, are excellent. But the best value is the Royal Monceau — a little more commercial, a little less lavish, and a little cheaper.

If you want comfort and a touch of humane prices, hop a bus for the Left Bank. A good and reasonable first class hotel there is the Pont Royal. The Bac Cayre — from $4.50 single and $10.00 double — is a real bargain for Paris. Just don't expect the Ritz.

WARY "CHIC" SPOTS

Dining — Most of the atmospheric little restaurants of Paris are so good that a New York they would be "discovered" and become terribly chic and outrageously expensive. But there are so many of them in competitive Paris that it doesn't work that way.

So you just have to know where to look. A few atmospheric places we know and like, where dinner with wine should cost you $5 to $7 per person, (Prices are cheaper) are Chez Allard, enormously popular and hard to book, but never touristspoiled; de Chez Eux, Avenue Lowendal near Les Invalides, a gay and bright country kitchen; Chez Paulins, Avenue Villiers about two blocks from the Opera; Le Sergent Recruteur, (the Recruiting Sergeant), 41 Rue St. Louis ou the Ile St. Louis, where you may make your own salad from a big basket of farm-fresh vegetables, then dig into an equally big basket of home-made sausages in bewildering variety, all just for starters; and Cocotaxi, on the atmospheric Place des Vosges.

Unless you plan to eat the way Frenchmen are supposed to (but don't), taking three hours over a gastronomic tour de force, then going back to your hotel and sleeping off the rest of your sightseeing and shopping day, you'll be wise to have a sandwich. Try a sidewalk cafe, one of the neo-American Fan-Fan chain, or the equally neo-American but fascinating le Drugstore on the Champs Elysees (come to think of it, we didn't even see a drugcounter there). You can even have sundaes and milk shakes here.

ABOUT FRENCH MENUS

About French menus, if you don't see what you want, ask for it; any French chef worthy of the name can, and will, make it. And if you can't read French, the headwaiter can speak English. If you can read French, remember that the house specialties generally are written — (that's right, written, not printed) — (that's right, written, not printed) — (that's right, written, not printed)

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

Which is your Florida?

Oh, it's one state all right. But there is a world of difference between its various vacation areas.

The first mistake many first-time visitors make is assuming they'll find near tropical warmth and sunshine anywhere in Florida when the snow flies here.

In reality, the northern part of the state is sometimes slipped by frost in winter and is really at its vacation best in summer. The average January temperatures in Jacksonville, in the northeastern corner of the state, for example, runs from a daily high of 66 degrees to a low of 49. More like spring than summer.

Temperatures go up as you head down the coast toward Miami—and, generally, so do the prices. You don't really run into shirt-sleeve weather until you're half way down the coast, somewhere around Day to a Beach-Vero Beach area.

The right spot for you should be determined largely by what sort of vacation you're looking for and what price you can afford — or are willing to pay.

If you're seeking the top glamor spot, the one with the most active night life and the big name stars — from regular Jackie Gleason down — Miami Beach is probably it.

But those gleaming beach front hotel towers come high after Dec. 15, when the peak season starts. You may be able to find a double on the "wrong" side of Collins Avenue for as little as $10 a night even then — but if you are really watching your pennies you'll be better elsewhere.

CATERS TO RETIRED

St. Petersburg, half way up the Gulf Coast, may be that place. Although it's trying hard to attract a younger crowd with a fair amount of success, it definitely caters to retired people and pensioners. It's possible to find efficiency apartments and motels there that are even lower priced than ones in Ontario luring the summer.

If you're looking for a place to quietly soak in the sunshine and couldn't care less about nightlife, centres such as Vero Beach, where a couple can get along fine for $20 a day in an efficiency apartment, or the egg headed Sarasota on the Gulf Coast might fill the bill.

Or perhaps you're the kind who would like to spend your days searching for an angel's wings (that's a sea shell). In which case Fort Myers and the nearby islands of Sanibel and Captiva are the places for you.

KEYS ATTRACTIVE

Another distinctive area is the Florida Keys, a ribbon of small islands off the southern tip of Florida joined by the bridges of an ocean highway. In the middle of one of the bridges you're so far from each end (approximately three and a half miles) that land disappears except for the narrow road you're driving. The keys are a wonderful place for fishermen and those seeking a quiet haven.

They're also being driven these days by Hemingway buffs who head for the home in Key West, where Hemingway wrote several of his books. The hot that he frequented is still there but it's only one of dozens because Key West, always a navy town, now has the army and the air force too.

Behind its rows of palm trees sit the radar units, keeping an ear on Castro and the rocky units, also aimed in his general direction. Even for those staying in Miami, the Keys are an interesting one or two - day diversion. For an early riser, it's possible to drive to Key West, look around and return to Miami in a day.

INLAND DIFFERENT

Since it's sunshine and sand beaches that attract most Canadians, central Florida won't be the destination of many.

But it, too, is worth a visit from wherever you may make your holiday headquarters. The area around Ocala is especially intriguing. It looks more like the bluegrass area of Kentucky than Florida. This is the area where the horse farms have sprung up within recent years and, as in Kentucky, many breeders open their spreads free to visitors. The rolling hills and miles of white board fences housing mares, yearlings and stallions make it one of Florida's most beautiful areas.

One advantage of Tampa, St. Petersburg and Clearwater for those flying down, is that they are in the area of the only direct flights from Toronto. Those heading for Miami have to change planes at Tampa. Cost also is a factor here. It's $134 return for an economy flight to Tampa and $30 more to Miami, or you can rent a car at Tampa to drive to Miami.

Santa Must Select Carefully Gifts for Retired Parents

By THOMAS COLLINS

Now comes the joyful time of the year when 40-year-old kiddies of the land make their Christmas list of dust-catchers and embarrassments for the Pensioned Set . . . their parents and spinster aunts.

It is a joyful time, not for the 40-year-old kiddies, who bite their nails trying to decide on a list, but for the parents and the aunts. Because the return of Christmas means they can now move permanently to the basement all the junk they got from their children last year. Instead of leaving it on display or in a handy closet where they can hurriedly put it on display to show their children they really did appreciate their lovely gifts. Very much.

As a service to the Pensioned Set, and not to the kiddies, there follow here a few suggestions regarding Christmas gifts for people past 60-years-old:

Vases, fancy clocks and such other items for the living room will give Mama something else to dust every day. The fancier such stuff is, the more difficult the dusting, and the more worrisome for Mama. If she broke it, it would break her heart — the children would think she didn't like it.

GOOD FOR DISPLAY

An electric toaster would give Mama and Papa an electric toaster for the kitchen counter. Of course they may not eat toast, what with their teeth problems. But they'll have a toaster to display for a year.

A necktie for Papa is always appropriate. He can add it to the collection of 48 others he hasn't worn for 10 years. A sweater can be useful, if it fits. He probably won't think it does, whereupon he won't tell the children. And he won't wear it. Except when they come visiting.

A vacuum cleaner for Mama is nice. Except that she has already turned floor-cleaning over to Papa He'll take a broom.

Now, Mama and Papa want a Christmas gift. Kiddies should make no mistake about that. They want it not because it's a thing — they've long since accumulated most of the things they want — but because it is remembrance, a token of their children's love. There are many gifts their children can give that provide this basic pleasure and at the same time be something better than a nuisance. For example:

A television set. If they have one, then a color set. If the parents protest they don't want it, children should be reminded that a lot of other misguided people said the same in the 1940's.

A year's subscription to one morning and one afternoon newspaper, and two magazines. Again parents will say they don't want them. But they'll read them. All year long.

For Papa, if the children can find them, a pair of Congress Gaiters, which were probably the finest shoe ever made for an older man. Or any other kind of comfort shoe that doesn't have to be tied on or pried on.

FOR MAMA

For Mama, something pretty, something feminine to wear. Maybe to church. Something she can give away to others — such as candy for neighborhood children. Or, in a grander manner, 26 pre-paid appointments for her at a beauty shop — one every two weeks for a year.

For both Mama and Papa, an automatic clothes washer. If they have a washer then an automatic dryer. Upstairs, not in the basement.

Then there are automatic dishwashers.

For both Mama and Papa, but especially for Papa, pre-paid appointments for eye and ear checkups, and pre-paid arrangements for any new eyeglasses or hearing aids that may be needed. Impaired sight and hearing continue to deny older people some of their greatest pleasures.

The best two guidelines on gifts for retired people are (1) give them something that eases their problems of living instead of adding to them; and (2) if money is lacking give them a visit, a smile, and a show of love — none of which has to be diluted.

SUNDAY OBSERVANCE

The traditional observance of Sunday in our community has changed rapidly in recent years. The new freedoms our citizens enjoy make it necessary for each one to decide how far-reaching these privileges will become. Next Monday each citizen will decide whether or not he wishes commercial interests to encroach still further on Sunday. Because we believe that the financial gain for controlling interests outside our community is not a real mark of progress and because we believe that such a step will encourage other commercial enterprises to seek similar privileges so that before long we shall have a "wide-open" Sunday, we ask each one to vote against Sunday movies.

Public School Trustee

Belleville, Ontario.
December 4th, 1965.

"Make Joyce Your Choice"

Fellow Citizen:

On Monday next you will once again be going to the polls to elect your civic officials. One of the ballots will be for the position of Public School Trustee.

Education is "big business" with a budget of well over one million dollars for our Belleville Public Schools. Good business sense must be exercised in all School Board deliberations.

Most important, our schools must be operated in a manner which will enable our children to have the best possible training. The foundation of our children's education is found at the elementary school level. I feel that there should be a closer relationship among the principals, the teachers, the parents and the School Board. It is my opinion that a parent with children attending public school can best understand the problems of our children, who are enrolled in our Belleville Public Schools.

It has been my privilege to sit on the Public School Board for one year. During this short period I have gained some knowledge of the operation of our school system. It is my wish to return to the School Board and help complete the projects started in 1965 and bring forth some positive, forward programs to the benefit of our childrens' education.

If you feel that I, as a business man and a parent, can render a service on this Board, I respectfully solicit your vote and influence for re-election on December 6.

Your sincerely,

Gerald Joyce

MacDonald 'Mac' SMITH

To the Public School Electors:

In this election I am seeking to serve you for the fourteenth year as a School Trustee. I do so because I consider the position of trustee as one of the most important ways of serving the community for, this office deals directly with the cities most important asset — its young people.

In these days of unprecedented expansion in the field of education, in rapid changes in teaching methods, in this period of technical and technological discoveries, we may well lose sight of the Fundamental responsibilities of a school trustee. Boards must provide adequate buildings and equipment. They must provide repairs, furnishings and supplies. They must provide and pay salaries for the teaching and administrative staffs. They must keep schools open throughout the year and see that they are staffed with competent teachers. They must submit to council estimates of money required for the schools' operation.

The operation of a School Board is very much like the operation of a business, a big business, and business experience, while it is not absolutely necessary, is certainly desirable. In the Belleville Public School system, every year is a building year. Indeed, contracts are hardly let for a new school or a new addition when preparations have to be made for the next one. It is quite possible for a trustee to find himself occupied with all manner of pressing, urgent problems. In this constantly changing and growing school system, experience can be a very valuable asset.

I have always believed that a Trustee must keep himself informed. He must seek out all the available data before he is able to make the sound decisions demanded of a public trust. It has always been my practice to do this, for I feel that only when you are completely informed are you in a position to decide wisely.

Those who have served on a School Board are well aware that trustees may be called upon at all hours of the day, to meet with architects and builders, to handle emergencies, to deal with the department, to hire teachers, and so on. I have always made myself available on such occasion, and, if elected, I shall continue to do so.

It is the thinking of most people connected with education today that both elementary and secondary education should, and will be under a single administration. Education must be a continuous process. I have had the opportunity of serving on both elementary and secondary school boards here in Belleville. I feel that this added experience and knowledge of the problems involved will be of benefit to our school system.

One final point. I have four vital reasons for being interested in becoming a trustee. All four are now attending the Belleville schools. Like other parents, I am anxious to see that the best of educational opportunity is open to them, for I believe in the development of Canada through the development of our children.

If I am elected, I am prepared:
To give sound judgment based on business experience.
To apply the experience of thirteen years to the new problems that are bound to arise,
To take whatever time is necesary to keep myself adequately informed, and
To make myself available at all times in the service of the board.

If elected, I will pledge conscientious responsibility to you, the parents and electors.

Sincerely,
"Mac" Smith

VOTE SMITH, MacDonald "Mac" | X

PUBLIC SCHOOL TRUSTEE ON MONDAY

I Believe in Belleville

I WANT TO SERVE YOU AGAIN

Last year you elected me to the top of the polls in the older, manic race and through the year I have endeavord to represent you without fear or favor in all matters, supporting worthwhile progressive action when indicated and blocking needless expenditure wherever possible. Of course, being only one in fifteen that was not always possible.

I BELIEVE . . . my continued demand for action for senior citizens' accommodation and low rent housing has paid off, and we have made a start in this direction but much remains to be done in the alleviation of our city slums.

I BELIEVE . . . that my interest in better health and welfare services is well known, and you can expect some far reaching developments in this area very soon.

I BELIEVE . . . in the utmost co-operation with our County Council and senior government so as to achieve the greatest benefit for our people.

I BELIEVE . . . that a city cannot be sound in all its parts if its core or downtown area is not maintained.

I BELIEVE . . . that the smaller council of ten, which you voted for last year, will be more effective — providing standing committees are eliminated.

I BELIEVE . . . that this will make for a better informed council who will be able to deal with issues more intelligently.

I BELIEVE . . . that a candidate for council who offers and is compensated for service should be prepared to meet in the evening so that electors may be able to attend, and I am opposed to all closed meetings. I have served as a member of Executive Finance and personnel COM, Board of Health and Children's Aid. In over a quarter of a century that I have lived here with my family the good people of Belleville have honor, ed me by election to many high offices such as Board of Education, the High Scool Board, Pres. Chamber of Commerce, Chairman United Appeal, Chairman Canadian Arthritis Society and Rotary Club of Belleville. I enjoy working for you and trust I will continue to merit your confidence and support.

Open Letter To Voters

On Monday next, all ratepayers and tenants may vote for up to eight of the candidates for the school system they support. If you are a Public School supporter, I hope you'll be a Charlie Bristol supporter. Why should you? Why vote for me?

The man you elect must first of all be interested in the education of our children. Two of my children are in the junior grades at Queen Mary School, so, in keeping up with the new Math, and other teaching advances, I might mention that I had a brief teaching career before entering the furniture business, so I have some understanding of the teachers' problems.

A successful member of the Public School Board should have some administrative experience, and be able to work in harmony with others. I served in a variety of appointments.

For 15 years in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, guiding the training of many of Belleville's finest young men.

A past President of the men's club of Bridge St. United Church, and I'm presently Chairman of the Belleville Furniture & Appliance Dealers Association.

This Board, operating what amounts to a million dollar business, calls for men with business ability, I have worked at Wray's Home Furnishers here for 14 years, and am now Manager of that locally owned, long established firm.

From the number of capable candidates willing to serve, I feel that Belleville is assured of a sound Public School Board for the next two years. I would like to be one of your Trustees.

An interested parent of proven administrative ability, willing to take a fresh look at today's and future problems in our Public School system. I invite your support. Look for Charles Bristol on your ballot.

But for city clerk Adam Stalker the chore has only started.

As city returning officer, Mr. Stalker must act as polling shepherd to the enfranchised flock.

He has the dual task of guaranteeing that each individual in the 18,000 has his vote — and may use it.

This is shaping up as the busiest election on record in Mr. Stalker's experience and he frankly confesses misgivings.

His concern is not with his election day organization — after all, he is a veteran at the job. Rather is he worried about the pressure voters may place on his electoral machine — to their cost.

The sheer size of the electoral ballot this year means it will take that much longer for the voter to exercise his franchise at the polling booth.

If this election follows the traditional patterns, voting will be sporadic through the day with a heavy concentration around the supper hour.

Thereby hangs the snag.

"The polls by law must close at 7 p.m.," Mr. Stalker points out. "If there is a heavy vote around suppertime it could mean some people may still be waiting outside when the polls close."

"The key to the situation is to vote early."

This election places a total of six ballots on the voting slate. Many voters will cast up to five ballots.

The total slate counts ballots for mayor, city councillors, public and separate school trusteeships, public utilities commissioners and a Sunday movies plebiscite.

"It's going to take much longer for the individual elector to get through that list," notes Mr. Stalker. "We just hope they will be patient enough if there's a line-up. Most of all, we hope they will turn out earlier than usual and spread the overall vote through the day."

Otherwise, the city's electoral machine is ready to roll.

Ballots and boxes have been distributed to the city's 67 polls. The deputy returning officers have already spent three three nights this week at city hall being coached by Mr. Stalker in their duties.

P.S. Teachers, Principals Discuss Curriculum, Give Research Reports at Meet

Approximately 170 city public school teachers and principals, along with about 40 teachers in training from the Peterborough Teachers' College attended classes in Belleville yesterday as the Belleville Public School Teachers' Institute held its annual convention.

The morning and afternoon sessions dealing with the development and changes in public school curriculum were held at the Prince Charles School.

Heading up the discussions were three representatives from the curriculum branch of the Ontario Department of Education, while local school principals heading up research gave committee reports.

Acting chairman of the public school board, Mr. J. N. Mc-Ribbon, welcomed teachers to the convention while high schools superintendent E. A. R. Orr and Dr. J. Russell Scott also spoke briefly at the session opening.

Theme of the convention was "Curriculum Research — Findings to Date and Future Effects."

REPORTED ON NEEDS

Principals J. E. Bateman and Leo McQuaid reported on research needs, while B. Wright, M. Workman, W. Roblin and H. Frink reported on curriculum bulletins. W. Lott, S. Palmateer and G. Dale reported for the science committee.

Guest panellists from the Ontario Department of Education were Norman Mastey, science department, Robert Field, and Miss Barbara Smith, director of school library services.

Also during the session committee reports were heard from R. Horwood on reading and from E. Fairman on French in public schools.

During the session presentations were made to two Belleville teachers, Mrs. J. Sine and to Miss Margaret Hillis who are retiring from the schools staff.

Mrs. Lee Jourard represented city home and school clubs at the convention, which was summed up by Inspector J. M. Cousins. Institute president D. L. Moore conducted the convention sessions.

Pope May End Rule Against Meat on Fridays

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A papal announcement ending the Roman Catholic rule against meat on Fridays is expected shortly, informed sources said Friday night.

Pope Paul might give the word as soon as next week, they added, during the ceremonies on Tuesday and Wednesday closing the Vatican ecumenical council.

The informants explained that the decision most likely would be in the form of removing the Friday abstinence from Catholicism's strict dietary laws, meaning that it would no longer be regarded as sinful for Catholics to eat meat on Fridays.

HOCKEY CROWD ROUGH

PRAGUE (Reuters)—A spectator was crushed to death and six others severely injured when a crowd of 13,000 got out of control at a hockey game Thursday at nearby Jihlava, it was reported Friday.

Kingston-area Persons Given Varying Terms

BRAMPTON (CP) — Five Kingston-area persons, jointly charged with possession of stolen goods, received varying sentences Friday after being convicted.

Gary James Sword, 20, of Gananoque, described by county Judge E. W. Grant as the group's leader, was sentenced to four years in penitentiary.

Howard Ellard Griffin, 21, was given three years. Ernest Kane, 19, got a year in reformatory.

Catharine Hames, 17, and Terrance Serson, 17, were placed on probation; Serson for three years and Miss Hames for one year.

Port Credit police said they found a chain saw, two rifles, ammunition and mechanic's tools in Serson's car Sept. 18 on Highway 401. The articles were claimed by George Olnskie, who said they had been stolen from his firm at Kitchener the day before.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver

Is Canada's November New Year's Eve bash on the decline—or on the way out?

Has the great football classic, the Grey Cup, seen its better days days with a commensurate decrease in the flagpole of the host cities' civic registers?

Or are the first and third acts of the national football drama marking time to allow a change in the dramatis personae?

Or was the recent Cup classic celebrative flop merely a matter of circumstances?

When the cold grey down of the morning after had given way to the sunlight of reflection, it was reported that the post-game celebrants that rocked Toronto and Vancouver in recent years were, in large numbers, conspicuous by their absence.

Those who claim the "spectacular" has lost some of its high jinks, highballs and hangovers say the fact the competing champions were the Hamilton Tiger Cats and the Winnipeg Blue Bombers was no small factor in the diminished sales of booze and bicarbonates.

Hamilton, an Argue-dubbed suburb of Toronto, is only forty miles by air, rail, motor and foot from the Yonge Street canyons. Exuberant Tiger fans decided to do their celebrating in the homier atmosphere of their mountainside jungles.

The safaris took off while those who remained sought the warm comfort of hotel and motel quarters and "Calgy-wawed" to their heart's content and the last drugdrop in the festive urn.

The Blue Bomber aficionadas, disappointed but gallant in defeat, sought solace too in the shelter of their hotel bar-cities but only in the time when their railroad caballos were ready for the western takeoff.

Then a new Grey Cup element injected itself into the celebrative picture. Toronto's effervescent torpedoes moved in and took over. They waterfed, frogged, monkeyed and grapevined in an uproarious shindig.

Some of them, it was reported, were a bit finished with the groups but as everything loose in the downtown hotels was nailed down no great property damage occurred.

Since the Calgary Stampeders and the Ottawa Rough Riders inaugurated the Great National Blowoff back in 1948 the annual festivities crescendo'd to a point where, it is stated, it is worth over two million green to the host city.

That's a lot of wear and tear on cash registers and a lot of the cup mill grist found its way into the coffers of distilleries and manufacturers of bicarbonates.

No wonder Ottawa and Montreal have cast envious eyes on the football fandango and are readying bids to bring it to their respective cities.

Pessimists to the contrary, I do not believe the Grey Cup Classic and its accompanying high jinks and whatnot is bound for the junk pile. Professional football without a doubt is the country's most popular autumn sport, in fact it has been stated that it is attracting more television viewers, or as many as the National Hockey League.

It's a safe bet that the Grey Cup game itself monopolizes the picture tubes from coast to coast despite the fact it is over-dosed with commercialism.

It might resolve itself into being a football celebration for football's sake with the game being the thing and not the meat between two slices of all-out wild and woolly celebration bread.

"Whew," exclaimed a couple of celebrant friends of mine. "What a session. Four days of that is enough for a robot let alone flesh and blood."

Ted Reeve, the nation's dean of sports columnists, once wrote: "Shucks they talk about stretching the celebration too far. I recall away back in the early days of the Cup fandango, we didn't crawl out from under the stands until New Year's Eve."

Bad News For Blues; Rousseau Back

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Rousseau will be in Montreal Canadiens' lineup tonight against New York and that should be enough to make Rangers' hair stand on end.

Rousseau, the National Hockey League leading scorer with 11 goals and 15 assists, was a doubtful starter for Canadiens' game after suffering a groin injury in Chicago last Sunday.

However, the right winger showed drive in practice Friday morning and declared himself fit.

Two weeks ago the Rangers were bombed 9-3 by the Canadiens and Rousseau was one of three big guns in the game, scoring three goals and assisting on two others.

In other NHL action Saturday, Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs play at Maple Leaf Gardens and Chicago Black Hawks visit Boston Bruins.

In Sunday's games, Montreal is at Boston, Toronto travels to Detroit and Chicago is at New York.

The fourth-place Rangers will be out to break a four-game losing streak against the Canadiens, who are tied for first place with Chicago.

In their last four outings New York has lost three and tied one. They showered the opposition with 158 shots but have managed only six goals.

Dick Duff, Montreal's left winger, is a doubtful starter due to a shoulder injury he suffered in a spill during practice Wednesday.

Defenceman J. C. Tremblay will not play tonight. He is recovering from a fractured cheekbone he suffered in a collision with Detroit's Gordon Howe last Saturday.

Injuries to Howe and Ron Murphy may sideline them from tonight's Detroit - Toronto contest.

The Red Wings reported Friday that Murphy, who returned to action Thursday night after missing seven games, reinjured his left knee in a collision during a practice session.

Howe reported his foot was swollen and the team physician said it was doubtful he would be available. Howe, playing in his 20th NHL season, was struck on the instep of his right foot by a puck in Thursday night's 10-2 victory over Boston.

Red Kelly, Toronto's veteran centre, may rejoin the Leafs tonight. He has missed Toronto's last six games with a groin injury.

Should Kelly return to the lineup, the move would pave the way for Mike Walton's return to Rochester Americans, Toronto's American Hockey League affiliate.

In six starts with Toronto, Walton has scored one goal and picked up three assists.

Woodstock Veteran Pots Three

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Woodstock Athletics took a little extra time to sign veteran Tommy Wilson, but the wait was worth it.

Wilson scored three goals to lead the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A Athletics to a 6-1 victory over Galt Hornets Friday night and bring his three-game output to eight goals.

It was also the second straight win for last-place Woodstock, which has won only four games in 12 starts this season.

Elsewhere, Guelph Regals climbed into second place by defeating league-leading Oakville Oaks 6-2. The Regals now have 19 points, two less than the Oaks.

Bobby Robinson, Jean Paul Goulet and Bryle Klinck scored the other Woodstock goals. Earl Balfour was the lone Galt marksman.

Grant Moore and Bill Ford replied for Oakville.

Crothers Wins At Saskatoon

SASKATOON (CP) — Bill Crothers of Toronto staged a brilliant kick on the final lap Friday to defeat George Germann of Binghamton, N.Y., in an 880-yard race on the first night of the Saskatchewan Jubilee Games.

Crothers covered the distance in 1:53.5, a tenth of a second ahead of Germann, another twin brother Herb finished third.

Dave Atkinson of Calgary won the invitational high-school mile in 4:25.8, slightly ahead of Arjan Gelling of Port Arthur.

Atkinson settled in third position early in the race and took over from Dave Smith, also of Port Arthur, with eight laps remaining. Don Peters of Prince Albert finished third and Smith a well-beaten fourth.

Vikings at Green Bay

Bears, Colts Meet In Key Clash

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

It would take a combination of eight teams pulling off a massive quadruple play but by Sunday night the National and American Football Leagues could find themselves with championship games that are carbon copies of last year's title battles.

The situation in the NFL:

A Baltimore Colts victory over Chicago Bears, combined with a Minnesota Vikings triumph at Green Bay against the Packers, will clinch the Western Division title for the Colts and send them into the league's NFL championship against the Eastern Division champion Cleveland Browns.

In the AFL, a San Diego Chargers victory over New York Jets, combined with a Denver Broncos victory over Oakland Raiders, will clinch the Western Division title for the Chargers and send them into the Dec. 26 AFL championship against the Eastern Division champion Buffalo Bills.

Cleveland won the NFL championship last year by beating Baltimore 27-0 and Buffalo won the AFL championship by defeating San Diego 20-7.

The San Diego - New York game will be played Saturday. The Denver-Oakland and Buffalo at Houston games are scheduled for Sunday.

PLAY BROWNS

All NFL action takes place Sunday with Washington Redskins at Cleveland, Pittsburgh Steelers at New York Giants, Detroit Lions at San Francisco 49ers, Los Angeles Rams at St. Louis Cardinals and Dallas Cowboys at Philadelphia Eagles rounding out the schedule.

The four key games are topped by the meeting between the Bears and the Colts.

The teams met once before this season with Baltimore shutting off Chicago's rookie sensation, Gale Sayers, and the Bears' running game en route to a 26-24 victory — the only game in the last eight Bears have lost.

The Colts will have to pull a repeat against the Bears' rushing, with Sayers having the advantage of more experience and Baltimore at a disadvantage if injured defensive end Ordell Brasse cannot play.

Bears' quarterback Rudy Bukich again rates No. 1 in the league statistics with Baltimore's John Unitas third.

Clobber Rollins 14-2

Crushmen Live Up To Name

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

Belleville hockey fans got a look at the OHA Eastern Junior "B" League's most powerful scoring unit here last night.

They won't likely forget it for a while.

The front-running Oshawa Crushmen trounced Rollins Construction by a 14-2 total.

Oshawa's victory was number nine in 13 games, with two ties and two losses, keeping the club well in front of Peterborough, Kingston and Trenton.

Belleville was never in contention while being outshot 44-26. It was 5-0 after one period and 7-1 before both clubs doubled their total in the final frame.

The Crushmen flashed a wide open, goal-hungry style of play from the opening whistle and never stopped. Their 14 goals were divided among nine players with no one getting more than a pair.

The line of Phil Solomon, Jerry Dionne and Roger Kowles paced the attack against a frustrated Paul Smith in the Rollins' nets. Solomon had two goals and three assists, Dionne a goal and five assists and Kowles two of each.

Ron Dussiaume and Leo Ayotte each scored twice, Gary Bradley bagged two goals and two assists and Brian Morenz collected one and two. Bob Solmunds and Rob Dickson also scored with Jim Booth and Bill Horton adding assists.

Belleville's first goal came at 13.03 of the middle frame, after it was 7-0. Jim Pringle rapped home a rebound on a play with Larry Stewart and Carl Boomhower.

Oshawa upped it to 9-1 before the losers' second tally, at 12.46 of the third. Steve White got this one on a quick deflection, with Stewart and Bob Ethier drawing assists. Belleville had a man advantage at the time.

While several of the winners' goals were tainted, many were the result of sharp passing and alert shooting. At the other end, goalie David Gavel smothered several close-in shots but had a comparatively easy night.

Tempers flared early in the game when Bob Ethier and Jerry Dionne did battle at 13.37 of the opening heat. They got majors. Referee Dave Smith treated the game spectators at Bob Boyle and Arnie Marks, of Belleville, and Don Bowen and Bill Horton of Oshawa, for joining the battle, although one or two others got off scot free.

In all Belleville took 11 penalties and Oshawa eight on the night's play. All were minors with the exception of the sentence explosion.

Belleville's next start will be in Cobourg Monday night. A Sunday away game against Oshawa has been postponed until a later date.

The teams:

Oshawa—Gavel, Ayotte, Edmunds, Morenz, Bradley, Dickson, Horton, Bowen, Hewer, Booth, Dionne, Dussiaume, Solomon, Knowles.

Linesmen—Lou Searks and David Davidson of Belleville.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Warren Hynes scored the tie-breaking goal halfway through the last period Friday and gave Los Angeles Blades a 2-1 Western Hockey League victory over San Francisco Seals.

The game marked the debut of Ed Johnston as Los Angeles goaltender.

Johnston, sent down by the Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, was outstanding, making many acrobatic stops among his 28 saves.

No Biddy-Buddy Stuff On Diamond

"Frat" Fines Upped

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Big league baseball in 1966 should be just about like it was in 1965.

No drastic changes in the game were made during a week of minor and major league meetings, and no big players were traded.

The American and National Leagues did crack down on fraternization on the field by opposing players, and baseball executives met the new commissioner, Gen. William Eckert.

No trades were made on the final day of the meetings.

American and National League owners met and awarded the 1967 all-star game to Anaheim, Calif., new home of California Angels. The 1966 game earlier was given to St. Louis.

The owners will meet next year at Pittsburgh, Pa., with the minor league meeting scheduled for Colombus, Ohio.

Both seagues also agreed to cut from 30 to 15 days the length of time a player on the disabled list must remain out of action.

American League owners increased the fine for player fraternization from $5 to $50, and the National League boosted the fine from $10 to a minimum of $25.

The American League took under advisement a request by Milwaukee Brewers Baseball Club Inc. for a major league baseball franchise in Milwaukee, which lost the Braves to Atlanta, Ga. The National League Thursday rejected requested for 1966 franchises in Milwaukee and Dallas - Fort Worth, Tex.

Probably the biggest trade of the week was a four player swap that sent Chicago Cubs' relief ace Lindy McDaniel and outfielder Don Landrum to San Francisco Giants in exchange for a pair of youngsters, pitcher Bill Hands and catcher Randy Hundley.

Flyers Bury Nationals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Niagara Falls Flyers erupted for 14 goals to snap a four-game losing streak in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series and move back into first place.

The Flyers handed the last-place London Nationals a 14-2 drubbing to move a point ahead of the idle Oshawa Generals.

In other games, Toronto Marlboros moved into fourth place ahead of Montreal Junior Canadiens by defeating the Hahs 4-2 and Kitchener Rangers climbed into a seventh-place tie with St. Catharines Black Hawks with a 4-2 victory over Hamilton Red Wings.

The Flyers, ahead 2-0 after the first period, went to town in the second and third and outshot London 53-18. Jean Proovost, John Arbour, Ted Snell, Tom Webster and Don Marcotte each scored twice for Niagara Falls with Rossire Palement, Dave Woodley, Karl Haggarty and Ricky Ley adding one each. Nei' Clark and Walt McKechnie scored for London.

Toronto counted twice on breakaways in the third period for its win.

Honor Bantam Champs

By ED STROME

The Frankford baseball bantam team, winners of the Ontario championship, were presented with leather jackets and trophies, at a banquet in their honor Thursday night.

Present as guests were secretary Don Boyle of the Frankford Minor League Association; Reeve Moran, Don Bell of Trenton; Harry Wickson, president, and guest speakers Arthur Duncan of Bata's and Jack Carson, Belleville, Eastern Ontario Baseball Association representative.

Guests at the head table were: Gerald Fox and Fire Chief Mervin Dafoe of Frankford. Also present were the winners of eastern championships, the members of the Midget and Peewee teams.

Arthur Duncan, acting as MC for the evening, expressed thanks to the club effort on behalf of the Bata Shoe Company as well as presenting a cheque to the association in the amount of $200. Gerald Fox, vice-president of the Lions Club, presented the winning bantam team also with a cheque for $200 on behalf of the Lion members.

Mr. Duncan told the champions: "team work pays off and you (the bantam club) have brought the Ontario championship to Eastern Ontario for the first time."

Jack Carson, OBA representative stressed the continued urgency of sportsmanship when he said: "if you can learn to lose honorably, winning will mean so much more as you have shown this year. With this spirit I am sure your team will again next year, retain the trophy I now present to you.

Other highlights of the evening were the banquet put on by the ladies of Frankford, a presentation of leather jackets with crests by President Harry Wickson, a huge trophy donated to the club by Don Bell, well known Trenton businessman and sports enthusiast. George Bedard, coach, and Roy Cook, manager, presented individual gold trophies to each member in appreciation of their team effort and co-operation.

President Wickson expressed gratefulness on behalf of the association to all donors as well as umpires, Calvin Watson, Richard Patrick, Pete McLeod, Ron Hall, Paul Whalen and Glen Holden for their voluntary efforts throughout the baseball season.'

In closing Mr. Wickson paid special tribute to the teams for their splendid conduct while at out of town games. He said many team coaches and managers had come to him with complimentary remarks on your conduct. Frankford can be proud of your representation.

Therapist Leaves Canadiens

MONTREAL (CP)—Bill Head, a physiotherapist widely known among athletes, has resigned his position at the Montreal Forum and will take charge of the Health Centre of the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association.

He will be succeeded at the forum clinic by Yvon Belanger, who has been with Head three years.

Announcement of the change was made Friday by Bob Allen, president of the MAAA, a recreation social organization of 6,000 members.

Head, 53, a native of England, has been at the Forum since 1944.

Most of his patients have been hockey players of Montreal Canadiens, but he has treated scores of players from other National Hockey League teams and from teams of lesser leagues.

Head pioneered in his treatment of the charley horse—the painful, sharp-blow injury that causes sub-cutaneous hemorrhages. It used to be that the injured player was laid up for a week or more.

"Let me get at him immediately and I'll have him back in the game in 24 hours," Head once said. And he did, with his own type of compress.

He also developed a manipulative treatment for sufferers from asthma. Jacques Plante, retired goalie who played with Canadiens and later with New York Rangers, was one of Head's patients who benefited. So did Phil Goyette, now with the Rangers.

Ottawa To Keep O'Quinn

OTTAWA (CP)—The Citizen says a request by Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference is get Ottawa Rough Riders general manager Red O'Quinn as manager of the Als has been turned down.

An article by sports editor Jack Kolfman said the request was made in conference during Grey Cup week in December and was confirmed Friday by Alouette owner Ted Workman and Sam Berger, first vice-president of the Riders. It says the request was turned down unanimously by the Rough Rider board of directors.

O'Quinn has been general manager since November, 1962. He was given a three-year contract after the 1964 season.

Surtees Showing Progress

LONDON (AP) — John Surtees, former world auto-racing champion who is in a hospital with spinal and other injuries, began exercising his legs Friday.

A hospital spokesman said the 31-year-old driver is "progressing satisfactorily and smoothly."

Surtees crashed while practising for the Canadian Grand Prix in Mosport, Ont., last September. He was brought home to England on a stretcher.

The spokesman said Surtees now is having treatment in the hospital's hydro-therapy pool. Surtees is expected to remain in hospital until the new year, he said.

Gardens To Install More Seats

TORONTO (CP) — An additional 1,028 seats will be installed at Maple Leaf Gardens, home of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, by the start of the 1966-67 season.

The new seats will raise seating capacity to 15,033, with standing room for an additional 900.

Permits were issued last week to build hanging galleries at the north and south ends of the Gardens and work is scheduled to begin on the north section by Dec. 19.

Present seating capacity is 14,005.

Mustangs, Waterloo, Blues Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS.

University of Western Ontario Mustangs and University of Toronto Blues won by identical 6-3 scores Friday night to remain tied for first place in the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association hockey league.

Western defeated Laval Rouge et Or of Quebec City and Toronto downed University of Montreal Carabins. The Mustangs and Blues each have three wins and no losses.

In the only other game, University of Waterloo Warriors defeated McGill University Redmen 6-4.

The Western-Laval game was held up in the first period when goaltender Norman Arsenault of Laval suffered a deep cut on the bridge of his nose. He returned, however, and played a strong game despite the loss.

Western was paced by Rich Clark and Larry Babcock with two goals each while Don Guthrie and Don Blackburn added one apiece. Laval marksmen were Reynold Dufour, Andre Hebert and Yves Paquet.

Paul Laurent led Toronto with two goals. Hank Monteith, Ward Passi, Bob McLelland and Doug St. John scored one each. Ghislain Delage, Jean-Jacques Granger and Jocelyn Cote scored for the Carabins, who won the league title last season.

Ron Smith, Don Mervyn, Bill Ball, Bobby Murdoch, George Belagac and Jerry Lawless scored for Waterloo while Rick Gordon counted twice for McGill and Don Taylor and Skip Kerner once each.

Wheel Chair Swimmer

TORONTO (CP) — Fern Campbell, an 11-year-old member of the Lakeshore Swim Club, dives into the club's big swimming pool each week—from her wheelchair.

Fern suffers from a weakness in her leg muscles and couldn't walk when her mother brought her to the club six years ago.

"We didn't know what to do," Mrs. Campbell says. "Then our pediatrician suggested the swimming exercises."

It took four years for Fern to learn to swim the 60-foot length of the pool but now she can swim a quarter-mile, stroking with her arms and kicking.

At first, she used just her arms but club members taught her to kick and she now swims nearly four miles a month.

Fern will be first into the pool next week as the club presents its annual Christmas display. About 300 Toronto children, 75 with handicaps like Fern, will take part in the show.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE CITIZENS OF BELLEVILLE -

Fellow Citizens:

I would like to definitely declare, right at the beginning, that I have no political aspirations other than the good government of our own City. In fact this has helped me to decide to seek this office. I do not like political manoeuvering in our civic administration. It has been rumoured that the Mayor's office is being used by some merely as a stepping stone to higher political office. I personally declare that this is not my intention.

I am completing my 7th year as an Alderman, and am now seeking the senior position on the City Council, during the time that I have been on Council I have acted on many boards and commissions. The record will prove that I have been faithful in my duties. I wonder if I may assume that the citizens at large have taken recognition of the fact that I have been an outspoken Alderman. The council meetins are broadcast over CJBQ and it has been remarked that I have taken a firm and an outspoken stand on issues, no matter how controversial. I was pleased after my last election to have been only one vote short of leading the polls.

I have been referred to, on many occasions, by the Mayors and fellow aldermen under whom I have served as the "Maverick". This is as I would wish, since I could find no satisfaction in going along with the crowd just for the sake of a quiet life; but rather facing the issues and acting for what I believe is in the best interest of the common good.

No man should assume that there is a monopoly on any elected office. If elected I would like to devote any talents I may have to this challenge. I would seek out ways to be of service and to spend any amount of time in so doing. I care about this City. Other cities are "burning the midnight oil" — why not ours?

Now for the issues! Mayor Ellis has stated that he is running on his record. Let us examine this record, and I ask you, are you satisfied?

Are you satisfied with the poor planning that has gone into the Pinnacle Street project? Should it have been started at such a time, for political expediency, so that you now have found yourself wading through mud to do your Christmas shopping — and at the busiest time for the merchants, who have suffered grievously?

Are you satisfied with the proposal for a bridge at Dundas Street, a fabulously costly project that is not today needed? Are you satisfied that all boards and commissions are to be investigated with the possibility of abolishing them — as it is proposed that the Parking Authority be disbanded — just at a time when we so urgently need the services of these parts of these citizens? The Parking Authority is not just parking tickets — it is planning and management, and they have done an excellent job.

Indeed, are you satisfied with the industrial commission, the head of which commission has stated to me that Belleville is not interested in large industry?

Are you satisfied, that there is no cautious approach to large expenditure? Soon we must start paying.

I believe in getting our house in order, beautifying this city, repairing our sidewalks working on our parks, doing what is necessary to make this city attractive. I would like this City to once again be called Belleville the Beautiful. Drive around our City, note the general condition and the slaughter of trees. Are you satisfied with what you see?

I would not pinch pennies to the point of doing little or nothing — but I would make sure that we get value for every dollar.

I believe, for example, that the horse-and-buggy bridge at College Street must be replaced — that this is essential spending that can be paid for by the citizens of today and the citizens of the future.

I believe in the youth of our City and their recreational needs. I would work vigorously to find a way to give not only the boys but also the girls could have more recreational opportunities. I seek this office to establish harmonious relationships with all boards and commissions. We must live together, work together, progress together. It is the responsibility of the head of Council to lead.

We need imagination, courage, enthusiasm. Look at the City of Guelph whose population today is about 42,000 and in 15 years will be 110,000. In Belleville we have an exodus of people — constant transfers of valued citizens with no replacements coming in.

Where will we be in 15 years? Industrially — we have had nothing but promises. Are you satisfied? We need no crash costly program but to proceed with caution, which is wise progress.

My motto in any struggle is to fight to win. There is no substitute for victory. Belleville must win the fight — not just for survival but for growth. Our citizens must find opportunity here at home. Let us begin to be a jump ahead of the procession — not to tag along behind.

Public relations must receive more attention at City Hall. Those elected are the servants of the people and there must be a stop to passing the buck. If you have an enquiry or complaint it should be pursued and the answer given to you. You should not be placed on a merry go round.

Furthermore I would invite criticism rather than be annoyed. Constructive suggestions should always be welcomed.

Belleville has always been my home except for 5 war years. I served with the Canadian Army in the last war in England, then to Sicily, Italy and later through France, Belgium and Holland. I am a self employed business man, the President of my own firm. I am married. My wife and I have 5 children.

In a few days you will have the opportunity to express your wishes at the polls. I earnestly solicit your support — for a vote for Whalen, for Mayor. Thank you.

Signed

Don J. Whalen

others recommend, just as heartily, that French culture stop at the Quebec border.

There were the usual miscellaneous hypaths off the mainstream of biculturalism. A couple of organizations charged "police state" methods are barring some old residents from citizenship. One Ukrainian group charged another was under the influence of Marxist-Communist philosophy.

The federal government was criticized for the way it instructed the commission. Politicians of various stripes got zapped for not paying enough attention to it in the general election.

From here, the commission heads for simultaneous sessions opening Monday at Regina and Edmonton. Its 10 members split into two sections. Co-chairman Davidson Dunton, who presided here for four days, will head the Regina group. Andre Laurendeau, the other co-chairman, will preside at Edmonton.

BAT DOWN REPORT

Spray Away Some Cold Engine Woes

By EUGENE R. MILMOE

At this time of year, especially, prompt cold engine starting depends on the efficiency of the automatic choke.

The most common source of faulty choke trouble is sticking. This is due to dirt or oil (that becomes gummy or sludgy) preventing the choke valve from opening and closing properly. The cure is simple. Your auto supply or service station dealer sells a spray cleaner especially formulated to free sticking chokes in minutes. Occasional use will also help prevent such dirt and sludge formation in the first place.

This same product has another application particularly important in winter—in manifold heat valve. This often becomes frozen due to rust or carbon. Often too, it's wrongly lubricated with oil, which will only promote additional dirt or carbon.

The automatic choke cleaner, when applied to the heat valve shaft, will help free it and keep it working properly to aid cold engine starting and warm-up.

L. P. asks: "My car starts hard, frequently misses and often dies out at certain speeds. Does that mean the fuel pump must be failing?"

Sometimes, what appears to be pump trouble is really a clogged, loose, or leaking fuel filter bowl.

F. O. writes: "Our car is '64. I've always changed the oil every 60 days, and now, with 21,000 miles clocked, I'm getting almost 1,000 miles before a quart has to be added. I'd say this proves that regular oil changes certainly do pay off."

You're undoubtedly conscientious about maintenance, needs and driving practices, too, so I'd say it proves that good care pays off.

Mrs. G. L. asks: "The other day, my husband began using some kind of tool on the tires of three cars parked in our neighborhood. Can you tell me what he could have been searching for?"

Probably, he was using a gauge which checks tire tread thickness. There's now a law in your area against worn tires with tread thickness of less than one-quarter inch.

H.B. writes: "When a car is loaded for a trip and carrying an unusually heavy weight in luggage and passengers, does it help or harm to add several pounds to normal tire pressures?"

It should help, since this will increase the load capacity of the tires.

IMPROVE RELATIONS

BONN (Reuters) — A German-Israeli society was formed here Friday night to promote friendly relations between the two countries and foster peace in the Middle East.

Teachers Win 5-2 in Charity Game

PICTON — Over 900 fans, a near capacity crowd, turned out to cheer the Prince Edward Collegiate Institute Teachers to a 5-2 charity hockey victory over Kingston CKWS "No-Stars" here last night.

It was the third annual meeting between the two clubs, sponsored by Picton Kiwanis, and there will be more to come.

No-Star manager Gerry Tinlin issued a challenge for another game later this season, likely in February.

Monies from the game is divided between charities selected by the two teams.

The game was a good one, with CKWS taking a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals by Rick Marton.

Norm Gilfon netter his first of two to make it 2-1 in the middle heat and the same player tied it early in the third. Dave Forsythe added the later goals for the Teachers to register the 5-2 win.

One of the Teachers required a stitch to close a head wound suffered as play roughened up in the final chapter but it was strictly an accident.

The Kiwanis Club passed out coffee, donuts and sandwiches at the curling club following the game to all those connected with the success'ul affair.

Uphill Fight All Way For "My Mother, the Car"

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Because he is the No. 2 Van Dyke brother, Jerry has to try a little harder. And with a starring vehicle like My Mother, the Car, he has to try pretty hard.

It has been uphill all the way for My Mother, the Car. It was one of the most ill - received shows of the season, critics carping at the premise of a car radio operator who talks with the voice of his late mother. Ratings have been only fair, and the series is a precarious bet for a second season.

Jerry Van Dyke is quite naturally a realist, as you might expect of a man who is trying to get ahead in show business when his brother is Dick Van Dyke.

On the set one day, Jerry stared at the 1928 auto which houses the voice of his mother (actually Ann Sothern).

"You know, I could learn to hate that thing," he muttered. "It's tough talking to a car, I mean, when you're talking to an inanimate object, you're forced to animate yourself to keep the scene alive. I've done everything but stand on my head.

"Another difficult thing is shooting with one camera, like a movie. I've played before live audiences all my life; I thrive on the reaction of the crowd to pace my comedy. I'd much prefer a three-camera show before an audience, as Dick does. I think he's better under those conditions than he is in movies. You can see him respond to the audience."

Win or lose, Jerry figures the show has been good for him, proving that he can carry a program on his own.

"And if it's cancelled," he shrugged, "well, I've still got my banjo."

RECOGNIZE REGIME

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — Nigeria has become the third nation, and first African state, to recognize the new Congolese regime of President Joseph Mobutu. Recognition came in a note to the Mobuto regime who took over the government in a bloodless coup two weeks ago.

Fatalities Well Ahead Of Last Year

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Safe driving week began its fourth day today with fatalities well ahead of last year's pace.

Eight fatalities were reported across the country Friday, bringing the total during the first three days to 25. At this stage of last year's campaign 19 persons had died on the highways. Sixty fatalities were reported in the seven-day period in 1964.

A collision near Kitchener which took three lives helped Ontario lead the list. Four fatalities were reported Friday to bring the province's three-day total to 11.

Quebec and British Columbia each reported two fatalities, to bring their totals to seven and six respectively. The B.C. total includes two Thursday victims not reported until Friday.

Nova Scotia, with one traffic victim Thursday, was the only province that reported a fatality.

The Canadian Highway Safety Council predicted 50 traffic deaths during Safe Driving week. The campaign opened at midnight Tuesday.

Following is a day-to-day record this year with last year's seven-day totals:

	1	2	3	Total '65	Total '64

Three Mining Companies Sued For Pollution

SUDBURY (CP)—A Northern Ontario resort operator is suing three mining companies, claiming radioactive pollution of lake water has harmed his business.

Leonard J. Prior of Elliot Lake filed suit for damages in the Supreme Court of Ontario Friday against Rio Algom Mines Ltd., Denison Mines Ltd., and Stanrock Uranium Mines Ltd.

Mr. Prior asks compensation under the Mining Act or damages for injurious effects of alleged pollution of waters in his area, about 70 miles west of here.

He claims radioactive pollution of Quirke Lake, just north of Elliot Lake, gradually spread through the Serpent River system, flooding Whiskey Lake, where he has a resort. Whiskey Lake is 10 miles south of Quirke Lake.

Mr. Prior says fishing in Whiskey Lake was spoiled and because of local and national publicity, the normal expansion of his business also has been checked.

Had it not been for this, he says, his resort would have a value of $60,000, which it does not have.

He says the mining companies permitted or allowed the wastes to enter the water.

For December 6th

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Practical matters, including finances, dominate day. Welcome opportunity for change. Break from routine. Throw off emotional lethargy. If aware . . . you go ahead.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Encourage aura of glamor. Mystery surrounds some activities. This could work in your favor. Be alert. Cycle is high. You can make right contact — at right time. Good!

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You cannot expect to obtain answers quickly. Time now required for thorough appraisal. Don't invite trouble through aggressive attitude. Be receptive — quiet within.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Utilize sensitivity, imagination. Don't try to force point of view. You gain if you wait — and are discreet. Tendency exists to see person, situations in unrealistic manner.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Strive now for original mode of expression. Don't be satisfied merely to follow. Plan time to take lead, assert yourself. Some may be envious . . . but you must proceed with confidence.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 —Sept. 22): Important to tie up loose ends. You can gain proper perspective . . . find the why of things. Journey may be encouraged — but you must make final decision without pressure.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Realistic approach pays dividends. You can't expect others to go along on mere promises. Now you must produce. Show that you have proper backing. Then there is progress.

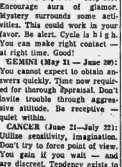
SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Situations you encounter may appear illusory. There may seem a sense of non-reality connected with agreements, statements. Go slow. From observation, you perceive hidden meanings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Basic requirements now become evident. Means take refresher course . . . sharpen techniques. Read journals . . keep up with latest developments. Strive to improve relations with co-workers.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Break through to new, streamlined methods. Don't be bogged down with outmoded concepts. Friend may display unusual powers. Means hunch repeated to you apt to prove valid.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Period features intellectual exchange. Means you gain by sharing ideas, knowledge. Not wise to bury light under bushel. Speak up, express views. Don't be too "fixed" in attitude.

PISCES Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): If you must travel . . . get facts straight. Means check tickets or road map. Be sure of directions. Fine time to pursue educational opportunities. Strive for self-improvement.



IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you are a frank individual, capable of expression through the arts. Could possess unusual speaking or singing ability.

• •

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for Taurus, Gemini, Cancer. Special word to Pisces: Accent versatility — then you are happier and loved ones benefit.

GRACIE SINGS

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Gracie Fields, who said her singing performance here a week ago likely would be her last in Lon-don, was back again Friday. And she sang again. Here to visit her husband, Boris Alper-ovici, who injured his left leg last week during her southwest-ern Ontario tour, she cheered other patients with a performance in Westminster Hospital.

Socred Leader's Pigs Killed By Poisoning

RED DEER, Alta. (CP)—Pigs that died mysteriously on the farm of Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson during the recent federal election campaign were killed by strychnine poisoning, government veterinary officials said Friday.

Tests in government laboratories revealed the presence of strychnine in specimens taken from the stomachs of the dead pigs and also in samples of feed obtained on the Thompson farm both inside and outside the hog barn.

Some reports had placed the number of pigs that had died on the Thompson farm less than a month ago at as high as 11. This and other violence on the farm were publicly revealed Nov. 7—the day before the federal election.

RCMP from Red Deer and Innisfail conducted investiga-tions, but yet nothing has been made public.

The family's pet dog also died from strychnine poisoning last week when he lapped up water used to clean the container that

Marines Will Soon Have Vegetables

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP) Green onions and radishes and carrots, and, maybe, a picture of the first snow back home—these are some of the things that help make life un-durable in South Viet Nam.

Some three weeks ago, Mrs. Mickie Gill of Port Huron re-ceived a letter from her hus-band, Marine Sgt. John H. Gill Jr. It was written in a humid, hot tent at Piel Me.

Gill had just gone through hand-to-hand combat with the Viet Cong.

"Send me some seeds so that I can plant them," Gill wrote. "We want fresh vege-tables to make a salad. Green onions, carrots, bead lettuce, radishes, anything that will grow."

Mrs. Gill tried to buy seeds at local stores, but in winter it's hard to buy seeds of any kind. She couldn't find any.

A reporter of the Port Hu-ron Times Herald heard of Gill's plight, wrote about it and Port Huron Junior Chamber of Commerce picked up the idea.

"It was wonderful."

The Jaycees sent seeds by the pounds to Sgt. Gill and his men.

"I've sent four boxes of just about everything that any-body would give us, from on-ion to sweet corn and even Portuguese watermelon," she added.

Mrs. Gill said her husband —"he has a green thumb"— has planted several things, but she didn't know exactly what.

Whatever it is, it hasn't been harvested as yet, "but they're up two inches al-ready" in the fertile, muddy jungle earth of Viet Nam, she said.

Advances to Widow. Not Flattering

DEAR DORIS: I am a widow 45. After ten years of a quiet life as widowhood I have been bewildered by the recent approaches of three different young men, known to be through my husband and through a cousin. One of them frankly propositioned me.

It is so ludicrous. All my friends think of me as cool headed and calm. I have not consciously changed my ways. I have always been clear of men my own age because I did not want to get involved, but didn't feel self-con-scious with these boys, and treated them like all the young men who came to call on my daughters (now married.)

Miss Clark, I am no Femme Fatale; and my hair is going quite gray. But I cannot understand why Frank and Bill and Bob coming to the house or my family will "embarrass" you. And I realize that this attention is flattering for a woman my age, even if the motives behind it are not 100%. — BEWILDERED FORTY-FIVE.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR BEWILDERED: Flattering — perhaps! But also insulting and self-indulgent on the part of Frank, Bill and Bob. Some men see a woman who has been married as fair game for each advance.

Would your family find it strange if you were to find a new and absorbing interest which left you no time for your visitors? Your reason for letting them keep coming just isn't good enough.

* * *

(Doris Clark, Master of Social Work, is a graduate of McGill, Toronto and McMaster universities, and has had broad experience in social work. If you would like help with your problems, write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.)

Wilson Trying To Dodge Political Squeeze Over Rhodesian Crisis

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson is manoeuvring to avoid being crushed in a political squeeze generated by the Rhodesian crisis.

Weekend statements on government intentions indicated that both peaceful persuasion and still tougher economic action will be applied to the rebel white-minority regime of Ian Smith in Rhodesia.

Wilson is faced both with threats from Africans demanding sterner action and with demands in Britain for caution.

African leaders have declared that they will sever diplomatic relations with Britain if Smith still is in power Dec. 15. Some Commonwealth members have threatened to withdraw from the organization unless Britain topples Smith.

In Britain, opposition Conservatives have cautioned against measures that would hinder a reconciliation with Rhodesia. Opposition Leader Edward Heath said Saturday Wilson must avoid being pressed into what he called "civil war" with British troops fighting white Rhodesians.

African threats were met by a blunt rejoinder from Commonwealth Secretary Arthur Bottomley that Britons "have no intention of being pushed around by people who want us to take actions which are irresponsible."

At the same time, government sources indicated further economic sanctions against Rhodesia are being considered, possibly an oil embargo—and methods are being sought to tighten the economic squeeze with the help of other governments.

While the government takes the African threats seriously, some diplomatic experts believe a break in relations would be limited to the withdrawal of African high commissioners in London.

Repeated assurances that Britain will avoid using force against Rhodesians and plans for a "peace offensive" may extract the sting from Conservative warnings that threaten the bipartisan approach to the Rhodesian crisis.

The peace offensive would involve propaganda designed to persuade white Rhodesians to see reason and return to constitutional government, coupled with assurance that rejection of Smith's method would not mean immediate rule by the African majority.

The program is being planned for use after a British radio station is completed this month in Bechuanaland, next door to Rhodesia. The British government believes the propaganda offensive might be most effective after Christmas, when Rhodesia should begin feeling the impact of economic sanctions.

Wilson said in an interview published in The Daily Mirror today that he believes persuasion, not economic sanctions will work, "but people must not get impatient if it takes time."

He said his government is determined to return Rhodesia to constitutional government without bloodshed and without recrimination.

On his statement last week that Britain would act if Rhodesia cut the supply of electricity to neighboring Zambia, Wilson said:

"We shall not invade Rhodesia or put in units of military clash on or over Rhodesian soil with forces controlled by the illegal Smith regime. . . .

"There could be more than one way open to us of dealing with the situation without bloodshed."

Wilson did not elaborate.

Kaunda Drops Request For Troops to Guard Dam

LONDON (CP) — President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia has dropped his request for British troops to guard the Kariba dam on the Rhodesian border, government sources said here today.

There was no evidence, the sources said, that President Kaunda planned to seek troops from any other nation to guard the dam, vital source of power supplies for Zambia's big copper industry.

De Gaulle Faces Run-off Vote With Mitterrand

By PETER BUCKLEY

PARIS (CP) — Charles de Gaulle must face the voters again in two weeks if he wants to remain president of France.

The 75-year-old soldier-president took one of the sharpest reverses of his public career Sunday when he failed by some 1,300,000 votes to get the absolute majority needed for election on the first ballot for the presidency.

A surge of voting strength from a unified political left and the appearance of an attractive young candidate representing the centre cut into de Gaulle's support to an extent beyond the dreams of his fiercest opponents.

So certain had he been of victory that the aloof wartime hero was persuaded only in the last week of the campaign to make an additional television appeal, after public opinion polls showed his support declining.

De Gaulle now must go on to the ballot against Francois Mitterrand, 49 a left-wing candidate supported by both Socialists and Communists, who polled second in Sunday's balloting. The winner becomes president of the Fifth Republic for a seven-year term.

Barring an upset that would be reckoned far greater than Sunday's, de Gaulle could expect to win by a comfortable majority in a two-man contest.

There seemed little room for doubt that de Gaulle will con-

Carriers Break Off Talks

MONTREAL (CP)—The Lake Carriers' Association and the Canadian Merchant Service Guild (CLC) were in a stalemate today in negotiations for a new labor contract.

Representatives of both sides met briefly Saturday in the offices of the board of maritime trustees. The meeting lasted long enough for association representatives to advise that they were breaking off the negotiations because deck officers on five ships quit their jobs, thus tying up the vessels away from their home ports.

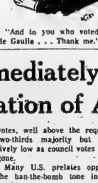
Robert Cook, a spokesman for the guild, said the association representatives demanded that the guild guarantee a return to work by the officers.

"We couldn't possibly agree to this," Mr. Cook said. "For one thing, we don't know what men have walked off what ships or where they have walked off.

"For another thing, the men are not striking. They have simply resigned their jobs and there is nothing we can do about that."

DIDN'T END TALKS'

Mr. Cook said the guild did not break off the talks. "We want them to continue, and we have told the board of maritime trustees that we are available to meet with the association at any time."



A spokesman for the association said the action by the deck officers forced them to discontinue the talks.

The dispute is over a contract to replace the one that expired nine months ago.

Russians Try Moon Landing

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The test comes today for what is believed to be the fourth Russian attempt this year to achieve a soft landing on the surface of the moon.

The spacecraft Luna VIII, launched Friday and reported functioning normally following a correction in its trajectory, was expected to reach the moon about 4:30 p.m. EST today, Tass news agency said.

The official announcement of the launching Friday said further refinement of the elements of a soft landing was one of the main purposes of the probe.

If Luna VIII, aimed for the moon's Ocean of Storms, manages a gentle landing, the feat would be a huge step forward in space exploration and a triumph for Russian science.

Instruments landed intact on the surface of the earth's nearest neighbor would be able to relay back vital information on the problems confronting plans for a manned landing on the moon.

TRIED LAST MAY

The Soviet Union made its first attempt at a soft landing of a package on the moon last May 12. The vehicle, Luna V, hit the moon but broke up on impact.

Luna VI, launched in June, veered off course during a trajectory changing manoeuvre and missed the moon completely.

Oct. 8, Russia admitted failure in its third bid for a soft landing. Luna VII reached the moon, but, like Luna, V, failed to carry out all the intricate procedures needed for a gentle touchdown.

Pope Immediately Approves Condemnation of Atomic War

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican ecumenical council gave a decisive vote of approval today to its final document on modern world problems.

Pope Paul promptly accepted the document although an unusually large number of prelates voted against its blanket condemnation of nuclear warfare.

The fiercely-contested document emerged from the voting with the largest bloc of opposition votes of any of the council's decrees—251. Council spokesmen said 2,111 prelates voted for it.

Spokesmen said the chapter on war and peace containing the condemnation of nuclear warfare had been opposed by 40 council fathers in earlier section - by - section voting. The chapter got 1,710 favorable votes, well above the required two-thirds majority but relatively low as council votes have gone.

Many U.S. prelates opposed the ban-the-bomb tone in the section.

Council spokesmen said Archbishop Pericle Felici, the council secretary-general, immediately phoned Pope Paul from St. Peter's Basilica to inform him of the votes.

The U.S. prelates had hoped to obtain enough votes to get the Pope to shelve the nuclear warfare section even if it were approved. But Archbishop Felici announced after the phone call that Pope Paul had approved the entire document.

Council spokesmen said another key section of the document urging further birth control studies and suggesting Roman Catholicism's ban on contraception may not be final, was approved by a vote of 2,047 to 155 in the section by section vote.

The vote in St. Peter's Basilica completed the work of the three - year - long council. The council fathers and bishops will be proclaimed at a public session in St. Peter's Basilica Tuesday, and the council will come to a ceremonial end Wednesday.

Pope Paul meanwhile proclaimed a five-month special jubilee for the world's 500,000, 000 Catholics to help them promote the council's decisions. He outlined a program of celebration "in every diocese of the Catholic world from Jan. 1 to May 29 - Pentecost Sunday."

A jubilee is a period of indulgence, or remission of temporal punishment due for sin. During the jubilee indulgences are granted to persons taking part in the special services.

Planes Carrying 112 Persons Collide In Mid-air, 3 Killed

MOST GOT OUT ALIVE — This is the wreckage of the Eastern Airlines propeller-driven Constellation that crashed in air with a TWA jetliner near North Salem, N.Y., Saturday. Aerial photo by AP staff photographer Harry Harris shows burned out fuselage and broken off wing. Death toll in the crash, which saw the TWA plane limp to a safe landing with 30 feet of wing torn off was described as miraculously low. (AP Wirephoto)

NORTH SALEM, N.Y. (AP) — Eastern Airlines pilot Charles J. White apparently sacrificed his life while helping to evacuate passengers after crash-landing his propeller-driven plane following a collision Saturday with a Trans World Airlines jet.

Three other persons lost their lives and 30 were injured. The two planes carried 112 persons.

Survivors and investigators alike praised the flying skill of White and the TWA pilot, Capt. Thomas H. Carroll, who guided his craft—minus a 30-foot section of wing—to a safe landing at Kennedy Airport.

Federal investigators are checking the cause of the crash.

The body of Capt. White, 43-year - old Second World War bomber pilot, was found Sunday midway down the smashed and charred cabin of his fourengined constellation.

Oscar Bakke, regional director of the Federal Aviation Agency, said:

"All I can say is it is fantastic that anyone escaped alive. The pilot must have done a wonderful job."

The planes collided some two miles south of Jacobstearn Westchester County, flying at a combined speed of perhaps 1,000 miles an hour. White's ship was on a shuttle run from Boston to Newark, N.J. The TWA jet was en route non-stop to Kennedy Airport from San Francisco.

Arthur D. Lewis, Eastern's vice-president and general manager, said White apparently died while trying to help passengers from the flaming wreckage.

After the collision, Lewis said, White "found he could no longer control his aircraft through normal systems" and made the crash-landing bid.

Lewis added:

"That he was able to bring his aircraft into the small field under twilight visibility conditions is little short of miraculous . . . after the impact, Capt. White went aft to ensure the safe evacuation of his passengers and this performance of duty apparently cost him his life."

George Rhoads, 38, of Cranford, N.J., a passenger aboard the Eastern plane, said: "He (White) flew us right to the hill. He pancaked it right into the hill. He was fighting it all the way down."

Space Striptease

Astronaut Will Remove Space Suit And Orbit Earth Clad in Underwear

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Gemini 7 spacecraft, performing with the precision of a fine watch, sped on in its two-week journey today as one of its pilots prepared to perform a "space striptease."

Navy Cmdr. James A. Lovell Jr. planned to remove his space suit and ride for awhile in his long underwear.

The experiment, first of this kind on a U.S. man-in-space flight, should make Lovell more comfortable. It will also determine whether moisture from the body of an unsuited astronaut clouds or freezes on the spacecraft windows.

Gemini 7 began its 20th orbit at 2:15 a.m. EST.

As Lovell and his flying companion, air force Lt.-Col. Frank Borman, headed toward a third day in orbit, they also hoped to send a message to earth over a concentrated beam of light called a LASER.

They may spot the launching or re-entry of a missile scheduled for firing from Cape Kennedy—from where they started their lengthy voyage also a Titan II rocket Saturday—and the launching of another missile from Vandenburg Air Force Base, Calif.

Sunday night was the first time that Gemini astronauts slept simultaneously in space for a long period. On previous flights, at least one pilot was awake at all times.

Furious activity continued on the launching pad today as crews worked round-the-clock to ready the Gemini 6 spacecraft to take off in pursuit of Gemini 7.

Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. and Air force Maj. Thomas P. Stafford are to ride Gemini 6 into space Dec. 13 in an attempt to conduct the first rendezvous of two manned space vehicles.

Gemini 6 was bolted to a Titan II rocket six hours ahead of schedule Sunday and Flight Director Chris Kraft said checkouts were proceeding smoothly. He raised the possibility of a Dec. 12 launching for the second vehicle.

As Borman and Lovell raced through their weightless whirl, almost a ho-hum attitude settled over the Manned Spacecraft Centre in Houston.

"The spacecraft is working perfectly," reported Kraft.

"The crew is in excellent physical condition," said the Gemini flight surgeon, Dr. Charles A. Berry.

The mission has been dubbed "Dr. Barry's flight" because its main goal is to learn how well man mentally and physically withstands long exposure to the space environment.

The planned 14 days equals the length of the longest manned lunar landing flight scheduled in the U.S. Apollo program. Gemini 6 is to stay aloft only a day or two, depending on when the rendezvous is completed.

Borman and Lovell have been taking pictures and reporting on their progress and the operation of their space chariot.

Lovell had hoped to fire the LASER beam at a receiving station in Hawaii Sunday, but the station was not ready. Another attempt will be made about 6 p.m. today. LASER stands for light amplification by stimulated emission of radiation.

Engineers hope LASERS will prove feasible for communicating with later spacecraft bound for the planets.

The flight, except for a few minor problems at the start, has been almost as smooth as the pre-launch preparations—which were the most perfect ever conducted on a U.S. manned space flight.

The Titan II rocket blasted off precisely on time at 2:30 p.m. and drilled Gemini 7 into an orbit ranging from 100 to 204 miles high. The astronauts gradually will change that to a circular orbit 185 miles high, the desired course for rendezvous.

American-owned Firms Here Are Told by U.S. to Spend Less

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Johnson administration is asking American business to cut foreign investments more next year in an effort to shave $1,000,000,000 from the balance-of-payments deficit.

This means that American-owned companies in Canada are being asked to spend less and invest less there.

Such investment in Canada in 1965 has been estimated as a record $1,600,000,000, or an increase of more than 17 per cent.

U.S. firms in the future will be expected to prune direct investment and cut the reinvestment of earnings and bring them back home.

At the same time, the U.S. government has taken steps to attract more foreign capital to the United States by setting a less restrictive ceiling on bank loans to foreigners.

The new foreign investment guidelines for U.S.-owned businesses were announced by the White, House Sunday. Though not compulsory, the guidelines establish for the first time a specific maximum on business being asked to spend less and invest less there.

Such investment in Canada in 1965 has been estimated as a record $1,600,000,000, or an increase of more than 17 per cent.

U.S. firms in the future will be expected to prune direct investment and cut the reinvestment of earnings and bring them back home.

At the same time, the U.S. government has taken steps to attract more foreign capital to the United States by setting a ceiling on any such move by the U.S. involved the accessibility of the American money markets and loans to be maintained.

So far as U.S. investment in Canada is concerned, Mr. Sharp said restraints would help the Canadian government in its efforts to relieve some of the pressures caused by the economic boom.

Generally, he said, the American guidelines would have a injury to the Canadian economy."

Canadian officials had exchanged views with the U.S. government prior to the announcement. It caused no surprise here when Washington asked American-owned companies to spend and invest less

All Ocean-going Vessels Expected to Clear Locks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Seven ocean - going vessels cleared St. Lambert lock at Montreal Sunday night, leaving only 13 ocean ships in the St. Lawrence Seaway system. All are expected to clear by midnight or early Tuesday.

A seaway authority spokesman said the seven cleared St. Lambert lock, the eastern seaway terminus, between 4 p.m. and midnight and the other 13 were spread out along the system.

All 13 had cleared the Iroquois lock at the western end, the last being the Anima which left Toronto harbor Sunday.

The Welland canal was cleared at 3 p.m. Saturday when the Autonlo, the last ocean-going ship in that canal, passed into Lake Ontario.

The water temperature at St. Lambert lock was unusually the first to freeze each year—was 34.5 degrees, and the authority said none of the remaining ships should have any trouble getting out of the system.

The seaway officially closed at midnight Friday, but as in other years, it is being kept open on a day-to-day basis as long as weather permits.

Four ocean-going ships were forced to winter in the Great Lakes last year when ice closed the seaway.

The spokesman said 28 ships passed through St. Lambert locks into the St. Lawrence River between noon Saturday and midnight Sunday.

Man Starts 5-day Term For Shoplifting

Magistrate T. Y. Wills today imposed a five-day jail sentence for shoplifting on a young Belleville-district man — whose wife was released Saturday after a similar sentence.

It was the latest in a series of penalties imposed on a number of shoppers charged with pilfering at the Ritesway shopping complex on the city's western outskirts.

The man jailed today was among two couples — both with families — arrested at the store. Magistrate Wills has alternated the sentences between the husbands and wives so that family affairs would not be disarranged.

Court Clerk Remanded On Theft Count

Marjorie Mary Lahey, Madoc court clerk, charged with theft of court funds, today appeared in magistrate's court in Belleville and was remanded one week.

It was Miss Lahey's first appearance in court since her arrest last Wednesday on a charge of theft of Ontario government funds in excess of $50.

The 44-year-old Madoc woman has served five years as court clerk and reporter on the circuit of Magistrate R. C. Jackson in north Hastings County.

During her brief appearance before Magistrate T. Y. Wills this morning at Hastings County Court House, she was represented by Belleville lawyer Ronald Cass. Mr. Cass requested a week's remand.

There was no mention of bail terms—set at $10,000, after Miss Lahey first appeared early Thursday before Belleville justice of the peace J. Clair Hayes.

Court officials this morning said no bail bond had been posted to that time.

46 Fatalities Across Canada Over Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Accidents killed at least 46 persons in Canada during the weekend, including 32 in traffic.

The Canadian Highway Safety Council's prediction that 50 would die in traffic during safe driving week, Dec. 1-7, was exceeded by the weekend toll. The first five days of the annual observance saw 58 killed in traffic, two fewer than the 1964 seven-day count.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday, local-times, showed Ontario led with 18 accidental deaths, including 12 in traffic, three drownings and a boy fatally injured when dragged into a corn hopper.

Quebec reported seven road deaths and three others killed in a plane crash.

TRAFFIC CLAIMS THREE

British Columbia had three traffic victims while on the Prairies, Alberta had one traffic fatality and a fatal accidental shooting. Saskatchewan had four traffic deaths and Manitoba reported four persons killed by fire and one in traffic.

In the Atlantic provinces, Nova Scotia had two traffic deaths while New Brunswick reported a death by fire and a fatal accidental shooting.

Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island reported no accidental deaths.

ORDERS NEW PLANE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary Robert McNamara has ordered the U.S. Air Force to develop a reconnaissance version of the F-111 jet fighter, previously known as the TFX.

Santa Claus dropped in at the Belleville Shrine Club yesterday to deliver Christmas gifts to crippled and retarded children in Belleville and district. Sandra Hugh, 4, is all smiles as she receives a king-sized gift from the jolly old gent.

Sunday Movies To Be Decided In Today's Vote

One of the least publicized questions on today's ballots is the one of Sunday movies.

George Forhan, manager of the Belle Theatre said, "Belleville is one of the last cities in Ontario without Sunday movies." (The others are Kitchener, Sarnia and Galt — and they are voting on the question this month).

"It seems strange to me that I can bowl, curl or play golf on Sunday, but I can't go to a movie."

He said surveys taken by theatre owners in cities where Sunday movies are permitted indicated that church attendance was not hurt by the movies.

He said, "The staff of the Belle work shifts three nights weekly. Staff members would be given their choice whether or not they preferred to work Sundays. No one would be coerced into working Sunday."

"Actually, movies on Sunday will mean more people being employed.

"Sunday movies afford the boarder, the single person or the elderly living in rooms by themselves, an opportunity to do something on Sunday afternoon. You can't spend every Sunday afternoon walking around or sitting in a restaurant."

Mr. Forhan said tourists were very surprised to learn they could not attend a movie on Sundays. "They find our Sundays deathly dull. We should progress with the rest of Ontario and permit Sunday movies."

When asked what type of movies would be shown Sundays, Mr. Forhan said, "We watch our selection carefully. It has been the experience of many theatres that Sunday is not a children's day, rather young adults are most prevalent.

"Saturday is traditionally children's day, and the programs are generally selected with this in mind."

Kingston Bus Drivers Vote To Walk Out

KINGSTON (CP)—Bus drivers here voted 54 to 1 Sunday to strike at midnight Wednesday if the public utilities commission does not grant their demand for extended holidays for drivers with long service.

The drivers, members of Local 291, Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC), have settled all issues except vacations in current negotiations for a new wage and working agreement.

Santa, Shriners Hold Party for Crippled And Retarded Children

With a hearty "Ho-ho-ho," Santa Claus skipped into the Belleville Shriner's Club yesterday to attend the Shrine's annual Christmas party for crippled and retarded children of Belleville and district.

Dressed in traditional red and white garb, and sporting rosy red cheeks, Santa brought with him a bulging sack filled full of good cheer with him.

About 85 children attended the party event and all received presents from Santa.

Though Santa was the main attraction of course, the kiddies had lots waiting for him to come. Mrs. Martin and her girls catered the affair and every child had a generous of sandwiches, milk, ice cream and cookies.

Shriner Martin Hoffman kept the children spellbound with his bag of tricks and Judy McNight's tiny tot dancers highlighted the pre-Santa entertainment. Dancers were Debbie and Caren Thrasher, Julie Lewis and Janice Dafoe, Penny Nickle, Gail Reid and Chris Bannon. Eyvarham accompanied the dancers on the piano.

St. John Ambulance Junior Cadets, under the direction of Mrs. Reid and Mrs. Ashley, were on hand to make sure the children all enjoyed themselves. Shriner Tom Lewis acted as master of ceremonies.

Then of Santa's little elfs, who was watching Santa's reindeers on the roof of the building while the jolly gentleman was handing out the gifts, was over, heard whispering to himself, "It's a wonderful job I have watching all these children enjoying themselves so much. And off the record," he whispered, "the Shriners seem to be having more fun than the kids."

Who can argue with an elf?

Behind the "Glass"

On January 7th and 8th probably the best event of the curling season will be held. It is the Specimen's Spiel for the Steve Flintoff trophy and accompanying prizes. This spiel originated in the mind of the late Mr. Flintoff and certainly became a feature of the club's activities. It is a day that the male members have the club to themselves, when they can let their hair down and enjoy the camaraderie that permeates this event.

So great is the interest that the spiel had to be extended to two days. Last year the three draws on Friday night starting at five o'clock and three draws on Saturday morning starting at nine, be closed to the women members of the club at four o'clock on Friday afternoon.

The entry list will be posted at the Club on Wednesday evening of this week and the first 96 to enter their names will constitute the draw. A committee will draw the rinks so there will be no plugged rinks in the spiel and everyone will have a chance at the prize list, which will be extensive. For the same entrance fees as in former years, $16 a rink, there will be added attractions but the committee is not saying what they will be. The entry list will positively close on December 18th and those on the list at that time will play and others entered will have to go on the spare list.

But the best part of the spiel will be the sumptuous dinner that will be served to those fortunate enough to play. This dinner will be entirely prepared by the men folk of the club, and already the large roasts of beef and larger-sized turkeys beside the ham and other accessories have been purchased.

The committee of Ron Benn, Everett Black, Doug Ashley, Jack Ovaitesen, Dr. Finley McCorquodale and Robert Smith have the arrangements well in hand and all the members have to do is anticipate and wait for the event.

A rink of Neville Burrough, Carl Charleton, Ron Benn with Moe White as skip won the pre-spiel event at the three - day spiel staged by the Oshawa Golf and Curling Club. There were five events in the spiel and the Belleville rink never lost a game defeating Clair Peacock of Oshawa in the final game. The rink played two games on Thursday, one on Friday and two on Saturday. The members of the rink received silver champagne buckets with a bottle of the bubbly stuff in each bucket.

ACTS AGAINST RHODESIA

TOKYO (Reuters)—Japan announced Saturday further economic sanctions against Rhodesia by suspending imports of pelitico leaf and raw sugar. Japan already has banned oil, petroleum, arms and ammunition exports to Rhodesia. Last year Japan bought $4,225,000 worth of Rhodesian tobacco, over 17 per cent of its total tobacco imports.

Crew Members Seek Aid to Seize Vessel

KINGSTON (CP) — Fifteen crew members have stayed aboard the Canadian Inuit cargo ship Protostatis, claiming they haven't received back pay from their employer.

But Capt. Chrisoconstas Samonas and nine others left the ship during the weekend on orders from the owner, Marcos Lemos of London.

Led by First Mate Paul Leonard, the crew has sought legal aid to relax the vessel, which grounded in the St. Lawrence River near Iroquois several years ago. They want to sell it or parts of it to get the money they say is owing them in order to fly home to Greece.

The captain, engineer and second engineer flew to Montreal pending a hearing into alleged dumping of oil by the ship in a seaway area. The others who left with Capt. Samonas plan to fly to Greece from Montreal at the owner's expense.

MISS SOME PAY

Mr. Leousis said the crew had been paid two weeks of their six months wages," but were never paid in full. Average pay is $120 a month, he said.

Four crew members jumped ship earlier this year, two at Detroit and two at Picton, Ont. The crew has been away from home for more than a year.

The remaining men are claiming 3½ months' severance pay. They say Greek law entitles them to it wherever a ship is tied up permanently, disabled or abandoned.

They currently have little money and no authority to order supplies. They are eating a flour mixture and drinking water from the river.

Popularity of Square Cheese Feature of Annual Show Here

The popularity of square cheese with its better adaptability for pre-packaging is quite evident at the 38th annual British Empire Cheese show being held this week in Belleville.

The cheese show is being held in the former Victoria and Grey Trust Company office at 160 Front Street across from the city hall. The show is held in conjunction with the convention of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers, sessions of which will be at the Hotel Quinte on Wednesday and Thursday.

Setting up of the cheese display was almost completed this morning as officials got things in readiness for commencement of judging. The show opens Wednesday morning.

Show secretary Mrs. Lillian Matthews said entries were the highest in several years, the number being even slightly over the cheese centennial year last year. There are between 60 and 70 large 90 lb. cheese but each year sees a higher percentage of 40-lb. square block cheese in the display.

A feature of the cheese show this year will be the appearance of the Ontario Dairy Princess, now back home again after a visit to the United Kingdom.

There is no admission charge to the cheese show and the general public is cordially invited to drop in any time Wednesday or Thursday.

While they are there visitors will have the opportunity of purchasing some of the shows prize winning cheddar.

The title of World Professional Figure Skating Champions was added to the long list of amateur titles of brother and sister Otto and Maria Jelinek, stars of the Exciting World of Ice Capades which opens at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto on December 7th, through September 12th.

The entire second half of the hour show is devoted to a salute to the world of entertainment. The Jelineks interpret "West Side Story" in the Broadway 8.30 Curtain segment, appropriately to the music of "Maria."

Their solo in the first half is to the music of "Malaguena" and presents the perfect timing and style which won them the 1962 world championships at Prague, Czechoslovakia. 1962 also marked their return to the homeland from which they fled in 1948 and a visit to their former home which is now the Austrian Embassy. Now residents in Bronte, Ontario, Otto and Maria were junior and senior Canadian pair champions and placed fourth at the 1960 Winter Olympics.

Police Assoc. Holds Turkey Shoot at Range

TRENTON — On Saturday, the Trenton Police Association held its most successful Christmas turkey shoot ever at Quinte Machine and Repair range.

Winners were: Gordon Guy, (2); S. Campbell, (2); M. Leland, D. Neal, D. Peacock, R. Muir, H. Bonnar, B. Dionne, D. Guy and C. Reddom, each with one.

CHURCH FILLED

Sunday night St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was filled to capacity for the Christmas sing-a-long by the Trenton Citizens' Band, under the baton of Ted Snider. The well familiar carols made the rafters ring. The ladies of the congregation made the coffee and doughnuts go as far as they would go to the capacity crowd that gathered in the church basement, following the service.

SUNDAY SPORT ARGUED

King Street United Church was turned into a pro and con forum following the Sunday night service when two Trenton businessmen, (and sportsmen), Paul Tripp and Allen Bonn met arguments presented by two ministers, Rev. James Payton and Rev. Frederick Love on the question of Sunday sports. (Local voters will decide today whether Trenton is to have them).

Mr. Tripp and Mr. Bonn took the stand that Sunday sports were here to stay, no matter what tactics their proponents took to get them in "under the wire."

Quite a number of those in the congregation asked questions of both sides from the floor. Moderator was Dr. H. E. A. Ashford.

Cash Receipts for Farmers Hit New Peak This Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Cash receipts for Canadian farmers will hit a new peak this year and go even higher in 1966, a federal report on agricultural conditions said today.

By year's end, total cash income is expected to reach $3,635,000,000, a healthy step above the previous high of $3,458,000,000 in 1964.

The report, presented to the federal - provincial agricultural outlook conference here, said cash receipts from farming operations "are expected to establish yet another record in 1966."

Realized net income—another key to the farm industry's financial health—is forecast to reach $1,582,000,000 this year, up $66,000,000 from 1964.

The 1965 figure is even further ahead of the 1963 total, but falls just short of the big years of 1951 and 1952 when realized net income surpassed $1,600,000,000. These are record levels and 1965 therefore ranks third.

Total net income, which includes value of farm - stored grain, may reach $1,902,000,000 this year, up substantially from $1,432,000,000 in 1964. However, it will rank third behind the record years of 1952 and 1951 when the figure surpassed $1,900,000,000.

Net farm income has been rising at an average annual rate of 2.4 per cent since 1946.

PREDICT MORE INCOME

The experts who prepared the report also estimated that realized net income in 1966 will be equal to or better than the 1965 figure. To make this possible, advances in farm expenditures will probably be exceeded by increased income.

Dealing with the cash - receipts record for 1965, the report noted that it reversed predictions that cash income would fall off.

"On the contrary, the report said, "new production records were established and significant increases in prices of many agricultural products occurred."

Farmers next year will be able to market a large proportion of the 1965 wheat crop to obtain cash. International demand for wheat is strong with Russia and China buying heavily.

Canadian wheat board participation pool payments to wheat farmers in 1966 are unlikely to match 1965 payments.

Cattle marketings may be somewhat higher than 1965 at current prices. Hog prices and marketings are expected to remain about the same.

Expected production increases in dairy products will improve the farmers cash position next year. Cash receipts from eggs and poultry will be up.

The good 1965 flue-cured tobacco crop will help increase farm cash receipts next year. Total returns in potato farmers will be lower, though.

The 1965 feed bill will also be higher than last year with more livestock and poultry feed purchased at slightly higher prices. Chemical fertilizer use was up and prices were higher.

A slight increase in the size of the hired farm labor force and in wage rates will increase farm labor costs this year from $1. Employment including farm operators averaged 611,000.

Cattle sales were up 20 per cent this year from last. Prices were higher and a cash receipt record is in the offing. Hog prices also rose.

Total 1965 milk production was down but average prices were significantly higher, producing an increase in total cash returns. On balance, total income to poultry meat producers was higher.

World market outlets for Canadian farm products are expected to grow in the next five years.

Brainwash U.S. Soldiers

BANGKOK, Thailand (Reuters) — Two United States soldiers released by the Communist Viet Cong a week ago following two years of captivity arrived here Sunday after stating that they had been brainwashed by their captors.

The soldiers, Sgt. George Edward Smith and Specialist Claude D. McGuire, leased a stir Tuesday, soon after their release on the Cambodian border, when they told a press conference they disagreed with U.S. policy in Viet Nam and planned to leave the armed forces.

Nicholson Catholic College Addition Officially Opened

Belleville Separate School system yesterday marked conclusion of its largest single expansion program to date, at the official opening of an addition to Nicholson Catholic College.

With the new facilities total cost of the college now represents a building program of more than $1,000,000.

The new addition also indicates the growth of separate school registration. Nicholson College was opened only four years ago.

"It is striking to note that something in the area of eight classrooms served the needs of the separate school system for over 100 years," Separate School Board chairman E. J. Buckley told the audience at yesterday's event, "but during the past 15 years an additional 44 rooms have been erected — or an average of three classrooms a year."

There seems to be no slowdown to the trend, he added, and land has been acquired already in "strategic locations" pending future development.

The Nicholson addition houses 12 classrooms, a gymnasium, library, science room and board room facilities, and doubles the capacity of the college.

"What is more important," said Mr. Buckley, "is that we now have a complete high school system under one roof and one principalship . . ."

KEYS PRESENTED

Marking the formal fact the school was in operation, board property committee chairman James S. Colligan presented keys to Principal Sister Mary Theresa.

The Separate school system was congratulated by Mayor Jack Ellis for a "bright and sparkling" building.

"When you look at the amount of money that is expended by the Belleville Separate School Board you wonder how they achieve the results they do," he said.

"The unsung and unpaid members of the board deserve all the commendations."

Guest speaker Thomas S. Malady, Toronto, a separate school inspector for a record 44 years before his retirement, told the assembly a school must closely identify itself with its social environment, he added.

"The good school must be social. It cannot—and does not exist apart from the society in which it is immersed.

"It must be conscious of its environment," he added. "A study of current events, even on a casual level, gets pupils thinking of what goes on around around them."

COLLEGE KEYS are presented Nicholson principal Sister Mary Theresa by James Colligan, school board property committee chairman.

Tractor Rolls Over on Hill, Driver Killed

A Redneresville area farmhand was killed this morning when a tractor he was driving rolled over on an icy hill three miles south of Redneresville.

The victim's identity was withheld pending notification of his family.

Scene of the accident was Fingerboard Hill, on a Prince Edward County road running south from Redneresville.

The man was driving the tractor along the road, followed by his employer in a truck, when it rolled over and crushed him. Time of the accident was about 10 a.m.

A nearby resident said the hill was icy at the time and unsanded.

"It was just like glass", she said. "The whole road was, in fact".

She added in recent times the road has never been sanded until later in the morning.

"It should be done before people start to go to work".

Pope Reforms Successor to Inquisition

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul today ordered a broad revision of the Vatican's Holy Office, successor to the Inquisition, and said Roman Catholics brought before it must have the right of defence.

The Pope's action, launching a long promised reorganization of the Vatican curia, or central church administration, brought the biggest changes to the Holy Office since it emerged from the Inquisition in 1542.

It had been the foremost of the congregations, or agencies, at the Vatican and had the title of Supreme Sacred Congregation of the Holy Office."

The Paul today brought it down to the same level with the other congregations, deleting the word supreme and giving it a new title:

The Sacred Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith.

Advance Poll Heavier Than Year Ago

TRENTON — On Saturday 26 persons voted in an advance poll. Last year 20 persons voted.

School children will take home letters today, urging their parents to get out to vote. The polls will remain open until 7 p.m.

Voters are to elect a mayor, three councillors and four members to the school board.

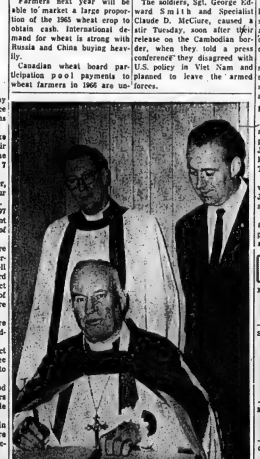
In Trenton, there are 7,097 eligible voters. In recent years, only about one-third of these got out to vote.

In Frankford, where there are 800 eligible voters, one person voted in an advance poll Saturday morning. Frankford voters will be asked to elect four councillors from a slate of five. All other offices were filled by acclamation.

In Murray township, where there are 2,000 voters, no advance poll was held.

Voters will be asked to elect a reeve, deputy reeve, three councillors and two members to the area school board.

Murray township has a good voting record in recent years with one-half of the eligible voters getting out.



There will be no election in the village of Brighton, where all seats were filled by acclamation.

Indians in the News

Before the federal election we suggested one of the things the new government would have to deal with was the welfare of Canada's Indian population, who for too long have been living as outcasts in the land they first settled thousands of years ago.

As any close study of newspapers in recent weeks should have revealed, the subject of Indians and their rights and welfare is very much to the fore. So much so, that Canadians at large are beginning to realize that the Indian has a genuine case for believing his lot can and should be improved.

Lectures by Miss Kahn-Tineta Horn, an Indian Week at Carleton University, Indian seminars in Toronto and Ottawa—all these have helped bring the Indian into public view.

In Kenora, the recent march by 450 Indians probably accomplished more than anything else to bring things to a head. They assembled outside the Legion hall where town council was meeting and presented a petition outlining their needs.

Mayor Edward Norton, of the northwestern Ontario resort town, has acknowledged that residents must change their attitudes towards Indians. He said they have "a small responsibility to look on the Indian people with a slightly different light," and warned that the "patronizing attitude toward Indian people must come to an end."

The Indians "want to earn their own living," he said.

If Mayor Norton never makes another public pronouncement—he is not seeking re-election—he will be remembered for this one at a time of peaceful revolution in Indian affairs.

Now there is word that a multi-million dollar federal-provincial plan to help poverty-stricken Indians and some underprivileged whites is expected to be signed shortly.

Part of the program, according to The Globe and Mail, will be the $2,000,000 vocational school and community centre at Moosonee, announced November 20 by Ontario Education Minister William Davis. It will include kindergartens to help Indian children learn English, and adult education classes.

Assistance for Indians in undertaking their own housing programs is also contemplated.

Still other signs of interest in Indian progress are in the wind. George Burt, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers' Union (CLC) said in Windsor last week that his union was prepared to offer its support to eliminate many social injustices to which Indians are subjected because of racial discrimination."

The union has given a good lead to the rest of the Canadian public. It may well be that in this era of growth and progress which Canada is entering, the Indian may rise to fresh heights of achievement, and will be given the opportunity to go forward in dignity and equality with other Canadians.

Royal Advisor

Canadian Press correspondent Harold Morrison's revealing portrait of Queen Elizabeth as a "discerning, highly experienced person" who, on occasion, has tendered advice to Prime Minister Wilson instead of receiving it from him, is timely.

For too long, and by too many of her subjects, the Queen has been regarded as a mere figurehead in the British and Commonwealth spectrum. But she is more than that. She has a keen intellect and an astonishing memory for people and places. No monarch has travelled more extensively, and in the face of threats and danger, than our sovereign.

To the surprise of many, the Queen has struck up an excellent working relationship with Prime Minister Wilson, who as the leader of Britain's second Labor government, might have been expected to propagate left-wing policies alien to the Queen's own private tenets.

Mr. Wilson has blended a middle-of-the-road socialism with brilliant leadership and strategy, avoided the worst excesses of Labor doctrine such as hastened the downfall of the Attlee government, and has not been afraid to take unpopular steps for the good of the nation. These are some of the qualities which have earned him the approval and cooperation of the monarch. She in turn appreciates the fact that in Wilson, Britain has a prime minister with rare qualities of leadership.

That the Queen is able to guide the prime minister in some of his decisions is not surprising. It seems only yesterday that she came to the Throne. In fact, it is 14 years since her father, George VI, passed away and she returned from a trip to Africa to assume her new responsibilities.

Queen Elizabeth, now 39, is a mature and attractive woman who takes her responsibilities seriously and commands the respect and admiration of all.

Smoking No Solution To Excessive Weight

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter, 20, has started to smoke, giving as an excuse her weight problem. She is 5 feet 4 and weighs 135 pounds. Please explain how smoking would keep the weight down or cut the appetite. — Mother

Some notions seem to go in cycles, and this letter is one of a number I've received recently asking the same question.

There's always a terrible temptation to try to find easy ways to lose weight. Unfortunately, the easy ways don't work.

It is true, of coufse, that some people who quit smoking put on weight, but not all of them.

Some smokers, you see, substitute something else when they give up tobacco. They start popping mints into their mouths, or nibbling peanuts, or keeping a box of candy handy — something to do instead, when they are tempted to reach for a cigarette. These people obviously will gain weight.

Technically, smoking can have an affect in that nicotine can slow down the stomach contractions, which has some effect although hardly overwhelming, on the sensation of hunger. Further, smoking can dull the senses of taste and smell.

But before you put too much dependence on these factors as helping people reduce, look around and see how many heavy people are also heavy smokers! Anyone who starts smoking with the expectation of losing weight is likely to be disappointed.

Now, "Mother," let's examine another point or two. How much overweight is your daughter? If her height (5 feet 4) is measured with her shoes off, she isn't fat. Satisfactory weight at that height for a small-boned person is 125 pounds; medium frame 128; heavy bone structure 140. Thus at worst your daughter should not have to shed more than 10 pounds, and this can be done in a fairly short time by curtailing sweets and visible fats (cream, the fat part of meat, spreads, gravies, fried foods.)

Of course if her height was measured with high heels, you have to subtract a couple of inches, and 5 feet 2 her 135 pounds would be substantially too much.

Anyway, I don't think smoking is going to cure whatever degree of overweight she may possess, and I think you chose exactly the right word when you called weight an "excuse" to start smoking. She just wanted to smoke.

Dear Dr. Molner: Why are hormone shots necessary after a full hysterectomy? — Mrs. O. Z. L.

They aren't always necessary — but they usually make you much more comfortable. The hormones compensate while your system adjusts to the loss of activity of the ovaries. For full details, read my booklet, which you may obtain by sending 25 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill. The booklet explains that removal of the ovaries (as in a total hysterectomy) amount to surgical menopause."

Dear Dr. Molner: Assuming that a male knows for a fact that a bad case of mumps as a young adult made him sterile, is it possible that this could be cured or that he could become a father? — M. T. D.

Assuming that he "knows for a fact," we have to assume that he has had a medical examination to determine whether he is sterile. Sorry to say, I see no prospect of changing this, once it has occurred from this cause — but I do think that in some supposed cases, it can be worthwhile to have an expert medical investigation to find out whether sterility really exists.

Anti-social Show Traits Like Early in Life

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Occasionally, I see a boy in our neighborhood whom I would judge to be about 11 years old. So far as I know, he has done nothing wrong yet. He attends school regularly, and has not got into trouble. But I am morally certain that he is going to become an active delinquent in a few years. The signs are all there; if one looks closely at his attitudes.

This is the kind of boy who needs special attention paid to him — the potential pre-delinquent. Even at 11, it may be almost too late, for most experts in the field agree that anti-social patterns are set by the age of 5 or 6.

At 11, however, a lot may still be done to restrain the feelings and reshape the behavior patterns. But how do we go about it? The parents will probably refuse to believe that the boy is heading for trouble; and there are not enough diagnostic or therapeutic centers set up in any community to handle such incipient problems.

Yet, the rising rate of delinquency cannot be halted or reversed, I am convinced, without such preventive measures. In this respect, delinquency is like a cancer: if we can detect pre-cancerous conditions early enough, they can usually be saved. Likewise, if we can detect and treat pre-delinquents early enough, much can be done to help them.

Governmental and social agencies spend millions upon millions for coping with delinquents after they have got into serious difficulties; and there is no indication that any of these expensive efforts diminish the rate of delinquency. Delinquent crimes, indeed, have gone up four times as fast as adult crimes in the period since the end of World War II.

According to Dr. J. M. Stubblebine a psychiatrist who has worked with children of this kind for many years in California, it is possible to recognize a potential delinquent by a number of traits that most of them share in common. Writing in the October issue of the Journal of Mental Hygiene, he says:

"Parents, educators, the general physician, family counselors and clergymen must all learn to recognize the pre-delinquent. While it is difficult to 'shift gears' mentally and to regard as potentially dangerous some types of behavior previously thought to be normal, this basic change in attitude would help us come closer to finding both the cause of delinquency and the means of prevention."

It is a difficult task, and calls for more foresight and insight than simply 'punishing' or 'correcting" delinquents after they are in police custody. But since neither the punishment nor the correction seems to have any lasting effect, perhaps it is time we shifted gears — and funds! — into the more difficult field of detection and prevention.

A U.S. View of Wheat Deals

The South Carolina News and Courier —

In arranging a wheat agreement with Communist China that may range in value from $500 million to $900 million, the Canadian Wheat Board has taken action that deeply involves Canada with the colossus of Asia. The United States cannot ignore the long-range implications of this and other Canadian wheat sales.

As we see it, Canada is becoming the granary of China. In the short run, this is profitable trade for the Canadians. Whether China can continue to find the cash to pay for wheat purchases, we can't say. But the sales unquestionably are helping Peking avoid deep trouble at home, and at a time when the Chinese are discredited among responsible nations as an aggressor.

Canada, with 18 million people, is lending an important hand to a militant, revolutionary nation of 700 million people. We should think that thoughtful Canadians would be concerned about the growing wheat sales to the Chinese. Massive harvests of wheat, geared for sale to Peking, could lead to Canadian dependence on further purchases.

We suspect that some Canadians enjoy making the U.S. uncomfortable through these wheat sales. As the Canadian writer F. H. Underhill has put it, "The oldest and most tenacious tradition in our communal economy centres around our determination not to become Americans." This tradition now seems to be causing Canadians to be highly vocal in opposition to U.S. policy in Asia. Recent negotiations for Canadian - Chinese Communist cultural exchanges are likely to widen the gap between the United States and Canada.

Those Canadians who favor friendly relations with Communist China forget that Canada shares the same continent — and the same military dangers — with the United States. The vital interests that cause the U.S. to intervene in Vietnam, for instance, also are true interests of the Canadians, though not all our northern neighbors appreciate that fact.

If the power of the U.S. were drastically reduced Canada would be an easy target for aggressor states.

The U.S. will have to be gentle with its sensitive neighbor to the north. Canadians have acute internal problems such as the threatened secession of French-speaking Quebec province. It is understandable that Canadians don't want to be lost in the shadow of the United States. But it is important for Canada's own interest that it not become economically tied to or dependent upon Communist China.

Origins of Student Unrest

Milwaukee Journal

Echoes of last winter's student upheaval on the University of California Berkeley campus continue to reverberate throughout higher education. Berkeley, in fact has almost become to the academic community what Selma and Birmingham are to the civil rights movement—a symbol of unrest and discontentment.

What are the roots of this student rebellion? How should it be dealt with? Such questions have provoked a wave of extensive soul-searching by most university administrators.

The recent Washington convention of the American Council on Education, one of the most meaningful and prestigious bodies in higher learning, focused almost entirely on student problems.

What emerged from that gathering was a kind of consensus that the recent turmoil on the campus is not the result of any persistent troublemakers, beatniks or college hangers-on, Mather is serious, and with reason, to have been the culmination of legitimate, expressions of frustration and resentment, by some of the most sincere and brilliant students, against their anonymity and their alienation from the faculty.

Accepting this diagnosis, the problem for university officials then becomes one of making student involvement much more than the usual token indulgence.

This is a difficult assignment, for the striking line between legitimate student participation in university matters and unlimited student freedom is not easily defined.

Some universities, however, are managing to come up with promising compromises. Yale University has just taken the first step to give students an official voice in the appointment of faculty members in tenure positions.

The executive committee of the faculty of arts and sciences has recommended that academically high - ranking students be invited to submit a "written appraisal of the strengths and weaknesses" of their teachers, instead experience in lectures, discussions and seminars.

The University of Wisconsin, which for years has provided for student representation and participation in decision-making boards and committees, recently has moved to broaden this participation.

This see ms to be a sensible trend. One way to instill responsibility in young people is to treat them as responsible. Furthermore, as more educators recognize, students are less likely to rebel against policies they have a share in formulating.

Ontario in Song and Story

Ottawa Journal

Mrs. Edith Fowke in Toronto is producing a book called Traditional Singers and Songs from Ontario and says:

"It's a labor of love, really. Except for radio programs, there really isn't much money in it."

That we can believe. Canadian history in any form is not much sought after by anyone but it is very rewarding for enthusiasts.

Ontario appears neglected in the field of song. Of recent publication are two fine books by the National Museum, Folk Songs — Gaelic Songs in Nova Scotia and Songs of the Newfoundland Outports (two volumes). But when the helpful Ottawa Public Library is asked for folk songs of Ontario it can mention only general collections of the folk songs of Canada and hope that Mrs. Fowke gets her book finished soon.

Early Ontario was as musical as any other part of Canada, perhaps more so. One of the legends of the Irish in Canada endeavor is that of the Ontario boys who went into the early and came home to marry their best girl only to find she refused to go to the prairies without her piano. In consequence, sod huts in the most improbable places had pianos, brought in with infinite difficulty. The instinct of the Ontario girls was matchless, as usual. Pianos do more for home life than drunkan frontier fiddlers sitting on whisky kegs.

Mrs. Fowke, we are pleased to hear, has found a song about the Ontario Girls of Yesterday who face the prospect of losing all the eligible young men to the West. There should be a companion song about little girls rich in affection who wrest a living from teaching such a piano and a husband. That's folk-song material.*

Ontario songs are not normally very jolly; there was more hard work than fun on the Ontario farm. Only one Mrs. Fowke could find about Toronto was about the jail — "the old Don jail, commonly the Don" but we'd hope she'd find a whole list of songs in the Ottawa Valley. Lumbering songs have been productive of song in the Valley had lots of these.

A charming word from Mrs. Fowke is that she has no trouble getting people to sing the old songs. This may be because they realize such songs can be lost and music die. While the songs that...grandmother sang to Mother and her children when they were loved in a day when entertainment was more limited and any song was worthy of respect and preservation.

"Sing Me Your Song, O!" said the Gilbert and Sullivan duet and if in Ontario, too, it was a song sung to the moon in a cage" we are willing to try and keep it. Canadians comes in many forms and music is very often a lovely one.

Marriage — 1984-style

Ottawa Journal

A Winnipeg magistrate, sentencing a 20-year-old bachelor married youth on a charge of false pretences, commented that getting married and forging cheques were two of the easiest things to do nowadays. He implied that some people would be better off not getting married when they did. He is undoubtedly right.

It's an interesting theoretical field. On paper, one could establish certain basic requirements—financial, psychological and physical—for people planning marriage. But the marriage fee might discourage hasty marriages. Or couples might wait until they had improved could have a free marriage (or even be paid for it) while others were saving.

Aside from violation of such minor things as individual privacy and freedom, the business of marriage control presents a problem—who would be put in charge? What politician, for instance, would dare accept the position of Minister of Marriage? What kind of promises would a Minister of Marriage have to make in a campaign?

U.S. casualties were heavy. The Americans said they were saved from being wiped out by U.S. jets which relentlessly hammered the Viet Cong.

Bank Rate Is Raised One-half PC

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bank of Canada Sunday night announced an increase to 4¾ per cent from 4¼ per cent in the bank rate.

The increase, effective today, followed the announcement in Washington of approval of an increase to 4½ per cent from four per cent in the rediscount rate by the U.S. federal reserbe board.

The bank rate in Canada has been constant at six per cent since November, 1964, when it was raised from four per cent.

The announcement said:

"The governor, Mr. Louis Rasminsky, stated that the policy of the Bank of Canada would continue to be directed to making provision for the over-all credit needs of sound economic growth."

Thieves Active Around Parked Cars in City

Thieves are doing their Christmas shopping early in Belleville, this mainly from parked cars loaded with season's gifts.

The result has been a warning from city police, who suggest a little healthy suspicion may go along toward ensuring a goodwill feeling on earth to all men this Christmas.

Most shoppers work from their parked automobiles while making the rounds of the stores, returning frequently to leave their gift's locked in the vehicles.

However, they are not as secure as they may think, says Detective Inspector Harold Reid.

"It's fairly easy to unob^rusively reach into a locked car," said the inspector. "And that's what has been happening lately."

Thefts from parked au omobiles have been mounting in the city as the Christmas rush starts getting underway.

Police, however, have the solution. . .

"Instead of leaving parcels in the car, shoppers should lock them in 'he trunk," says Inspector Reid.

Blackout Due Human Failures

By FRANK CORNIER

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson was told today the massive northeast power blackout didn't have to happen, yet could happen again.

Experts urged new precautions and perhaps new legislation.

Johnson got a 30-page report on preliminary findings by the Federal Power Commission about the 9½-hour blackout that affected 30,000,000 persons in the northeastern United States and southern Canada.

To discuss the report, the president summoned retiring FPC Chairman Joseph C. Swidler to the LBJ Ranch near here.

The report said the chain reaction that plunged 80,000 square miles into darkness could have been avoided had Adam Beck hydroelectric plant on the Niagara River relay an electric relay to handle power loads that had increased significantly since the device was last set in 1963.

OTHERS BLAMED

Allegations of man - failure were not limited, however, to the Beck plant. The report also said:

—Employees of the Consolidated Edison Co. perhaps could have prevented the blackout from enveloping all of New York City had they acted quickly to shut down parts of their system at the first warning of trouble.

—The complete collapse of the interconnected power system in the northeast micht have been avoided had employees of many individual utility firms taken similar action.

—The chief operating engineer of Consolidated Edison told the FPC that, with benefit of hindsight, power might have been restored in New York City twice or even four times faster. The blackout there lasted from eight to 13 hours, depending on the section of the city.

"There is no evidence whatever that sabotage was involved in any stage of the power failure," the FPC concluded. It said the impact of the blackout on military and civil defence installations "appears to have been negligible" because most had emergency power supplies.

ISSUES STATEMENT

Johnson said in a statement:

"Many of the commission's initial recommendations are already being implemented by the power companies. This effort must be continued until we have so perfected our power systems that widespread power failures will be not only improbable but impossible."

Sukarno Calls For Capture Of Communists

JAKARTA (Reuters) — President Sukarno told Indonesia's legislators in an impassioned speech today that they could fire him if they did not think he was doing his job properly.

He also called, for the first time, for the capture of the Indonesian Communists who tried to overthrow his regime in October.

"If you think I am not carrying out my job properly, or if you think I neglect development projects, yes, you can fire me," Sukarno declared.

Addressing the peoples consultative congress, Indonesia's highest constitutional body, Sukarno described the Communists as "rats which have eaten a part of a big cake and tried to eat the pillar of our house."

"Now let's catch these rats. Yes, catch them and I will punish them."

He said as his first step he had ordered the setting up of an extraordinary military tribunal to try those involved in the Oct. 1 coup.

Out-of-County Hunters Held For Trespassing

PICTON (Staff) — The problems of hunters—from outside Prince Edward County—and the resulting damage to property in the Township of Sophiasburgh was discussed at a special public meeting held in Demorestville hall recently.

The meeting was well attended and representatives from the Ontario Provincial Police and the Department of Lands and Forests were present. Crown Attorney Lance Metherey was also on hand acting as legal advisor for the township.

Mr. Metherey explained to the farmers their legal rights and how far they could go in their attempts to curtail this situation. He also explained just how far the law could go to protect them.

The situation in Sophiasburg is the same as that experienced by the townships of Ameliasburgh and Hillier during the past year when so many arrests were made.

Most of the complaints dealt with at the meeting in Sophiasburg were from farmers of the Prince Island area, who sustained mainly to fence damage and broken liquor and beer bottles in the fields. They said that shooting at bottles caused a lot of hazard to the feet of cattle and to tractor tires.

On Saturday nine more hunters were arrested and charged for trespassing near Dorset in Sophiasburg township. All of those arrested were from the Toronto area.

The prelude will be by the Salvation Army Band under Captain Johnson with Mr. A. A. Bowie at the organ.

African States to Declare War on Rhodesia if U.K. Fails to Put Down Revolt

ADDIS ABABA (AP) — The ju, these Gloster Javelins, are African states have agreed in principle to declare war on Rhodesia if Britain fails to put down that white-ruled colony's revolt in 30 days. A five-country action committee has been charged with the military planning. It was reported in this Ethiopian capital Sunday.

Nigeria's foreign minister, Nuhu Bamali, said no declaration of war would come until after Dec. 15. A weekend conference of African defence and foreign ministers decided that unless Britain crushes the rebellion by then, all 36 members of the Organization of African Unity (OAU), including nine members of the Commonwealth, will sever diplomatic relations with London.

The nine Commonwealth members are Nigeria, Sierra Leone, Ghana, Zambia, Malawi, Uganda, Kenya, Tanzania and Gambia.

"If Britain has not responded to our resolutions by then, we feel it will have abdicated by being an attack on Britain itself," Bamali declared in an interview.

IT'S SERIOUS

Top officials in London regarded this threat as serious, but said it should not be taken as the final word. They pointed to economic aid and trade privileges Britain grants the African Commonwealth members. These would be lost if the OAU goes ahead with its plans. The Commonwealth countries also receive almost all their military equipment and training from Britain. So did Rhodesia.

This aspect of the situation was pointed up by Zambia's foreign minister, Simon Kapwepwe, when he returned to his capital Lusaka, Sunday, Arriving at the airport there as RAF planes roared in and out, he told reporters:

"The planes they have given

Bully Respects Wife Who Shows Spunk

DEAR DORIS: To No-Longer-Loving Wife (older husband dominating): I would say: Don't let it take you as long as it did me to find yourself. For 35 years I raised children, kept house, stayed out of debt, with never a pat on the shoulder. He only blamed me that I was spending his money.

DORIS CLARK

He has hurt my feelings so much, and I have done so much crying! Until about five years ago I woke up. Married to a man doesn't mean he owns your life and soul. I started going my own way — to church, to visit friends. Didn't pay any attention to the way he reacted. And my husband changed; he respects me now and often asks my advice.

I wish I had stood up for myself when I was your age, but at least I am a happy grandmother now. My friends tell me I look younger than 20 years ago. The Boss is happy too, though he doesn't show it. But I know he needs me.

So have courage. — A FRIEND.

DEAR FRIEND: Perhaps your True Confession will give N.L.L. Wife the push she needs. Thank you.

DEAR DORIS: I am a girl of 15 who is having a problem. There is a girl of whom I am very fond; so fond that it's just as if she were a boy. Every time I see her I become nervous and I hope she'll say "hi" or smile. One time she didn't smile or say "hi" all day at school and that night I just about went crazy. I couldn't do my homework and I barely slept a wink.

This girl is in her last grade of high school. I see her fairly often as we both are on the school team.

I'm so restless in school and I just can't wait for our next meeting. Is this normal? — WORRIED AND SLEEPLESS.

DEAR SLEEPLESS: Sure it's normal. At 15 a girl is so interested in people that she can have a crush on almost anyone; a teacher, her father, a sister, a pal.

As you overcome your shyness and make new friends of both sexes, you'll simmer down.

I.O.D.E. Chapter Donates to Various Funds

MARMORA — At the November meeting of Marmora Chapter, IODE, approval was given for donations to the following funds: the Lucy Morrison fund for education, Hamilton; Provincial Services at Home and Abroad; Marmora Public Library; welfare Christmas baskets; overseas relief fun; Korean projects fund; national shipping fund; national Centennial fund.

Mrs. G. J. Mallejohn, regent, presided at the meeting held at the home of Mrs. M. Borland.

Miss Miriam Savage reported that $23.60 had been collected in the canvass for the blind in the village. The collection for UNICEF, looked after by the school children on Hallowe'en night and sponsored by the IODE, totalled $69.35. Mrs. Borland reported on the success of the opportunity sale held recently and said the unsold clothing had been delivered to the Scott Mission in Toronto.

Tickets on the Christmas grocery basket are to be drawn at Marmora Theatre on Dec. 18th.

The response by members in supplying nursery bags and personal porperty bags for services At Home and Abroad, was most satisfactory.

Members decided to make a contribution to the Marmora recreational committee to be used for the purchase of musical instruments for the band which has been started.

An article was read by Mrs. Charles Brady on a pilgrimage of Canadians to Amsterdam, Holland, to commemorate Remembrance Day. While there the Canadian visitors stayed at Dutch homes and were entertained for eight days.

The Atlantic Provinces by W. S. MacNutt

This book has been planned in the Belleville Public Library by the Richardson Century Fund. It covers the period in Canadian History between 1712-1857, and is the first general history of the Maritimes. The effort to achieve responsible government was slow to begin, but gained strength rapidly in the 1830's.

A Cornishman at Oxford by A. L. Rowse

A sequel to "A Cornish Childhood." A story of struggle and no easy success. A vivid account of a brilliant Oxford undergraduate generation in the 1920's, along with an evocation of life in a Cornish working class home, with its background of hills and moors and sea.

West of Yesterday by George Shepherd

Mr. Shepherd reaches back into the exciting days when the West was first opened up by the adventurous men and brave women who were his boneas-steady neighbors and records the tears, tragedies, and triumphs of that thrilling era. Armed with a Primer by Sybil Shack

The author looks at today's teachers: what they are, and what they teach, and why they teach at all. She looks at today's students and the things they find easy and hard in school. She explains why courses and textbooks are changing faster every year, and discusses why some of these changes may be right and why some may be wrong.

Second Spring and Two Seasons by Hilda Chase

The author and her husband, Dr. Norton-Brown take a second trip around the world. They visit Fiji, an island of the South Seas, Australia, and South-Africa. The trip is full of m usnnigisdie of amusing incidents.

The Shape of Scandal by Richard Gwyn

Seldom has a country passed through a more shameful or controversial episode than that which led up to the Dorion Enquiry. By its very nature, the account of such a political upheaval is bound to be both compelling and thought-provoking.

The Schweitzer Album by Erica Anderson

The life and spirit of Albert Schweitzer are portrayed in rich dimension in this album of text and photographs. His capacity for friendship with the great and humble and his philosophy of "reverence for life" are brought vividly to life.

YULE CANDY RECIPES

When you pass the candy at Christmastime it can have a proper professional polish and flavor. You should have a thermometer though - especially for the Nutty Cream - sometimes called Maple Cream, but the proper name is Penuche. The temperature should be 236 deg. Fahr. to achieve the velvet smooth texture we all hope for and enjoy. For those with a moderately "sweet tooth" I have given Turkish Delight in various pastel colors. (Note: Next week I will give you two more candy recipes: Coconaut Bon-Bons and Sesame Snaps.)

TURKISH DELIGHT (A dainty little sweet)

3 tablespoons (3 envelopes) plain gelatine,
½ cup cold water,
2 cups granulated sugar,
½ cup boiling water.

finely grated rind 1 medium orange,
¼ cup fresh orange juice, strained,
3 tablespoons lemon juice,
pink and/or green and/or yellow food coloring.

Soak gelatine in cold water 5 minutes. In heavy saucepan make a syrup of sugar and boiling water, stirring until it comes to boiling then stirring in the soaked gelatine. Reduce heat and gently boil 25 minutes (220 deg. Fahr.). Remove from heat. Stir in orange rind and fruit juices. Pour half of the syrup into another bowl. To one add 6 drops red food coloring for a delicate pink. To the other add 5 or 6 drops green or yellow food coloring. If desired add ½ cup shaved nuts. Pour into moistened small pans to depth of ½". Cut into 1½" bars, roll in icing sugar. Let stand at room temperature to dry.

MONDAY Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Baked Meat Loaf; Tomato Soupazon; Mashed Buttered Squash; Shredded Beets; Celery and Radishes; Canned Peaches; Sliced Banana Bread; Tea.

NUTTY CREAM ("Penuche" sometimes called Maple Cream)

1½ cups granulated sugar,
1½ cups light brown sugar,
2 teaspoons golden syrup (Rogers) Or corn syrup,
⅔ cup whole milk,
¼ teaspoon salt,
4 tablespoons (¼ cup) butter,
½ teaspoon vanilla,
1 cup broken (not chopped) walnuts.

In a large heavy saucepan mix together the sugars, syrup, milk and salt. Place over high heat, cover and boil 1 minute to melt sugar crystals on sides of pan, but do not let it boil over. Remove cover, put in thermometer and boil to exactly 236 deg. Fahr. Il climbs quickly to this temperature so watch it. Remove it at once from heat. Add butter without stirring and let stand until you can comfortably hold your hand on side of pan. 115 deg. Fahr. Add vanilla and beat until it looks creamy and when you stop beating for a moment, spoon stroke begin to show. At once quickly stir in nuts and pour into prepared well-buttered pan. If if hardens before you have time to spread it out evenly do not bother spreading it. It looks more professional if top is in folds and humps. You will be proud of it.

Ann Landers
Readers Protest Poor Image of Hospitals

DEAR READERS: I received tremendous response to the letter from the mother of the 15-year-old mental patient who committed her son to a state mental hospital. She wrote: "I know patients used to be treated like animals but I thought conditions had been improved." Her signature was "Faith Shattered."

I asked my readers if this letter could have come from their state. Here is a sampling of the replies:

ANN LANDERS

California: I am a former patient of a state mental hospital in California. It might surprise you but I am taking the side of the state. If that boy tried to escape twice, the third time he might have twisted the iron leg off a bed and split a nurse's head open.

I was put into solitary when I imagined the attendents were conspiring to kill me and hide my body.

I threw a whole tray of food at a nurse and I was placed in a room with only a mattress on the floor. Now that I am well I understand things better. The employees of the California state hospital system deserve medals for their bravery and their kindness. — D.B.L.

North Carolina: I, too, had a teen-age son who was committed to a state mental hospital. I thought the attendants were mistreating him because he cried so much. I fought now he only wanted to be taken home where he would get his own way. Today the boy is 21 and self-supporting. Our state hospital did for him what I, his mother, could never have done.—APPRECIATE.

Michigan: I have nothing but good to report about the Traverse City state hospital. I was a patient there for over a year. The food was good, the rooms were clean and the attendants, doctors and nurses were kind and thoughtful. I now hold a responsible position, drive my own car and am living proof that the mentally ill can be rehabilitated. — T.C.R.

North Dakota: I am a 18-year-old boy who has spent eight months in the state hospital. I just read the letter from the mother who complained about the way they treated her son. What did she expect? Color TV in every room maybe? A lot of kids who are mentally ill get away with murder at home. This doesn't help them get well. I know because it was part of my problem. They are teaching me here to be an adult, and I am grateful. — EX PSYCHO.

New York: I was a patient in a New York state mental hospital and I swear to God a person couldnt get better treatment if he went to the fanciest private hospital in the country. — RECOVERED.

Illinois: My sister is a patient at the Illinois Psychiatric Institute. We hated to commit her because we had heard state hospitals were snake pits. I just want to report that she has been treated beautifully and has shown remarkable improvement. I thank the Lord we live in Illinois. — PROUD.

Connecticut: "Faith Shattered" could not have written from our state. We operate two residential treatment programs for children up to 16, plus many child guidance clinics. We have excellent recreational facilities complete with swimming pool. Connectickt does very well by her disturbed children and she hopes to do even better. — SEN. ABRAHAM RIBICOFF.

Indiana: After living next door to a 15-year-old homicidal boy whose parents took him out of a mental hospital because they didn't treat him like royalty, I have a word to say to all members of disturbed children:

I heard the rifle shot that killed the boy's grandmother. I saw them carry the body out of the house. I recall how his mother kept saying he'd "outgrow his meanness."

Our late president was assassinated by a man whose mother didn't think he needed psychiatric care either and the whole world has suffered the consequences. — INDIANA.

Susanna's Family Fare

LET'S TALK TURKEY

Dear Readers: Whenever a holiday season is nigh, winter or summer, and festive plans for eating and merrymaking are underway, there is always a certain scrounderel lurking about, ready to raise his ugly head. In fact, we all dread his name — he goes under the the label of food poisoning.

At Christmas time, the turkey and the dressing are his favorite targets. Here then, are some very important precautions for all of us. (These have been endorsed by the homemaking division of the Department of Agriculture.)

"Dressing must be handled, and coasists of many small ingredients such as bread crumbs, seasonings and fat. As chances for bacterial growth are great, combine stuffing ingredients just before cooking time and make sure any pork being added has been well cooked. The stuffing ingredients can be prepared the night before, if refrigerated seperately until used.

Stuff the turkey just before roasting. Otherwise, the warm air of the cavity could induce the growth of bacteria. Never partially cook a bird. The added warmth produced in the dressing can also promote bacterial growth unless fully cooked to kill the bacteria.

After the meal, remove all stuffing from the bird. Wrap separately in foil or waxed paper and refrigerate. It takes too long for cold to penetrate a bird's cavity. Also refrigerate immediately, the broth, gravy, and remaining turkey. Remember that warmth, moisture, and the time exposed, are ideal aids for bacterial growth in food."

Let's be also sure to keep in mind that a frozen, stuffed, oven-ready poultry must never be thawed before cooking. However, We can speed up the thawing time of eviscerated, unstuffed, frozen birds by placing same with freezer wrap unopened, under cold, running water.

* * *

For a completely uncomplicated way to make bread crumbs, have the bread three or four days old, remove the crusts and place almost half a loaf at a time in a clean tea towel from which you have formed a bag. Rub between the fingers. Repeat until sufficient bread has been crumbed. That's all there is to it. So much simpler than grinding or pulling the bread apart.

. . . and since the old-fashioned way is so often impossible to match, I'll be delighted to send you a time-tested, simple, tasty recipe for stuffing — just like grandmother used to make. In return, a stamped, self-addressed envelope and a tiny hint from you would be the choicest Christmas Greetings imaginable! — SUSANNA

BENY'S WORLD ON VIEW OF LONDON — Canadian photographer Roloff Beny shows the catalogue of his show to actresses Sarah Churchill (centre) and Vivien Leigh. The exhibition of 74 photographs of the architectural treasures of the world is on display in London until December 11. The show, sponsored by the National Gallery of Canada, goes to Toronto early in 1966 then will visit Vancouver, Charlottetown and Ottawa. Later it goes to New York and Australia. (CP Photo)

Champagne and Celebrities Feature Exhibition by Beny

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—Champagne and celebrities from stage, screen and British society at the opening of Roloff Beny's first London exhibition lent an appropriate jet-set atmosphere to the work of the flamboyant Canadian artist - photographer, admired by connoisseurs on both sides of the Atlantic.

Among guests at the champagne-splashed Bel Fitzroy Museum, host at the gala reception was the 43-year-old native of Moncton, N.B., who, "I honestly believe there is no greater exponent of photographic art living today."

The exhibition of 74 photographs of the world's architectural treasures, titled "The World of Roloff Beny," is a selection from Beny's three publications concerning primarily the civilizations of Greece, the Mediterranean, Byzantium and the Near East, now on sale in London and in 11 languages.

Sponsored by the National Gallery of Canada, the exhibition goes to Toronto early in 1966 and then will visit Vancouver, Charlottetown and Ottawa before the end of the year. Later it goes to New York and Australia.

The splashy opening party in fashionable Knightsbridge was attended by some 250 society-page names, many of whom have been photographed by Beny. Sarah Churchill, actress daughter of the late Sir Winston, was among the guests to launch the exhibition, which raised money for the Churchill Memorial Fund.

Lord Snowdon, photographer husband of Princess Margaret, was unable to attend the opening because it clashed with the royal couple's visit to the United States. He sent a congratulatory note to Beny.

During its first week the show proved successful enough to have its run extended to five weeks from the scheduled three. The closing date now is Dec. 11.

It also proved immediately productive for Beny, who now moves among the world's leading art figures and operates from a 12-roomed penthouse studio overlooking the River Tiber in Rome's picturesque Trastevere quarter. Three British publishers have asked him to contribute to new photographic books.

Sunday Times art critic John Russell praised the exhibition. First of a series of such artistic ventures to be mounted by fabrics tycoon Sir Nicholas Sekers in his newly-designed London showroom. Sir Nicholas was knighted this year for his active patronage of the arts.

The pictures all display that feeling for textures and form that Beny brought to photography from his earlier career as a painter. Critic Raymond Mortimer says he can be said to "sketch with his lens."

In London the display was strikingly mounted against a blaze of brilliant silk fabrics in peacock colors. Several of the patterns were inspired by textures in the photographs.

These special fabrics are to be promoted in Canada next year by Eaton's department store, and the Eaton family has also commissioned the book of Canadian photographs Beny is assembling for centennial year in 1967, to be titled There is a Season — A Photographer in Search of Canada.

Beny, who has already covered 50,000 miles of his homeland in periodic work on the book during the last three years, flies to Canada in mid-December to finish the project.

He will be spending most of his time in the eastern cities, seeking to convey through the camera "what Canada means in the future" and the country's role in world affairs. He describes the Canadian assignment as "the most difficult thing I have ever done."

"Canada is so elusive, so empty, so beautiful. Japan, now, has 2,000 years of history to record."

Along with his Canadian project, Beny has been working on a similar book about Japan, commuting three ways to and from Rome, Tokyo and Toronto.

He is one of some 20 top international photographers, including Britain's Lord Snowdon and France's Cartier-Bresson, who have been asked to contribute to the Montreal world exhibition in 1967. He has submitted 143 photographs from his work in 38 countries for consideration by the selection committee.

Midway Shows Said Headed For Oblivion

TORONTO (CP) — Spending power of young people will prompt Canadian fairs to drop girlie shows in favor of more teen-age attractions, says veteran showman Patty Conklin.

Mr. Conklin, president of Conklin Shows, Brantford, and known as Canada's outdoor carnival king, told the Canadian Association of Exhibitions Friday that all types of traditional midway shows are headed for oblivion.

To replace them, fair operators will have to offer more rides and amusements that encourage teen-age participation, he said.

Mr. Conklin was a member of a four-man discussion panel. The other panelists agreed the exhibitions must make greater efforts to attract teen - aged spenders.

W. M. Fear, manager of the Weiland Agricultural Exhibition, said teen-agers' spending power makes it mandatory for fairs to offer special teen-age attractions.

Henry Ford's Chartered Ship Set Out to End First War 50 Years Ago

Peace demonstrators march today in the United States — but 50 years ago they floated, aboard Henry Ford's chartered ship, Hero's a vivid anniversary flashback to that remarkable, much - ridiculed voyage intended to stop the First World War, and how some surviving participants remember it.

By HAL COOPER

NEW YORK (AP) — "We're going to try to get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas."

So saying, Henry Ford sailed off for Europe with 90 other idealists just 50 years ago—on Dec. 4, 1915—in the Scandinavian-American liner Oscar II. His ambitious goal was to stop the First World War.

Now, at a time when protesters against American military involvement in Viet Nam march across the United States, few members of the Ford peace mission still are alive.

Those who are reject any suggestion of a parallel between their peace campaign and the drive to get the U.S. out of Viet Nam.

Ford and his followers hoped to end the First World War before the U.S. could be pulled into it.

Their chosen instrument was something they called the Neutral Conference for Continuous Mediation which they would set up in Stockholm in neutral Sweden.

Unlike the get-out-of-Viet Nam agitators, they had no quarrel with the nation's foreign policy.

But they hoped a private initiative might speed the day when peace negotiations would halt the carnage in Europe.

RIDICULED, IGNORED

They were largely ridiculed by the press of U.S. and the world and almost wholly ignored by the belligerents.

The crusading do - gooders struggled on for 14 fruitless months.

Finally, on Feb. 7, 1917, Ford washed his hands of the project, picked up a bill for $465,000 and remarked:

"Well, we got $1,000,000 worth of advertising out of it, and a hell of a lot of experience."

A survivor of the little band is Louis Lochner, a peace-lover of the day who later became a Pulitzer Prize-winning Associated Press foreign correspondent.

Interviewed at his home in Fair Haven, N.J., Lochner, now nearly 79, said cheerfully:

"We felt that somebody ought to do something to end the war, and we did our best.

"Maybe it all came to nothing in the end—but who knows? Perhaps the Neutral Conference for Continuous Mediation germinated the idea which grew long after into the United Nations."

ANXIOUS FOR PEACE

Another voyage survivor is Earl W. Tucker, 75, a retired banker of Syracuse, N.Y., who said:

"The delegates on the Ford expedition were desperately anxious to see a cease-fire arranged in the First World War before our military involvement became necessary.

"But when the United States later declared war, many of us who took part in this expedition joined the armed services to help defeat those who were hoping to enslave the free people of the world."

Four days after the ship arrived in Norway, Ford left for Detroit, explaining he had promised his wife he wouldn't be gone long.

The peace crusaders made a document outlining their principles, many of which were incorporated decades later in the charter of the United Nations.

After setting up their mediation council in Stockholm, with delegates from Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland and Switzerland, most returned to the U.S.

Lochner, recalled by Ford in January, 1917, saw President Woodrow Wilson twice. Within a few weeks Wilson made his historic speech urging the belligerents to reach a "peace without victory."

Soon after, Ford told Lochner the private crusade in Europe should stop.

On April 6, 1917, the U.S. declared war on Germany.

test the second ballot, to be held Dec. 19, although he kept his own counsel for the moment.

His closest supporters indicated firm belief that he will run, despite pre-election speculation that he might withdraw because of injured pride or bitterness if the voters failed to support him.

With counting completed in Metropolitan France today, de-Gaulle had 10,504,007 votes, less than 45 per cent, of the estimated 25,000,000 votes cast in France and its overseas territories. Early samplings, before the official campaign began two weeks ago, had predicted he would get as much as 60 per cent of the vote.

Mitterrand was second, with 7,655,042 votes, nearly a third of those cast.

Senator Jean Lecanuet, 45, a moderate who resigned the presidency of the Catholic MRP (Popular Republican Movement) only a month ago to contest the election, reaped the benefit of a vigorous television appeal and drew 3,770,711 votes, equal to more than 15 per cent of the total.

Three other candidates shared the rest. Extreme right-winger Jean-Louis Tixier - Vignancour fell below expectations with only about five per cent of the vote. Pierre Marcilhacy and Marcel Barbu drew fractional support.

nautics Board investigator, noted that the plane's left wing just clipped a tall sugar maple tree as it came into the clearing. Part of the wing ripped off, and the two left engines tore loose.

"If he hadn't hit that tree," Carroll said, "we might have had no deaths at all. The pilot did a remarkable job."

The investigation of the collision centred on establishing the altitude of the two planes.

The Eastern plane, carrying 54 persons, was assigned to a flight course of 10,000 feet, and the TWA, 12 to 13,000 feet.

FOUR ARE CRITICAL

Thirty-two persons remained in hospital today, four of them in critical condition.

The only person injured aboard the TWA plane, carrying 58 persons, was a stewardess who suffered a bloodied nose when she was slammed to the floor.

At Kennedy Airport, Capt. Carroll said: "We saw the other aircraft just before we hit. We took evasive action."

Carrol declined to elaborate on "evasive action." But an airline spokesman described the manoeuvre as a sharp pull-up and swerve to the right.

Employment News

By JAMES R. STAVELEY,
EMPLOYER RELATIONS OFFICER

Job vacancies listed with the local National Employment Service Office during the past week depicted a decreased labor demand in the area for both male and female workers. No doubt, some of this can be attributed to the fact that in recent weeks the construction field has been taking full advantage of the pre - freeze period to bring projects to the desired stage for winter work. This situation has resulted in lay-offs of some construction workers.

In this respect, it is a proven fact that seasonal unemployment in Canada affects everyone and not just those persons who are laid off due to seasonal fluctuations in the labor market.

Since winter employment is everyone's business, help to support the local Winter Employment Campaign in the promotion of planning now - to have it done during the winter months.

TALK TO STUDENTS

The following paragraphs are directed towards the youth of our community since in most cases Christmas examinations have been written and the marks received by the students.

The Special Services Branch of the National Employment Service is at present talking to High School students. The reason for doing so is twofold:

First: To encourage young people to go as far as they can with their education.

Second: To acquaint young people of the services of the NES, including the counselling service of the Special Services available to them.

Why is the NES interested in education?

The answer is quite simple. The NES is concerned with employment and in these days there is a close relationship between education and employment.

Without exception it's better occupations require a Grade 10 education for entry into their work; others ask for Grade 11 and Grade 12. This depends upon the particular job.

From this you can see education is important for just getting a job. For promotional opportunities, it is even more important.

We are living in an age of technical advancement, which has no precident in history. Business and industry must change to keep up with these advances.

NEED GREATER SKILL

Techniques and methods of industry and business are becoming more sophisticated and require greater skill and education than has ever before been required.

What about these people who have not been able to acquire a skill or an education or who have dropped out of school?

How often we hear "if I wish I hadn't quit school." In some cases training might be an answer.

It is and to see an apparently bright young man, 26 years of age, married with 2 or 3 children with a Grade 7 or 8 education and discuss the limited employment opportunities with him. None are very good because he is restricted by his education - one discusses training with him, he is unable to take advantage of this, he has financial commitments to meet.

The future for such a young person is bleak. He can only hope to pick up odd jobs or unskilled work, and repeat dejectedly "I wish I hadn't quit school.

Before any young person leaves school, he or she should discuss employment opportunities with us at the NES. The decision is not a simple one. It is not a decision between school and a job. It is a decision which will affect the whole future. It will determine job opportunities or lack of them, until the age of retirement. This is a long time.

One bright young boy was urged to leave school by his parents — he wasn't given a chance to achieve his education potential. It was arranged for him to get work on the same semi-skilled job as his father. Unfortunately, the job was made redundant by mechanization. The boy is now out of work, with grade 8 education. I wonder if his parents regret their short sightedness? They certainly have limited the prospects of a fine bright young man.

In asking you to remain in school — we encourage you to do your best to go only as far as you are reasonably capable.

JOBS AVAILABLE

The following job opportunities represent a few of those now available at your local NES office.

In the female division locally the position for an experienced cosmetician is still unfilled. The salary should be commensurate with experience in addition to a commission on some well known name brand items. Required also is a sales lady who is experienced in the fitting and selling of high grade shoes.

Institutional work is available for housemaids and a practical nurse who can live-in. References are required for these positions.

There are several positions of a secretarial nature available out of town. These offer good wages and attractive fringe benefits. In constant demand are reliable and capable babysitters.

In the male division locally an experienced driver mechanic is being sought by a chartered bus line. This is a good job on a permanent basis. Substantial ability in repair is required but a class "A" automobile repair mechanic's license is not mandatory. An experienced welder is required by a small business. Experienced machinists are urgently needed by several industrial plants. Top going rates of pay are being offered by these firms. There are positions available in young men possessing at least a Grade 10 or better education to train as telegraph operators. The demand continues constant for young men possessing a Grade 12 or better education for career openings in the industrial, retail and financial fields.

If you are interested in any of these positions, seeking employment or thinking of re-entering the labor market, please contact your local National Employment Service Office at 324 Church Street, Belleville, Ont., or telephone 962-8681.

abroad. Mr. Sharp said "Canada recognizes the importance both to the United States and to the world system of trade and payments of a strong U.S. dollar."

Had the American action resulted in restricted Canadian access to the U.S. money markets, it would have undoubtedly increased interest rates in this country, the minister said.

As it turned out, the U.S. federal reserve board Sunday raised its interest rate to 4½ from four per cent and the Bank of Canada followed with a similar increase in the bank rate, to 4½ per cent from 4¼ per cent.

U.S. firms will not be asked to curtail their already-committed investments in Canada, and the proposed expansion of automobile production facilities in Canada will not be directly affected. Direct American investment in Canada this year is an estimated 35 per cent above the 1962-64 average, and a similar outlay is projected for 1966.

In return for access to the U.S. money market, Canada will lower its reserves of gold and U.S. dollars by about $100,000,000 below the "guideline" figure of 1963 — $2,600,000,000. But Mr. Sharp said that with so many factors involved in reserves, it's unlikely an exact figure of $2,500,000,000 can be maintained at any one time. "It's a target to shoot for," he said.

The November reserves totalled $2,967,000,000.

If the natural market forces do not trim the reserves to the desired level, the Canadian government has agreed to dip into the reserves to redeem bonds being held in U.S. hands. On the other hand, if the reserves drop below the target figure, Canadian government bonds will be sold in the U.S. to jack up the reserve fund.

Mr. Sharp said he thought the $780,000,000 in Canadian government bonds now held in the U.S. "looks like enough" to provide a control mechanism.

Canadian officials agreed with the U.S. view that Canadian exemption would make it possible for American investors to use Canada as a base for getting capital into other foreign countries. Mr. Sharp says such action would be "extremely difficult, if not impossible, to police."

Some Of Santa's Friends Parade Through Belleville Streets On Saturday

SANTA AND HIS HELPERS came to Belleville Saturday as the city firemen and their Santa Claus committee held one of the most successful pre-Christmas parade. There were over 30 floats and bands, prancing majorettes and clowns with many of the colorful floats depicting story book characters for the wonderment of the kiddies. Lovely Queen of Hearts is seen at top left with the Snow Queen and her furry animals and Frosty the Snowman, depicted in other views across the page. Clowns were everywhere, distributing candy before the parade and riding those high old fashioned bicycles.

Only the United Arab Republic, thousands of miles away and under a suspended state of war with Israel, has a really big air force on the African continent. It has 400 combat aircraft.

The institute estimates that the military potential of the 36 countries belonging to the Organization of African Unity is 482,300 men. This is indeed an imposing figure but how the forces could be deployed against Rhodesia is another question.

British Problems With Rhodesia Project Queen into Political Controversy

By LAWRENCE MALKIN

LONDON (AP)—Britain's tug of war with Rhodesia's rebel government is projecting the Queen into a major political controversy for the first time in her 13-year reign.

Her involvement is inevitable. Both the British and the Rhodesians claim the Queen as their rightful symbol. As the struggle intensifies, each side can be expected to use the Queen's name to justify its causes.

Some British Conservatives who favor the Rhodesian rebels have begun accusing Prime Minister Wilson of using the Queen for political ends. More Conservatives also are disquieted by the increasingly close political relationship he seems to have established with her.

Labor party supporters reply that since the declaration of independence by Rhodesia's white-settler government has been labelled a rebellion against the Queen, she is bound to play a part in the political drama. There have been some suggestions that the Queen should broadcast directly to Rhodesia and proclaim the rebels' support. But this might risk alienating a section of British opinion friendly to the rebels, and the monarchy shuns taking sides.

TAKES ONE STEP

Nevertheless, the Queen has already taken one personal initiative, and may have also taken another.

She awarded a knighthood to Sir Humphrey Gibbs, her Rhodesian governor and last remaining symbol of British power in Rhodesia. Wilson had recommended a decoration of the sort that can be awarded only with governmental approval. The Queen went a step further and made him a member of the Royal Victorian Order—a knighthood lying exclusively in the gift of the Queen. The award was taken by both sides as a demonstration of her personal support for Gibbs.

The Queen also wrote Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith a letter urging him in upholding Rhodesia's constitution and not break ties with Britain. Whether she put pen to paper at Wilson's suggestion or on her own initiative is not known, but royal messages on political questions usually are not handwritten, as this was.

Under Britain's unwritten constitution, the modern monarch was only three traditional rights—to be consulted, to encourage, and to warn.

AREN'T UNKNOWN

Royal initiatives are not unknown in this century, but they are rare enough to rate a mention in the history books. The Queen's grandfather, George V, helped open the way to a settlement of the Irish rebellion of the 1920s by urging an end to Britain's policy of counter-terrorism. A. J. P. Taylor, one of Britain's leading historians, has written: "His initiative was perhaps the greatest service performed by a British monarch in modern times."

Wilson has pictured the Queen in a more active role than she is usually believed to perform. In a speech appealing to London's financial community for support on Rhodesia, Wilson said: "Any instruction or command issued by Her Majesty's ministers in the name of the Queen could not and would not in any circumstances be issued without the specific authority and approval of Her Majesty herself."

Jan MacLeod, a former colonial secretary and now Conservative economic spokesman, said Wilson had committed a monumental indiscretion. MacLeod made the point that the Queen has no right to approve or disapprove the actions her ministers take in her name. If Parliament passes a bill or approves a policy, she has to give the royal assent. The last monarch to refuse to do so was Queen Anne—250 years ago.

If the Queen's actions during the Rhodesian crisis are any indication, the former economics professor who now runs the British government appears to have succeeded in depicting to his monarch a complicated and inflamed political situation in clear-cut terms. She has followed by exercising some of the few prerogatives still left in the British monarchy today.

Rhodesia May Be Anvil On Which Unity Forged

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Rhodesia may finally become the anvil on which black-African unity is forged but regional and tribal differences now make grandiose threats sound like empty talk.

Threats of a huge African sweep southward to stamp out Ian Smith's illegal white-minority regime apparently cause misgivings to Zambia's President Kenneth Kaunda, known as a tough fighter for Negro nationalism but also a realist and moderate.

The African countries may present the picture of a solid phalanx at the United Nations but there is no denying that deep divisions exist.

Certainly some leaders in English - speaking as well as French-speaking Africa—not to mention the Arab countries of the north — shudder at the thought of Ghana's Kwame Nkrumah leading a black crusade.

BLACK NAPOLEON

Nkrumah's ideas of welding the continent into a sort of United States of Africa have already received hard going from other African leaders who see him as a would-be black Napoleon.

Many seasoned observers feel that Smith's regime is indeed fated for defeat in the face of African determination but they hope this will not come to the test of a military clash.

The Institute for Strategic Studies, a British-based private group, places the strength of the Rhodesian air force at six squadrons and 900 men.

This includes one squadron of Hunter day - fighter ground-attack jets, one squadron of Vampire ground-attack jets and one squadron of Canberra light bombers.

U.A.R. FORCE BIGGEST

The army's regular strength is placed at 3,400 men but this is augmented by a police force with an active strength of 6,400 men and a reserve strength—now enlisted under the colony's emergency law—of no less than 28,500 men.

In contrast, Zambia—Rhodesia's first-door neighbor—has total regular forces of 2,500 men, its air force comprising only

When we gave up steam we didn't lose it!

On the contrary. We actually picked up speed and streamlined our services. Improved freight hauling and handling; Canada's most advanced automatic freight classification yards; brought in electronic computers, microwave transmission and other modern equipment to speed up freight car tracing; emphasized the importance of service-minded people, and gained new friends. And we are still at it.

These changes and the resulting savings bring benefits to everybody: the businessman, traffic people, shipping executives of companies big or small. People who ship in parcels, bundles, crates, sacks, bales, drums, containers, cartons, boxes, cases—you name it—anything that's moved.

Here's your chance to profit by shipping CN. So remember our low, money-saving freight rates. And our 103,000 freight cars. Our big fleet of "piggyback" flatcars which will be increased by another 50% in 1965. Too bad we don't still have steam whistles, because we sure have a lot to toot about!

Pinch Hitting

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Returning to the press box between periods of Friday's Junior "B" puck tilt here, I turned to the chap in the next chair and passed along word that "several of your old fans downstairs inquired as to whether you were as noisy as ever?"

It's not exactly a recommended way to start a conversation.

Not unless the remarks are addressed to Boston Bruins hockey fireball, Wren Blair.

They were.

The chuckle and nod of tousled head and for just a moment we would have sworn it was the late 1950's and the Dunlops and Maes were hot at war.

"Well, I still let off steam when the occasion calls for it but somehow it's not quite the same as the good old Senior "A" days. Is it?" he said.

He took it from there and between counting Oshawa goals and listening to Wren, it was a busy evening.

"I blow a few fuses at the Junior "A" games but who wouldn't get excited watching such a fantastic player as our Mr. Orr," he offered.

Mr. Orr is 17-year-old Bobby, all-star defenceman with Blair's Oshawa Generals and the closest thing to a guaranteed NHL future star since Bobby Hull joined the Hawks.

He jabbed a finger in our direction and warmed up to the subject: "Just tell me when you can remember any defenceman leading the scoring race, in any class hockey, at this point in the season? It's never happened I tell you and besides that he is one hell of a defenceman.

"Chicago used to be a sure bet for the NHL cellar, just like the Bruins seem to be these days, but when they got a leader-super-star like Hull look what happened?"

"Mark my words, Orr will do the same thing for the Bruins."

Still with the parent club, Blair also heaped praise on goalie Bernie Parent—"I would not trade him for any goalie in hockey right now—and remember he is only 20 years old and set an all-time record for the lowest goals-against average in Junior "A" hockey last year."

"Add Orr and this other great young defenceman from the Falls, Gilles Marotte, and no one will touch the Bruins for defence."

"Now if we could only come up with a forward of that calibre . . .

Don't get the idea that Blair just talks Bruins. If it's hockey, he's got an opinion and usually one that means something.

It was an easy switch back to the senior "A" brand.

"It was a great league while it lasted, there has never been a better senior "A", but you have to move along, the fans won't accept standing still.

"The best example of that was right in Whitby," he began.

"We won the old senior "B" Ontario title up there one year and there were 18,000 people out to greet us when we arrived home.

"After the battle to turn our league "A", we won the Allan Cup and 20,000 fans turned out to welcome us back to town.

"Then it was the world title and there were 40,000 people ready to give us the country upon our return.

"Then came the turning point. The year Belleville won the world title, we won the Allan Cup again and what happened?"

You don't often get a chance to answer Blair's questions. This was no exception.

"If I tell you what happened, it was old hat by then, we had won all we could and when we brought the Allan Cup back to Whitby for the second time, there wasn't a dams person out to meet us. The enthusiasm was gone."

Blair took time out to visit the Crushmen's dressing room and tongue-lash one of Ted O'Connor's lads. "They all want a shot up with the Generals so they are going to act like "A" players out on that ice—all the time," he barked. The old gimlet was there.

"There are three or four players out there who are playing just about all the games with the Generals and will likely stay up with the club once the January deadline is past," he said.

Phil Solomon (No. 9), and Brian Morenz (No. 8), and Jim Booth (No. 15) were three that he mentioned.

"And there are more there with the ability if they go all out and pay attention to what they are being taught," he added.

"The Crushmen will definitely be a poorer club late in the season but the Junior "A's" are our main concern and all the players know it. It makes for a good Junior "B" club too when the boys know that they have a good shot at the "A's".

We wouldn't argue much about that as the Crushmen went about storing 14 goals.

As far as the locals are concerned, January can't come too soon.

Sunday—moved them into sole possession of first place in the standings.

In other NHL action Saturday, Montreal Canadiens earned back from a 3-0 deficit to edge New York 4-3 and Detroit Red Wings downed Toronto Maple Leafs 5-3.

In Sunday's other contests, Boston and Montreal battled to a 4-4 deadlock and Detroit clipped Toronto 5-1.

Mikita's seven - point spree gives him 14 goals and 15 assists for 29 points, one point ahead of team-mate Bobby Hull and Montreal's Bobby Rousseau.

Bill Hay and Phil Esposito each has a pair of goals for the Hawks in Saturday's game. Single markers went to Chico Maki, Eric Nesterenko and Hull.

Johnny Bucyk was the lone Boston scorer.

HALL WAS REPLACED

Chicago goalie Glenn Hall was brilliant through the first two periods but was replaced by Dave Dryden in the third period after the Hawks had built up a 5-1 lead.

Ron Ellis, with his third, Bob Pulford and Eddie Shack, each with his sixth, accounted for Toronto's goals.

Howe scored two goals in an 18-second span of the third period to highlight Detroit's victory Sunday. The win moved the Wings into third place in the standings, behind the Hawks and Canadiens.

ADDED TO TALLY

Norm Ullman, Alex Delvecchio and Ab McDonald scored the other Detroit goals.

Eddie Shack was the only Toronto player who beat Detroit netminder Roger Crozier.

Jean Beliveau's two goals sparked Montreal to a rousing 4-3 win over the Rangers Saturday after New York had run with a three-goal outburst in the first period.

Don Marshall, John McKenzie and Rod Gilbert scored for New York before the sluggish Canadiens rallied themselves together.

Other Montreal scorers were Red Berenson and Yvan Cournoyer.

On Sunday, the Canadiens bounced back again as the Bruins took a 3-0 lead before Montreal got on the scoreboard.

Bob Dillabough paced the Bruins with two goals, the first of his NHL career. Bucyk and Ron Stewart scored the other Boston goals.

Claude Provost, Claude Larose, Rousseau and defenceman Jacques Laperriere accounted for Montreal's goals.

The scores were 15-10 and 15-8.

West Elgin Collegiate took the "B" title also in two straight victories over Stouffville High School. The scores were identical 15-11, 15-11.

Owner Sonny Werblin of New York Jets pulled off another coup in the battle for player talent between the two United States professional football leagues by signing Oklahoma quarterback Carl McAdams.

McAdams, the Jets' No. 3 choice in the American Football League draft and a first-round pick of the National League's St. Louis Cardinals, was an all-American selection and one of the most prized prospects in the country.

It was the second time the Jets had won a tug-of-war for St. Louis' No. 1 draft choice—New York outbid the Cardinals for quarterback Joe Namath last year—and represented the first player picked in the first three rounds of the NFL draft who had been lured into the American League.

NFL'S FIRST LOSS

McAdams' loss was the first the NFL has suffered after signing nine of its 16 first-round draft choices. The AFL has signed five of its 16-round selections and lost one.

The American League also has lost a second-round pick—Baltimore Colts getting Kentucky tackle Sam Ball in a battle with the Jets.

The AFL also signed two high figure picks from the 1964 draft —San Diego State end Gary Garrison going with San Diego Chargers and Northeastern's Bob Cappadonna going with Boston Patriots. Garrison, the weekend San Francisco 49ers lost both times.

Garrison, a No. 1 pick of the Chargers, went on the NFL's sixth round—to Philadelphia but the Eagles traded his rights to the 49ers. Cappadonna was the Patriots' No. 3 future and was selected by the 49ers on the 10th round.

TAKES THIRD CROWN

CINCINNATI (AP)—Roberto Clemente, 31 - year - old Pittsburgh Pirates outfielder, has been officially crowned the National League batting champion for the second straight year and for the third time in his 11 - year big - league career. Clemente batted .329 in 1965.

Nicklaus won five and placed among the top five in 16 of 23 events. His victories included the Masters, Memphis Open, Thunderbird Classic, Philadelphia Classic and Portland Open.

The 25-year-old golfer, who placed third in 1962 and second in 1963, has earned a total of $415,945 and ranks behind only Palmer and Bill Casper in overall earnings.

Bears Tame Colts 13-0, Kayo Unitas

Star Has Surgery

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The fierce Chicago Bears rocked up Johnny Unitas, roughed up Baltimore Colts 13-0 and opened up the National Football League's Western Division race for a down-to-the wire finish Sunday.

Defensive tackles Stan Jones and Earl Leggett of the Bears caught Unitas in a pincer movement late in the first half of the game and knocked out the star quarterback for the rest of the regular season.

A few hours after the game, Unitas underwent surgery for torn ligaments in his right knee.

Despite the loss in the powerpacked, first-swinging affair with the Bears, the Colts still lead in the west with a 9-3 record. But Green Bay Packers are right behind at 9-3 after beating Minnesota Vikings 34-3 and have a showdown coming with the Colts next Sunday, when capable but seldom-tested Gary Cuozzo will fill in for Unitas.

BROWNS BEAT REDSKINS

Elsewhere Sunday, Cleveland Browns, with the eastern title wrapped up, came back in the final quarter for a 24-16 victory over Washington Redskins while Tucker Frederickson scored three touchdowns as New York Giants took over undisputed lead of second place in the east by whipping Pittsburgh Steelers 35-10; Los Angeles Rams downed St. Louis Cardinals 27-3, San Francisco 49ers turned back Detroit Lions 17-14 with two fourth-quarter touchdowns and Dallas Cowboys blocked two field goal tries in edging Philadelphia Eagles 21-19.

Rookie flash Gale Sayers cashed in on one of the many chances with a 61-yard touchdown sprint while two field goals by Roger Leclerc rounded out the scoring at Baltimore.

Zeke Bratkowski and Bill Anderson combined for a 72-yard scoring pass play in the third quarter that proved decisive for the Packers against the Vikings, who dropped their fourth straight game. Green Bay also was hit by a quarterback injury, with Bart Starr going out early with jammed fingers on his right hand.

Frank Ryan's 14-yard touchdown pass but Cleveland ahead of Washington and Jim Brown iced it with a four-yard scoring burst. It was his 20th touchdown this year, tying the single-season NFL record set last year by Lenny Moore of Baltimore.

BIG DAY FOR BROWN

Brown, the league's scoring and rushing leader, gained 141 yards for a 12-game total of 1,450.

The Giants' Frederickson scored on runs of 13 and three yards and on a short pass to Earl Morrall.

Roman Gabriel threw for three touchdowns and Les Richter ran over from 11 yards out on a fake field goal attempt as the Rams clipped St. Louis.

The 49ers overcame the Lions on John Brodie's fourth-quarter scoring pass to Dave Parks, followed by Ken Willard's plunge into the end zone.

Victoria Adds To Top Total

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Victoria Maple Leafs continue to have things their own way in the Western Hockey League.

The 5-0 weekend victories, both at the expense of Seattle Totems, 6-2 and 3-2, gave them 34 points in the league standings, six ahead of the second - place Portland Buckaroos who managed only a win and a tie in interlocking games with American Hockey League clubs.

The Bucks beat Hershey Bears 1-0 at Hershey Saturday night and tied Springfield Indians 3-3 at Springfield Sunday night.

Vancouver Canucks dropped a couple of interlocking games, 4-3 at Springfield Saturday and 5-3 at Providence Sunday. But they hung on to third place with 31 points.

Only Los Angeles made a move in the standings, following a 3-2 win over San Francisco Seals before 6,500 fans at Los Angeles Saturday night. The victory moved Rob Borthwick into fifth place tie with the Seals with 16 points.

Seattle, with but seven wins and a tie so far this season, is in last place with 15 points.

The Trots

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Meadow Don from the Green River, Ont., stock farm made a big stretch charge and won the Invitational Pace feature Saturday night at Roosevelt Raceway.

Meadow Don returned $9.40, $5.60 and $3.00. Armbro Don paid $3.60 and $2.80, and Diamond Chief was $5.20 to show.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Success Hera captured the feature ninth race at Windsor Raceway Saturday night before 4,908 fans.

Success Hera paid $7.40, $3.30 and $2.80.

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — At 52, Sam Snead has completed his most successful year financially on the Professional Golfers' Association tour. He earned $36,889.

Although he has won more than 80 championships on the PGA circuit and twice was the leading money winner, Snead never had won as much official money in a single season as in 1965.

As leading money winner, he collected $21,593 in official tournaments in 1949 and $35,758 in 1950.

Unitas Out Rest Of Season?

Says Bad Officiating Beat UCLA

(MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—The Rose Bowl-bound Bruins from University of California at Los Angeles were the victims of bad officiating in their 37-34 loss to Tennessee here Saturday, complained a bitter Tom Prothro, UCLA coach.

In a wild game before some 45,000 fans at Memphis Memorial Stadium, Tennessee Vols drove 65 yards and scored the winning touchdown with 39 seconds left on a 4-yard plunge by sophomore quarterback Dewey Warren.

Prothro said the officials—six of them from the Southeastern Conference and two from the Pacific Coast — favored the Vols in the winning march.

The game was christened the Rosebowl Bowl, because the UCLA is headed for Pasadena against Michigan State and Tennessee is playing in the Blue-Bonnet Bowl at Houston against Tulsa.

In other contests, Oklahoma State scored its first victory in 20 years over its traditional rival, Oklahoma, 17-14 and Penn State toppled Maryland 19-7.

Panama — Chocolate Sammon, 118, Mexico, outpointed Eugenio Hurtado, 116, Panama, 10.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Johnny Unitas has his right leg in a cast, is out for the rest of the season and has only a slim chance of playing in the National Football League's title game—if Baltimore Colts get that far.

Unitas, a 10-year veteran and last season's Most Valuable Player in the league, underwent an operation for torn knee ligaments Sunday.

Unitas twisted his knee near the end of the first half when he was hit high and low by Chicago Bears' two 250-pound defensive tackles, Stan Jones and Earl Leggett.

The 13-0 victory by the Bears cut the Baltimore lead over Green Bay Packers to a half-game and put the Western Conference title on the line in their game here Sunday.

"It is not outside the realm of possibility, but most unlikely," that Unitas could be ready for the playoff, the doctor who operated on him informed the Colts.

Gary Cuozzo now steps in for Unitas.

Chuvalo Writers' Choice

LONDON (CP) — British sports writers give Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo the edge in his scrap here Tuesday against Joe Bygraves, former British Empire titleholder.

"Chuvalo should carry too much experience and a wicked body attack for Bygraves," says The Sunday Mirror.

The Sunday Express says the fourth heavyweight should take the older Bygraves in the 10-round contest "without too much difficulty."

Chuvalo, 28, has indicated he hopes to work his way back into a challenging position for the world title by knocking over Britons Bygraves, Jack London and Henry Cooper, British and Empire champions.

Bygraves, 34, has had only three fights in two years, but knocked out West Germany's Albert Westphal in one of them. Chuvalo, after losing to Ernie Terrell in Toronto Nov. 1 and to Floyd Patterson in New York earlier, must beat Bygraves to stay in the running for a crack at world champion Cassius Clay.

"If Chuvalo is set on using Britain's back door to reach the world heavyweight title, he had better dispose of Bygraves or take a flat plane back to Canada—or a slow boat to China," says The News of the World writer.

Liverpool Shades Chelsea 1-0

LONDON (Reuters)—A goal 15 minutes from the end by Roger Hunt gave English League leader Liverpool a 1-0 victory over Chelsea Saturday and enabled it to continue its challenge for the league soccer title.

Liverpool, 3-to-1 favorite to win the European Cup Winners Cup, increased its lead at the top to three points, as Burnley, its nearest rival, could only draw at home with Tottenham Hotspur, 1-1.

Burnley is second with 26 points, followed, two points behind, by West Bromwich Albion and Sheffield United, who drew with each other Saturday.

Arsenal, fresh from its victory over Moscow Dynamo earlier this week, was down 3-1 against Aston Villa but two goals in the last six minutes from Alan Skirton earned it a point.

Northampton, struggling for many weeks at the bottom of the division, moved up thanks to its home win over Blackpool, 2-1.

Nottingham Forest beat Leicester City 2-0.

In the Second Division, Huddersfield Town stayed at the top of the table by beating Carlisle United.

Coventry City dropped a point by drawing at Middlesbrough but still is in second place with 25 points. It was helped by the defeats of two other leading promotion challengers — Wolverhampton and Leicester City.

Snow and ice caused postponement of the first-division matches in the Newcastle UNITED AND Leeds.

The weather played havoc in Scotland, where 17 first-division matches were put off and only two Second-Division games were possible.

GLASGOW (AP)—The Scottish hopes to play Italy at Naples Tuesday in the Soccer World Cup semifinal left Prestwick Saturday Sunday without three of its top players.

Jim Baxter, still not fully recovered from an earlier injury, was left out with the team. Denis Law and Billy Stevenson, both hurt while playing in England Saturday, were also absentees.

Fourteen teams are already through to the 16-team World Cup finals scheduled for England next July.

Only two places remain. The matches between Italy and Scotland and between Bulgaria and Belgium will decide who goes through. The Bulgaria-Belgium playoff date has not yet been announced.

Action was hot over the remainder but neither team could manage another egoal.

Trenton collected six of the game's eight penalties.

Dennis Cone scored two goals for Rollins and the others went to Brian Cousins, Doug James Cliff Jantzsch, Ricky Spencer, Robert Foster and Phil Kirby. Janitsch, Jim Richardson, Peter Ackerman and James got assists.

Bills Experiment Chargers Are Win From Title

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Wayne Carlton, normally a halfback, ran from the fullback position Sunday and demolished Houston Oilers' defence as the Eastern Division champion Buffalo Bills experimented with a new backfield en route to a 29-18 American Football League victory.

Carlton took over for Billy Joe and rambled for 148 yards in 11 carries, including an 80-yard touchdown run.

Carlton entered the game as the leading Buffalo rusher with 371 yards gained in 11 games. Against the Oilers he jumped the total almost half again to 519—14 yards off his best season with two games to go.

While the Bills were trying to get aligned for the champion ship game, San Diego Chargers were trying to get in it and moved within one victory of the Western Division crown by crushing New York Jets 38-7 Saturday. Oakland Raiders remained in the race with a 29-10 victory over Denver Broncos.

CLINCHED THE VICTORY

Carlton's touchdown run clinched the victory for the Bills, who led only 16-10 at the time. A 74-yard pass play, Daryle Lamonica to Fred Robertson, and Pete Gogolak's five field goals accounted for their other scores.

Dick Compton took a short pass from George Blanda and completed a 35 - yard scoring play for Houston.

John Hadl completed 11 of 18 passes for 236 yards and three touchdowns, two of them to Lance Alworth, who grabbed seven aerials for 147 yards as the Chargers won their fourth in a row.

Tom Flores put the Raiders in front to stay against the Broncos in the second quarter, hitting Art Powell with a three-yard touchdown toss and then connecting with Clem Daniels on a 60-yard scoring play.

Basketball Scores

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Only four of six games scheduled in the National Basketball Association were played during the weekend due to home-and-home series between New York Knicks and Philadelphia 76ers postponed.

The games were held off so players could attend the Sunday funeral of Philadelphia coach Alex Richman, stricken with a heart attack Friday night while watching his team play Boston Celtics.

The Celtics, meanwhile, labouring without the high scoring and defensive strength of Bill Russell and Sam Jones, slipped a notch closer to losing their Canada Dry grip on the League's Eastern Division lead Sunday as they dropped a 108-99 decision to Cincinnati "royals, who pulled within two points of Boston.

Russell pulled down a record Saturday night in Boston's 100-94 victory over St. Louis Hawks.

The Hawks were stunned back Sunday night with a 113-99 decision over San Francisco Warriors as the strength of playing-coach Richie Guerin's 30-point performance.

In Saturday's second game played, Detroit Pistons bombed Baltimore Bullets 130-119.

In Saturday's games, the Wings defeated the Oilers 4-3 and Houston Apollos defeated Oklahoma City Blazers 3-1.

Springfield Coach Quits

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP)— Allen Murray, onetime defenceman with New York Americans of the National Hockey League, has resigned as coach of Springfield Indians of the American Hockey League.

Murray made his resignation official Saturday night when he did not appear at the Coliseum to direct the Indians against Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League in an interleague game.

Murray had conferred with Springfield owner Eddie Shore, Indians' general manager, and told him of his intentions of quitting.

"A lot of things entered into my decision," said Murray. "The major one is that in the last year or two my nervous coaching experience I've always been able to make decisions. That is not the case any more. I can't continue to function under those limitations."

Shore alone wants to make all the decisions and I refuse to be that kind of a coach."

Springfield has a 6-16 won-lost record and is in the Eastern Division cellar, Until Saturday night's 4-3 overtime victory, the Indians had lost five straight games.

Gemini Launch, Football Game Seen at Same Time

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC's television network, in the age of Saturday's Gemini launching, may have hit upon an answer to commercial broadcasting's most difficult problem: How to please all of the people all of the time.

NBC tried to satisfy only two groups simultaneously — the sports fans and the space fans. It was done by showing the rocket, posed on its pad, in the upper left quarter of the screen while the remaining three-quarters was occupied by the Penn-Maryland football game. Then, a few minutes before launch time, the football was relegated to the quadrant and the rocket became the star of the screen.

If the NBC magicians can split the screen that way, they certainly can slice it into four quarters. And think of the audience — Hullabaloo for the teen-agers in one quarter, Bob Hope Theatre for adults in another, Branded for the men and confidence for women, and for the ladies, all at the same time. What a rating. What a prospect.

But four simultaneous shows would probably be no more schizophrenic than it is now hard to concentrate on either activity.

The experiment seemed to amuse NBC commentator Da-

Ties Mark Junior Action

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least six Ontario Hockey Association Junior A teams can be thankful for the single point allotted to teams for tie games.

Three of the five games played during the weekend ended in ties and the single points won proved to be useful.

Niagara Falls Flyers still share first place because of the point they got after their 2-2 tie with Kitchener Rangers. That, combined with Oshawa Generals 4-3 loss to Montreal Canadiens, put them in a tie with the Generals for first with 18 points each.

The Generals had previously taken over sole possession of the lead when they defeated Jerry Bayer 1-0. Springfield had a three-point series, defeating Vancouver Canucks 4-3 Saturday and tying Portland 2-2 Sunday.

Vancouver lost its second game in 53 in Providence Reds' The win for Baltimore moved them into second place with 18 points, 13 behind Quebec. John Stenzette. Gerry Ouellette scored for the Bisons.

Powered by a 289-cubic-inch Ford V-8 engine, but designed to accommodate a power plant up to 427 cubic inches, the Bordinat Cobra was developed in Ford Motor Company's Corporate Projects Studio. The car derives its name from Gene Bordinat, Ford vice-president and director of styling, under whose guidance it was designed and who is shown with it here. Made of Royalex, a synthetic material with exceptional resistance to impact and fire, the Bordinat Cobra has a removable three-piece "sip-top" roof, a louvered hood and headlights that can be opened and closed through a 180-degree vertical arc.

Town Greets Santa In Largest Parade Yet

NAPANEE — There was no in-crease in Napanee Saturday af-ternoon to greet the jolly saint in the biggest and best of Nap-anee's annual Santa Claus pa-rades. On the other hand, there was no rain to dampen the gar-ments or the enthusiasm of the many people who lined the streets and afterwards flocked into the stores to do their Christmas shopping.

The Jaycees, organized in May, courageously undertook the management of the parade this year, with Wayne McLean as chairman of the committee. Previously it had been organiz-ed by the Chamber of Com-merce.

The young men did a wonder-ful job, and are well pleased with the parade itself and with the co-operation of those who participated in it. Seven bands furnished plenty of music in addition to a motorette drum corps from Belleville led by Gail Chapman, a Napanee girl. The corps had taken part in the Grey Cup Parade the week be-fore.

MANY BANDS PARTICIPATE

The parade was led by H.M.C.S. Cataraqui band from Kingston, with the pipe bands de-lighted all, with their colorful kilts and tartans and their stir ring music; the Army, Navy and Air Force Pipe Band from Belleville, led by Pipe Major Mc'Nevin of Napanee; and the Port Hope Legion Pipe Band. Belleville was also in the band also, and from Colborne came the Recreation Band, and from Bowmanville the Peter-borough Squadron of the R.C.A.C.

There were 36 entries, includ-ing the bands. Every branch of the Boy Scout, Brownies and Girl Guides was represented on a float, Churches and business-es and most of the service clubs had their bit.

Because of lack of funds, no prizes were awarded but Mr. McLean states it is the opin-ion of his committee that had prizes been awarded the OSTC Club would have been in a class for originality, with four and 20 blackbirds popping their heads out of the pie. For second was Napanee Rod and Gun Club would have been the winners, with a deer driving a jeep at the hood of which was tied a hunter. Incidentally the hunter succeeded in playing dead throughout the parade.

Two floats were entered by Dog Foster of Belleville: the Flintstones, which Napanee had seen before and always enjoys; and the comments of those who viewed the parade, they are deeply appreciated to the lack of financial support re-ceived from the merchants. Expenses will be close to $1,-000, and the Jaycees plan to appeal to the town council, the Chamber of Commerce and the service clubs, in addition to doctors and lawyers, to help make up the deficit. Collections were down from previous years, perhaps because people were waiting for those young men to present themselves. While pleased with their success, they are tak-ing a serious look at next year.

Only one incident marred the complete success of the day. Santa must have longed for faithful Rudolph when the bat-tery went dead in the truck on which he was riding, and he was a few minutes behind the rest of the parade toward the close. However, the children were not unduly disturbed. One wee girl was a bit worried, but her older sister explained, "He was in Belleville this morning, and perhaps he has not had time to finish his dinner."

Couple Plan World Cruise

NAPANEE — Early in the new year, Mr. and Mrs. Elborne Zeran of 110 Dundas St., W., are starting a long, lazy trip around the world. They are leaving New York by freighter, probably the Flying Enterprise and will return there the middle of July.

Their route takes them across the Atlantic, through the Medi-terranean, the Suez Canal, the Red Sea and the Indian Ocean, with stop-overs of varying lengths as their ship discharges or takes on cargo. They have several days in Hong Kong and in Japan.

Eventually they make their way across the Pacific to San Francisco, and then through the Panama Canal and finally back to New York.

Mr. Zeran has recently retir-ed from Bryden's where he had been accountant and assist-ant manager for about ten years.

TAKE IT EASY, BOYS

LONDON (AP) — The BBC, under fire from the press, and Parliament for television programs that many listeners found offensive for their four-letter words and such, warned its program producers Sunday to take it easy on sex, violence and blasphemy. Sydney New-man, head of the BBC's televis-ion drama section, said he has sent a warning "because the anti-BBC hounds are baying more shrilly than ever."

Town Plans Holiday Festivities

NAPANEE — Plans for the holiday season are in full swing in Napanee. Colored lights strung across Dundas Street in the business section were turn-ed on Monday. Store windows are brightly decorated and the interiors rather shoppers into the Christmas season and set the mood for gift buying.

Church bazaars and holiday teas are a thing of the past for the most part, having started early in November. Last Wed-nesday saw four in this vicin-ity: Deseronto United Church, the Island of the Salvation Army is holding its annual sale and tea in the citadel, in cooperation with its outpost in Deseronto.

Dates set for most of the Sun-day school concerts, and the wee lots are already painfully learning their "pieces".

Seven Years of Preparation and Work Prelude to Task of Updating Church

By BENNET M. BOLTON

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Almost seven years ago Pope John XXIII stunned Roman Catholicism with an announcement that he would convene a general council to bring about an "aggiornamento" — updating—of the church.

Now, after four years of preparation and three years of actual work, the Vatican ecumenical council is in its last days.

But Roman Catholicism's self renewal — described by Pope Paul VI as an "astonishing phenomenon" — is far from fully accomplished.

A survey of the work done in council by the church's 2,300 bishops points to a long period of transition, possibly lasting a decade or more and involving countless reforms in thinking, organization, worship and practice.

WILL FADE SLOWLY

Echoes of the clashes between conservatives and progressives are likely to fade slowly.

The council's record of accomplishment ranks high among the 21 church councils held over the last 2,000 years.

Many bishops are convinced it is the last ecumenical council the Roman Catholic Church will ever have, since it attempted to establish machinery for continual updating in future years.

Pope Paul's newly - created synod of bishops from around the world will play a key role in applying, in the coming years, the general norms laid down in the council's decrees. Many believe the synod, a permanent body with both consultative and deliberate powers, will also eliminate any need for future ecumenical councils.

CONTINUOUS TALKS HELD

Pope John announced this council in January, 1959. It convened in October, 1962. Since then there have been four separate sessions, with almost continuous commission meetings in between.

More than 300 hours of speeches, several tons of written suggestions and close to 300 rounds of voting went into almost a score of decrees forged by the council.

Two special post-council commissions at the Vatican are to see to it that the church's central administration and law books catch up with the changes that have been officially decreed. They are the commission for reform of the Vatican Curia—the church's administrative organization — and the commission for revising canon law.

The council's decrees touch on virtually every aspect of Catholicism—its doctrines, disciplines, prayer life, preaching, teaching and relations with the world beyond the church.

The movement of renovation within the half-billion-member church involves all its members —nominal Catholics, active Catholics, nuns, priests, bishops and even the Pope. The council was talking in all of them in its decrees, while at the same time inviting other Christians and non-Christians to take a look.

HAVE PERSONAL CHOICE

It said everyman has a right to freedom in following and practising what his conscience tells him about religion.

It said Catholicism esteems the values in Judaism, Islam, Buddhism and other non-Christian faiths that Catholics must never regard Jews as collectively guilty for the Crucifixion or as rejected by God; that the entire church and all its members must join in the work with other Christians for unity.

It said the mass and sacraments must become more simplified services, with most of the Latin removed, for active participation instead of for passively silent attendance; that Catholic scholars should keep their work with modern scientific tools in interpreting scripture.

It said nuns must do more

A year later Cardinal Frings delivered one of the council's most sensational speeches when he assailed what he called the "inquisitorial" methods of the Holy Office, saying its procedures were harmful to Catholics and scandalous to non-Catholics. The Holy Office is the church's highest court in decisions regarding faith and morals.

By the end of the council's second session in 1963, it was clear that the progressive outlook held sway. Conservative ranks on most issues thinned thereafter from about 700 or so to a stand-fast group of no more than 150.

RANKS NOT SOLID

A significant sign observed during the lengthy council was a lack of unanimity among the hierarchy of any one country. Progressives were found even in countries like Italy and Spain, regarded as strongholds of conservative thinking. The total of votes against progressive - flavored documents often was less than the total combined hierarchy of Italy and Spain.

The progressive viewpoint that took shape over the last two decades found its clearest form in Western European countries — notably Belgium, Holland, West Germany and France — most jarred by the war years and the rapid technological - social changes that followed. It also grew, in a special way, in nations where Catholicism holds no primary position.

The conservative point of view could be summed up generally like this: The church has done well enough for almost 2,000 years and should bow to no one. It needs little change, if any. The world must come to the church and recognize it for what it is, rather than the church going but to the world. Tolerance, at best, is all the church can offer to those who don't believe as it believes.

The thinking of progressives could be described like this: The church must make an impact in the world if it is to have any meaning for the world. Its basic attitudes have changed little in four centuries — also change, where needed, is desperately needed. Man today is more individualistic than ever and the church must respect his dignity. The church can hold to its doctrines without being triumphal in tone, but it must set about its own self-improvement humbly. The church has nothing to fear from the modern world or from honest inquiry by its own members or by others.

Plan Giant Armories Dance To Help Needy Children

Want an opportunity to enjoy yourself and be a Good Samaritan as well? Then go to the dance Wednesday night at the armories and support the joint Kiwanis - Fire Department Christmas Toy Project.

Admission to the dance, in which everyone is invited adults and teens alike, is a toy or some food or clothing.

Two bands will provide music voluntarily in support of the project.

Kiwanis President Brad Bradley explained, "Our club and the Fire Department work together on this toy project to collect toys for needy children.

"We started in October to collect and repair toys. We usually produce about 3,000 to 4,000 toys each year and in order to maintain this record and insure nobody goes without Santa Christmas we are holding this dance."

To the "hep set" Billy Manning and the King Bees will be blasting out the latest hits, and for the adults who want to hear the Big Band sound once again, a 15-piece band under the direction of Doug Asselstine. This big band has five saxaphones, four trumpets, three trombones, drums, piano and bass, and their arrangements run the gamut of all types of listening and dancing pleasure.

The bands are appearing through the courtesy of the Belleville Federation of Musicians.

Dance time is 9 p.m. to 12:30

Even if you can't stay, drop down and bring a toy, some food or some clothing.

Do your part to make sure every child in Belleville has a Merry Christmas.

Commonwealth Trade Ministers to Meet

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP)—Senior Commonwealth officials have completed closed-door deliberations to prepare for a meeting of Commonwealth trade ministers in the first half of 1966, probably towards the end of May. It likely will take place in London.

This five-day session of deputy ministers, preceding disclosed a basic conflict in approach which raises doubts over possible accomplishments of the ministerial meeting next spring.

Informants said the conflict derives from the differing Anglo-Canadian approach to the value of tariff preferences for developing countries seeking to get more of their manufactured products into the richer countries.

Britain suggests all the poorer countries, struggling to develop industry, should be given a general tariff advantage or preference not only within the Commonwealth but throughout the globe.

Canadian authorities believe that too much emphasis is being given to tariff preferences—one official described the current Commonwealth preferences as "transitory"—and more drive should be put into the job of reducing most-favored - nation tariffs, the rates which apply generally to non-Commonwealth traders.

HAS ARGUMENT

The argument behind the Canadian view is that if a Commonwealth country is prepared to negotiate a 10-per-cent cut in its tariff on a certain product, it may decide it can only negotiate a five-per-cent cut with non-Commonwealth countries, feeling it must reserve the other five per cent for Commonwealth partners.

This tends to introduce rigidity in tariff bargaining and prevents more widespread tariff slashes which, in the Canadian view, would benefit the developing as well as the industrialized countries.

One Canadian informant depicted a possible situation, under the British approach, where the United States, the world's biggest market, would be confronted by competitive demands for tariff preferences, with Latin America demanding something better than that attainable by African and Asian countries.

Developing countries have been demanding special tariff concessions from the richer countries in order to sell more of their manufactured goods, such as textiles. But, in the Canadian view, tariff preferences do not guarantee sales. India gets a tariff preference in Canada on textiles but Japan, a non - Commonwealth country, sells more. The key was efficiency and this competition in efficiency was becoming tougher and tougher.

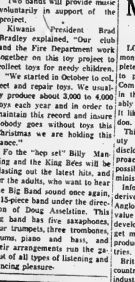
The various arguments on how to obtain expanded trade within the Commonwealth and how to use the Commonwealth to gain expansion in world trade unfolded and will be reviewed by another meeting of the senior officials in another few months before the ministers gather.

NEEDS HELP

One view among senior officials is that while the Commonwealth can become a force to pass for means of increasing an expansion in world trade, it cannot by itself create that expansion without the help of such powerful countries as the United States. The U.S. is generally opposed to the Commonwealth system of tariff preferences cemented at the Ottawa conference 33 years ago.

Aside from the discussion on the proposed terms of the 1966 ministerial meeting, the officials dealt in detail with Zambia's appeal for special help arising from Rhodesia's unilateral declaration of independence.

Zambia wants to support the United Nations resolution to cut off trade with Rhodesia but fears the Ian Smith regime might retaliate by crippling power, transport and coal which Zambia requires to keep its vital copper industry operating.



A Canadian official said there appeared to be general agreement that if Zambia needs special financial or technical help, such as extra financial aid to cover costs of transport and the purchase of coal from alternative sources, the Commonwealth will pitch in. But it was felt that other countries, including the United States, will have to provide financial help also. There was confidence in the view that the U.S. would be ready to provide the assistance required.

Ellis Is Mayor--2 New Aldermen

ELECTION NIGHT SANTA! Unknown prankster dressed as Santa Claus turned up at Mayor Ellis' committee rooms while election was still undecided. As it turned out victory congratulations were in order.

Sunday Films Approved, Langabeer Heads PUC, Scott Top Alderman

Rolling up a majority of 1,353 votes, Belleville Mayor Jack Ellis was returned to office for another two-year term in Monday's municipal election which saw just over 53 per cent of the city's eligible voters go to the polls.

Unofficial returns gave Mayor Ellis a total of 3,427 votes as compared to Alderman Whalen's 4,074.

Yesterday's voting also saw Lyle Langabeer, veteran public school board member, head the polls for the public utilities commission, polling 4,780 votes as compared with 3,816 for incumbent Gerald B. Hyde, and 3,678 for veteran utilities member W. Harry Rollins. Mr. Rollins was the defeated candidate in the three-way fight for the two utilities seats.

Belleville voters also strongly approved of Sunday movies with the question receiving a majority of 1,615 votes. The actual count was 5,518 yes and 3,903 no.

FEW SURPRISES

Otherwise there were few surprises in the election which saw eight of this year's city council returned to office in a reduced 10-man council. The two new members are Dr. J. Russell Scott who easily headed the polls in the aldermanic race, and former Alderman Arthur Keegan re - elected after an absence of 10 years from city hall.

This year's council members returned to office for the next two years were Alderman Jack Allin, John Deacon, Douglas Boyle, Thomas Carruthers, Enos David, Donald Joss, Kenneth Sodre and Donald G. Willmott.

Most of the present sitting members on the public school board who offered themselves for re - election were returned, as was the case also in the Separate School Board.

ONE WOMAN ELECTED

Two women offered themselves for school boards.

One was elected. Mrs. Miriam E. Graham ran second in the race for the eight member public school board, while for the Separate school board, Mrs. Jean Wilson tied with Lawrence Rashotte for ninth place.

As was expected the tabulation of yesterday's election returns was a long drawn out affair with the final returns not in until well after midnight.

The first election returns - a count for the mayoralty race only—wasn't received until nearly 7.30, while in the first hour there were only eight polls reporting, also for the mayoralty race.

Even by 11 o'clock there had been less than half of the 68 polling sub-divisions reporting.

The first returns in gave Alderman Whalen a lead in the mayoralty race and it was not until close to a dozen polls had reported that the trend swung toward Mayor Ellis.

ADDS STEADILY TO LEAD

From that point on there seemed to be little doubt as to the final outcome as Mayor Ellis added steadily to his lead as the polls' results dribbled in to city hall.

Alderman Whalen conceded defeat with still about half of the polls yet to be heard from.

But Alderman George Brown was the first to throw in the towel in the aldermanic race. With less than 30 of the polls in Ald. Brown conceded that it appeared again that he "would be just left out."

Ald. Brown had never been

Gemini Chase May Be Started Ahead Of Plan

By HOWARD BENEDICT

HOUSTON (AP)—Calm, confident and enjoying celestial concerts, Gemini 7 astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell hurtled onward in their marathon weightless whirl today as space officials considered whether to launch Gemini 6 in pursuit a day early.

The Gemini 6 astronauts, navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra, Jr., and air force Maj. Thomas P. Stafford, are scheduled to blast off Monday to track down the rendezvous with Gemini 7. But the space agency said preparations are going so well at Cape Kennedy that a Sunday firing might be possible.

A decision is expected by Wednesday. A key will be whether a simulated flight scheduled to start midnight Wednesday night can be advanced to midnight tonight.

Gemini 7 began its 40th orbit at 4:47 a.m. EST.

Gemini flight director Chris Kraft said the odds of going on Sunday are about 50-50 and added: "We'll have to continue scrambling if we're going to do it."

Gemini mission director William Schneider was less optimistic.

"I think," he said, "the odds are more like 50-50 for a Monday launching and less than that for Sunday."

The decision is important to Borman and Lovell. If Sunday is selected for a Gemini 6 launching, they will have to maneuvre Gemini 7 into a new orbit Wednesday instead of Friday as intended.

At present "they are circling the globe on a path ranging from 138 to 139 miles high. For the rendezvous attempt, they must be at a steady 185-mile altitude.

EXPERTS HIGH

Borman and Lovell remained in high spirits and confident they could complete their full mission as they sped toward their fourth day in space. They were launched Saturday afternoon.

Ministry Still Up In Air

By FRASER MacDOUGALL

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson's choice of the Caribbean for his cabinet reconstruction decisions is taking the spice out of the post-election Ottawa pastime of guessing in advance what form the ministry will take.

In the prime minister's absence from Ottawa, political figures whose position usually gives them at least some clues aren't speaking with any authority at all. They say freely all they can do is speculate on the pattern they thought was shaping up before Mr. Pearson left here Nov. 26.

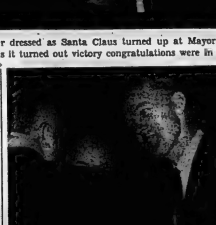
Three certain cabinet vacancies form the starting point for the prime minister's task and for speculation here.

Agriculture Minister Hays and Mines Minister MacNaught were beaten in their constituencies in the Nov. 8 election. Walter Gordon's resignation as finance minister was announced Nov. 13.

There are rumors of more vacancies through resignation or through assignment to other duties. Most prominently mentioned are State Secretary Lamontagne and Postmaster-General Tremblay. One political source said Mr. Lamontagne is "almost certain" to resign.

TO LEAVE CABINET?

One rumor is that Mr. Lamontagne may be named to a diplomatic post, another that both men will leave the cabinet and continue sitting as private members. It is known that Mr. Tremblay's health hasn't been good.



Before leaving Ottawa, Mr. Pearson indicated that the cabinet changes might be extensive.

The consensus here appears to be that only a handful of ministers seem certain of re-

California Given Warning More Race Riots Probable

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Governor Edmund Brown of California says he'll try to implement a critical commission report that warned of future racial violence worse than the rioting at Watts last August unless the "explosive" conditions under which Negroes live are improved.

What's more, Brown said as he received the 101-page study, he'll call the commission back in six months so it can check progress.

But considerable unfavorable reaction also greeted the eight civic leaders' report released Monday on the deadly, destructive six days in a 46½-square-mile area that included shattered Watts.

"Totally inadequate," said a union labor official. "Deeply disappointed," said a civil rights leader.

Tucked into the report, 100 days in the making at a cost of $250,000, was this paragraph:

"So serious and so explosive is the situation that, unless it is checked, the August riots may seem by comparison to be only a curtain-raiser for what could blow up one day in the future."

The commission proposed "expensive and burdensome" programs in job development, education and law enforcement to prevent a recurrence of the fire-bombing, gunfire and looting that left 34 persons dead, 1,032 injured and property losses estimated at more than $40,000,000. More than 200 buildings were destroyed and 600 damaged. Some 3,952 persons were arrested.

Russia Cuts Economic Growth Plans

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Two years of cuts in the Soviet military budget came to an end today when the Kremlin announced plans to raise defence spending in 1966 by five per cent compared with 1965.

At the same time, drastic cuts in Russian economic growth targets announced in the Soviet Union's 1966 plan demonstrated the Kremlin's new insistance that the country base its plans on economic realities.

The announcements of the defence-spending increase and of the cut in growth-targets were made at a joint session today of both houses of the Supreme Soviet, Russia's parliament.

Canal To By-pass Welland

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—Two seaway canal improvement projects that would involve spending "hundreds of millions of dollars" are to be considered by the federal cabinet, Transport Minister Pickersgill announced Monday.

As a preparatory step, and to prevent land price speculation, Ottawa has expropriated nearly 4,000 acres of land east of Welland for a possible Welland canal bypass and another 275 acres beside the Beauharnois Canal near Montreal where additional locks may be built.

Mr. Pickersgill declined to give a price for the land expropriation or estimate the cost of the two projects. Both projects are now under study by the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority.

The minister told a press conference that there is a "reasonable probability" of approval.

The plan at Welland calls for an 8½-mile bypass to straighten

NDP Gives Views At Caucus

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democratic Party decided Monday to support the minority Liberal government on "workwhile" legislation but said it would not back away from any early election.

"We want to see the government given a chance to see what it can do," said party leader T. C. Douglas following the first post-election caucus. "We think this Parliament should get down to business and it can only do this if it is given a chance to present a program."

However, he added: "The government needn't count on the fear of an election as an indicator that members are going to stand idly by."

The "worthwhile" legislation mentioned by Mr. Douglas includes: An increase to $100 in the monthly old - age pension payment; the introduction of medical care insurance; more federal aid to education; and the establishment of the proposed Canada Development Corporation.

Russians Put Probe On Moon But Its Instruments Are Silent

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia's latest moon probe lay on the dusty lunar surface today, its delicate instruments silent after the closest-yet attempt to land softly on the moon.

It could be intact. It could be in pieces. All the Soviet announcement early today disclosed was that Luna VIII's system failed at the final, crucial touchdown-stage.

It was thought the failure occurred only a few yards from impact near the vast and waterless Ocean of Storms.

Though they have not had the complete success they had hoped for, Soviet scientists have clearly almost mastered the technique of slowing a spaceship with retro-rockets, without any aid from parachutes which would be useless on the airless moon.

Explaining the last - minute failure, the Soviet news agency Tass said: "As the station approached the moon a complex check of the functioning of the soft landing systems was made.

"The check showed the station's systems were functioning normally at all stages of the landing, except the final one."

This was believed Russia's fourth attempt this year to place an automatic scientific station on the moon.

He Claims Royalty Overpaid

LONDON (CP) — British royalty outside the Queen and her immediate family aren't worth their keep to the British taxpayer, says Labor MP Bill Hamilton.

Hamilton has been pressing his argument in a series of Commons questions — today, Monday and last week—on the cost of Princess Margaret's visit to the United States last month.

Hamilton, 49, objected in 1950 when the government of the day, also Labor, granted Princess Margaret an annual stipend of £6,000 ($18,000) a year. The sum has risen to £15,000 ($45,000).

What I want is for the institution of the monarchy to become less expensive," he says in an article published today in The Sun.

"For a start, I do not think that Princess Margaret, the Duke of Gloucester (the Queen's cousin) or the Queen Mother are worth the money we pay them.

"The Queen Mother has plenty of charm and smiles a lot, but so she should. She gets paid £70,000 ($210,000) a year by the taxpayers.

"If my wife got £70,000 a year, she would never stop laughing."

Harold Bonter Returned Reeve Of Ameliasburg

Close to 70 per cent of the electorate went to the polls in Ameliasburg township yesterday returning a reeve, three councillors and two school trustees.

Incumbent Harold Bonter polled 756 votes to win over Fred Evans, who finished the race with a total of 516. Reeve Bonter was seeking his second term in office while challenger Evans trying to unseat him was running for the first time. Mr. Bonter a fruit farmer resigned at Albury was acclaimed in 1964. Mr. Evans, a project superintendent recently retired from the RCAF served as president of the township Homeowners' Association active in municipal affairs since council sought approval for an official plan and zoning by-law. Both pieces of legislation have been discarded by the Ontario Municipal Board.

The contest for reeve, the first in many years, apparently created the general interest in the hardest fought campaign since 1940 when a record, available records show, decided the reeve-ship by three votes. Some 1,272 cast ballots for the reeve aspirants out of a total 1830 eligible electorate.

Laird Adams and Russell Thomson, two incumbent councillors, were back in the council symphony while newcomer Arnold Weatherall finished in third position open for council. Mrs. Reta Barrick, the first woman to seek a council office in township affairs, polled 397 votes. She came in fourth well ahead of Ed Cruikshank the fifth aspirant.

WOMAN HEADS POLL

Mrs. Twilla Langman was returned to the school board with a 160 margin over her closest rival, Morris Fuller, out for a trustee office for the first time. Incumbent Angus Hannah lost his bid for one of the two school trustee vacancies as did Jack Jones, the fourth candidate seeking a seat on the board.

Reeve Bonter in his acceptance speech at the township hall told those who came out to learn the results, "I know of things that can stand improvement and will work to that end." He referred to the great deal of interest that had been created and called for all factions to work harmoniously together in the next year. "I want to do my best for all concerned", he asserted concluding his remarks.

Mr. Evans, the unsuccessful candidate for reeve, congratulated Reeve Bonter and the other successful candidate adding that it was his intention to continue to lead the homeowners and maintain interest in township affairs.

NUMBERS GROW

The world's population, now 3,000,000,000, has increased 400 per cent in 250 years.

Mayor James MacDonald Gets Another 2-year Term

TRENTON — Trenton's Centennial Year mayor is assured. Mayor James MacDonald romped across the finish line last night with 1374 of the 2545 votes cast to his opponent's 971.

Following the posting of the final figures in the mayor's column, Mayor MacDonald exclaimed "I'm glad it's over. I would not be one working with the "best chairman of finance I ever had", Councillor Duncan McDonald.

Both candidates for mayor reviewed the year before the election that they thought might get mixed up between "Mac and Mac".

Councillor McDonald congratulated the mayor following his election, and said he might be glad to "try another year."

Mayor MacDonald led in all polls following nomination except three. By 7.45 p.m., he was leading 893 to 648 for the Trenton Legion Branch 6.

The mayoralty figures stood at 1181 for MacDonald and 820 for McDonald.

From the first, it was apparent that ex-councillor D. R. (Dick) Whitley was leading in polls for council. His final figure topped the mayor's total. Ex-councillor Mrs. R. Graham, on his 16th year in Trenton council, racked up 1301 votes and Douglas Mc-Donald, another council chairman, Stanley Ketcheson with 1216; third, George Greer (a former board member) with 1075 and the fourth member to be elected was Douglas Whitley, finishing in the nine to board for the past two years with 1030.

SUNDAY SPORTS APPROVED

James Bowman, with 905 votes and E. D. Topping with 815, were defeated.

Trenton won't have Sunday movies, (at least not for another year). The "yes" vote was 1196; the "no" vote, 1313.

Sunday sports was under the wire with 100 to spare, the "yes" votes being 1305; "no", 1196.

And we won't have a swimming pool in the community gardens area this year. Nine took the day with 1117 to the 840 "yes" vote.

The polls closed at 7 p.m. Half an hour later the results started to come in. By shortly after nine, the mayoralty was assured. Council seats were assured by 9.45 p.m. Then came the long wait for the results from the three questions put to the voters, from the largest poll, 50, By 10.30 p.m. all results were in and the voting public had spoken for another year.

It was a good vote for recent years. Of the 7,097 eligible 35.86 per cent (2,543) persons cast a ballot.

Winning candidates were "a little overwhelmed," (Mrs. Hutchison); "grateful and humble," (Douglas Whitley); "grateful for the voters' confidence," (Greer); "willing to work for everyone in town," (D. Kinsey); and "disappointed," elected to council in the two successive elections he fought. Twice he finished below the lowest vote polled on the elected slate—and twice was appointed to council to fill the casules caused by resignations.

It happened again—for the third time—last night and Ald. Brown was the first man to concede the election. With 27 polls heard from he admitted defeat—then added with a touch of irony:

"Somebody will either retire or leave town so I think I'm going to be in there again."

NOT CONSIDERED MANDATE

"I think if anything I'm more nervous and excited tonight than I was he years ago tonight," Mayor Ellis said in his acceptance speech at city hall.

It didn't consider his victory "a mandate but rather and order from the people in the city of Belleville to continue with the good work we have been doing in this past two years."

The mayor crossed the street from his committee rooms at 11:15 p.m. followed by a stream of supporters. Among the first to shake his hand as he entered the council chamber was Alderman Don Whalen.

Ald. Whalen arrived in city hall around 11 p.m. and waited to congratulate his opponent.

"Politics is a kind of infection," he said as he broadcast his concession. "And for an infection there is only one cure—today's defeat at the polls."

He "sincerely congratulated" Mayor Ellis and called for cooperation with him for the welfare and progress of the city.

Earlier the atmosphere in the committee rooms of both contestants were studies in contrast.

Workers crowded the Ellis rooms tensely watching first returns. The excitement mounted as more and more polls swung toward the mayor. Organizers waited impatiently for the first returns from the heavily - populated new East Hill suburbs — which they regarded as a key to victory.

When the first poll in the area showed a plus for Ellis, they reacted with jubilation.

SANTA ARRIVES

Minutes later an anonymous practical joker, dressed in a Santa Claus costume entered the rooms to shake hands all round.

"It's a merry time of the year," he called before leaving.

At Ald. Whalen's headquarters the atmosphere was more restrained by that time.

More and more minus signs were being posted and the column of red figures outmarched the black plus votes on the voting board.

"The trend is against it right now," admitted a disappointed organizer shortly before 10 p.m.

NDP Gives

members were in Ottawa for the caucus, described by the leader as a "working and exploratory meeting."

While the caucus discussed its general plans for the forthcoming session, no definite decisions will be made until the party holds another caucus in the week prior to the opening of Parliament Jan. 18.

One member said that the party can be expected to mount an attack against the "continental approach" of the government—that is, against moves toward more economic ties with the United States. The party's argument would be that any move toward economic union would ultimately be followed by a political association.

Mr. Douglas said earlier that former finance minister Walter Gordon, who resigned after the NDP's general policy meeting, is "the only nationalist in a cabinet of continentalists."

Mr. Douglas said Monday that the party would reserve judgment on its attitude toward any Conservative non - confidence motion until it examines the wording of such motions. Conservative Leader Diefenbaker has indicated that his party will move early to propose such motions.

The caucus also said that the U.S. action in curtailing foreign investment gives Canada a "golden opportunity" to restrict and establish a fund to generate Canadian capital.

The caucus issued a statement saying the U.S. action "makes essential the immediate introduction of a policy which would harness Canadian savings to take the place of curtailed investment from abroad.

"This is a golden opportunity for Parliament to enact the establishment of a Canadian development fund to generate public capital and to embark our country on the road of greater Canadian control of our economy."

The caucus asked the government to issue immediately a statement regarding its overall economic policy.

Mr. Douglas told reporters he thinks the government is embarking on a tight money policy and he said "this is the last thing that ought to be done."

He said the government seems obsessed with the short-term picture rather than with long-range planning that would introduction of tight money now could have the same detrimental effect as in 1957.

During the weekend, the party's federal executive met here to finalize the general election campaign and to begin laying organizational groundwork for the next.

"Constituency associations across the country will be asked to undertake immediately the task of converting their organizations to the redistributed riding boundaries," the executive said in a statement issued Monday.

Rotarians Hear Talk on Canada Pension Plan

Chartered accountant Bob Irvine told Belleville Rotarians yesterday he believed an unfair aspect of the Canada Pension Plan was the provision whereby an employer received no refund for excess payments which might arise in the event of personnel losing employed on a short-term basis.

Mr. Irvine explained that after seven months an employer, like an employee, would have contributed the maximum. If the employee remained, the employer would make no further payments. However, if the employee left and a new one was hired the employer must deduct from the latter and contribute a like amount.

However, the speaker said he felt that having unforseen disasters, the plan might become one of Canada's most popular pieces of legislation.

He said the plan, which goes into effect January 1, was an earnings - related contributory plan to provide a nation - wide system of social security to people in retirement, widows and orphans, and the disabled and their families.

Its benefits were in addition to the Old Age security Pension, and on the basis of the 1964 labor force covered 92 per cent of the working population. It was fully portable, even in Quebec which would have its own plan.

Mr. Irvine said the Canada Pension Plan would interfere with private plans. Employers were free to change their private plans if they wished. The rational plan, he added, could be an additional, but not necessarily, desirable, one.

Rex Worrall introduced the speaker and he was thanked by Rod Trail, Rotary President Ernest Burnham presided.

Continuity Assured

Yesterday's municipal vote in Belleville produced few surprises. However, the results, in our opinion, give ground for satisfaction.

Mayor Jack Ellis was returned with a handsome majority. This is his second term as chief citizen and this means the people of Belleville will be assured of the continuity of government that it needs at a critical time in its history.

There is much to be done in Belleville. New industry, downtown development, housing and parking—these are some of the areas in which progress must be made in the coming months and years. Mayor Ellis is aware of these issues, he has the knowledge and experience and as he has said himself, he is anxious to keep Belleville moving.

His opponent, Alderman Don Whalen, is to be congratulated on a good fight. Although it was his first attempt to win the mayoralty, Alderman Whalen polled more than 4,000 votes to Mr. Ellis' 5425.

There was an excellent response from the electorate. While the contest for the mayoralty had much to do with it, the turnout of more than 53 per cent of eligible voters was admirable. Last year, with no contest for the mayoralty, only about 25 per cent cast their ballots.

Eight of this year's city council were returned to office in a reduced 10-man council. The two new members are Dr. J. Russell Scott and former Alderman Arthur Keegan who were re-elected after an absence of 10 years from council.

Sunday movies won a strong affirmation from citizens. The vote was 5319 in favor and 3320 against. This reflects a growing trend in Ontario. It is not necessarily a trend toward secularism, but rather a recognition that in a decade of growth the welfare and needs of the people must receive attention. And if this means the provision of entertainment, as well as further recreation facilities, then this vote is a step in the right direction.

Gemini 7 Flight

Astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell are on their way to the most spectacular space achievement thus far. They are aboard Gemini 7 for a scheduled 14-day ride in the upper atmosphere.

By any standards the Gemini 7 flight is an exciting occasion. Yet the fact that it is the 17th manned space flight since the Russians accomplished the world's first orbit of the earth in 1961, tends to take some of the glamor from the Borman-Lovell feat.

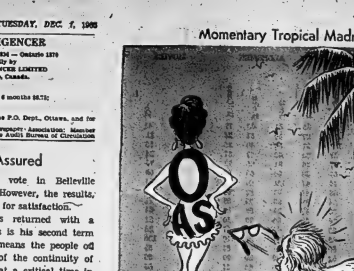
The basic ingredients of course have a long way to go, and public interest is bound to fluctuate in the course of the next two weeks. When the time comes for them to descend into the ocean, Borman and Lovell will be in the public eye once again. When that day arrives one and all will be concerned for their welfare and safety.

The scientists at Cape Kennedy, naturally, will follow the orbits and the physical reactions of the men with the closest attention. For the families of the two men this is an anxious time. For the wives and children there will be little sleep. Yet for all of them, parents and children, the same stars look down on each and there is the same divinity that shapes the ends of all mankind.

Tuberculosis Threat

Tuberculosis is not the scourge it once was. The disease has been brought under control by modern drugs and treatment. However, it has not been completely eliminated and cases still occur.

It is still a problem among the Indian and Eskimo populations in the Far North. Inadequate diet and the hardships of life in the north are factors that increase the risk of disease there.



Wherever one lives in Canada, however, there is no room for complacency with regard to tuberculosis. The fact that it is Christmas Seals time is a reminder of this. Mail carries the message, "Fight tuberculosis."

That the disease can still strike with startling suddenness is only too evident. The Kitchener-Waterloo Record last week carried a picture of three young sisters who contacted tuberculosis and are in a sanatorium. Aged 13, 9 and 4, the youngsters had no trace of the disease when they arrived from the Azores a year ago.

And in a letter to The Ottawa Journal, Dr. C. W. L. Bruneau, executive secretary of the Canadian Tuberculosis Association, points out that at least 3,000,000 Canadians have been infected with tubercle bacilli. More than 5,000 active cases have been found in Canada during the past 12 months.

Thus, it is clear that research and programs of control must continue. Most important, the public should be aware of what is being done to combat tuberculosis. They can assist by having regular check-ups, and particularly X-ray examinations.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes colic ?— Mrs. G. G.

You, my dear, win the prize for the shortest letter I've ever had. Good question, too.

Colic is a sharp abdominal pain, and the word derives from the word colon. Therefore lots of things can cause colic.

We usually think of colic as an infant's problem. I suppose that is what you mean. Well, pediatricians often remark that "colic isn't a disease; it is a symptom." And that's true. It's a pain.

Adults have true colic. Passing of a stone (kidney or a gall stone) is common. Pylorospasm (spasm of the outlet of the stomach) or spasm of the bowel or colon can be exquisitely painful. Distension from "gas" is another. Some menstrual pain can fairly be called colic and so on.

In an infant, colic is a severe bellyache. The simplest and commonest form (except as I will explain) is the pain that results from swallowing air while feeding, usually from a bottle. The poor child has "gas pains." That's why we burp them up over our shoulder and burp them after feeding.

* * *

Here, however, are two observations that seem to be little known except among doctors. First, colic is more commonly thought first born babies, less common among second or third. Or thirdborns.

Second, colic in babies, while common at home, is very rare in hospitals. This is significant.

After all, how do you know that a baby has colic? Because he cries! And why does a baby cry? Not necessarily because he is in pain, or has colic, but because he is unhappy or worried or upset.

Both folklore and the inexperience of new parents ascribe a baby's cry to colic. Quite often that's wrong. Baby is crying because he wants attention, or he's vaguely tense (as a young people around him are tense and nervous. I don't say this ridiculingly. We can't all be calm and placid. But calm, easy-going parents tend to have a calm babies who seldom have colic. Life's like that.

Tense, apprehensive babies, like adults, can develop nervous cramps. Colic, if you please. "Nerves" become real pain.

Cuddling in a rocking chair cures the colic of a lot of babies. Best ways to prevent colic are, besides burping a baby when happens to be an energetic aerophagia swallower, are to be calm, attentive, and give baby a reasonably regular schedule, to adjust his feeding schedule suitably, and to remember that a every roller isn't colic. Sometimes he wails because he is innocent, feeling neglected or — well, why do all of us feel like yelling in protest at times?

Dear Dr. Molner: I recently read an article by a male columnist that there is a uterine tal hormone for men that will stop failing hair. Please give me any information you have in regard to this. — S. E.—ll.

You'll have to ask that columnist — because, no matter what somebody may have told him, I don't know of any hormone or anything else that will prevent failing hair. It's like a cure for cancer. We all hope one can be found, so every claim of success is greeted with excitement. Yet the fact is that no solution has yet been found.

(Let's remember, though, that one cancer in three can be cured by finding it early, and removing it before it spreads. And some cases of falling hair, if due to skin disease, can be halted by treating the skin disease.)

Note to Mrs. E. T.: Yes, electrolysis is safe from a medical standpoint. It removes hair permanently — but other hairs, not especially noticeable now, may become darker as time passes, so you may, subsequently, want to have more of them removed. With that in mind, electrolysis is effective.

Robert Kei, a wealthy English yeoman, was executed six years ago today —in 1549—at Norwich for leading a rebellion. A feast held at his manor to complain against the government's policy of fencing off and selling public land degenerated into a riot and became a military conquest of Norwich, the nearest large town. The feisty Kei was easily put down by the Duke of Warwick, Earl of Pembroke troops, and Kei and his brother were speedily tried and executed.

Running Argument

Ottawa Journal

A compromise history, designed to eliminate controversy, would be at best a dull list of dates and events larded out with platitudes. What is needed is not to take the controversy out of history but to begin teaching students in the high schools that history is a controversy, a running argument between different points of view and different generations, not a gospel engraved on tablets of stone.

Stormy Session Anticipated When Parliament Re-opens

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Although it may not have been needed as proof, Hon. Alvin Hamilton provided the final proof recently that the next session of Parliament is not going to be a gentle one.

Speaking before the Confederation Club (a Conservative organization) here last week, he bluntly stated that unless the Liberal government "released house," the Conservative opposition would make trouble for the government.

This may sound like a hollow boast — but probably it is not. With the government in a minority position in the Commons, it can be handed trouble on a silver platter if the official opposition (the Conservatives) can come up with matters on which the minority partied feel bound to offer support.

Look back, then, to the recent election campaign.

In that effort, all of the opposition parties belabored the Liberals for the "scandals" of the previous administration. All of them called for a clean-up.

Where can they stand, then, if the Conservatives demand that the Liberals do a housecleaning as the first order of business in the new Parliament?

They can hardly go back on their election statements, because the people who supported them are going to be watching.

SKELETONS IN CLOSET

They will almost have to support the Conservatives if they flip into the Liberals with recard to the feature-spy-Dorion-Selkind affairs.

There are some who will rise in anger and declare that the Conservatives are indulging in muck raking and such.

They may have something in what they say — but did the Conservatives create the muck?

Mr. Hamilton, of course, is not the most subdued of conservatives. He has often pointed to his farm background and subsequent expostulations with matters of the barnyard.

Well, in the last Parliament there was one other Conservative (with the exception of the Prime Minister) who could speak out as strongly as could the member for Qu'Appelle.

Mr. Diefenbaker has threats he might not be so easily disregarded.

And there are some new members in the new Parliament. New this time, but experienced.

There is Hon. George Hees, for example, a diplomat if you like, but not always known for pulling his punches.

There is Hon. Davie Fulton, for example, who is a conciliator but one who can cut a fine slice with words which do not appear to offend all those he pleases to please.

And nobody has ever said that Hon. Richard Bell was known for his subtleties, even when it came to dealing with the deficiencies of opposing political parties.

NIELSEN WILL NEEDLE

Coming back, of course, is Erik Nielsen, who does not yet have the wrinkles from answering of his questions and statements on the misbehavior of certain government officials or other otherwise related to the government.

Still on hand, too, will be Hon. Gordon Churchill, the gentleman who appears to feel best when he is tearing a strip off some Liberal minister. Grant Load-bert, whose ponderous stubbornness has driven more than one to the verge of the extremes of patience — and beyond.

And to these the experienced needlers and backbenchers — Terry Nugent, Jack Horner, Donald Mackinnis, for example.

And Conservatives like Harold Winch, Frank Howard and Argold Peters of the NDP.

And Real Caouette and Gilles Gregoire of the Creditistes.

Should all these people decide that the government was to be harrassed and should the government decide not to go further into matters of so-called government scandal, the next Parliament could well become little more than a sitting duck match before it ever has a chance to get down to business.

Mr. Hamilton, obviously, is determined that such should be the case.

His own party supporters will not argue with him. Those in the ministry will be silent.

But it does not look like a pleasant future for the government after next Jan. 18.

'Y' Men's Auction Sparks Questions

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I would like to write a public letter in order that a public reply may be received. After listening to, and participating in the Y's Men's Auction which was on CJBQ last week a number of questions come to mind.

Were the Y's Men or others present on the auction "floor" permitted to use alcohol?

How many of the Y's Men who participated in the auction are businessmen who are in business for themselves, including businesses which contributed articles for auction?

Why were many items, notably the more expensive ones, established and passed over and not mentioned until very late in the evening?

Why was the 5-minute time clock not applied consistently on all items?

Who checked, and at what time does he, or do they, decide that an item is sold?

Why, when items were announced were sale prices not mentioned in all cases?

Who, and what rules announced for sale were amounts of bids not mentioned in all instances?

I think the Y's Men should answer these questions publicly in your paper because of the lack of information regarding the operation of this auction.

We had a bid on an article on which the 5-minute time was announced. On checking with the bidder responsible after the bids were closed we found that bids had been accepted after the five-minute period. He was not known that our clock runs faster that that used by the Y's Men, so we would have bid on the clock that was listed for auction to replace our defective clock in place.

Also, on noting the selling prices as compared with value, we find that in many cases the selling price was either over, equal to or at the very least not much below the value that was listed value. It seems more than co-incidental that these items were sold without some background manipulation to ensure maximum return, in the interests of someone. By that I mean no announcements as to bid or sale price in many instances.

I have attended many, many auctions in my life, having sold all our worldly possessions at auction twice and never experienced such secrecy. Lack of knowledge leads to suspicion, suspicion leads to resentment and believers only the worst.

It is over for another year, but maybe someone would like to know just what went on.

Yours truly,
Leslie R. Reid

Divorce Laws Unrealistic

Oshawa Times

Canadian divorce laws are as unrealistic as a 35-mph speed limit. If they are trying to legislate morality, they attempt the impossible. If they are trying to promote family stability and child welfare, they fail in the possible.

Divorce solely on the ground of adultery is wrong for three reasons:

— Many marriages survive adultery and many of the divorces must fake it. Obviously, there are worse marital sins than sins of the flesh — something our Judeo-Christian traditions have taught us long ago.

— The difficulty or expense of divorcing, for instance, who made a mistake to live alone or common-law; and the children must share these unstable conditions.

— The necessity of legal action encourages blackmail — a high price demanded for freedom or outright refusal out of spite. And the public display or dirty linen in court becomes utterly revolting, including the children.

We all know people who have remarried well, but Canadian law denies most people this second chance. The life sentence pronounced in many cases even on juveniles.

Why have a law so ineffective and cruel?

It is for religious reasons, let religious groups settle their own members. Canadian law cannot do this — if it is for stability of the country we could frame better laws to foster this while permitting the dissolution of marriages which had already failed through separation, desertion or cruelty.

We could get a better law in six months if each M.P. had a close friend involved in the dirt of bad marital divorce. Simple charity alone demands that we put an end to the overemphasis of sex, of the flesh, the instability, the blackmail, and the shame promoted by the present law.

Progress— Just What Does It Mean

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

What is human "progress"? We have heard many definitions ranging from technical development to economic affluence, to those even question whether the word "progress" has any objective and permanent meaning.

Perhaps the best definition I have ever heard comes from Margaret Mead, the world-famous anthropologist. After studying primitive tribes, and many different cultures, for more than 40 years, she said this:

"There is progress when the group in which the fact of killing a man is considered murder grows larger."

In earliest days, it was not considered murder to kill a man outside one's immediate family. Then it became murder to kill a man only within one's clan. Then the concept spread to the tribe, the town, the medieval duchy, and now the modern nation-state.

The ultimate goal of "progress," by this standard, is for the human community to recognize it as murder when we kill anyone belonging to the human race.

"If we look back to the factors which made us first human beings and then civilized beings," Dr. Mead says, "the most striking of all is man's capacity to extend the members of his own group an ever-growing number of individuals separated by ever increasing distances from his clan, his tribe, his nation, his religion, his hemisphere."

This has been a steady trend in the history of humanity. At first all primitive peoples are characterized by exclusiveness — the clan across the river, the tribe across the valley are "strangers," "aliens," to be feared, despised, and conquered.

We still find remnants of this feeling in backwards areas of the United States, where someone from the next town or country is considered a "foreigner," neither to be trusted nor dealt with as benevolently as one would deal with one's immediate neighbors.

But the slow and irresistible movement of human history goes against this primitive tendency. "Civilized humanity" we are involved in larger areas of loyalty; it must not be forgotten that the "patriotism" of the modern nation-state is a relatively new phenomenon, only a few hundred years old, before then, only regionalism commanded our loyalty.

"We have weapons," Dr. Mead goes on to say in a statement to the French magazine, "to destroy the world but before an ultimate problem: we can no longer fight a war with the weapons in order to protect 'our' children, we must protect 'his' children, too."

We have yet risen to this recognition. It is still "murder" if we kill a fellow-American, but only a "casualty" if we kill a fellow human in warfare. We can only hope that our area of loyalty spreads faster than our capacity to kill each other off: then "progress" will indeed be robbed of all meaning.

maining in their present posts. They include Paul Martin in external affairs, Paul Hellyer in defence and J. W. Pickersgill in transport. There is also a feeling, but less positive, that Allan MacEachen will stay in labor.

No one doubts that George McIlraith will continue as Liberal house leader. But there is less certainty that he will retain his post as minister of public works.

It is taken for granted that Mitchell Sharp will shift from trade and commerce into the finance portfolio vacated by Mr. Gordon.

SAUVE TO TRADE?

There are rumors that Maurice Sauve will move from forestry into trade. Others are that R. H. Winters, former Liberal cabinet minister who has been out of the House since his defeat in 1957, will get the nod for trade. He returned to politics Nov. 8, winning York West.

Still another report assigns the industry department to Mr. Winters, putting him into the post now held by C. M. Drury. The rumors are less definite about Mr. Drury's future although one developed that he might be going to the Senate.

Parking Summonses Faulty

Oh! But there's good news tonight for car owners charged with illegal parking in Belleville.

Source of the glad tidings is the court of Magistrate T. Y. Wills who ruled this morning that current summonses issued for parking violations do not meet the law's requirements.

His decision requested by lawyer Robert Temple apparently nullified illegal parking charges still awaiting court hearing.

Magistrate Wills based his verdict on the premise of the official summons which charges a car owner allowed his vehicle to remain or seemed to be placed in an area contrary to the city's parking by-law.

This, ruled the magistrate, was not specific enough and did not adequately set out the nature of the offence charged.

The issue came up two weeks ago when Mr. Temple appeared in court to defend a client. Mr. Temple blasted had just received a summons charging a violation of the parking by-law. Scrutinizing it in the evening he drew the magistrate's attention to the wording of the charge and claimed it did not meet the requirements of the law.

The court's decision was taken good-humoredly.

City prosecutor Ralph Graham said he would advise the wording of the charges "immediately."

Mr. Graham said the ruling does not affect the by-law but that summonses now outstanding will be dismissed when presented in court.

J. Clair Hayes, one of the city's two justices of the peace who issues all summonses as magistrate's court, said he will await the revised terms of the charge.

"As far as I'm concerned I won't sign summonses until Mr. Graham produces the new information," he added.

However, there will be no let up in the issuing of parking tickets as city streets.

Parking Authority chairman Glencoe Thompson said he presumed outstanding charges will be thrown out of court.

"However," he warned, "ticketing will go on just the same."

Town Has Outgrown Post Office

NAPANEE — Postmaster Howard O'Connor has announced that, because of lack of space in the local Post Office, a depot has been opened in the Napanee Armourers, a block away, where incoming parcels must be picked up from Dec. 15 through December 24th. The Parcel Post depot will be open each day except Sundays from 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m.

Patrons will receive their cards in their locked boxes or at General Delivery as in other years, and the cards must be taken to the depot in the Armouries where they will receive their parcels on presentation of their cards.

Outgoing parcels will be mailed from the Post Office as in other years.

Napanee has outgrown its Post Office. Several years ago it was renovated to provide more locked boxes, but many newcomers have been unable to obtain boxes. Especially at the Christmas season, the Post Office employees literally have no room for the mail, space to sort it and to store the incoming parcels, and at the same time carry on their normal duties.

A new Post Office has been promised and a new federal building, to be erected on the site of the present Napanee Armouries, will contain the Post Office and all other Federal offices. Meanwhile the Post Office employees and the public are suffering great "inconvenience."

County Council in Final Session Gets Reports From Several Committees

Hastings County council convened this morning for its fourth and final session of the year.

During the morning session council heard reports from its administration of justice committee; finance and public property committee, publicity committee and a special executive committee on regional planning and other matters of mutual concern of municipalities.

Belleville Mayor J. R. Ellis, returned yesterday for a two-year term, spoke briefly at the session pledging his continued co-operation with the county.

Bancroft Deputy Reeve Mrs. Audrey Sexsmith reported on the county history project which is to be published as a centennial project. Cost of the publication is expected to be about $15,000 with two thirds of this to be collected through the centennial grant program.

300-PAGE BOOK

About 7,000 of the 300-page county history are expected to be printed, Mrs. Sexsmith said Gerald Boyce, Belleville high school teacher who is writing the history, said that about 80 percent of the written material was now in and that three quarters of the required pictures had been received.

Municipalities in the county had co-operated remarkably well in getting material in for the publication.

The administration of justice report showed that expenditures for the first nine months of the year had totalled $102,-881 as compared with $99,647 for the same period last year. Net costs were $92,282 of which the county had paid $47,728, Belleville $30,811 and Trenton $13,712.

MUST PAY FOR AUTOPSIES

County members concurred in an Essex county resolution asking that better inspection of amusement rides at fairs and carnivals be made and also that adequate insurance be carried by the operators.

In the future the county will be billed by the Belleville General Hospital for each autopsy conducted by the hospital pathologist. A communication from the hospital indicated that as of October 1st this year a charge of $25 for each autopsy would be made. About 70 yearly autopsies are conducted annually, it was stated.

And despite objections from certain northern municipalities, it appears that the Lands and Forests fire ranger sub station at Gilmour will be permanently closed and the buildings offered for sale.

A letter from the Lands and Forests department said that the closing of the station would not result in less fire protection and that a high service would still be maintained.

But Tudor Reeve Verne McMurray said that timber management was not the only phase of sub station operation to be considered.

He said closing of the station would mean that trappers would have to travel to Bancroft to have beaver and other wild animals tagged.

And it seems that automation is also taking over from the human fire fighters.

Reeve McMurray said mechanical smoke spotters were being developed to spot fires.

The mechanical fire spotters were efficient and in a test had spotted a fire in a bonfire which could not be detected by the human spotter.

The only trouble was that the mechanical spotters so far were just too efficient — they picked up the heat of the sun shining on a metal barn roof.

APPEAL FOR LIBRARIES

But Reeve William O'Brien of Wellamo couldn't agree that the Department of Lands and Forests were maintaining the highest possible degree of fire protection.

He said the department was depending more and more on the local municipalities to do fire fighting.

Deloro Reeve Tom Armstrong appealed for something to be done to save the small local libraries from extinction. He said they were being squeezed by ever smaller grants with result it was getting increasingly difficult for them to operate.

Two Fined For Pollution

COBOURG, Ont. (CP)—Helmut Matthias and John Krauter, two area businessmen, were fined $250 each and costs Monday on charges of causing water pollution.

Matthias, president of Matspeck Construction Co. Ltd., and Krauter, manager of a farm owned by the company, were charged by the Ontario Water Resources Commission after an investigation showed that silage from the farm was polluting a tributary of Cobourg Brook north of here.

Canal May

out the canal and take it around the city of Welland. It now slices through the heart of Welland where five city bridges cause periodic slowdowns.

WORSE BOTTLENECKS

Mr. Pickersgill said this bypass, which would require between five and seven years to complete, would eliminate one of the worse bottlenecks in the seaway system.

The bypass would be considerably wider than the present channel and would eliminate low - level highway or railway crossings. Most of the land involved now is unoccupied.

He recalled the government's decision of two years ago to launch a $200,000,000 construction program for the twinning of all Welland locks. About $80,000,000 worth of contracts have already been awarded for this work, being done in winter months when the waterway is closed.

Twinning of the locks will allow shipping to flow in both directions at the same time. Coupled with the proposed bypass, it would reduce dramatically the time now required for vessels to transit the 27 miles between Lakes Erie and Ontario.

The seaway authority's projection of current traffic increases shows that Beauharnois, a two-lock system, will become the next major bottleneck in the seaway unless remedial action is taken, Mr. Pickersgill said.

WELLAND (CP)—News that a new $¼-mile Welland Canal channel was a "reasonable possibility" now only guarded comment from political and business leaders here Monday. Municipal officials said the proposal upsets plans, already approved by federal and provincial governments for an $11,000,000 tunnel under the existing canal close to the centre of the city.

Proposed route of the new channel cr1es through the city's park with an eight-year investment in recreational facilities and a swimming pool, now 2 to 3 years old. Within the 4,000 acres for which expropriation notices were given.

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—W. A. O'Neil, project engineer in charge of plans for the proposed Welland Canal bypass, Monday said the project would run from a point south of Bridge 12 over the canal at Port Robertson and would rejoin the present channel near Raneys Bend at Port Colborne. It would be 350 feet wide, compared with 200 feet for the existing canal.

Mr. O'Neil said the wider channel would eliminate bends and would permit ships to pass one another without difficulty. Elimination of the present low-level bridges over the canal would permit ships to keep moving in marginal weather conditions, such as poor visibility which now causes delays and close-downs.

The new channel will not affect Port Colborne, which has a one-mile stretch of the canal inside its limits.

North Stars Get Discharge From RCAF

OTTAWA (CP) — The venerable North Star transport plane will receive an honorable discharge from the RCAF Wednesday at a ceremony at Trenton, Ont., headquarters for Air Transport Command.

Put into service in September, 1947, the four-engine workhorse has travelled all over the world without ever losing a passenger or crew member.

North Stars logged 599 round trips on the Korean airlift in which they helped establish the United Nations operation in Suez in 1956 and ran mercy missions as far afield as Hungary and Chile.

Canadair Ltd., Montreal, built 29 North Stars for the RCAF. They cost $950,000 each and $243 an hour to operate. A successor, the Yukon, cost $6,274,000 each and $761 an hour to run.

With 12 North Stars, 30 aircrews and efficient maintenance, No. 426 Thunderbird Squadron was able to log 2,400 flying hours a month, an air transport record unequalled in peacetime and possibly in wartime as well.

INDIVIDUAL BEEF TURNOVERS

On Thursday I am giving a Holiday Meat Pie to match any professional chef's efforts. BUT the ingredients are not cheap!

Meat pie recipes that I made with inexpensive hamburg turned out to be popular beef in January 1960. The individual beef turnovers (below) could enjoy a place on your buffet or could be a hearty late evening snack. If you save a little here and a little there you might be able to spin out your dollars for a handsomer gift for your loved one.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Shoulder Pork Chops Baked in Milk; Sweet Potatoes Baked in Jackets; Brussels Sprouts; Combination Salad; Pineapple - Upside Down Cake; Coffee.

MEAT PIES — LARGE AND/OR INDIVIDUAL

Filling:

1 1-3 lbs. ground chuck beef or lean hamburg; 2 medium carrots shredded on ¼ shredder; 1¼ teaspoons salt; 3 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce; ½ cup finely chopped onion; ½ cup milk; ¼ teaspoon sweet basil; 1 tablespoon chopped parsley or parsley flakes pastry (see below)

Mix meat filling ingredients together in large bowl and blend. Make Pastry: Three cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1½ teaspoons salt, 1 cup shortening, ½ cup butter, 6 tablespoons cold water. With pastry blender cut shortening and butter into flour and salt until size of small peas. Drizzle with water, one tablespoon at a time, tossing it with fork until all flour is dampened. (Decide now if you are going to make 1 large pie and 16 individual turnovers; or 2 large pies; or about 30 individual turnovers. I will describe what I did.) Roll out half of the dough to make lower and upper crusts to fit a 9¼" pie plate. Line pie plate with 1 crust. Fill with a little more than half of the meat mixture. (Note: if desired a little more liquid - about ¼ cup milk - may be added to this half of the meat filling to make it a little moister when baked.) Seal on gashed top crust very well, being sure seam edge is tight. Glaze by brushing top carefully with 1 egg beaten just enough to mix. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 10 min. Then reduce heat to 325 deg. Fahr. It required 45 minutes in all. Serve with mustard or chili sauce.

Individual Turnovers: Roll out remaining pastry into oblong 2 16" thick. Cut into about 15 squares. Put 1 tablespoon (no more) remaining meat mixture on each. (This next step takes patience and skill so work carefully.) Moisten edges and seal, shaping them into triangles. Place in rows on cookie sheet. Prick tops with fork, brush with beaten egg and bake same as pie but they do not require as long - only ¼ hour in all.

Freezer - wrap and freeze little turnovers for a party. To heat frozen turnovers, bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 25 to 30 minutes.

R. D. Sawyer Receives B.A. From Carleton

Robert D. Sawyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne D. Sawyer, 102 Donald St., who received his Bachelor of Arts Degree at the Fall Convocation of Carleton University, Ottawa. Bob is a former graduate of Quinte Secondary School and is now teaching at N.D.D.H.S. Winchester, Ont.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

The Women of the Moose held the chapter night program on Thursday with Sr. Regent Nellie Seymegour presiding. After the opening three candidates were enrolled into the defending circle.

Sr. Regent Nellie Shandraw will assist recorder Ruby Stapley to buy the gifts for the children's Christmas tree.

Christmas card invitations were sent to all co-workers of the WOTM and Loyal Order of Moose and their wives for the Christmas party on December 9.

Co-workers are asked to wear long dresses if possible, and both men and women are asked to bring a gift to the value of $1 to be exchanged at the Christmas tree.

Slides will be shown on Mooseheart and Moosehaven and it is hoped there will be a large attendance.

A draw donated by Gladys Ritch was won by Lillian Hendshall of Trenton.

The chapter extended sympathy to Mrs. Helen Kellar in the loss of her sister, Mrs. Jones, who died recently.

After the meeting the committee convened by Helen Kellar served the lunch.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

MARRIAGE NOTICE

MURDOCH-ALLYEA—On Saturday, December 4, 1965, Very Reverend F. R. Gartrell united in marriage Sarah Alyea to William G. Murdoch in Christ Church Cathedral, Ottawa. Attendants were Stuart Sheils, Ottawa, and Arthur Alyea, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. George Houlden have returned to their home in Copley, Alberta after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Phil Ray, Mrs. C. Hick and Mr. Don Hogle.

Women's Institutes

RYLSTONE W.I.

RYLSTONE — Mrs. Jack Watson was hostess to the Rylstone Women's Institute for the December meeting on Wednesday afternoon. There was an attendance of 15 members and two pre-school children. The house was tastefully decorated for the Christmas season with holly, candles and Christmas flowers. A small Christmas tree in a corner of the dining room, set the holiday note. Under it nestled wrapped bundles for the annual gift exchange.

Mrs. Lindsay Anderson, president, was in charge of the business meeting. She introduced the singing of Christmas carols, led by Mrs. Don Stewart, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Percy Reid.

PARK NAME RETAINED

A secret ballot was held to fix the name of the Centennial Park, now under construction. It was voted by a large majority to retain the Barnum name, viz: "Rylstone Women's Institute Barnum Memorial Park". The land was owned by the Barnum family from 1807 until recently.

Bulldozers from both Haistings and Northumberland counties have done work at the park site, so the park shows quite a bit of improvement.

The topic, "Christmas," was ably presented by Mrs. Murray Menkljohn, and was both humorous and thought provoking. Mrs. Carl Reid gave a reading.

Mrs. Ernest Rowe gave an interesting demonstration on making bouquets from discarded plastic containers. She also showed a few other inexpensive articles for Christmas giving which are both useful and easy to make.

Mrs. Stanley Kerr conducted two short Christmas contests and names were drawn for the gift exchange and gifts distributed.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and the refreshment committee.

Ann Landers Airline Discounts Save Money, Not Time

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Why don't service men and women get treated better by the airlines? They risk their lives for our country and should be treated like privileged characters, instead they get flicked around.

Our nephew who is in the Navy came home for a few days. He couldn't make reservations because he was traveling on the military hush hush count. They kept him on standby for 12 hours and he arrived home exhausted.

Servicemen and women are the last to board the plane. They can get on only if seats are left over. Furthermore, they can be put off at any stop if a commercial passenger wants to get on. I've seen boys in uniform near tears when they were ordered off a plane halfway home. These poor kids must then wait for a plane with empty seats. Is this fair? — DISGUSTED AUNT.

DEAR AUNT: The military discount is an arrangement between the airlines and the government, designed to accommodate the maximum number of service people at the most economical rates.

Servicemen and women who travel at a substantial saving are told in advance that they might get bumped. If they don't want to risk it, they should pay the commercial rate and be assured of a seat.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My mother died five months ago. Her last wish was that I take my 23-year-old brother into our home.

My husband never got along with Kirk but it was he who said, "Yes, Mother, we will take Kirk. Don't worry."

Kirk agreed to pay us $17 a week for room and board and laundry. (He makes $88 a week.) He stopped paying after the first two months and we haven't seen a dime since.

Two months ago he took our car without permission. He wrecked it and now we are without a car.

Our two sons are afraid of Kirk. He's awfully mean to them. He wears my husband's clothes and has burned holes in our furniture because of his careless smoking habits.

I could write a book, but what's the use? My husband has been a saint but he's ready to leave if I don't get Kirk out of here. My mother's memory haunts me. After all, we promised. Please tell me what to do. — A WRECK.

* * *

DEAR WRECK: The Bible says you are your brother's keeper, but it doesn't say you should keep your brother until he burns your house down and destroys your marriage.

You fulfilled your promise to your mother when you took Kirk in. He made the arrangement impossible because of his miserable behavior. Throw the bum out.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Many people write to complain about a mother-in-law. My mother-in-law is a peach. It's my father-in-law I can't stand.

This man has never been wrong in his life. He is an authority on everything — knows better than the President of the United States and all his advisors what ought to be done. He reads lots and gets everything mixed up.

He is always telling me how to run my business although he could never make a success of his own. He inherited a fine company, ran it into the ground, and is now working for his former competitor.

I try to be respectful for my wife's sake, but it's rough. Any suggestions on how to tolerate him? — G_ rrrr.

* * *

DEAR G . . . rrrr: Your three best allies are two tin ears and a sense of humor. Keep the lid on for your wife's sake. You'll be glad you did.

* * *

If you have trouble getting along with your parents . . . If you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How To Get More Freedom." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Chinese Women Wear Baggy Slacks, Unfashionable Jackets

BY IAN McCRONE

NANKING (Reuters) — High fashion flew out of the window in China Oct. 1, 1949, and has never been allowed back.

Under communism, the women of China today form by far the world's biggest single market for baggy slacks and unfashionably cut jackets.

This former capital, where the silk-skirted Cheongsam was once the accepted dress for women, now is almost completely trousered.

Some of the women's cadres wear Western-style skirts, reminiscent of the mid-calf "new look" of the immediate post-Second World War years.

Many of the razzed coolie women wear patched shorts cut down from blue drill denims.

Women in general present a uniformly flat front to the world, use no make up, and wear their hair shingled or in braids.

Despite all this, some of them cannot conceal the fact that they are pretty.

While cotton cloth is still rationed, more and more colorful rayon and other synthetic fabrics now are available in shops and commune stores.

Just outside Nanking, a modern synthetic fibres plant is producing miles of spun rayon and artificial wool.

The silk mills of Hangchow are weaving thousands of yards of beautiful brocade every day.

But little of this ever finds its way into the wardrobes of the women of China, who seem to be unperturbed about the national shortage of dress.

Whether or not she is built for slacks, the Chinese working girl, in the factory, on the farm, in a governmental office or in the army, wears trousers.

If she is in the army, she will wear little black boots as well.

And the office girl may turn up in a pair of trousers which would have been all the rage at a present's natty pin-stripe suiting 20 years ago.

HOLIDAY EXPORTS

This lack of fashion consciousness is reflected in the garments which China makes for export.

In the main, they are dowdy, unexcitingly cut and—very serviceable.

The offerings for women are sometimes saved by the beauty of the hand-worked embroidery. But it seems wasted on such garments.

Children's clothes are more attractive perhaps because they do not date so fast.

A peddar of cosmetics, mud-packs or hair-sprays would be bankrupt in a week unless he succeeded in making a contract with the state to supply actresses, singers, acrobats and other stage performers who account for almost every bit of powder and paint seen in public.

Indian, Eskimo Dolls Sell Readily at Fair

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Cheddar cheese, Indian and Eskimo dolls, Arctic char and "tons" of home-cooked pastry and baked goods featured Canada's sell-out contribution to the 16th YWCA International Food Fair here.

A cheque for $1,125 has been turned over to the YWCA to further its work in 70 countries.

The fair is the main annual event for Canada's colony of about 200 wives in the United States capital, drawn from diplomatic, military, press and business ranks.

Canada's specially - decorated booth was one of 20 established by various countries — Sweden, Greece, Ghana, Brazil, India, Pakistan and Australia among others.

Co-chairmen of the Canadian operation were Lola Kidd, wife of Canadian minister George Kidd, and Janet Piers, wife of Rear-Admiral Desmond Piers, head of Canada's joint military delegation.

SHOP EARLY

The fair has become enough of a capital institution now that many women shoppers make a point of doing early Christmas shopping there and Mrs. Lawrence Rockefeller flew from New York to fill four shopping bags with items—shredded wheat bread and a fish cook book were two from the Canadian display —before returning home in the afternoon.

Mrs. Kidd said Canada's supply of home-baked items remains one of the largest at the fair and, with Canadian cheese, is a sure-fire seller.

The northern affairs department donated 48 cans of Arctic char and 50 pounds of the smoked fish, while other private donations ranged from seafood to bacon, biscuits and canned Canadian products.

Inevitably, Eskimo dolls and coonskin dolls fashioned by Indians in the Manitwaki Quebec area, sold out quickly. At one end, Mrs. Kidd reported, even the cotton-Eskimo dolls used on the booth decoration—featuring a big silver maple leaf against a red backdrop—had gone.

CROWNED OUT QUEEN

CAPE TOWN (AP) — A bus driver won his appeal to the South African Supreme Court against a speeding conviction. He had been summonsed in the Queen's name and the chief of state has been the president, not the British monarch, since 1961.

ORNAMENTAL BELLS

Jolly Christmas bells,
Or New Year ring-a-dingers,
Hang 'em on your castle door
To welcome festive swingers!

And what else is so great?
Anyone can create these lovely holiday ornamental bells from odds and ends that are probably already in the house and garden right this very minute!

If it's curved bells you prefer, start out by cutting off the top third of a plastic bleach bottle — right on the line where the curved part ends (use a thick, short knife.) Bottles with handles, large or small, are the easiest with which to work. For stream lined straight - sided bells, half-pint ice cream cartons turn out delightfully . . . or choose a carton of the shape and size that you prefer.

When using bleach bottles, make a bell tongue by lowering a Christmas tree ball, sprig of mistletoe or holly branch down through the top opening on a piece of picture wire — fasten top end of wire neatly around grooved edge and replace cap.

Now cover whole bell shell with shiny aluminum foil right from the kitchen drawer. Gold foil is also attractive, or give your bells a really decorator touch by spraying them with gold paint — (a small can lasts for ages and covers dozens of articles).

Fasten the handles together with picture wire, and use the ends of the wire to secure a lovely pine bough, or a big red bow, or a Christmas corsage (all three if you like) right across the top. This finishing touch will look elegant, hide the wiring, and give us a means by which we can hang our beautiful bells. — SUSANNA

World Peace Corps Asked By Women

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United Nations was called on Monday to establish a world peace corps and a permanent UN office for international cooperation and development.

The request was contained in a report presented to Ambassador Paul Tremblay, Canada's permanent representative to the UN and this year's chairman of the UN committee for International Co-operation Year.

The report was presented to Mr. Tremblay by Mrs. Helen Tucker of Toronto, chairman of the women's international liaison committee for International Co-operation Year.

Mrs. Tucker headed a delegation to the UN consisting of representatives from 31 Western, Eastern and non-aligned countries.

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Two Canadian women will be in a party accompanying Henry R. Labouisse, executive director of the United Nations Children's Fund, to Oslo to receive the 1965 Nobel Prize for peace on behalf of the agency.

The prize, amounting to about $54,000, will be presented Friday.

The Canadians to represent the children's fund at the ceremony are Mrs. Adelaide Sinclair of Ottawa, now UNICEF's deputy executive director for programs, and Mrs. Margaret Konantz of Winnipeg, a member of the Canadian delegation to the UN and chairman of the Canadian UNICEF committee.

After Hundreds of Jumps Fear Is Always Present Says Novice at Game

By ANNE MASON

EDMONTON (CP) — Fear is as integral part of parachute-jumping and sky-diving, says Joyce Matthews, an office worker who took up the sport last year.

"Even after hundreds of jumps, veterans admit that fear is always present. We all agree this is the element that keeps the sport safe. No one ever gets so confident enough to take chances."

Even after three months of intensive ground training, which includes written exams and simulated jumps from high towers, the effect of the first jump is stunning, says Miss Matthews, 29-year-old native of London.

"I was more frightened than I'd ever been in my life. I got out of the plane all right and then wondered what I was doing there. You can't relate the sensation to anything else. You're completely on your own and don't hear a thing. You don't even have a falling sensation."

A parachutist hits the ground with an impact equal to that of falling out a second-storey window but only the "rush of air past your face" indicates you are hurtling toward earth at the rate of 14 feet a second, Miss Matthews says.

She took the Edmonton Parachute Club's training course for three months early in 1965. She included learning ground rules, emergency techniques and landing procedures, for example, how to land if high-tension wires cann t be avoided or if you come down in a treetop.

Miss Matthews put her training to good use on her second jump. She s t epped from a Cessna 172 at 3,000 feet and though she tried to manoeuvre toward the target she missed and landed gently atop a clump of trees.

"It's the most safety-conscious of sports," Miss Matthews says. "It has to be. The club maintains strict discipline as people won't jump with someone who takes chances. He may endanger your life."

If a member breaks any of the rules — not opening his ch before 2,000 feet, for instances—he can be grounded for a time.

Miss Matthews, a slender brunette, became interested in the sport when male colleagues at the office talked ceaselessly about jumping. She has jumped only four times, having suffered a back injury during her last jump.

But she is an enthusiastic ex perver and intends to continue parachuting and eventually learn sky-diving, a variation that involves intricate free-fall manoeuvres.

"It's an expensive sport costing about $4 a jump," she says. "But one of the nicest things about it is that you don't have to be an athlete. All you need is stamina and some co-ordination."

Air Canada Relaxes Some Regulations

WINNIPEG (CP) — Stewardesses who become wives and mothers will be able to continue their airborne careers with Air Canada.

But relaxation of the single-girls - only rule is not retroactive.

The new policy, which applies to 80 stewardesses based in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver, was announced Monday following negotiations between management and the Canadian Airlines Flight Attendants Association.

An Air Canada spokesman said:

"In cases of pregnancy, the stewardess will be given a leave of absence. She'll be allowed to return to work after she has her baby."

The change does not mean, however, that married girls will be hired as stewardesses.

"It doesn't even mean that the 80 former stewardesses who have since married," the spokesman said.

Susanna's Family Fare

MUNCHA, MUNCHA

Dear Susanna: Hope you're in the mood for refereeing a running argument that has been going on at our house all fall. This year, every member of our growing family has his own day meal either on the job or at school, but I can't induce any of them to keep a toothbrush with them and clean their teeth after lunch. They could do it just as naturally as washing their hands. But NO! They say it would be too embarrassing to stand over a public basin, cleaning their teeth. Did you ever hear of such utter nonsense? — Forever Mom

Theoretically, I agree with you 100 percent, mom. but even though I have often practised what you're preaching myself, I somehow never fail to feel like a thief in the night, and I always try to sneak the public place teeth cleaning bi in when no one is looking. Knowing how it makes me feel, I'm just about 99 and 44-100 percent sure that you're never going to threaten or cajole your family into submitting to your directive on this.

Medical researchers are more certain than ever, however, that they have come up with a pretty fair alternative. They say that a crisp juicy apple eaten directly after a meal provides an excellent substitute for the toothbrush, when eating away from home. Chewing an apple is especially beneficial to the young if eaten immediately after other food, and will help to keep teeth and gums in fine condition.

So give is a little on this one, Gal. Instead of trying to insist on brushing, settle for munching. — SUSANNA

Dear Susanna: Lately I have been keeping all plastic garment bags from the cleaners. They make good substance for filling in around parcels to be mailed and thus reducing the chance of breakage during shipment. — Mrs. G. Miners.

(If you have any hints for running a successful household — or any problems — write to Susanna, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope when requesting pamphlets.)

ORDERS BARRED WOMEN

VATICAN CITY (AP)—There is no chance of women becoming Roman Catholic priests, the Vatican daily L'Osservatore Romano reports. The paper said the early saints held the ordination of women was a heresy and "the traditional doctrine . . . retains today all its validity and irreformability."

PUT BITE ON DOGS

GARSON, Ont. (CP)—Municipal officials fear this town near Sudbury is going to the dogs—or, more accurately, the dogs are coming to the city. "Now that fall is here, I guess people just like to let the dogs run loose," said a councillor, voting for a rule that dogs will have to be tied up all year round.

Successful Living

Church Just a Frill For Some Weddings

DEAR DORIS: To Bride-to-Be: As a church organist, I would like to point out how many times I have heard ministers debate her proposal about allowing a church wedding to someone not a church member.

A church is, supposedly, the House of God. To church people, it is just that.

To Bride-to-Be, it is just a long aisle to be used as a show place for the staging of her "big wedding." Paying minister, organist and janitor do not give her the right to use the church for what is, to her, a secular event.

You can rent a hall in a hotel, set it up as you like, and show off your beautiful gowns, make-up and hairdos, to your heart's content. Or any minister will marry you quietly in his vestry. — ORGANIST.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR ORGANIST: Can't say I blame you. But what Man of God would not cherish the hope that by gracing the sacrament of marriage by holding it in a church, he makes the whole commitment more sacred and lasting for the Happy Couple?

* * *

DEAR DORIS: What are parents to do when their married children come home on visits and steal from their home? This hurts me terribly.

When they are gone I would find that some of my dish towels are missing. They take almost anything, like bath towels, pillowcases, even soap and groceries from shelves.

My husband and I don't know which one is doing the taking, but we are sure it's them because there is no one else here. — BAFFLED.

DEAR BAFFLED: Some married children I know just frankly help themselves — from the larder, from the china cabinet, from the linen closet! And Mother is so used to meeting their needs that she stands by and smiles.

Such is the reward of over-indulgence: young people who continue to impose. If your young people help themselves without telling you, they may be kidding themselves by saying they know you wouldn't mind.

Next time, when you miss something, ask about it. Ask if by any chance they packed those embroidered pillowcases by mistake. Perhaps they won't admit their light-fingered activities, but it might give them pause.

* * *

(Doris has studied human behavior and can shed light on your dilemma. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Last Four Vatican Council Decrees Proclaimed

Unanswered Questions Including Birth Control To Get Further Study

By GERALD MILLER

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul proclaimed the last four decrees of the Vatican ecumenical council today and said the questions they don't answer, such as birth control, will not be put aside after the three-year-long council ends Wednesday.

Bishops of the Roman Catholic Church took final formal votes on each of the decrees in a public council session in St. Peter's Basilica. All were approved and, controversial documents on religious liberty and modern world problems received bigger majorities than in earlier working sessions.

The declaration on religious liberty and a 36,000-word statement on modern world problems — denouncing nuclear warfare and keeping open the question of birth control — were milestones for the Roman Catholic Church. They committed it to a more open, more accommodating relationship with the world around it.

WAY LEFT OPEN

The modern world statement did not alter Roman Catholic teaching on birth control but left the way open for future changes.

Apparently alluding to this and other questions, Pope Paul said in a discourse:

"If quite a few questions raised during the course of the council itself still await appropriate answers, this shows that its labors are now coming to a close not out of vagueness but in a state of vitality. . . .

"In the post-conciliar period this vitality will apply, God willing, its generous and well-regulated energies to the study of such questions."

The council session was also historic in another respect. Pope Paul here and Patriarch Athenagoras in Istanbul made simultaneous declarations cancelling excommunications that led to the break between the Roman and Orthodox churches nine centuries ago.

The religious liberty declaration was approved 2,308 to 70.

A vote of 2,309 to 75 accepted the decree on modern world problems, titled "Pastoral Constitution on the Church in the Modern World.

In working sessions of the council, 251 prelates opposed the modern world document and 249 objected to the religious liberty declaration.

The other two decrees promulgated today were on missionary activity, approved 2,394 to 5, and on the priestly life, approved 2,390 to 4.

ROUNDS OUT PLAN

The four council decrees rounded out the vast modernization plan produced by the council since Pope John XXIII opened it Oct. 11, 1962. They brought to 16 the number of documents issued by the council.

Two decrees are without precedent. Never in the past has the church dedicated a conciliar document to the declaration that all men have the right to worship as they please. Never before has an ecumenical council undertaken statements on problems of the secular world.

Indicative of how the secular world has responded to the council was the stream of high-level envoys sent to Rome to represent their countries at the council today and at its closing ceremony.

The religious liberty declaration repeats the traditional teaching that Catholicism is the one true faith and that whoever believes this must embrace it. But it says no one must be forced to accept a faith in which he does not believe that religious freedom is more than a civil right, that governments are obliged to ensure religious freedom for all, that the parents have a right to give their children a religious education and a right to share in whatever school subsidies governments make available.

A HIGH POINT

For many non-Catholic Christians this declaration marks a high point for the council's Christian unity program.

The modern world decree sets forth attitudes for Catholics toward non-church issues, and its scope touches to some degree all people everywhere.

It states that all forms of racial, social and religious discrimination must be crushed.

It calls for a prudent dialogue between Roman Catholicism and atheism. Ignoring demands of a conservative bloc at the council, it does not condemn communism. In fact, it makes clear that the dialogue must be with Communists as well as other non-believers.

On war and peace the document asserts that legitimate self-defence cannot be denied nations. But it warns against the dangers to the world of stockpiling nuclear weapons.

CALLS FOR RESPECT

It insists on the need for progressive, controlled and guaranteed disarmament, and it calls for attitudes of consideration and respect for sincere conscientious objectors.

On marriage and birth control the decree reminds Catholics that they must not use artificial contraception.

Highlights of Vatican Council Document

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Highlights of the Vatican ecumenical council's document Pastoral Constitution on the Church in the Modern World, promulgated today:

Marriage and the family—Marriage is not only an institution for procreation but also is an indissoluble pact between persons, requiring mutual love. Nuptial love is purified by sheer pleasure-seeking, divorce and "so - called free love."

Birth control—Roman Catholics must not use those methods of birth control forbidden by the church. A footnote calls attention to papal teachings against artificial contraception but notes that "further diligent study is still needed" on the matter.

War and peace—The right of legitimate defence cannot be denied to governments as long as there is no international authority with sufficient means to maintain the peace. However, total war with the destruction of entire cities and regions must be condemned. There must be progressive, controlled and guaranteed disarmament.

Discrimination—All forms of racial, social and religious discrimination must be crushed. Man has the right to select his way of living and his work, to found a family, to religious liberty.

Atheism—Its causes must be studied and eliminated. There can be a prudent dialogue between Christians and non-believers. (There is no mention of communism, but a footnote recalls past papal denunciations of communism.)

Social and economic life—Farmers have a right to a just income and should be assisted. Nations should seek international monetary stability so that none suffer. Advanced nations must aid developing countries. Private property must be protected but must not be used against the common good. Labor unions can strike as a last resort. Citizens have the right and duty to vote providing they can exercise their vote freely.

Education—Parents have a right to educate their children according to their own religious beliefs. Education must be adapted to the needs of the times. Children have a right to a moral education and to be helped to develop their talents.

Culture—Christ's message must not be kept from people who live outside the church. Christians must live in close contact with the world of culture.

Economics and politics—Economic development must be controlled by man, not by economic and political systems or by the pressure of groups seeking profit. Political parties must promote the common good and not their own interests.

Peace and war—Nuclear war must be condemned. Governments must be forced to outlaw war. Arms races must be stopped. Disarmament must be controlled and guaranteed.

Relations with other religions—The church has a great respect for Moslems and worships the same God as they do. The church has a great love for the Jewish people. The church rejects no one who seeks truth and goodness.

Missionary activity—The church has the right to preach the gospel everywhere. Missionaries must be prudent and wise, adapting themselves to the people they are trying to convert. They must not use methods that will be offensive to their hearers. They must not use political influence or economic power to win converts.

Priestly life—Priests must be trained to be pastors of souls and to be able to communicate with the world. They must be taught to work together and to live a common life. They must be taught to be obedient to their bishops.

Religious life—Religious orders must be renewed and adapted to the needs of the times. Religious must live in poverty, chastity and obedience.

Ecumenism—The church must promote unity among Christians. Catholics must be taught to understand the doctrines of other Christians. Catholics must be taught to be ecumenical.

Lay apostolate—Laymen have the right and duty to work for the spread of the church. They must be trained to do this.

Mixed marriages—Mixed marriages must be protected against the danger of indifference. The Catholic party must declare his faith and promise to do all he can to have his children baptized and educated in the Catholic faith.

Liturgy—Latin must be preserved in the Roman rite but the vernacular may be used more widely. Priests may concelebrate Mass.

Bishops—Bishops must be chosen with the help of the people they will serve. They must be pastors, not bureaucrats. They must be concerned with all the people in their dioceses, not just Catholics.

Ecumenical councils—Ecumenical councils must be held regularly.

Time, Money and Peace Key To Mozambique Development

Portuguese Mozambique is one of the few African lands where white rulers have managed to withstand the tide of black nationalism. The question of how long they can remain dominant is explored in this story by a Canadian Press reporter.

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LOURENCO MARQUES (CP) The Portugese doctor stood in the glaring Mozambique sun at the airport terminal here and declared with conviction:

"Give us just three things—time, money and peace—and I'll meet you here 20 years from today."

That was one long-time resident's judgment on the future of Portuguese rule in Africa—but the trouble is that Lisbon is short on precisely the three things he mentioned.

On money, it was significant that the doctor opened the conversation by wondering aloud—somewhat tardiously — why the United States does not give development aid to Portuguese Mozambique as it does to black-ruled countries.

Regarding time, the winds of change are blowing here as elsewhere. As for peace, guerrilla strife has been raging spasmodically in this southeast African territory for more than a year, following bloodier fighting on the other side of the continent, in Portuguese Angola.

"We have 100,000 Portuguese soldiers in Angola and Mozambique at present," said a government informant. "We would need 100,000 in Mozambique alone if the province was really in revolt."

LAST COLONIAL POWER

The size of those figures underlines the vastness of tiny Portugal's stake in Africa, where its possessions are 23 times the size of the homeland and embrace a population of nearly 12,500,000.

While other imperial powers have been surrendering their empires, Portugal has maintained its grip. Now, 505 years after the death of Prince Henry the Navigator and the birth of Vasco da Gama—in whose two lifetimes much of the Portuguese empire was established—Portugal is not only the oldest but the biggest and last of the great European colonial powers.

For a Canadian analogy, Angola Mozambique and Portuguese Guinea, an enclave in former French West Africa, are in total about twice the size of Ontario.

To Lisbon, however, the territories are not colonies but "overseas provinces," equal with regions of Portugal itself in concept somewhat similar to that of France toward its former North African colony, Algeria.

But Joao Augusto Silva, Mozambique information director, said there is no real parallel with Algeria, which won its independence despite the efforts of a 450,000 - man French army.

MIX WITH NATIVES

Portugal's policies, he said, are based on a proper concept of human dignity and a system of "living, mixing with the natives." There was no distinction of color or creed. The objective was shared, non-racial culture as had been achieved in Brazil, which declared its independence from Portugal more than 130 years ago.

In contrast, the "French in Algeria were always French and the Algerians were always Algerians."

Portugal is often accused of turning a face of stony defiance to criticism of its policies but the government claims it has given significant new scope to African aspirations in political, educational and economic matters in recent years.

"The franchise is the same as in Portugal, that is, universal adult suffrage based on being either literate, or a taxpayer or a householder," says the government.

EUROPE'S LAST HOLD IN AFRICA—Portugal's African empire, more than 500 years old, is the biggest and the last of the European colonial holdings in Africa. Legally, Mozambique and Angola, 23 times the size of mother country, are overseas provinces of Portugal and everyone, black or white, is a Portuguese citizen at birth. But guerilla strife has been raging spasmodically for more than a year near the borders of Tanzania and Malawi. (CP Newsmap)

Critics cite Portugal's own high rate of illiteracy and the dictatorial rule of Premier Antonio Salazar as stumbling blocks in Mozambique's advance.

Reforms mean that, as before, every baby black or white is a Portuguese citizen at birth. But a black citizen no longer has to achieve certain standards of education and culture before the full rights of citizenship are conferred upon him.

These rights include the privilege of paying income tax, which was one of several reasons why under the old system the number of "assimilados" increased extremely slowly. A black citizen now must choose whether to live under native law and custom, submitting to the court of his tribal chief, or under Portuguese law—and income tax.

REBELS SEE VICTORY

Mozambique now sends seven representatives to the national assembly at Lisbon as well as having its own governor-general and legislative council nine of whose members are elected by universal suffrage, the remaining six being elected from within various corporate organizations, such as labor unions and business groups.

Silva scoffed at a claim by Eduardo C. Mondlane, chief of the Front for the Liberation of Mozambique — FRELIMO — that Portugal's hold would be broken within five years in the territory of 6,800,000 population, including 150,000 Europeans.

Mondlane, interviewed at his headquarters in Dar es Salaam, capital of neighboring Tanzania, had told this reporter Portugal was keeping down a rebellious population by terror tactics.

But Silva countered that the shoe is on the other foot—Frelimo tries to intimidate villagers and conscript young men into the rebel forces for training in Tanzania and Algeria. Mondlane had said the training was done within Mozambique.

Silva maintained that Frelimo members, crossing from Tanzanian bases in the north, sometimes disguised in Portuguese uniforms, had managed to kill only 20 Portuguese soldiers sand 100 "natives" in 10 months.
